Eastman and Engineer Robinson, of this city, made narrow escapes with their lives. The two firemen, named Crenshaw and Brinkman, both of Evansville, together with two roustabouts, were lost with the boat. Frankfort, Ky., May 18.—A clash between Lieut. Shackleford, a United States army officer, who opened a recruiting station here a few days ago, and Capt. Fred Gordon, of the Kentucky state guards, has raised an issue which will be referred to the war department at Washington. Among the recruits enlisted by Lieut. Shackleford were Privates Payne and Luckett, of the local state guard company and Capt. Gordon refused to allow them to accompany the recruiting officer, claiming that they could not be taken out of the state guard except by consent of the state military authorities. The two men are, in consequence, locked up in the armory and Lieut. Shackleford has closed the recruiting station with the announcement that he will lay the matter, including Capt. Gordon's conduct in arresting the parties, before the war department at once.

The bill is already being prepared. It will be fashioned after the Percy bill of New York and will provide a state commission to control racing. It will allow 30 days only to each track. A state legislator, whose name is withheld, is working on the measure.

Friday evening, May the 24, Bro. R. C. Moss' Baccalaureate Sermon to the graduates at the Baptist church, last Sunday, was the best effort he has ever made here. There was a large congregation, all anxious to honor the winner of the Interstate collegiate prize for oratory. Bro Moss was for some time the pastor of the Christian church here, and was very much gratified by the hearty greeting of everybody—sinners as well as saints.

Nearly all the stores have been equipped with the Air Light machines, and it is a real pleasure to go round at night and note the improvement in W. B. Norman's, T. F. Curley's, Edwards Bros.', I. Kahn's, R. W. Jones', and Eskew's stores. From there north, taking in A. M. Edwards' livery stable, the out door lights illuminate the streets so that there is no difficulty in recognizing persons across the street until the stores close, when the cimmerian "darkness" envelopes everything with electric speed. Maybe it will stimulate our citizens to an effort to have the other parts of the town lighted.

It is drawing it rather mild to say the appointment of John M. Lassing to the position of Circuit Judge has given great satisfaction. The county always rolls up an increased democratic majority as election succeeds election, yet it has not been honored since the time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, with the larger sugar plums distributed by popular favor, and now that we have an opportunity of showing what kind of metal we have, the time is coming when her sons will show themselves in the front rank for the highest offices. In John M. Lassing we shall find an able and comprehensive mind that will reflect credit upon the high position to which he has been chosen.

MIDWAY.—Geo. W. Ossman and wife, and Merit Jack and wife were visiting at W. C. Johnson's, last Sunday.

Miss Kate Baker's spring school closed, last week at Beaver. She taught a good school, very satisfactory to both pupils and patrons.

Miss Maud McLaughlin, one of Covington's prettiest and most fascinating young ladies, is visiting her grandparents at the Clay House at the Springs.

J. Mit Baker and family took advantage of the pretty weather, Sunday, and enjoyed an excursion down the Ohio river and return, on the elegant mail line steamers.

Miss Katie Green, our accommodating "hello" girl, at the Beaver Lick exchange, in company with G. Weed Steel, were visiting friends at Crittenden, Saturday and Sunday.

Quite a number of our young ladies and gentlemen attended the dedicatory services of the Catholic church at Erlanger, Sunday, and report a splendid time. There being an immense crowd present.

There is great complaint among the farmers about the scarcity and smallness of the tobacco plants in this community, very few being able to set out the ground they intended to under the most favorable circumstances.

Dr. T. H. Baker, P. M., at Louisville, and by the way, an old Boone county boy, while visiting his old friend, J. M. Parker, recently, on the headwaters of Broken branch, purchased a very fine young horse of R. Lee Huey for $150.

We hasten to congratulate our worthy young County Attorney, J. M. Lassing, on his appointment to fill the vacancy created by the death of our esteemed Judge, J. W. Greene, and believe him an administration of judicial affairs creditable to himself and people.

Mr. Snyder, of Covington, visited Walton last week, in the interest of a syndicate which intends to [illegible] the entire Springs proper.

Died, Sunday, May 19th, 1901, Mr. Meredeth C. Carroll, of a complication of diseases, in the 37th year of his age. He had been a patient sufferer, nursed and attended by his devoted wife for many months. After an able funeral discourse delivered by Rev. Willard Cramm, Wednesday, the burial was conducted by the Odd-Fellows, the remains being laid to rest in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends, at the beautiful Hughes Chapel Cemetery. The deceased has a wife and four children to mourn his loss, a grievous one to them, yet they have the heartfelt sympathy of this entire community. Meredith Carroll was a man of defined convictions and strong will power, and was ever actively engaged in the business affairs of his neighborhood, and will be greatly missed in this community.

Old Soldier's Experience.

M. M. Austin, a civil war veteran, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "My wife was sick a long time in spite of good doctor's treatment, but was wholly cured by Dr. King's New Life Pills, which worked wonders for her health." They always do. Try them. Only 25c at W. F. McKims; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels, B grade, with celebrated Gotier steel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Winchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and pattern, which I claim has no equal. Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them bursting out, something I guarantee my work not to do.

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters buffed, not split, roof and curtains 80 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be somethiug neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 69, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of T. J. Childress' toll-gate. H. G. COLLINS,

FLOWERS FOR THE BRAVE

THERE are blossoms in the clover,
there is music in the pines,
And a wealth of buds is failing o'er the brave
blue-coated lines,
And the muffled drum is beating,
and one flag in glory waves
Where the sunshine robes in Splendor's garb a multitude of graves;
To the music of the river as it flows unvexed and free,
Bearing outward to the nations Freedom's latest prophecy.
March a people, Fame's descendants, with the summer's sweetest bloom,
Which the dew shall crown with glory on the hero's silent tomb.

In the sunburst of the morning, every loyal heart is thrill,
Come the echoes of the muskets that were heard at Bunker Hill;
And the roses and the lilies in the shadow and the shine
Lie on the breasts of those who stood one day at Brandywine;
'Neath the hemlocks and the cedars, 'neath the vines that greet the sun,
The Continentals sleep beside the Men of '61;
And the country, reunited by a love that can't be told,
Sees the modest flower blooming in the cannon ruts of old.

Down the street, beloved by thousands, march the vet'rans, old and gray—
The comrades of the brave who rest this fair Memorial day;
And they bring May's sweetest blossoms to the boys who with them stood,
Where often raged the battle fierce deep in the Southern wood;
No more the ringing bugle blast, no more the cannon's roar,
No more the gloomy picket post along the ghostly shore;
But side by side this sacred day beneath the spreading tree,
With elbows touching, silent stand the men of Grant and Lee.

Columbia walks the guarded aisles with soft and holy tread
Where fall the shades of Arlington above her hero dead;
Not long ago she stood and heard the dirge's mournful strain
O'er those who came in martial shrouds from Cuba's sun-kiss'd plain;
And from her hands the brightest bloom that decks the field and wold
Falls gently on the bosoms of the tender and the bold;
And silent tears are falling from the farthest northern pine
To where the golden orange hangs above the ocean's line.

Bring the fairest of the blossoms to recrown the hero's tomb!
For this kind nature proudly yields the splendor of her bloom;
The skies are bright above us and the river sings its lay,
One Flag, one Country and one Love the Nation knows to-day;
We crown the humblest and the great, alike the flowers fall
With prayer and love and gratitude upon the breasts of all;
Ah, me! The drums are beating, for the flowers have been spread,
And we march to newer grandeur from the bivouac of our dead.

—T. C. Harbaugh, in Ledger Monthly.

"UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER"

Story of the Blue and the Gray

LARISSA was absurdly unreasonable! Even grandfather, who adored her, was forced to admit that. Aunt Frances used to shake her dear, white head, and sigh mildly. "The child has stayed abroad too long," she would say. "Her brain is filled with old-world notions. Conditions have changed, and America has grown too fast for her."

But when they attempted to remonstrate with Clarissa, that imperious young person would get into a towering rage.

"Then there is no such thing as principle?" she would inquire, with withering sarcasm. "You didn't lose most of your property to the marauding northerners! You weren't forced to come from your own dear Maryland to this cold, bleak New England! You didn't bring your slaves along, after you had freed them of your own accord! Although most of them insisted upon remaining with you—to their credit. You're not my Grandfather Colonel because of your bravery at Antietam! You didn't sacrifice your only son, my father, to the lost cause! His death didn't kill my grandmother and my mother! Oh, no! I must have dreamed it all!"

"My dear! my dear!" grandfather would remonstrate, sadly. "God knows I acted as I thought best; perhaps I was mistaken. But conditions are changed, and it is the part of wisdow to conform to them."

"But the principle remains the same, grandfather!" would be the proud response; and Clarissa would weep a few obstinate tears upon the silky hair of Fifine, the French poodle which she had brought from abroad, and which, all told, was a most detestable little beast. "Fifine, darling, we belong to the Owings family, of Maryland, don't we, pet? And what do we think of the star-spangled banner?" and then Fifine would snarl and whine viciously, while her pretty mistress caressed and encouraged her.

Grandfather was distressed, but he was forced to smile at the absurdity of it all. "To be a rebel has gone out of fashion, my dear," he would say, deprecatingly; but Clarissa continued to regard herself as an alien, to heap fresh flowers daily before the picture of her beloved Winnie Davis, as before a shrine; to quote Father Ryan's stanzas upon the lost cause, and to defy the Lees and other heroes of the confederacy.

She was 23 now, and she had been at schools in France and England since she was 12, shortly after her father's death, and that of her mother, which quickly followed. As Aunt Frances said, America had grown too fast for her.

There had been many changes in the neighborhood during her absence. On what had been Grandmother Owings' old-fashioned flower garden a handsome modern dwelling had been erected, and the two families used the dividing driveway in common. Down this driveway, several times each day, an athletic young man was wont to go, laden with golf sticks, riding a wheel, armed with gun or fishing tackle, or erect upon the back of a spirited black horse, which from the first had been Fifine's especial detestation. As in another celebrated and classical case, the neighborhood caused their acquaintance in the first steps of love. Even England and France could produce no more splendid specimen of manhood than was Robert Hale, as Clarissa was forced to admit to her unwilling self.

Perhaps that was why the winter which followed her home-coming

A FLAG, WHICH HE PROCEEDED TO RUN UP THE STAFF.

proved such a pleasant one. As the weeks went by there was joy in both households over the very evident interest which the young people took in each other. They were not aware of the plans for their future which Aunt Frances so frequently discussed with Robert's widowed mother. In fact, they were not conscious of much beyond the joy of living, of propinquity, of the sympathy and understanding which existed between them, of a community of tastes and interests. Together they marveled at the miracle of life through death, in opening bud, and leaf, and flower; but so far no word of love had been spoken between them. They were young; there was no need of haste. It was the springtide of life, as well as the springtide of the year. But—

Hard if these
And so they did:

And one heart's flower-dust into the other slid.

That Clarissa, imperious and exacting with all others, should be sweetly submissive to him, was, in itself, the most subtle flattery. When Robert Hale heard her opinions and comments upon the causes of a contest which was fast becoming merely a tradition, he only smiled indulgently, lenient to them, as he would have been lenient to any whimsical fancies on the part of the woman whom he loved.

The first clashing of their wills came late in the spring, when Robert was offered and accepted the office of captain of the newly-organized company of Sons of Veterans. He was surprised and amused at the imperiousness with which Clarissa drew herself up, proud as another Juno, and condemned his act.

"No man could offer me a more deadly hurt!" she announced, tragically. "My father was wounded at the battle of Belmont. Those wounds ultimately caused his death. Who knows that your very father wasn't the northerner who shot him!"

"And my father was wounded at Petersburg," was the solemn response. "For the rest of his life he went around with only one arm. It seems like your father might have fired the shot which deformed one of the handsomest men that ever lived."

She knew that he was purposely mimicking her affected use of the southern like; but she would not unbend. He leaned his arm over Black Don's glossy neck, and regarded her mischievously.

"What an irony of fate, Clarissa!" he said, teasingly, as he stood gazing at her with a fondness which she haughtily ignored. "How ever did it happen that you should have the blue eyes, while mine should be the gray?"

As Memorial day approached, however, the breach between them grew undeniably serious. The older members of both households smiled, and shook their heads knowingly, and moralized on the inevitableness of lovers' quarrels. Aunt Frances rashly took it upon herself to remonstrate with her niece, for Robert was her special favorite, and she could not bear to have him made unhappy by Clarissa's caprices. She was unprepared, however, for the rebuff which she met.

"Please don't ever mention Mr. Hale's name to me again, Aunt Frances," I have found him out—an advantage which I appreciate. Better to know his faults now than when it might be too late!"

But Clarissa was by no means happy in what she glorified as her adherence to principle. She was fearfully and pathetically lonely, and she tried not to hear when the black horse and his rider dashed down the driveway on their way to the drills and parades, which became so frequent with the nearness of Memorial day.

The misunderstanding had deepened now; for there had been other and bitter words, and each studiously avoided looking in the direction of the other when they met, which was but rarely.

Fair as a garden of the Lord was the countryside upon the morning of Memorial day; but Clarissa could see no beauties in nature as she moped in the sewing-room which overlooked the driveway, confiding her unhappiness to petted, snarling Fifine.

Out at the stable the groom was putting the saddle on Black Don—for the coming parade, she knew; and presently Robert appeared at the side door carrying a flag, which he proceeded to run up the staff on the lawn.

"How handsome he looks in his uniform;" the girl meditated with bitterness, as she peered through the sash curtains in jealous inspection of his every movement. "Horrid thing! It wouldn't hurt him to at least glance in this direction!"

But Robert was evidently too busy; and it irritated the watcher as he began to whistle softly, and then to sing in an absent-minded fashion, as he bent over a knot in the halyards:

"There's just one girl in the world for me!"

Oh, was she the girl? Clarissa asked herself feverishly; but there was no one to answer the question only Fifine, who yawned lazily and snapped at the lace upon her mistress' sleeves.

"I could be happy forever with just one girl!"

Robert kept on singing with cruel unction as he stood back and watched the folds of Old Glory unfurl, as they blew out from the mast-head, catching the soft May breeze. Then Clarissa could bear it no longer. She buried her face in the couch cushions and found refuge in that relief for all feminine woes—a good cry; while Fifine, disturbed in her morning nap, whined dismally.

Such an exasperating day as it proved! There were bands and military companies, and everywhere the stars and stripes were flying. Grandfather was in bed, suffering from a new ache in his wounded shoulder—a memory of Antietam; and this furnished the girl a pretext for keeping all the shutters closed and making theirs the only dismal house along the avenue as the parade went by. With white face and set lips she hid behind the blind, and sadly followed with tearful eyes the erect figure of Capt. Hale as he rode past at the head of his company.

"Oh, Fifine!" she murmured, sorrowfully. "I always knew that he was proud. But at least he might have glanced at the house, if not at me!"

It was evening when she heard him return. Black Don was proud, though weary after the heat and confusion of the day, and turned slowly in between the high stone gate posts of the driveway—and then, well, Clarissa never knew exactly how it happened; but of a sudden there was a mad rush of a little white bundle of silky hair from the porch, the defiant yaps and snarls of Fifine as she snapped at the black horse's feet, and Capt. Hale, caught off his guard, had been thrown by the shying horse, striking his head against the cruel edge of the big stone post. That was the last of which Clarissa was conscious. Then, for the first time in her 23 healthy years, she fainted.

That fact remains yet her own inviolable secret; for nobody remembered her during the excitement which followed. After a time she "came to," and, athletic golf girl that she was, felt properly ashamed of her own weakness. Then it was that she learned the worst. Malicious Fifine had frightened Black Don, and Capt Hale was ingloriously lying on the library couch, with his right arm in splints, and an ugly gash upon his right temple.

"He must not die until he has forgiven me!" Clarissa cried hysterically to Aunt Frances, as she unceremoniously bundled her willing relative across the intervening driveway and the lawns to the Hale mansion, where all was sorrow at the mishap which had followed the glorious beginning of the day.

Clarissa expected reproaches from Robert Hale's mother, but instead she received a tender kiss and a caress, and the two elder women considerately remained in the reception hall, while the penitent girl went half-reluctantly into the library, where, in the subdued light, she discerned the stricken hero propped up among sofa pillows on the couch—it must be confessed more prone to be profane, with all a strong man's impatience of pain, than to feel complacent over any hero-worship which might fall to his lot.

But when he recognized Clarissa—ah, that was another story! And he was craftily moved to magnify his hurt, and to work upon her tender sympathies, until—well, in a lovers' quarrel the angle of reflection is always equal to the angle of incidence. In an incredibly short time that wicked Robert had become surprisingly cheerful, especially since Clarissa's face was somehow very near his own, and his heart was melting to feel her tears upon his cheek, and she was softly calling him "dear," and whispering out her penitence.

He was amazed to hear her confess, sorrowfully: "I have been a wicked and an unreasonable girl! And to prove how repentant I am, Robert, I am—just—going—to—make—the supreme sacrifice for you!"

"Sweetheart! What?" he inquired in wonder.

"I—am—going—to—give — Fifine—away! That is, when I can find a good home for her, you know!"

Capt Hale laughed, but only mentally.

"Not a bit of it, dearest!" he declared. "Why, I owe that little beast an unbounded debt of gratitude! She's brought about a victory bigger than—than—Gettysburg, Clarissa!"

This was a mischievous thrust, but the girl was too much in earnest to notice or resent it.

"A victory won by force of arms—or rather of an arm," the malicious fellow continued, doing yeoman service with the uninjured member. "You are mine, aren't you, you little rebel?"

Her tears had suddenly ceased to flow now, and she was smiling, though somewhat pathetically, and unlike the familiar, proud Clarissa.

"I suppose I must acknowledge myself vanquished," she sighed, "as my ancestors did! And that I must surrender!" she added, with no particular evidence of resentment or regret.

"Unconditional surrender?" he questioned, half believing her admission too good to be true.

"Unconditional surrender, Capt. Hale!" she replied, submissively.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

HONOR THE HEROES.

It Is Fitting That We Should Cherish the Memory of Those Who Died for Their Cause.

If Egypt built pyramids to honor the memory of her tyrannical kings, it is fitting that America should keep green the memory of those who died in defense of the liberty our ancestors won by battling against a king. What other nation has such good cause for honoring its heroes as America?

We would have our children learn the lesson of patriotism which comes from the bivouac, the tedious march and the battlefield. We would have them emulate the self-sacrifice of those men who so cheerfully left the office, the shop, the counting-room or the plow to show their loyalty by fighting, if need be, dying, for their country. Whether they fought beneath the stars and stripes or beneath the southern cross, they fought for what they conceived to be the right, and sealed their loyalty with their blood.

The destinies of nations are shaped by those who fight and die at their country's call. History is written in the blood of the brave and the true. But the manhood of a nation is formed by the hand that rocks the cradle. So long as American mothers teach their sons that the greatest possible privilege and the highest honor is to fight for country, its safety and its honor, so long shall we have a nation in which honor, chivalry, glory and patriotism shall dominate. Would we check the greed for wealth and power and stop the mad career of a mammon worship, let us encourage the cultivation of high ideals and lofty ambitions. Let us cherish the memory of our dead heroes, and while we minister to the necessities of the living let us not forget the dead, but as each recurring Memorial day rolls round let us scatter flowers above the sacred dust and renew our tributes of admiration and gratitude.—Gen. Joseph Wheeler, in Detroit Free Press.

Honoring the Soldier Dead.

The heroism of those whose graves we decorate, whether they be "The boys of '61" or the "Boys of '98," is one of the bright jewels in the diadem that crowns the brow of American liberty. It is part of the heritage of every child born beneath our flag. Therefore, in honoring the men who died for the flag we add to the inheritance of the millions yet to come, for in giving testimony to the courage and loyalty of the men who sleep in soldiers' graves, we enhance the nation's glory and render the name of American citizen of still more priceless value.—Detroit Free Press.

First Observed Memorial Day.

Alabama was the first state to inaugurate the annual custom of observing a day as sacred to the memory of their dead heroes.

Life is a lamp flame before a wind.

THE HANNA BOOM.

Perry Heath's Paling Effort to Become Known as the Original Booster.

Hon. Perry S. Heath, one time first assistant postmaster general, has begun early his preparations for the campaign of 1904 and has just launched a little presidential boom. It slid off the ways into the water of the political sea without making a tremendous splash. The name offered to the said boom is Mark Hanna. The boom was launched in a peculiar manner—slid off the ways sideways, as it were, after the fashion of launching boats on the Clyde. Mr. Heath by way of preliminary declared his belief that Mr. Hanna could get the nomination easier and be elected easier than any other man in the United States. Then Mr. Heath says:

"The people have an erroneous idea of Mr. Hanna; regard him simply as a campaign manager and a rich man who has inherited wealth—anything but the statesman a president ought to be."

This estimate of the distinguished Ohioan Mr. Heath declares to be quite erroneous. The people at large don't know Mr. Hanna, he insists, and so he starts out at once on what is evidently to be a campaign of introduction. Five years, Mr. Heath says, he has enjoyed the "closest intimacy" with Mr. Hanna, and has seen him tackle problems that have staggered old stagers and solve them so easily as to astonish everybody. This reminds one of Cap'n Cuttle's comment on the astuteness of Sol Gills, the old instrument maker. Telling of what the "man of science" could do, he exclaimed: "Why, he could make a clock! And that clock would go, too, Lor'! how that clock would go!"

But Mr. Heath must find stronger arguments than this before Mr. Hanna can be elected, or even nominated. It has taken five years of "close intimacy" to bring Mr. Heath to this way of thinking. What chance, then, for the people at large to become convinced that Hanna is the right man for president. No, Mr. Hanna will not do, and those who manage the affairs of the republican party will not be foolish enough to consider him seriously in connection with the nomination. He would be one of the easiest candidates to defeat that could be selected. A man who has borne the relation which Hanna has, in the public mind, at least, to two administrations, is never the man to be nominated for the presidency—if you want to win. Hanna himself realizes that he is "not available," and when Mr. Heath made a suggestion of the possibility of his being nominated Mr. Hanna is said to have remarked: "Don't talk nonsense!" only he said it "a little more so" than that. That's mighty good advice. We fear that Mr. Heath will not accomplish much beyond putting himself on record as the original Hanna man.—Utica Observer.

THIRD TERM FOR M'KINLEY.

An Unwritten Law Against Such an Event Which Will Not Be Overridden.

Some of the newspapers are drawing the inference from the hospitable and, at times, effusive welcome the president has been receiving all along the route on his present tour that he will construe the character of these demonstrations as an indication that a third term is possible for him and trim his electioneering sails accordingly.

This conclusion might be warranted, if only the surface of things were taken into consideration in forming a judgment about so important a matter, but happily there is opposed to it the past history of the country, the unwritten law, and Mr. McKinley is hardly fatuous enough to attempt to override this law.

Beside, he would encounter from the leaders of his own party no less difficult an obstacle should he lend himself to a third term idea than the one just stated. There are too many republican politicians now managing the machinery of their party who are hungering and thirsting for a first term to allow any one of their number to run a third one.

No republican was ever stronger politically than Gen. Grant. If he could not with his great military prestige and the credit of having saved the union from destruction secure a third-term nomination, it is hardly possible that Maj. McKinley would be able to do so.

In this connection, the New Orleans Picayune recalls and reprints a resolution adopted by congress in December, 1875, more than a year before Gen. Grant concluded his second term. It was intended to forestall any third-term movement and read as follows: "Resolved, That in the opinion of this house, the precedent established by Washington and other presidents in retiring from the presidential office after their second term has become, by universal concurrence, a part of our republican system of government, and that any departure from this time-honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

The vote on this resolution stood 234 to 18. If President McKinley should, as we think unlikely, attempt to break the established rule, he will find public sentiment as decisively against any such unprecedented infraction as it was when Gen. Grant was president and when he was subsequently a candidate, and was overwhelmingly defeated at the Chicago convention that nominated Garfield. — Kansas City Times.

——Mark Hanna is reported as being generally tickled over his presidential boom. If Teddy Roosevelt is also tickled he has not yet said so.—St. Louis Republic.

TO REDUCE THE TARIFF.

Growth of the Idea Among Republicans That There Has Been Too Much Protection.

Discussing Vice President Roosevelt's reference to the success of the tariff, the Hartford Courant mentions tin plate as a "striking illustration of the development that a protective tariff can accomplish." It recalls that free traders greeted the idea of a protective tariff on tin plate with derisive howls. This may be so. Free traders do not monopolize wisdom. They are made up of poor, erring mortals, just as protectionists are, but as a general proposition we do not know that anyone denied that protection, if sufficient, could accomplish its purpose. To use the often-used illustration, we may raise bananas in Minnesota with sufficient protection. But has not the tin plate argument proved too much? It has undoubtedly been a great thing for the tin plate trust, and some Indiana citizens have become multimillionaires because of it; but if the whole history of the industry were written, and it were possible to count the cost, could it be said that the tin plate tariff was wise?

This is the whole question as to protection. It is not whether it can accomplish the thing in view, but whether it may not, in the words of the proverb, make us pay "too dear for our whistle," and whether an enterprising people would not, in the long run, prosper more greatly by the development that they would naturally make. But this, too, is merely academic, for we have protection; have had it in the modern sense since the civil war. If we get back to the original sense only we may be thankful, and there are signs of promise in that direction. Thus the Courant says:

"It would have been well if Mr. Roosevelt had carried his felicitations a step further and had pointed out that protective tariffs are a means to an end and that, when a protected interest reaches such prosperity and growth as to build up a trust and control the markets of the country, then protection has done its work and should be removed from that particular industry. The purpose of protection is to enable an industry to establish itself so that it can get along without protection. When it reaches that point, then there is no further need of protection. There is no question that establishing a trust to control the whole country is evidence conclusive that the 'infant industry' period has passed. And there is no doubt that certain industries still benefited by heavy protective tariffs are combined in trusts, and are using the tariff to make America pay more than the rest of the world for goods and to add to their own ample profits. This will not be tolerated after it is understood."

Thus the idea is growing that in many directions there has been protection too much, and the time has come when it must be abated. This necessarily involves the recognition of the doctrine of protection, that the republican party originally espoused—protection as a means toward free trade, as a temporary expedient, not as a permanent policy.

It is already a matter of general observation that the republican party will be compelled to abate the tariff. The effort will not be easy nor will success crown it at first. The self-interest that has secured the tariff will be strong to maintain it, but with the opposition at home, and with the necessities for going abroad, it seems certain that we are on the eve of a reduction of the tariff in many particulars.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

——Mr. Hanna is one of those republicans described by Mr. Babcock, men who hold the high protective tariff as a "fetich to be worshiped and not touched." It is contrary to all logic that the tariff should be touched by the people. On the contrary, the people must expect to be "touched" by the tariff.—Albany Argus.

——Mr. Hanna tells his local newspaper organ that "it is ridiculous" to mention his name in connection with the presidency. We compliment the senator upon the result of his introspective research, his candor and his discretion. "President Mark Hanna!" The shades of Washington and Lincoln need not be disturbed!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

——The tariff troubles of the republican party are appearing. The Leaf Tobacco association does not want reciprocity with Cuba. Furthermore, if it comes to that, the association will not want annexation, and there are other interests of the same mind. What a tangled web we weave when we begin to practice territorial expansion.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

——It is far from certain that the republicans can elect a majority of the next house of representatives under any circumstances. It is morally certain that they will be routed in the effort if they go to the country without having enacted anti-trust-tariff legislation on the lines proposed by Representative Babcock, the sagacious chairman of their congressional committee.—Washington Post.

——The republican party of to-day is as far removed in its principles and purposes from the republican party of Lincoln, Sumner and Greeley as are the antipodes of the earth. They have nothing in common but the name. It is the servant and instrument of the money power, trusts and corporations, and to render service to monopolies it now lives and moves and has its being.—National Watchman.

——If tariff reform is to be revived it must be revived by the leaders and the people must be educated again to its importance. There never was a time when there was such a need of reviving this old democratic doctrine. Protection is the fostering parent of many of the largest trusts. It enables the American trust to charge the American consumer 50 per cent. more than it charges the foreign consumer. It has become a distinctly anti-American system.—Memphis Appeal.

TRAMPS WITH BANK ACCOUNTS

Wealthy Englishmen Who Have a Queer Way of Finding Out Worthy Persons in Need.

In Persia there are many legends of a certain ruler who used to wander about the city at night dressed as a beggar to find out the real conditions under which his people lived. At the present day many wealthy philanthropists adopt the same method. They disguise themselves in ragged clothes and look for deserving cases in all the worst slums of our great cities, says an exchange.

A wealthy Manchester (Eng.) man who has made over $2,000,000 in the cotton trade has given away $500,000 in the last 20 years, though his name has never appeared in any subscription list. Every few months he disappears from home, dressed in ragged clothes, so that he may be taken for some broken-down tramp, and in this disguise he visits the poorer parts of the city. When he finds a really deserving case, he sends a messenger with food or money, but he never allows his name to be disclosed.

Another wealthy man who adopted the same tactics in London has spent over $200,000 in the last few years in relieving real cases of distress. He dresses in the rough clothes of a Thames bargee, and in that rigout has visited every part of the East End. Once he fell in with a gang of men who wanted him to join them in a little scheme for robbing a riverside warehouse, which they assured him would yield a profit of "50 quid a man." Another time he was arrested as a suspicious character and had to explain matters to a magistrate.

BACKACHE

SHOULD WARN WOMEN.

MISS LUCY ANNIE HEISER, OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Miss Lucy Annie Heiser, a graduated nurse of nine years' experience, trained and graduated from the Homeopathic Hospital of Minneapolis, Minn., writes as follows:

Albert Lea, Minn., Nov. 8, 1899.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—"Although my school does not believe in patent medicines, I have found it to be a fact that Peruna is a grand and valuable medicine. I have known it to cure Mrs. Sampson, suffering with an inflamed womb, aggravated by malaria, after the doctors had failed to help her. Another of my former patients suffered with a complication of female diseases; she was so thin, nothing but skin and bones, but Peruna cured her and she is to-day in good health and good flesh. Facts prove that Peruna revives lost strength and restores to the sick that most wonderful blessing of life—health."

Lucy Annie Heiser.

If all the tired women and all the nervous women, and all the women that needed a tonic would read and heed the words of these fair ladies who have spoken right to the point, how many invalids would be prevented and how many wretched lives be made happy.

Peruna restores health in a normal way.

Peruna puts right all the mucous membranes of the body, and in this way restores the functions of every organ.

From Mrs. Amanda Shumaker, who has charge of the Grammar Department of the Public Schools, of Columbia City, Wash., also Past Grand of Independent Order of Good Templars, Dr. Hartman received the following letter:

COLUMBIA CITY, WASH.

"I can speak only good words of the repeated benefits I have had from the use of Peruna.

"Too constant application to work last winter caused me to have severe head and backache and dragging pains. I could not stop my work, neither was I fit to go on. Reading of the beneficial results from the use of Peruna I purchased a bottle and within a few days after using it, began to feel better.

"I constantly improved and before the seventh bottle was completely used, all pains were gone, my strength was restored, and I now seem ten years' younger.

"If I get tired or feel bad, Peruna at once helps me, and I feel you deserve praise for placing such a conscientious medicine before a suffering public."

Mrs. Amanda Shumaker.

Mattie B. Curtis, Secretary Legion of Loyal Women, Hotel Salem, Boston, Mass., writes:

Mattie B. Curtis.

"I suffered for over a year with general weakness and debility, manifested especially in severe backache and headache.

"My physician prescribed different medicines none of which seemed to help me any until a club associate advised me to try Peruna as it cured her of constitutional headache and stomach troubles. I at once ordered a bottle and before it was used, felt greatly improved.

"I have taken four bottles and for two months have been entirely free from these maladies. Several of my friends are using Peruna with beneficial results, especially in cases of troubles with the kidneys and other pelvic organs, together with weaknesses peculiar to women."

Peruna is a specific for the catarrhal derangements of women.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Neighborhood News.

PLATTSBURG.—The heaviest rain here for many years was that which fell late Saturday afternoon.

Jakey Grant is afflicted with a severe case of poison oak.

Ben. Hensley has been on the sick list for a week or more.

Rev. Atwood preached to a large crowd at the school house at his last appointment.

Many of the farmers will have to plant their corn the second time on account of the ravages of cutworms.

Last Friday lightning struck Albert Acra's barn and killed a good horse. Mr. Acra and Doc Grant were in the barn at the time. This is the second close call Doc Grant has had with the electric fluid.

MAPLE GROVE.—Very little corn has been plowed.

Mr. H. W. Robinson sold a fine load of hogs, last Thursday.

Mrs. Nettie Rice has been visiting Mrs. J. W. Quigley.

Frank Russell, local logman of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, has been hauling some very fine Elm timber to the river at Constance, the past week.

Quite a pleasant surprise was tendered Mrs. Florinda Robinson, a pioneer resident of this county, on the 22d inst., the occasion being the 75th anniversary of her birth. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Robinson and sons, Frank, and Carrie of Constance; Messers Cyrene and Charles Robinson, Mrs. Cidalia Scott and Miss Minta Robinson, of Ludlow, Mr. and Mrs. Benton Vickers and Mrs. J. L. Hord, of Pt. Pleasant. Mrs. J. C. Gibbs and sons, Walter and Roy, and Miss Elsie Robinson were the only ones missing from the family circle. The merry guests came laden with presents, and last, but not least, a sumptuous dinner.

BELLEVUE.—E. L. Grant, jr., who has been very ill, is improving slowly.

Albert Snyder and brother were caught in the storm and were thoroughly drenched, and, as a result, Albert is out of school for a few days.

Henry Clore, of the firm of Clore and Co., has been wielding the paint brush for the last two weeks, Thomas Clore assisting. They have added much to the beauty of Pete's residence.

Dr. Clore, of Bullittsville, was down on the 25th, and disinfected the house of A. B. Corbin and ordered the yellow flag taken down. To say that Beu was glad, is putting it very mildly, as he had been confined to his premises since before the forests put forth their foliage.

J. Frank Grant, of Baltimore, who has been spending some days with his sick brother, honored us with a call on the 25th. We were pleased to witness how well the land of oysters, fruits etc., agree with our old friend. Frank is the same Kentuckian of yore, and will ever remember his Boone county friends, and is glad to greet them.

The electric, hail, rain and wind storm on the afternoon of the 24th, was the worst that has fallen here from away back to where the mind of man runneth not. It crossed the Ohio from Indiana near Loughery creek, and went north of our town, the lower edge taking in James Lawell and our friend Acra, who mourns the loss of his beans, onions, melons, and garlic. All the gardens, and much of the corn and wheat were ruined it its track. Jas Rogers lost 8 sheep—killed by lightning. Many window glass were broken in dwellings.

GUNPOWDER.—J. H. Tanner and wife were shopping in Covington, last Saturday.

L. M. Rouse made us a pleasant call, Saturday.

Otis Rouse and wife, of the Big Bone neighborhood, passed through our burg, last Friday, enroute to the city.

J. C. Hankins delivered his crop of tobacco to Thos. Stevenson at Erlanger, last week. Price, 6c for all grades.

Cut-worms are getting in their work and are playing havoc with the corn. Quite a number will have to plant their corn over.

Mrs. Fannie Clarkson, who has had poor health for several months, spent several days with her mother, Mrs. J. W. Rouse, last week.

W. A. Carpenter, whose body was placed in the vault at Highland cemetery, last Febrnary, was buried at that place, last Thursday.

John Aylor has ordered another fine Durham cow from Canada, which he expects to arrive in a few days. Mr. A. is always on top in the line of fancy stock.

J. H. Aylor from down on Gunpowder creek, was a caller here, last Friday. While Jim is not the greatest talker we have met we are sure he is not tongue tied.

A very heavy rain and hail storm here, Friday, which did considerable damage. The hail stones were nearly as large as partridge eggs, and did considerable damage to windows. The rain was heavy and damaged the cornfields very greatly.

UNION.—Dr. Cleek, of Walton, attended church here, Sunday.

Miss Lena Hedges' friends are glad to hear she is improving.

Mrs. Phillip Fall will spend this week with her sister, Mrs. S. S. Smith.

Mrs. Wallace Garrison and son attended the Williamstown commencement.

Mrs. Christian Becker entertained her brothers, of Cincinnati, Saturday and Sunday.

The Excelsior Club will meet with Messrs. John and Jess Delehunty next Friday night.

Be sure and remember the strawberry festival at N. S. Bristow's, Saturday night, June 1st.

The Ladies' Society of the Presbyterian church, will meet with Mrs. Fielding Dickey, jr., Saturday afternoon at three o'clock.

Prayer meeting services will be held at M. C. Norman's residence, Thursday evening at 7:30. After that weekly services at the church as usual.

Communion services at the Presbyterian church, last Sunday morning, and Mr. and Mrs. Rachal had their little daughter, Norma Winter, baptized.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather a goodly number from all over the county attended the Pomona Grange here, Saturday. We were glad to have Mr. Aaron Jones, the Grandmaster of the National Grange with us.

Mrs. O. P. Harter and son, Edwin, of Covington, are the guests of relatives here, for a few days, before leaving for Marietta, Ohio, where they will make their future home. Mr. Harter has a splendid position there.

Morris McCright is home on a visit.

Prof. Early's school closed, last Friday.

Six cases of measles at Gainey Pappet's.

Mrs. Tobitha Green has had her residence painted.

Miss Sue Sublett lectured here, Monday night to an appreciative audience.

Bro. Cook was called home from Taylorsport to preach Mrs. Tolin's funeral.

J. Frank Grant, of Baltimore, Maryland, is visiting his father, the venerable Dr. E. L. Graut.

Uncle Billy Kirtley has moved to town. We are glad to see his avoirdupoise on our streets.

Berkshire & McWethy will put in their place of business three more airlights. These lights give our town a city appearance.

How can a person have lettuce to sell without buying or cultivating it, is a question that is perplexing some of our citizens.

A gentleman from the country said, the other day, "Pete, is noted for three things—know-it alls, old maids and kill dry."

The town authorities should take steps to prevent cruelty to animals and birds. Sunday we saw some boys treating a captive bird in a most inhuman manner. Boys, you ought not indulge in cruelty to poor, little innocent birds.

The Odd-Fellows here will observe Memorial day, June 16th. A procession will be formed at 1 p. m., headed by a brass band, followed by 100 flower girls and members of the order and march to the cemetery, where the graves of the departed Odd-Fellows will be decorated with flowers.

Ed Start was trying to use his wife for a foot ball, last Friday night, when her aged father gave him the soft end of a stick of stove wood, about which time Maggie Bahn appeared on the scene, and Ed. skipped and has not returned. No such behavior will be permitted here while tar and feathers are so cheap.

Some miscreant or miscreants caved in the doors to the residence of Mrs. Blyth, an aged widow, one night last week, using a heavy piece of timber. No one can assign a cause for this outrageous act. The same night 6 hams and eight sides of meat were taken from George Berkshire's meat house, while gardens belonging to several other persons were destroyed. Some of these dark nights something will drop, and undertaker Botts will get a job.

It seems that there is some misunderstanding in regard to the Sunday school convention to be held here, some thinking it is only a convention of the schools of the Christian church. This is not the case, it is a convention of schools of all denominations, and all Sunday schools are invited. If the day is favorable dinner will be held in the yard at the school house. The convention will be held in Gordon's Hall. Everybody is invited.

EVERETT HELMS,
Supt. Christian Sunday School.

One of the saddest deaths, and one that caused more genuine sorrow than any that has occurred in the Petersburg neighborhood for a long time, was that of Mrs. Nannie A Tolin, wife of J. B Tolin, last Tuesday night at 11 o'clock, after a painful illness of nearly a year, of a complication of diseases. The most skilled physicians were called to attend her, but to no avail. She bore her sufferings with patience, and prayed for the end to come, which was as peaceful as a child going to sleep, leaving a smile on her face. Her maiden name was Hoffman, and she had been twice married, Mr. Tolin being her second husband. To them no children were born. Her first husband died in 1892. At the time of her death she was 30 years and 16 days old. She had been a member of the Methodist church for a number of years. Her funeral was preached at the residence, Thursday at 10:30 a. m., Revs. L. N. Early, of the Christian church and T. B. Cook, of the Methodist church, officiating in the presence of a large crowd of sorrowing friends and relatives. The remains were interred by the side of those of her first husband. Besides a host of relatives and friends, she leaves a husband and two small children and two step children to mourn her death. Her's was a warm heart that beat for others when in trouble. Her marriage to Mr. James B. Tolin in 1897 was the second marriage for each.

FLICKERTOWN.—Some tobacco was planted last week.

Woolper was higher last Friday than it has been for a year.

Wood Sullivan had 14 chickens and 5 turkeys to drown Friday.

Preaching at the Woolper school house every Sunday in next month

Less Sebree came home, Saturday morning and remained until Sunday morning.

Your correspondent and wife and J. F. Cason and wife were in Aurora, last Thursday.

Cage Stevens and wife and a Mr. Bradford, of Big Bone, were visiting at Jim Aylor's, Saturday and Sunday.

Some of the farmers had tobacco plants large enough to set last week, but had no ground ready.

Ed Botts and Charlie Hitzfeld, the latter our Lawrenceburg Ferry correspondent, were calling on their best girls up the creek, Sunday.

A cow belonging to your correspondent, one belonging to Jim Aylor, and two belonging to Chas. Finn, failed to put in their appearance last Friday evening at milking time, and as it was raining hard nothing was thought of it. When Saturday morning came and they were still missing a search over the pastures was made for them but they could not be found. The hunt was kept up until about noon, when they were found fastened up in a barn not far from here, and had all been milked. As no one was caught in the act and no one came to claim damages when the cows were taken out it is not known exactly who did the work. Nevertheless, we thank the parties very much for taking such good care of our cows when they fail to come home, but would thank them more if they would turn them out on the road and let them come home hereafter.

VERONA.—Cutworms are playing havoc with corn and garden truck. Tobacco plants are reported scarce in this vicinity.

The peach orchard of L. C. Roberts will turn off a large crop of fine budded fruit this season.

Louis Persifull has been unable to do any work for several days because of white swelling.

Several from this place attended the commencement exercises at Walton, last Friday night.

Raymond Byland, of Walton, was the guest of Omer and Claud Powers, last Thursday and Friday.

Remember Rev. McMillan, of Williamstown, will preach here on the fifth Saturday night in June.

The entertainment by the League Institute, last Thuraday night, was largely attended and was pronounced a grand success in every particular.

Mrs. Lulie Smith, Mrs. Wran Cotton, Mrs. Lulu Roberts and Miss Anna Wolfe, were appointed a committee to have the New Bethel church papered in the near future.

The pike question is being considered by the people at this place. Some of our most hustling men are circulating a petition, and it is sincerly hoped that we will be able to bring the question to a vote at the next election.

Old aunt Amanda Poland died on the 18th. The funeral was preached at New Bethel on Monday by Revs. G. W. Hill and S. M. Adams in the presence of many relatives of the diseased, after which the remains were interred in the cemetery, there to await the great resurrection.

The League Institute has just closed a very successful eight months' work. The graduates were, Misses Clara McCoy, Lorena Cotton, Charlie Frank Bernice Johnson, Callie Rice, Grace Garrison, Nora Calender, Ella Terner, Grace Rice and Mary Dimmitt, and Barnett Franks. Each of the graduates delivered an oration, which showed much training and culture. They acquitted themselves handsomely.

HATHAWAY.—Sam Smith has set some tobacco.

A large locust bloom they say is a sign of a good crop year.

W. S. White and wife spent Sunday with Mat Ryle and wife.

J. D. McNeely and sons killed a copperhead snake a few days ago.

G. L. Smith is to have a telephone put in the house he now occupies.

Your writer was doing the whitewashing act a day or so last week.

Ealy Conley and wife were guests of C. S. Smith and family Sunday.

C. S. Smith and daughter were in the city, shopping last Friday week.

James Smith and Raburn Williamson, each has purchased a new buggy.

E. E. Utz is building an addition to his house. O. B. Utz is contractor and builder.

Several from here attended the burial of M. C. Carroll at Hughes chapel, last week.

Raymond Smith delivered his crop of tobacco to J. W. Kennedy, of Union, at 5½ cents a pound.

A heavy rain and hail storm struck this part of the county last Friday afternoon, but did no damage.

Rev. Elmer Atwood, of Bellevue, spent Friday week with W. S. Stephens and wife and Wade H. Ryle.

Mrs. Caroline Ryle and niece, Miss Mamie Conley, spent last Sunday week with J. D. McNeely and family.

Dave Williamson and George Rector were on Gunpowder last Saturday, making it troublesome for the finny tribe.

Ezra Blankenbeker and Owen B. and Frank Adams, of near the Grange hall, were down on Gunpowder a few days ago casting their lines and tempting bait among the fine fish that swim the classic stream. We suppose from their joy and mirth on their home trip, that they caught some fine fish.

A very quiet wedding took place in this neighborhood last Wednesday, the contracting parties being Mr. Tommy Stephens, son of Jas. Stephens, and Miss Suzie Adams, daughter of Robert Adams. They went to Rev. T. L. Utz's and were united in marriage. Their attendants were Miss Annie Carlisle and Lutie Love.

WALTON.—On Thursday the 16th inst., the spirit of Mrs Anna Wilson passed to another stage of existence. She was just in the prime of life when the summons came, and had to part from beloved parents, a dear brother and an idolized daughter of tender years. Her husband, Dr. Mallon Wilson, had preceded her 'into the "Great Beyond" several years previously, and she had been a comfort and a solace to her parents to the time of her death. She was truly a lovable character and her demise was lamented by the many friends that had been attracted by her gentle manners and sweet disposition.

The commencement of the Walton High School closed at the Christian church Friday evening, the 24th. The music and singing of Misses Cleveland and Riggs, of Erlanger, were perfect. Miss Virginia Southgate, Principal, made an appropriate address and then delivered diplomas to the graduates, Misses Gertrude Arlington Curley, Lena Edna Hedges, Blanche Dyas and Mattie Elizabeth Hudson. "The Trend of the Century," by Miss Curley, "Success and Failure," by Miss Hedges, "The Dream of Hercules," by Miss Dyas and "Life is What We Make It," by Miss Hudson were exceptionally good literary efforts. Every one was delighted with the entertainment. The graduating dresses attracted much attention and were the handwork of Mrs. C. Y. Dyas. Miss Lena Hedges was and tetill is dangerously ill, and Miss Southgate read her assay.

Mr. E. C. Hughes, of Williamstown, has moved into the Brittenhelm house on Pike street.

Little Mary Graham (10) won the first prize for neatness in the primary department, and "is tickled mightily," as Mrs. Barnie Williams used to say.

H. C. Diers was in town on Monday.

LAWRENCEBURG FERRY.—Mr. Mallory has moved to his new home near here.

Plowing has been resumed in the bottoms.

Sorry to learn that George Terrill's tobacco plants are a complete failure.

Some fake lightning rod agents attempted to swindle Robert Moore, a few days ago.

William Cropper purchased a new buggy and Jas. Grant, a new phaeton, of John Kooch, of Lawrenceburg.

Robert Mallory had a hemorrhage of the nose, a few nights ago, and came near bleeding to death before the flow of blood could be stopped.

It is said that Herbert Kirkpatrick is an expert performer on a wire fence when it affords a passage across a raging, roaring stream of water that crosses his path.

Heard a prominent Granger say last Saturday evening that the State Grange would be organized in this county within the next 60 days, and that it contemplates making Burlington its meeting point for an indefinite period. It would certainly be a credit to the town to be the headquarters for an order of such high aims and composed of the brawn and sinew of the land.

The musicale and strawberry festival that will be given in Burlington Saturday night June 8th, is for the purpose of raising funds with which to purchase an organ for Viola Lodge. One price, 25 cents, will admit you to both the musicale and festival. Several accomplished vocalists and instrumental musicians will be on the program, and the musicale alone will be worth the price of admission.

Shudders At His Past.

"I recall now with horror," says Mail Carrier Burnett Mann, of Levanna, O., "my three years of suffering from Kidney trouble. I was hardly ever free from dull aches or acute pains in my back. To stoop or lift mail sacks made me groan. I felt tired, worn out, about to give up, when I began to use Electric Bitters, but six bottles completely cured me and made me feel like a new man." They're unrivaled to regulate stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed by W. F. McKim; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner, Florence; H. L. Eskew, Walton; O. N. JUDGING CHARACTER

Dr. Talmage Urges the Adoption of an Unusual Mode.

In This Discourse He Shows the Difference in the Divine and the Human Way—The Weighing of Nations.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

The subject of weights and measures is discussed among all nations, is the subject of legislation and has much to do with the world's prosperity. A system of weights and measures was invented by Phidon, ruler of Argos, about 800 years before Christ. An ounce, a pound, a ton, were different in different lands. Henry III. decided that an ounce should be the weight of 640 dried grains of wheat from the middle of the ear. From the reign of William the Conqueror to Henry III. the English pound was the weight of 7,680 grains of wheat. Queen Elizabeth decreed that a pound should be 7,000 grains of wheat taken from the middle of the ear. The piece of platinum kept at the office of the exchequer in England in an atmosphere of 62 degrees F. decides for all Great Britain what a pound must be. Scientific representatives from all lands met in 1869 in Paris and established international standards of weights and measures.

You all know something of avoirdupois weight, of apothecaries' weight, of troy weight. You are familiar with the different kinds of weighing machines, whether a Roman balance, which is our steelyard, or the more usual instrument consisting of a beam supported in the middle, having two basins of equal weight suspended to the extremities. Scales have been invented to weigh substances huge like mountains, and others delicate enough to weigh infinitesimals. But in all the universe there has only been one balance that could weigh thoughts, emotions, affections, hatreds, ambitions. That balance was fashioned by an Almighty God and is hung up for perpetual service. "The Lord weigheth the spirits."

This divine weigher puts into the balance the spirit of charity and decides how much of it really exists. It may go for nothing at all. It may be that it says to the unfortunate, "Take this, and do not bother me any more." It may be an occasional impulse. It may depend upon the condition of the liver or the style of breakfast partaken of a little while before. It may be called forth by the loveliness of the solicitor. It may be exercised in spirit of rivalry, which practically says: "My neighbor has given so much, therefore I must give as much." It is accidental or occasional or spasmodic. When such a spirit of charity is put into the balance and weighed, God and men and angels look on and say there is nothing of it. It does not weight so much as a dram, which is only the one-eighth part of an ounce, or a scruple, which is only the twenty-fourth part of an ounce. A man may give his hundreds and thousands of dollars with such feelings and amid such circumstances, and he will get no heavenly recognition.

But into the divine scales another man's charity is placed. It starts from love of God and man. It is born in Heaven. It is a lifelong characteristic. It may have a million dollars or a penny to bestow, but the manner in which that giver bestows it shows that it is a divinely implanted principle. The one penny given may, considering the limited circumstances, attract as much angelic and heavenly attention as though the check given in charity was so large it staggered the cashier of the bank to cash it. It is not the amount given, but the spirit with which it is given. "The Lord weigheth the spirits."

Perhaps no one but God heard that good man's resolutions, but it amounted about to this: "From this present moment to my last moment on earth, God helping me, I will do all I can to make this world a purer world, a better world, a happier world." But the resolution shines out in his face, sweetens his conversation, enlarges his nature, controls his life and shows itself as plainly in the contribution of $1 as though he had the means to contribute $500,000. When that charity is put into the royal balance, the heavens watch the weighing and invisible choirs chant from the clouds, and I catch one bar of the music: "Now abideth faith, hope, charity—these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

There are Christian people who had faith that China would be redeemed and for 30 years have been contributing toward that object, but they changed their minds and now despair of the Flowery Kingdom since the Boxers began their massacres. There are those who were busy in New York missions and expected the salvation of our American cities until recent developments showed that the police were in complicity with crime, and now these Christian workers are despairful, as though all were lost. Of what worth is such a man's faith? When weighed, will they have what the chemists call atomic weight—the weight of an atom? No. Such faith is no faith at all.

But there is another man who by repentance and prayer has put himself into alliance with the Almighty God. Made all right by the Saviour's grace, this man goes to work to make the world right. He says to himself: "God launched this world, and He never launched a failure. The Garden of Eden was a useless morass compared with what the whole world will be when it blossoms and leaves and flashes and resounds with its coming glory. God will save it anyhow, with me or without me, but I want to do my share. I have some equipment—not as much as some others, but what I have I will use. I have power to frown, and I will frown upon iniquity. I have power to smile, and I will smile encouragement upon all the struggling. I have a vocabulary not so opulent as the vocabulary of some others, but I have a storehouse of good words, and I mean to scatter them in helpfulness. I will ascribe right motives to others when it is possible. If I can say anything good about others, I will say it. If I can say nothing but vile of them, I will keep my lips shut as tight as the lips of the sphinx, which for 3,000 years has looked off upon the sands of the desert and uttered not one word about the desolation. The scheme of reconstructing this world is too great for me to manage, but I am not expected to boss this job. I have faith to believe that the plan is well laid out and will be well executed. Give me a brick and a trowel and I will begin now to help build the wall. I am not a soloist, but I can sing 'Rock of Ages' to a sick pauper. I cannot write a great book, but I can pick a cinder out of a child's eye or a splinter from under his thumb nail. I now enlist in this army that is going to take the world for God, and I defy all the evil powers, human and satanic, to discourage me. Count me into the service. I cannot play upon a musical instrument, but I can polish a cornet or string a harp or applaud the orchestra."

All through that man's experience there runs a faith that will keep him cheerful and busy and triumphant. I like the watchword of Cromwell's Ironsides, the men who feared nothing and dared everything, going into battle with the shout: "The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is ou refuge! Selah!" No balance that human brain ever planned or human hand ever constructed is worthy of weighing such a spirit. Gold and precious stones are measured by the carat, which is four grains. The dealer puts the diamond or the pearl on one side of the scales and the carat on the other side and tells you the weight. But we need something more delicately constructed to weigh that wonderful quality of faith which I am glad to know will be recognized and rewarded for all time and all eternity. The earthly weighman counterpoises on metallic balances the iron, the coal, the articles of human food, the solids of earthly merchandise, but he cannot test or announce the amount of things spiritual. Here is something which the Attic and Babylonian weighing systems of the past and the metric weighing system of the present cannot manage. "The Lord weigheth the spirits."

Put also into those royal scales the ambitious spirit. Every healthy man and woman has ambition. The lack of it is a sure sign of idiocy or immorality. The only question is, what shall be the style of our ambition? To stack up a stupendous fortune, to acquire a resounding name, to sweep everything we can reach into the whirlpool of our own selfishness—that is debasing, ruinous and deathful. If in such a spirit we get what we start for, we only secure gigantic discontent. No man was ever made happy by what he got. It all depends upon the spirit with which we get it, and the spirit with which we keep it, and the spirit with which we distribute it. Not since the world stood has there been any instance of complete happiness from the amount of accumulation. Give the man of worldly ambition 60 years of brilliant successes. He sought for renown, and the nations speak his name. He sought for affluence, and he is put to his wits' end to find out the best stocks and bonds in which he may make his investments. He is director in banks enough and trustee in enough institutions and president of enough companies to bring on paresis, of which he is now dying. The royal balances are lifted to weigh the ambition which has controlled a lifetime. What was the worth of that ambition? How much did it yield for usefulness and Heaven? Less than a scruple, less than a grain of sand, less than an atom, less than nothing. Have a funeral a mile long with carriages, let the richest robes of ecclesiastics rustle about the casket, caricature the scene by choirs which chant: "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." That man's life is a failure, and if his heirs scuffle in the surrogate's court about the incapacity of the testator to make a last will and testament it will only be a prolongation of the failure. The son, through dissipation, spent his share of the fortune before the father died and so was cut off with a dollar. The daughter married against his will and she is disinherited. Relatives whom he could never bear the sight of will put in their claim, and after years of litigation so much of the estate as the lawyers have not appropriated to themselves will go into hands which the testator never once thought of when, in his last days, he bade tearful farewells to the houses and lands and government securities he could not take along with him into the sepulcher.

But look into the dream of that schoolboy who, without saying anything about it, is planning his lifetime career. From an old book partly written in Hebrew and partly written in Greek, but both Hebrew and Greek translated into good English, he reads of a great farmer like Amos, a great mechanic like Aholiab, a great lawyer like Moses, a great soldier like Joshua, a great king like Hezekiah, a great poet like David, a great gleaner like Ruth, a great physician like Luke, a great preacher like Paul, a great Christ like no one on earth or in Heaven because the superior of all beings terrestrial or celestial. He has learned by heart the Ten Commandments and the sermon on the mount and has splendid theories about everything. Between that fair-haired boy and the achievement of what he wants and expects there are obstacles and hindrances known only to the God who is going to discipline him for heroics magnificent. I have no power to prophesy the different experiences of his encouragement and disappointment, of his struggle or his triumph, but as sure as God lives to make His word come true that boy who will sleep to-night nine hours without waking will be final victor. I do not know the intermediate chapters of the volume of that young man's life, but I know the first chapter and the last chapter. The first chapter is made of high resolve in the strength of God, and the last chapter is filled with the rewards of a noble ambition. As his obsequies pass out to the cemetery the poor will weep because they will lose their best friend. Many in whose temporal welfare and eternal salvation he bore a part will hear of it in various places and eulogize his memory, and God will say to the ascending spirit: "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life which is in the midst of the paradise of God." In the hour of that soul's release and enthronement there will be Heavenly acclamation, as in the royal balances "the Lord weigheth the spirits."

In the same divine scales the spirit of nations and civilizations is weighed. Egyptian civilization did its work, but it was cruel and superstitious and idolatrous and defiant of the Almighty: It was cast out and cast down. The tourist finds his chief interest not in the generation that now inhabits the regions watered by the Nile and sprinkled by her cascades, but in the temples that are the skeletons of ancient pride and pomp and power—her obelisks, her catacombs, her mosques, the colossus of Rameses, the dead cities of Memphis and Karnak, the museum containing the mummified forms of the pharaohs. It is not the Egypt of to-day that we go to see, but the Egypt of many centuries ago. Her spirit has departed. Her doom was sealed. The Lord weighed her spirit.

And so the spirit of our American nation is put into the royal balance, and it will be weighed as certainly as all the nations of the past were weighed and as all the nations of the present are being weighed. When we go to estimate the wealth of this nation, we weigh its gold and silver and coal and iron and copper and lead, and all the steelyards and all the balances are kept busy. So many tons of this and so many tons of that, a mountainful of this metal and another mountainful of another metal. That is well. We want to know our mining wealth, our manufacturing wealth, our agricultural wealth, and the bushel measure and the scale have an important work. But know right well there is a Divine weighing in this country all the time going on, and I can tell you our country's destiny if you will tell me whether it shall be a God honoring nation, reverential to the only book of His authorship, observing the "shalt nots" of the law of right given on Mount Sinai and the law of love given on the Mount of Beatitudes, one day out of the week observed not in revelry, but in holy convocation, marriage honored in ceremony and in fact, blasphemy silenced in all the streets, high toned systems of morals in all parts of our land, then our institutions will live, and all the wondrous prosperities of the present are only a faint hint of the greater prosperities to come. Richer harvests will rustle in the fields, a higher style of literature will turn its leaves in our libraries, nobler men will adorn our state and national legislature, and there will be Washingtons and Hamiltons and Patrick Henrys and John Marshalls and Abraham Lincolns in the future quite equal to those of the past. And the last day of the world's existence will find our free American institutions permanent as the mountains before they begin to fall and glorious as the seas before they begin to die.

What a world this will be when it is weighed after its regeneration shall have taken place! Scientists, now guess at the number of tons our world weighs, and they put the Appenines and the Sierra Nevadas and Chimborazo and the Himalayas in the scales. But if weighed as to its morals at the present time in the royal balance the heaviest things would be the wars, the international hatreds, the crimes mountain high, the moral disasters that stagger the hemispheres on their way through immensity. But when the Gospel has gardenized the earth, as it will yet gardenize it, and the atmosphere shall be universal balm and the soil will produce universal harvest and fruitage and the last cavalry horse shall be unsaddled and the last gun carriage unwheeled and the last fortress turned into a museum to show nations in peace what a horrid thing war once was, then the world will be weighed, and as the opposite side of the scales lift as though it was light as a feather the right side of the scales will come down, weighing more than all else those tremendous values that St. Peter enumerated—faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, charity.

God forbid that it should ever be written concerning us as individuals or communities or nations as it was written on the wall of Belshazzar's banqueting hall the hour when Daniel impeached the monarch and translated the fiery words which blanched the cheeks of the revelers and made them drop their chalices brimming with wine: "Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting."

THE SASKATOON DISTRICT.

One of the New Western Canada Districts—The Great Advantages of Settlement Where the Soil is of Unexampled Fertility.

During the past year or two a large number of American settlers (those going from the United States to Canada) have made homes in the Saskatoon district in western Canada. They have found the climate all that could be desired, and their prospects are of the brightest. In writing of it a correspondent says:

The lands for sale are choice selections from a large area, and every farm is within easy distance of a railway station. Experience has shown that this district enjoys immunity from summer frost, from cyclones and blizzards. The South Saskatchewan, flowing through the tract, is one of the finest rivers in the country, being navigable and having an average width of stream of 1,000 feet.

The agents of the government of Canada, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your paper, and who will be glad to send information, tell me that within the limits of the tract there are two distinct varieties of soil. One is a rich black loam; and the other is a somewhat lighter loam, containing a small admixture of sand. There appears to be no appreciable difference between the fertility of these two kinds of soil. Both are alluvial in their characteristics; both are marvelously productive, and both rest upon a sub-soil of clay. The advantage of this formation is that it retains the heat of the day during the night, and is favorable to the early maturity of crops. Every kind of crop will here attain the highest perfection of quality. The land is admirably adapted for stock raising and dairy farming, as well as growing grain. Some idea of the richness of the natural grasses of the prairie may be formed from the fact that more than 200 tons of hay were gathered within a short distance of Saskatoon and stored up for use during the winter. A growth so luxuriant demonstrates beyond all possible question the suitability of the land for pasturing cattle, and no doubt this important industry will be largely carried on.

Nature has been lavish in her gifts to this territory. Not only is the soil of unexampled fertility, but the climate is delightful and healthy. Such is the testimony of every settler, and this testimony is confirmed by enthusiastic opinions from every traveler, explorer, missionary or newspaper correspondent who has ever visited this far-famed Saskatchewan Valley. In former years vast herds of buffalo came here to winter from the elevated storm-swept regions south of the United States boundary line, proving thereby the adaptation of these rolling prairies to the purpose of raising stock. The land is dry, with sufficient, but not excessive, rainfall, capable of early cultivation in the spring, and free from summer frosts. The configuration of the country renders artificial drainage unnecessary, and prevents the accumulation of stagnant pools; mists and fogs are seldom seen. The days of summer are full of sunshine, under the genial influence of which crops rapidly ripen. Autumn is characterized by an almost unbroken succession of fine weather, during which the crops are safely garnered. In winter it is cold, but extremely exhilarating and pleasant, owing to the wonderful dryness and bracing qualities of the air. The winter is a source of profit as well as enjoyment to the people, being far healthier than a humid climate.

Water and fuel, these two prime necessaries of life, are plentiful throughout the district.

WHY MRS. PINKHAM

Is Able to Help Sick Women When Doctors Fail.

How gladly would men fly to woman's aid did they but understand a woman's feelings, trials, sensibilities, and peculiar organic disturbances.

Those things are known only to women, and the aid a man would give is not at his command.

To treat a case properly it is necessary to know all about it, and full information, many times, cannot be given by a woman to her family physician. She cannot bring herself to tell everything, and the physician is at a constant disadvantage. This is why, for the past twenty-five years, thousands of women have been confiding their troubles to Mrs. Pinkham, and whose advice has brought happiness and health to countless women in the United States.

MRS. G. H. CHAPPELL.

Mrs. Chappell, of Grant Park, Ill., whose portrait we publish, advises all suffering women to seek Mrs. Pinkham's advice and use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as they cured her of inflammation of the ovaries and womb; she, therefore, speaks from knowledge, and her experience ought to give others confidence. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is absolutely free.

STRIKING MACHINISTS.

In a Number of Settlements They Are the Gainers.

In Boston 39 Establishments Employing 1,650 Men Have Signed Thus Far, Leaving But 1,200 Men Still Out.

Washington, May 24.—President O'Connell, of the Machinists' association, in summarizing the situation Thursday night, said:

"The situation now shows that we are largely the gainer in the number of settlements made. The adjustments reported during the day show a gain in New England of 1,500 in the number of men returned to work with the demands granted; of 500 to 600 in Ohio, and probably 1,000 in Pennsylvania. About 1,000 men struck Thursday. There are some additions in Philadelphia and some in the Sea Board Air Line shops at Americus, Ga. Our policy is to discourage bringing out any more men than is absolutely necessary to effect the success of the movement."

At Indianapolis the American Bicycle Co. is reported as agreeing to the demands but refusing to sign the agreement. The same condition exists at several other points and the matter is being left to the local organization to settle. Mr. O'Connell said Thursday night that he could not understand this policy on the part of the employers, but was not disposed to haggle over a minor issue, and if necessary he would not insists on the men staying out on account of that technicality. He said the organization of the men is sufficient to enforce their demands.

Washington, May 25.—President James O'Connell, of the International Association of Machinists, announced that he would recommend to the next annual convention of machinists at Toronto, beginning June 3, that a date be set for a nine-hour day without reduction of wages on all the railroads of the country. On railroads which fail to comply with this demand, a strike will be ordered. This recommendation will be made in Mr. O'Connell's annual report.

Mr. O'Connell says that such a strike would involve probably 200,000 men, including 10,000 machinists, the others being boiler makers, pattern makers and semi-skilled workmen who work with the machinists in the various shops. The policy will be to enforce the demand by tying up practically the entire mechanical service of the roads.

Mr. O'Connell says the convention doubtless will fix a date when the nine-hour day must be in operation on all roads, and he believes this date should be some day in the autumn.

Mr. O'Connell says the outlook of the present strike was gratifying. A report from Memphis, Tenn., announced the signature of six establishments there to the agreement. The headquarters of the strike has been shifted from Washington to Toronto, for which city President O'Connell left Friday night. He will stop en route at Pittsburgh, Buffalo, and possibly some other city to confer with the local strike leaders, and will take charge of the Toronto headquarters Sunday night.

The navy department received notice from Harlan & Harlingsworth of the pendancy of the strike at their establishment where naval vessels are building.

EX-GOV. TANNER DEAD.

Death Probably Due to a Blood Clot or Rupture of a Blood Vessel in the Brain.

Springfield, Ill., May 24.—An afternoon paper intimated that former Gov. Tanner had committed suicide, but Dr. Dixon stated positively Thursday night that although he was unable to state the absolute and real cause of death, he would unhesitatingly say that death was due to natural causes, his opinion being that death was due to a cerebral blood clot, or rupture of a blood vessel in the brain.

Springfield, Ill., May 27.—In the beauty of a perfect May day and with all the pomp and circumstance of a military funeral and rites of the church, former Gov. Tanner was buried in Oak Ridge cemetery Sunday afternoon almost within the shadow of the national Lincoln monument. The casket was draped with an American flag and was covered with flowers. When it had been lowered into the grave the 5th infantry, Illinois national guard, fired three volleys and "taps" was sounded. The funeral was the largest seen in Springfield since the burial of President Lincoln in April, 1865. There were 3,000 strangers in the city. On every public building flags were at half-mast, and at sunrise a major general's salute of 13 guns was fired from cannon near the state house. This was followed at intervals of half an hour throughout the day by one gun, and at sunset a salute of 13 guns was again fired.

DOWIE TO BE ARRESTED.

He and Three Others Held Responsible For the Death of Mrs. Judd By Coroner's Jury.

Chicago, May 24.—The coroner's jury, which has for two days listened to the evidence in the case of Mrs. Emma Lucy Judd, wife of one of the officials of John Alexander Dowie's Zion, returned a verdict holding Dowie, H. W. Judd, husband of the woman, and Mrs. Sprecher and Mrs. Bratsch to await the action of the grand jury. The two women named in the verdict were in attendance upon Mrs. Judd prior to her death. The charge against them is criminal responsibility for the death of Mrs. Judd. The evidence, given at the inquest by some of the leading physicians of the city who had examined Mrs. Judd's body after it had been exhumed, was to the effect that the most simple surgical care would have prevented the woman's death. They testified that she was allowed to die when the slightest attempt to save her life would have been successful. This evidence induced the jury to declare that the people named were responsible for the woman's death. Papers were at once made out and officers sent to arrest Dowie, Judd and the two women. When the officers arrived at Zion, Dowie was not to be found. Mrs. Bratsch was arrested in the building and was promptly sent to the county jail, but H. W. Judd and Mrs. Sprecher were no more in evidence than was Dowie.

A mob of 1,000 people paraded through the streets of South Chicago Thursday evening carrying an effigy of Dowie, which was finally deposited in a large bonfire. About three weeks ago Mrs. Christensen, one of Dowie's followers, was burned in escaping from her blazing dwelling house. She refused the aid of physicians and died within a week. The courts took from her and her husband the custody of a little daughter who had been severely burned. The girl is now practically recovered. There has been much feeling against Dowie in South Chicago since the death of Mrs. Christensen.

Thursday night's mob was well behaved and made no trouble for the police.

Chicago, May 25.—John Alexander Dowie, the Zionite, has given himself up, and gave $10,000 bond for his appearance in court, charged with three others with being responsible for the death of Mrs. Judd. The bond of H. W. Judd was fixed at the same amount, but he did not appear with his leader in court. Dowie came into Judge Tuley's court shortly after 10 a. m., surrounded by 150 members of the Zion guard.

DEMONSTRATIVE WELCOME.

Gov. Allen, on Landing at San Juan, P. R., Was Received With Rousing Cheers.

San Juan, P. R., May 24.—The demonstrative welcome tendered to Gov. Allen, who arrived here Thursday on the Mayflower, easily surpassed any similar previous demonstration. The Mayflower was met by a launch containing Mr. Hunt, secretary of Porto Rico; Col. Buchanan, the collector of customs; Capt. Yates Stirling, the captain of the port, and other friends of the governor.

Gov. Allen landed at the water front at 11:15. The public square fronting the docks was thronged with thousands of people. The crowd was much larger than that which welcomed Gov. Allen upon his first arrival in Porto Rico. Thursday he was greeted with rousing cheers There was a procession half a mile long formed by the police, 1,500 school children, a regimental band, labor organizations from San Juan and other towns, and delegations from Mayaguez and Ponce that had chartered steamers to reach San Juan.

Gov. Allen was tendered a reception Thursday night by the people of the city. Three bands of music played on the Plaza; there were fireworks until midnight. San Juan is enjoying a semi-holiday.

CLAIMS HE WAS MURDERED.

Mrs. Bresci, Wife of the Assassin of King Humbert, Maintains He Did Not Suicide.

Rome, May 23.—The assassin of the late King Humbert committed suicide at the penitentiary at Santsary Thursday morning.

New York, May 24.—Seen at her home in Hoboken, N. J., late Thursday, Mrs. Bresci maintained that Bresci, the assassin of King Humbert, did not commit suicide. "He was murdered," she said, repeating the words again and again.

"I had a letter from him one week ago," she said. "He was allowed to write one letter every four months. He told me of his treatment. He was kept in a cell out in the rocks down under the water level, and they did everything to make him insane so he would kill himself, but they would never succeed in making him do that. He may have been insane, probably he was."

CONFESSION OF FAITH.

The Presbyterian General Assembly Vote in Favor of Revision.

Leading Divines Throughout the Country Analyzed the Creed and Gave Their Reasons For Their Positions.

Philadelphia, May 23.—The Presbyterian general assembly, by a vote which showed conclusively that a revision of the confession of faith is desired by the church, defeated the amendment dismissing the whole subject offered by Dr. George D. Baker, of Philadelphia. The assembly decided by an overwhelming majority to continue consideration of the great question after two days of debate, during which leading exponents of the Presbyterian doctrine throughout the country thoroughly analyzed the creed and gave their reasons for their positions regarding the subject. At the opening of the afternoon's session the assembly decided to vote on the amendment at 4:30 o'clock, and speeches were limited to ten minutes. The time, however, was extended in order to give a number of commissioners who wished to be heard an opportunity of speaking.

The principal addresses of the day were made by Rev. Dr. John DeWitt in the moraing, and Rev. Dr. Charles A. Dickey, who closed the debate. Dr. DeWitt favored dismissal, declaring that though there might be slight divergence of opinion on the confession, the church was united on the Word of God.

Dr. Dickey took a decided stand against dismissal. He said as the question of revision was not before the assembly no evil could result from a further consideration of the committee's report.

Dr. W. H. Roberts made a plea for a declarative statement asserting the supremacy of Holy Scripture as the only source of doctrine; that the system of the confession is the same as Holy Scripture teaches, and that infants are saved by God's electing grace.

The discussion at times was lively but without bitterness.

CROSSED NEVADA.

Mrs. McKinley Stood the Trip Well and Suffered No Inconvenience From the Mountain Air.

San Francisco, May 25.—President McKinley has completed his programme in this city, having met every organization included in the original schedule, and Mrs. McKinley's health has so far improved that the president and his party began the return journey to the national capital at 10 a. m. Saturday.

The president's public functions included a reception at the Scott residence to the members of the foreign consular representatives of this city, a reception at the Palace hotel by the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution and the Loyal Legion in honor of the president, and a review of the school children of Oakland by the president.

Ogden, Utah, May 27.—The presidential train traversed the state of Nevada Sunday and reached Ogden at 6:30 o'clock Sunday night. The route lay along the Humboldt river, through the Ruby and Wasatch mountains, and then descended into the Salt lake basin. During most of the day the elevation exceeded 5,000 feet, and snow-clad peaks were continually in sight from the car windows. At this season of the year the ride across Nevada is exceedingly disagreeable. The heat is oppressive and the dust from the desert is frequently blinding. Fortunately for Mrs. McKinley one of those heavy rainstorm which so rarely visit this region swept completely over the state Saturday night, laying the dust and tempering the atmosphere. It rained also several times during the day. The weather seemed almost like a special intervention of Providence for the benefit of the gentle sufferer. Mrs. McKinley had passed a comfortable night crossing the Sierras Saturday night, but the trip Sunday was looked forward to with some apprehension. The rain, however, relieved the anxiety, and Dr. Rixey reported Sunday night that Mrs. McKinley was standing the trip very well. She suffered no inconvenience from the rarified atmosphere.

A LAKE DISASTER.

Steamer Baltimore Foundered and Twelve of Her Crew Found Watery Graves.

East Tawas, Mich., May 25.—The wooden steamer Baltimore foundered in Lake Huron near Au Sable, and 12 of her crew of 14 were drowned. Two men were washed about in the lake for several hours lashed to a piece of wreckage, and were finally picked up by the tug Columbia and brought in here. George McGinnis, a deck hand, one of the rescued, went crazy from his experience. The other survivor, Thomas Murphy, of Milwaukee, second engineer, was able to tell the story of the disaster.

It was some time after the Columbia had brought the shipwrecked men into port before Murphy was revived sufficiently to tell his story. The Baltimore foundered about 6 o'clock, and he was in the water until late in the afternoon, exposed to the buffeting of a furious northeast sea.

Murphy was in the water from 8 o'clock in the morning until 2 in the afternoon.

Capt. Meno, of the steamer City of Holland, claims that the gale was one of the worst in 15 years. The Holland came through it from Harrisville and made good weather.

Capt. Place resided at Lake Wood, a Cleveland suburb. He sailed the steamer Germanic for many years, and only took command of the Baltimore this spring after buying an interest in the ship. His wife went with him in the new command as stewardess. The Baltimore came out in 1881, and was then known as the Escanaba. She belonged to a fleet largely owned by O. W. Potter and his associates in the North Chicago rolling mills. When the steel magnates closed out their interests, the Escanaba passed into the hands of P. H. Fleming & Co., and ran in the Baltimore and Ohio line between Fairport and Chicago, her name being changed at that time to Baltimore. She was worth $40,000, with about 201 feet keel by 35 feet beam, capacity about 2,000 tons of freight Her last cargo was a load of coal from Loraine, O., to Washburn, Wis.

THE TRANSPORT SHERMAN.

She Will Be Sent to the Mare Island Navy Yard, Where the Repairs Will Be Completed.

San Francisco May 25.—Pending a settlement of the machiuists' strike the transport Sherman, repairs on which were about three-fourths completed at the Union iron works when the strike was begun, will be sent by the national government to Mare Island unvy yard where the repairs will be completed. The Sherman was scheduled to sail from Manila June 15, but it will be impossible now to dispatch her on that date. The Risdon, Fulon and National iron works posted notices Friday that they would pay their employes who are out on Monday. This is regarded as a virtual discharge of the men.

TRACTION COLLISION.

Five Persons Killed and a Number Seriously Injured.

Men With Broken Arms, Dislocated Joints and Bloody Heads Tried to Assist Others Who Were More Helpless.

Albany, N. Y., May 27.—Electric cars racing for a switch while running in opposite directions at the rate of 40 miles an hour cost five lives Sunday afternoon by a terrific collision in which over 40 prominent people were injured, some fatally and others seriously.

The lobby of the local post office filled with dead and wounded, hysterical women and children looking for relatives and friends, surgeons administering temporary relief, and ambulances racing through the city, taking the wounded to the hospital, were the early intimations of the accident.

The scene of the accident was a point about two miles out of Greenbush, on the line of the Albany and Hudson railway. The point where the cars met on the single track was at a sharp curve, and so fast were both running, and so sudden was the collision, that the motorman never had time to put on the brakes before south-bound car No. 22 had gone almost clean through north-bound car No. 17, and hung on the edge of a high cliff, with its load of shrieking, maimed humanity.

One motorman was pinioned up against the smashed front of the south-bound car, with both legs severed and killed instantly, while the other one lived but a few minutes.

Fully 120 men, women and children formed a struggling, shrieking pyramid, mixed with blood, detached portions of human bodies and the wreckage of the cars.

Some of the more slightly injured of the men extricated themselves, and began to pull people out of the rear ends of the two cars, and almost every one was taken out in this way and nearly all were badly injured.

The few women and children who had escaped injury and death were hysterical and added their cries to the shrieks of the dying and mutilated. Men with broken arms and bones, dislocated joints and bloody heads and faces tried to assist others who were more helpless.

Help had been summoned from East Greenbush and vicinity, and in a little time the bruised mass of humanity, with the mutilated dead for a gruesome and silent company, were loaded on extra cars and taken to Albany. There ambulances and physicians had been summoned and the post office turned into a morgue and hospital. As fast as the physicians could temporarily fix up the wounded they were taken to their homes or to the hospitals.

With both motormen killed, it was hard to get at the real cause of the accident, but it is pretty well determined that it was caused by an attempt of the south-bound car to reach a second switch instead of waiting for the north-bound car at the first siding.

The cars weigh 15 tons each and are the largest electric cars built, but so frightful was the crash that both cars were almost torn to splinters. Both cars were filled with Sunday pleasure seekers returning from the new recreation grounds that the railway had just opened.

One of the pathetic incidents of the disaster was the death of Maude Kellogg, of Round Lake. She was on the south-bound car with her fiancee, George C. Barry, of Troy, and Mr. Barry's father. When the crash came she was crushed to death almost instantly. Near her, pinned in by the broken wreckage, lay her sweetheart. Frantically he tried to reach her, his own agonies from internal injuries forgotten. Finding he could not move, he appealed to his father, who was extricating himself, but the girl was dead. On the way to the city in the car he pleaded with those attending him to let him die. He will probably obtain his wish, for his injuries are pronounced fatal.

Surrendered Himself.

Kansas City, Mo., May 27.—Frank Siegel, late president of the Siegel-Sanders Commission Co., in which Frank Rockefeller is largely interested, Sunday surrendered himself to the county marshal in response to the warrant charging him with embezzlement, which was Saturday sworn out by Receiver Utley Wedge. Siegel is now in the county jail.

Madrid, May 27.—A violent earthquake shock was experienced at Turin, Coni and elsewhere. Little damage was done, but the people were panic-stricken.

BUFFALO EXPOSITION.

Attendance Sunday Was Small Owing to a Downpour of Rain—The Alabama Exhibit.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 27.—A steady downpour of rain from early morning until late Sunday night made the Pan-American exposition grounds look like a deserted city Sunday. Those who did have the courage to brave the elements spent their time in the exhibit buildings, some of which were open a part of the day, on in the temple of music, where the first organ recital was held Sunday afternoon. A fair sized crowd listened to the melodious strains of the mammoth pipe organ.

The organ has almost 4,000 pipes and 53 speaking registers.

Alabama's exhibit in the agricultural building has been finished. The display is of an elaborate character, and contains many features of especial interest. One is a reproduction of the state capitol in corn. There is also an extensive exhibit of preserved fruits and rye and barley.

This new strike so far from the Beaumont field has caused renewed excitement all over Texas, and a rush to the new district is already on.

Humphry, at his residence in Home City, on last Wednesday. Miss Ivy Dye, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mr. Walter Dye, cousin of the groom, was best man. On their return to this side of the river a party of friends suddenly emerged from ambush and gave them a pelting shower of snow balls. In the meantime their buggy had been transformed into a bower of beauty, being literally covered with the same snowy flowers. The bride looked charming in a suit of Lavendar cloth, with bodice of white silk and lace. The groom wore the conventional black. Congratulations were offered by those present, and this little, informal reception on the banks of La Belle Rivere was received most gracefully, and then they rolled away in a chariot of white to the home of the bride, were a wedding reception awaited them. They received many pretty and useful presents, among them the following: Half dozen napkins, Mrs. V. S. Picklehimer; pair towels, Mrs. Grubbs; celery stand, Mrs. Hedges; towel, Mrs. Barbour; pickle dish, Miss C. M. CARROLL COUNTY.

[News]

Our new Circuit Judge, Hon. John M. Lassing, of Boone county, who was appointed last Thursday by Gov. Beckham, began his judical career here Monday and from the way he "takes hold" it would be safe to predict for him a bright future on the bench. His instructions to the grand jury were plain, pointed and practical, with no attempt at display, and the whole ground was covered in a few well chosen words. Judge Lassing, who will be 37 years old in November, is a bright, clever, well posted man one of the "boys" who by hard study and tireless energy, has forged to the front. He hails from the splendid county of Boone, where they hold him in the highest esteem and John Lassing is a power with the sturdy, honest, Democratic yeomanry of that county. Of course Judge Lassing will be a candidate to succeed himself and it is safe to say that he will have a strong following in this county as it is almost certain that Carroll county will have no candidate. He is a nephew of Mrs. Logan Gaines and married Miss Brady who was born in the house now the residence of Geo P. Harris. So we see he is not an alien or stranger, but has the right to ask the suffrages of the Carroll county people.

Following are a few of the many favorable expressions heard by a News man, and he will state further that if there was anything unfavorable such never reached our ears.

M. I. Barker:—I have heard of him often and expected to see a large man, but he looks like a boy, though he has made a reputation.

Hon. Jno. S. Gaunt:—He is one of the leading attorneys at the Boone bar and is always on one side or the other of every important case and will make a fair and impartial judge.

M. L. Downs:—Of course I am always for our county men, but no better appointment could have been made. While perhaps young in years he is one of the ablest lawyers in the district.

Ex-Mayor O. M. Wood:—He is an intelligent young man and I believe he will make us a good judge.

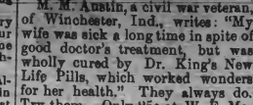
F. H. Southolz:—His appointment suits me very much; have known him for a number of years; is a jurist and elegant gentleman, and hope he will succeed himself.

T. J. McElrath:—Judge Lassing is a bright young lawyer, well posted and clear headed. His charge to the grand jury was good and strictly to the point. He gives promise of making a good record.

T. Sanders Orr:—Am much pleased with our new judge. He will no doubt make a fine record and will deserve endorsement.

A. W. Cox:—Judge Lassing is all right. Think he will make a fine record. Carroll county should stand by him.

Jas. B. Duncan:—Judge Lassing is an excellent lawyer; an amiable and correct judge; a modest gentleman to the manor born and suits the people.



Col. F. P. Sebree:—Barring all county men I am certainly for Judge Lassing.

Tobacco plant beds in many portions of Bourbon and Henry counties have been almost entirely ruined by cutworms.

Old Soldier's Experience.

M. M. Austin, a civil war veteran, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "My wife was sick a long time in spite of good doctor's treatment, but was wholly cured by Dr. King's New Life Pills, which worked wonders for her health." They always do. Try them. Only 25c at W. F. McKim; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, - - KENTUCKY.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels, B grade, with celebrated Gotler steel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Winchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and pattern, which I claim has no equal. The body will be good, seasoned yellow poplar; sills and rises good seasoned ash and hickory—not Cottonwood as the factories are now using. Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them bursting out, something I guarantee my work not to do.

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters buffed, not split, roof and curtains 30 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be something neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. answer, yes. If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 60, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of T. J. Childress' toll-gate.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5, 1901. NO. 33.

The World's Prayer.

O, Almighty Dollar! our acknowledged governor, preserver and benefactor, we desire to approach thee on this and every other occasion with that reverence which is the due of superior excellence, and that regard which shall ever be cherished for exalted greatness. Almighty Dollar, without the in the world we can do nothing, but with thee we can do all things. When sickness lays its paralyzing hands upon us thou canst provide for us the tenderest of nurses, the most skillful of physicians, and when the last struggle of mortality is over, and we are being borne to the resting-place of the dead, thou canst provide a band of music and a military escort to accompany us thither, and last, but not least, erect magnificent monuments over our graves, with living epitaphs to perpetuate our memories. And while h,re, in the midst of misfortunes and temptations of life, we perhaps are accused of crime and brought before magistrates; thou, Almighty Dollar, canst secure to us a feed lawyer, a bribed judge, a packed jury, and we go scot free. Be with us, we pray thee, in all tay decimal parts, for thou art the only one altogether lovely and the chief among ten thousand.

We feel there is no condition in life where thy potent and all-powerful charms are not felt. In thy absence how gloomy is thy household and how desolate the hearthstone, but when thou, O, Almighty Dollar! art with us, how gleefully the beefsteak sings upon the gridiron, how genial is the warmth that anthracite coal or hickory wood diffuses throughout the apartment, and what an exuberance of joy continues to swell every bosom; thou art the joy of our youth and the solace of our old age; thou canst adorn the gentleman and feed the jacknss; thou art the favorite of the phylosopher and the ideal of the lunkhead. When an election is to be carried, O, Almighty Dollar! thou art the most potent argument of politicians and demagogues, and the umpire that decides the contest. Almighty Dollar, thou art worshiped the world over; thou hast no hypocrits in thy temple or no false hearts at thy altars; kings and courtiers bow before thee, and all nations adore thee; thou art loved by the civilized and savage alike with unfeigned and unfaltering affection; we continue to regard thee as the handmaid of religion and the twin sister of charity.

O, Almighty Dollar! be with us, we beseech thee, attended by an inexpressible number of thy ministering angels made in thine own image, even though they be but silver quarters and dimes, whose gladdening light shall illuminate the vale of penury and want with heavenly radiance, which shall cause the awakened soul to break forth in acclamations of joy. Almighty Dollar, thou art the guide of our footsteps and the goal of our being. Guided by thy silvery light we hope to reach the golden gate and triumphantly enter, while hands harmoniously sweep the golden harps as we enter the golden street:

Almighty Dollar! thy shining face
Bespeaks thy wondrous power;
In my pocket make thy resting place,
I need thee every hour.

And now, Almighty Dollar, in closing this invocation we realize and acknowledge that thou wast the god of our grandfathers, the twofold god of their children and the threefold god of their grandchildren. Permit us to possess thee in abundance, and all thy varied excellence, is our constant and unwavering prayer.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

A womon tnat talks polities is about as attractive as a man who knows the names of all the different crochet stitches.

A man can always get on with the womon if he can make his voice tremble whenever he wants to.

A woman who loves too much sometimes loses, but a woman who loves too little never gains anything worth losing.

The microbes had a mother's meeting the other day and voted that the short walking skirt was immoral.

The Cream.

Sell the calves from gargety cows to the butcher.

Train the cow to allow anyone to milk her.

The milk from a fresh cow should not be mixed with that of others to sour.

Always see that the udder is clean before commencing to milk.

It is very important that thorough ventilation be secured in the dairy house.

The dairy cow of all animals should have pure food and drink.

Frequent stirring of the cream will obviate the difficulty of white specks in butter.

The cream should not be subjected to constant jarring or shaking.

What makes a dairy cow profitable is the keeping up a good flow through all four seasons.

Sweet cream just removed from the milk does not churn as readily as older cream that has been ripened.

Too rapid motion of the dasher is liable to whip the cream into a froth.

Milk is more sensitive in receiving and tenacious in holding impurities than water.

All feed which the cow can be induced to eat that she will turn into milk is so much profit.

Select a dairy, cow one that has a natural tendency toward turning the larger share of her feed into milk.

All of the food which a cow consumes that is necessary to maintain physical conditions is outlay.

If the cows are kept warm in winter they will require no more food than in summer.

The dairyman who knows how to feed and care for his cows in winter knows two very important items in their profitable management.

In winter especially coloring is sometimes necessary to give butter a pure color, but care must be taken not to over color.

Sometimes bad ventilation in the dairy will cause the butter to be pale as well as letting it get too sour.

On the average farm and with the average herd one of the ways of securing more cream with the same feed and care is to find out and get rid of the poorest cows. This may not all be done at once, but should be done as rapidly as circumstances will admit, and then when a better grade of cows is secured feed them all of the milk producing food they will eat up clean.

The average farmer as a rule wants a fairly large cow as he considers the beef qualities of his cattle almost, if not quite as valuable as the dairy. But in the dairy where cows are kept for their milk almost entirely, but little regard being paid to their beefy qualities a large cow would be considered expensive to feed. A large animal must of necessity eat more than a small one and this extra item of expense must be considered if the best profit is to be realized.

Humane treatment, regularity of milking and feeding, exercise a marked effect on the yield and quality of the produce of the dairy cow. Harsh treatment irritates and disturbs the nervous system; while irregular feeding retards the natural action of the digestive and assimilative organs, when fed irregularly cows suffer one day from depletion, and the next perhaps are stinted and in this way are unable to do their best. Irregularity in milking frequently not only detracts from the usefulness of the dairy cow but causes her considerable suffering.

Farm, Stock and Crop.

W. J. Case of Woodford county, started out this spring with 122 ewes, which he valued at $3,50 a head. The lot produced 100 lambs, worth at least $2,50 per head. He rounded up last week with 55 ewes and 30 lambs, the dogs having killed the rest, 67 ewes and 90 lambs.

Many of the Northwestern cattle men are going into the sheep business because Southern yearlings and two-year-olds are so scarce and so high, and there are many farmers here in the State also going into sheep feeding business, because cattle feeding is so high. The stockyard men warn farmers not to follow the rush to sheep, but stick to cattle, and raise more good high grade cattle on the farm.—Live Stock Journal.

A. Patterson, of Mercer county, had four brood mares to produce six mule colts, (two pairs of twins.) One pair of the twins were well formed mare mules and are living and thriving; the other pair died. It is nothing unusual for twin mules to be born, but it is a very extraordinary thing for them to live any length of time. Mr. Patterson says he never had a case to come to his notice before and especially where the twins were mare mules.

Northern Indiana farmers are experimenting in the domestication of quail, and the results are highly gratifying. Nearly every farmer in that section has from one to three coveys on his farm, and is giving them kind and careful attention. During the snow season they are fed regularly and on some of the farms they have become so tame that they roost with the barn-yard fowls. As the quail is the natural enemy of the chinch bugs we suggest to the Kentucky wheat growers that the example of the Indiana farmers is worthy a trial.—Exchange.

The cattle on the continent of Europe are so diseased that this Government will not permit the admission of any animals from here. The officials of the Agricultural Department are watching closely all reports from aboard regarding the extent of the foot and mouth disease, a fatal malady that is raging among the live stock in almost every country throughout Europe. For the last three years the outbreak has been generally on the European continent, and the recent reports from various foreign ports do not indicate any diminution in its extent. This is done not only to protect the live stock interests of this country but also to protect our $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 annual export trade in cattle.

There is a movement on foot in some sections to discontinue the use of Paris green on tobacco. If the tobacco growers will not unite in an agreement to cease the use of the deadly poison, then, it is said, the matter will be carried to the Legislature and the enactment of a prohibitory law procured, with heavy penalties for its violation. The green, which adheres to the tobacco even through the manufacturing process, is ever a menace and danger to the life and health of the user of the weed. As is well known the ingredient in the green depended upon to do the work for which it is prepared and used is arsenic, a deadly mineral poison. Arsenic may not always kill when first taken, but if used regularly, as in tobacco chewing, it is accumulated in the system and trouble is sure to result. Those familiar with the matter assert that the use of Paris green in tobacco cultivation will have to be stopped or measures to the detriment and loss of the producer will follow.—Georgetown Times.

There is only one way in which a plant can be forced to branch and that is by cutting off the stalk. The plant thus interfered with will make an effort to grow, and either a new shoot will be sent up to take the place of the lost top, or several shoots will be sent out along the stalk. If but one starts cut it back. Keep up this cutting-back process until you have obliged as many branches as you think are needed. Persistency and patience will oblige the plant to do as you would like to have it do.—Ladies' Home Journal.

To Whom it May Concern.

The undersigned was appointed by a meeting of the House heirs at Kokomo, Indiana, April 13th, 1901, to investigate and when anything material was discovered to report to said heirs. We began by communicating with Mr. Frank A. Hutson, of St. Paul, Min. whom we expected to be present at Kokomo, but he says that he was not notified until two days before the meeting took place. He says that he has found no important records but believes that they can be found. Much time and labor has been spent in writing to parties who were said to have papers and records but none have been found that throw a light on the matter. We have written to every court of record in Maryland and can find no lease recorded. Have a letter from the U. S. Consul in London, England and he thinks it doubtful if we can find any record there. Have received much advice, many warnings, some demands, and a few scoldings from heirs, etc. and have this to say in brief: Pay no money to any one on any pretense whatever in connection with this case. Put no faith in reports about records. Send any real information you may have to me. Remember, that too much importance has been attached to mere hearsay and that while there is a chance for us to get something out of this claim, that it will be a long time before it is settled and that it must be proven, not on mere assertion, but on fact. In every case where we have been referred to records and papers, we have found nothing, except, perhaps, family history and no lease, grant, or other legal record has been brought to our notice. I speak thus plainly that you may not build any false hopes, but at the same time we will prosecute our investigations and let you hear by circular only when anything new develops. If you can help by giving facts, write me. Do not expect personal letters. Keep cool. If we have a claim against the Government and can prove it we will get it. Don't abuse anybody. We are all doing our best.

Very truly, W. J. Doran

A sheep breeder and grower of long experience contributes to the Sheep Breeder some good thoughts on keeping sheep and the profit. He says that flocks of a hundred or more, in some cases less must very soon become a common adjunct to a farm. There is profit in the large range flocks sufficient to keep these up to the full limit of the ability of the range to feed them. But as soon as the farmers discover the value of a flock in two ways, one for the direct profit of the sheep, and the other as sustenance to the fertility of the land, they will drop into the habit and every farm will have its flock. Then the sheep will become a constant part of the farm stock, and gradually the number of sheep kept will increase to the easily manged proportion of at least four or five to every cultivated acre.

The present bugbear of the predatory dog will then cease to be any obstacle for if in no other way this will come in this, that the large majority of the farmers keeping sheep, every one will take the sufficient care to keep only suitable dogs instead of the miserable mongrels kept now. This will come as soon as the public attention is drawn to the advantage of keeping sheep and it becomes a habit of keeping dogs, every one of which is supported at the cost of keeping of at least five sheep. And when this fact becomes generally recognized the sheep-keeping habit will be general.

A hundred million sheep, only two for every one now, together bringing in in all the different ways in which the sheep makes profit will, be equal to the whole of the wheat crop grown at the present time; and this not counting in the larger crops to be grown, but which will in the total become easily twice the value of the present crops. This will come when instead of the poor twelve bushels of wheat to the acre, or twenty of oats or corn, the increased fertility of the land due to the sheep will be the double of this.

Spring Time Ailments of Horses.

Spring time generally brings with it more or less ailment among horses which may result in serious loss. In some instances the loss may be so severe as to cause alarm and create the impression that some fatally contagious disease has broken out. But after such outbreaks have ceased the trouble is soon forgotten even by the unfortunate owners.

It should be remembered that stagnant water, be it pool, pond or ditch, is a factor of micro-organisms, which fact points to drainage as a remedy. Surface drainage is in a sense beneficial, but pipe or tile drainage is of course far better. The cost of pipe or tile drainage is a serious item. Therefore, surface methods are generally used, and when it is kept in order answers the purpose. Trenched and drained lands have been used for pasture which were considered centers of the troubles referred to every year.

Wherever the outbreak of disease occurs drainage is of great importance in stamping out these visitations. Moreover after the sun has dried off wet places the wind may waft the light germs to a distance and may infect a hitherto free section. Salt is a destroyer of parasites infecting the intestines of stock, young horses especially, and is of great value thrown over watercourse pastures, but it must be used liberally, for it will act also upon the micro-organisms and its ova.

These outbreaks must be gotten under control, and the farmer must do it, for as time goes on the insidious character of the disease becomes more pronounced at each subsequent visitation.—Baltimore Sun.

We have often seen the advice in some of the agricultural columns to feed the horse before watering him, but we never had good success in convincing one when he came in from a drive or a day's work that he should wait for a drink until after he has eaten. We never tried very hard because we thought he knew better than the writers of such paragraphs whether he was more thirsty than hungry or not, and we know that while a glass of water taste good before a meal we did not care for it after we were through eating unless the food was too salty. Now we have a report of a English experiment in which one horse was given four quarts of oats and then allowed, to drink. Soon after he was killed, and scarcely one quart of oats was found floating in the water in the stomach, while three quarts had been washed into the intestines, entirely undigested. Another horse was watered before giving him the oats, and killed after the same lapse of time. All the oats were found in the stomach, and the work of digestion was already setting in. This may in part account for the fact we have long known, and sometimes alluded to, that the grain for a working or fattening animal seems to do much more good when the larger part of it is given at the night feeding. When we feed grain to our milch cows in summer we gave it only at night, and we thought it better, because they digested it better while at rest; but it may have been so for no other reason than that we watered before feeding at night and after feeding in the morning. When the hay or cut corn fodder was wet a little and the ground grain mixed with it, as in winter probablity made less difference.—Ex.

Who Knows What It Is.

We have lately heard a great deal of complaint among sheep raisers about the unusual mortality among sheep. Some owners complain of one thing and some of another. One prominent sheep man has lost thirty-five or forty ewes and nearly as many lambs. He says he has never, in all his experience, seen any ailment like it. Ewes seemingly all right, eating heartily and giving their lambs plenty of milk, will lie down to rest and will not get up unless compelled to rise, then after a short time will lie down again, and the position in which they lie is a mark of the disease. They will draw their hind feet, as well as their fore feet, cat fashion—a very unnatural position for a sheep, and will remain in that position until they die—apparently a painless death, with the mouth resting on the ground. Post mortem examinations, though by inexperienced operators, discover nothing to throw any light on the cause of this mortality. If this article reaches the eye of anyone who can throw any light on the matter, we should be pleased to hear from him. —Harrodsburg Democrat.

Two Hundred Egg Hens.

Your two hundred egg hen stories make me feel I would like to add a little experience of my own in this question. As you know I have been working for considerable time to bring out a model fowl that is balanced just right for a brotlar-roaster and an egg machine.

I think I have them in the White Rocklet, but in getting my type developed, I learned you could get a chick that would make growth rapidly, and also begin laying at six months, and would lay over two hundred eggs a year, and then invariably go light-pine away and die. Also their eggs were not so strong and fertile as those of the more ordinary layer, and the chicks were weak tottery fellows, and none of them developed properly as layers or market fowls. A year and a half was about their limit of usefulness and life.

These White Rocklets of mine I find early layers; but they have not yet gone over 185 per year. But that is without any feed except what they can gather arounti the barns and from table scraps. I find more profit in a hen that is active and hustling and can rustle her own feed and give me from 160 to 185 eggs per year than in a hen that makes from 200 to 228 eggs per year on stimulating feeds or from naturally being bred in that line, and then gives out and passes in her checks.

If it costs 15 cents per dozen to produce 25 cent eggs, the profit is small even at the rate of 200 eggs per year, when you consider the careful watching and ceaseless labor it requires to obtain such yields If any one can develop or produce a breed that can yield 200 eggs per hen without nursing and feeding for it, or but what exhaust themselves and die from overwork, they deserve the eternal thanks of all chickendom.—W. W. H, in Farm Poultry.

Facts About Potatoe Scab.

It is a skin disease, known wherever pot toes are grown.

It does not effect the eating quality of the tubers, but may cause them to rot quicker.

The disease spreads from one tuber to another by means of germs or spores. Vast numbers of these are left in the soil after the crop.

The germs do not move or "crawl" in the soil, nor do they grow "spontaneously." They can only be added to the soil on scabby seed. manure from animals fed on scabby seed is not likely to be dangerous.

The disease is found on beets, and probably on turnip, radish, cabbage and carrot. The germs may live in the soil for five or six years.

Heavy soils are most favorable to scab. The germs do not thrive in a sour or acid soil.

A green crop plowed in just before planting will check the scab. So will acid fertilizers.

Stable manure, wood ashes and lime are likely to increase the scab by giving it a better chance to develop.

Some varieties are more liable to it than others. In general the round, rough-skinned varieties are less likely to be attacked.

To prevent it plant on soil that is free from the germs and kill those on the seed potatoes. Plowing under a green crop may keep the germs inactive, but will not kill them. It is not wise to follow a scabby potato crop with potatoes.

To disinfect the seed potatoes soak them in some solution that will kill the scab germs, yet not injure the sprouts. Corrosive sublimate or bichloride of mercury will do this. Dissolve an ounce of this chemical in a gallon of water. Then add water enough to make seven gallons. Keep it in a wooden vessel and soak the potatoes in it for 90 minutes. Then cut and plant. We like formalin or formaldehyde better. This is a liquid. One-half pint is mixed with 15 gallons of water. It readily dissolves. Soak the potatoes for two hours and cut soon after soaking.

We like the plan of dusting the cut pieces freely with flowers of sulphur. This has some value in reducing the scab and also helps preserve the seed piece.

Exposing the tubers to sunlight for several weeks before planting will destroy many scab germs and make the sprouts thick and strong.

Anew way of killing the scab germs is to fumigate them with formaldehyde gas. This is done by putting the tubers in a tight box and burning tablets of chemical in an alcohol lamp. The fumes work all through the box among the tubers.—Rural New Yorker.

USING OUR TALENTS.

Sermon for Those Given to Depreciate Themselves.

Discourse of Dr. Talmage on the Short Text, "To Another One"—Difficult Task to Accurately Estimate Ourselves.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

This is a discourse by Dr. Talmage for those given to depreciate themselves and who have an idea that their best attempts amount to little or nothing; text, Matthew 25: 15, "To another one."

Expel first from this parable of the talents the word "usury." It ought to have been translated "interest." "Usury" is finding a man in a tight place and compelling him to pay an unreasonable sum to get out. "Interest" is a righteous payment for the use of money. When the capitalist of this parable went off from home, he gave to his stewards certain sums of money, wishing to have them profitably invested. Change also your idea as to the value of one talent. You remember the capitalist gave to one of his men for business purposes five talents, to another two, to another one. What a small amount to last, you think, and how could he be expected to do anything with only one talent? I have to tell you that one talent was about $7,200, so that when my text says: "To another one," it implies that those who have the least have much.

We bother ourselves a great deal about those who are highly gifted or have large financial resource or exalted official position or wide reaching opportunity. We are anxious that their wealth, their eloquence, their wit, be employed on the right side. One of them makes a mistake, and we say: "What an awful disaster." When one of them devotes all his great ability to useful purposes, we celebrate it, we enlarge upon it, we speak of it as something for gratitude to God. Meanwhile we give no time at all to consider what people are doing with their one talent, not realizing that ten people of one talent each are quite as important as one man with ten talents. In the one case the advantage or opportunity is concentered in a single personality, while in another it is divided among ten individuals. Now, what we want to do in this sermon is to waken people of only one talent to appreciation of their duty. Only a few people have five talents or ten talents, while millions have one. My short text is like a galvanic shock, "To another one."

The most difficult thing in the world is to make an accurate estimate of ourselves. Our friends value us too high, our enemies too low. To find out what we are worth morally and mentally is almost impossible. We are apt to measure ourselves by those around us, but this is not fair, as they may be very brilliant or very dull, very good or very bad. Indeed there are no human scales that can tell our exact moral and mental weight, nor is there a standard by which we can measure our exact intellectual height, so the hardest thing to do is to calculate our real stature or heft. But it will be no evidence of egotism in any of us if we say that we have at least one talent. What is it and, finding what it is, what use shall we make of it? The most of the people, finding that they have only one talent, do as the man spoken of in the parable, they hide it. But if all of the people who have one talent brought it out for use before this century is half past and correspondents begin to write at the head of their letters 1950 the earth would be one of the outskirts of heaven. I ask you again: What is your one talent?

Is it a cheerful look? Carry that look wherever you go. It must come from a cheerful heart. It is not that inane smile which sometimes see which is irritating. In other words, it must be a light within us so bright that it illumines eye, cheek, nostril and mouth. Let ten men who are accustomed to walking a certain street every day resolve upon a cheerful countenance as a result of a cheerful heart, and the influence of such a facial irradiation would be felt not only in that street, but throughout the town. Cheerfulness is catching. But a cheerful look is exceptional. Examine the first 20 faces that you meet going through Pennsylvania avenue or Chestnut street or Broadway or State street or La Salle street or Euclid avenue, and 19 out of the 20 faces have either an anxious look or a severe look or a depressing look or an avaricious look or a sneering look or a vacant look. Here is a missionary work for those who have trouble. Arm yourself with Gospel comfort. Let the God who comforted Mary and Martha at the loss of their brother, the God who soothed Abraham at the loss of Sarah and the God of David, who consoled the bereft spirit at the loss of his boy by saying: "I shall go to him;" the God who filled St. John with doxology when an exile on barren Patmos and the God who has given happiness to thousands of the bankrupted and persecuted, filling them with heavenly riches which were more than the earthly advantages that are wiped out—let that God help them. If He take full possession of your nature, then you will go down the street a benediction to all who see you, and those who are in the tough places of life and are run upon and belied and had their homes destroyed will say: "If that man can be happy, I can be happy. He has been through troubles as big as mine, and he goes down the street with a face in every lineament of which there are joy and peace and heaven. What am I groaning about? From the same place that man got his cheerfulness I can get mine. Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise him who is the health of my countenance and my God."

Again, is your talent that of wit or humor? Use it for God. Much of the world's wit is damaging. Most of satire has a sting in it. Much of caricature is malevolent. Much of smart retort is vitriolic. In order to any smart things how many will sacrifice the feelings of others! The sword they carry is keen, and it is employed to thrust and lacerate. But few men in all the world and in all the churches realize that if wit is bestowed it is given them for useful, for improving, for healthful purposes. If we all had more of it and knew how to use it aright, how much it would improve our Christian conversation and prayer meeting talk and sermon! Robert South and Rowland Hill and Jeremy Taylor and Dean Swift and Lorenzo Dow and George Whitefield used their wit and their humor to gather great audiences and then lead them into the kingdom of God. Frivolity is repulsive in religious discussion, but I like the humor of Job when he said to his malicious critics: "No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you," and I like the humor of the prophet Elijah, who told the Baalites to pray louder, as their god was out hunting or on an excursion or in such loud conversation that he could not hear them. I like the sarcasm of Christ when He told the self-righteous Pharisees that they were so good they needed no help: "The whole need not a physician, but that they are sick," or when in mirthful hyperpole he arraigns the hypocritical teachers of His day who were so particular about little things and careless about big things, saying: "Ye blind guides that strain at a gnat and swallow a camel," and the Bible is all ablaze with epigram, words surprisingly put and phraseology that must have struck the audiences of Paul and Christ nudge each other and exchange glances and smile and then appropriate the tremendous truths of the Gospel. There are some evils you can laugh down easier than you can preach down. The question is always being asked, why do not more people go to church, prayer meeting and other religious meetings? I will tell you. We of the pulpit and the pew are so dull they cannot stand it. But when we ask why people do not go to church we ask a misleading question. More people go now to church than ever in the world's history, and the reason is in all our denominations there is a new race of ministers stepping into the pulpits which are not the apostles of humdrum. Sure enough, we want in the Lord's army the heavy artillery, but we want also more men who, like Burns, a farmer at Gettysburg, took a musket and went out on his own account to do a little shooting different from the other soldiers. The church of God is dying of the proprieties.

Or is your talent an opportunity to set a good example? One person doing right under adverse circumstances will accomplish more than many treatises about what is right. The census has never been taken of lovely old folks. Most of us, if we have not such a one in our own house now, have in our memory such a saint. We went to those old people with all our troubles. They were perpetual evangelists, by their soothing words, by their hopefulness of spirit, an inexpressible help. I cannot see how Heaven could make them any lovelier than they are or were. But there are exceptions. There is a daughter in that family whose father is impatient and the mother querulous. The passage of many years does not always improve the disposition, and there are a great many disagreeable old folks. Some of them forget that they were young themselves, and they become untidy in their habits and wonder how, when their asthma or rheumatism is so bad, other people can laugh or sing and go on as they do. The daughter in that family bears all the peevishness and unreasonable behavior of senility without answering back or making any kind of complaint. If you should ask her what her five talents are or her one talent is, she would answer that she has no talent at all. Greatly mistaken is she. Her one talent is to forbear and treat the childishness of the old as well as she treats the childishness of the young. She is no musician, and besides there may not be a piano in the house. She cannot skillfully swing a croquet mallet or golf stick. Indeed, she seems shut up to see what she can do with a ladle and a broom and a brush and other household implements. She is the personification of patience, and her reward will be as long as Heaven. Indeed, much of her reward may be given on earth. She is in a rough college, from which she may after awhile graduate into brightest domesticity. She is a heroine, though at present she may receive nothing but scolding and depreciation. Her one talent of patience under trial will do more good than many morocco covered sermons on patience preached to-day from the tasseled cushion of the pulpit.

There is a man in business life whose one talent is honesty. He has not the genius or the force to organize a company or plan what is called a "corner in wheat" or "a corner in stocks" or "a corner" in anything. He goes to business at a reasonable hour and returns when it is time to look up. He never gave a check for $20,000 in all his life, but he is known on the street and in the church and in many honorable circles as an honest man. His word is as good as his bond. He has for 30 years been referred to as a clean, upright, industrious, consistent Christian man. Ask him how many talents he has, and he will not claim even one. He cannot make a speech, he cannot buy up a market, he cannot afford an outshining equipage, but what an example he is to the young, what an honor to his household, what a pillar to the church of God, what a specimen of truth and integrity and all roundness of character! Is there any comparison in usefulness between that man with the one talent of honesty and the dashing operators of the money market?

The chief work of the people with many talents is to excite wonderment and to startle and electrify the world. What use is there in all that? No use at all. I have not so much interest in the one man out of the million as I have in the million. Get the great masses of the world right and it does not make much difference about what the exceptional people are doing. Have all the people with one talent enlisted for God and righteousness, and let all those with five or ten talents migrate to the north star or the moon, and this world would get on splendidly. The hardworking, industrious classes of America are all right and would give no trouble, but it is the genius who gives up work and on a big salary goes around to excite dissatisfaction and embroilment, the genius who quits work and steps on the stage or political platform, eats beefsteak and quail on toast and arouses the common laborers, compelled to idleness, to put their hands into empty pockets and eat gristle and gnaw bones. The world would be mightily improved if it could slough off about 5,000 geniuses, for there are more thau that on our planet. Then the man or woman of one talent would take possession of the world and rule it in a common sense and Christian way. There would be less to amaze and startle, but more to give equipoise to church and state and world. "To another one."

Among the 114,000 words of Noah Webster's vocabulary and the thousands of words since then added to our English vocabulary there is one outmastering word the power of which cannot be estimated, and it reaches so far up and so far down, and that is the word "come." It has drawn more people away from the wrong and toward the right than any word I now think of. It has at times crowded all the 12 gates of Heaven with fresh arrivals. It will yet rob the path of death of the last pedestrians. It will yet chime so loudly and gladly that all the tolling bells of sorrow will be drowned with the music. It is piled up in the Bible's climax and peroration: "And the Spirit and the bride say, Come, and let him that heareth say, Come and let him that is athirst come." Have it on the point of your pen, have it on the tip of your tongue. Monosyllables are mightier than polysyllables, and that word "come" is the mightiest of monosyllables.

After the resurrection day and all Heaven is made up, resurrected bodies joined to ransomed souls, and the gates which were so long open are shut there may be some day when all the redeemed may pass in review before the great white throne. If so, I think the hosts passing before the King will move in different divisions. With the first division will pass the mighty ones of earth who were as good and useful as they were great. In this division will pass before the throne all the Martin Luthers, the John Knoxes, the Wesleys, the Richard Cecils, the Miltons, the Chrysostoms, the Herschells, the Lenoxes, the George Peabodys, the Abbot Lawrences and all the consecrated Christian men and women who were great in literature, in law, in medicine, in philosophy, in commerce. Their genius never spoiled them. They were as humble as they were gifted or opulent. They were great on earth, and now they are great in Heaven. Their surpassing and magnificent talents were all used for the world's betterment. As they pass in review before the King on the great white throne to higher and higher rewards it makes me think of the parable of the talents: "To another ten." I stand and watch the other divisions as they go by, division after division, until the largest of all the divisions comes in sight. It is a hundred to one, a thousand to one, ten thousand to one, larger than the other divisions. It is made up of men who never did anything but support their families and give whatever of their limited means they could spare for the relief of poverty and sickness and the salvation of the world, mothers who took good care of children by example and precept starting them on the road to Heaven, millions of Sabbath school teachers who sacrificed an afternoon's siesta for the listening class of young immortals, women who declined the making of homes for themselves that they might take care of father and mother in the weaknesses of old age, ministers of the Gospel who on niggardly stipend preached in the backwoods, meeting houses, souls who for long years did nothing but suffer, yet suffered with so much cheerful patience that it became a helpful lesson to all who heard of it; those who served God faithfully all their lives and whose name never but once appeared in print and that time in the three lines of the death column which some survivor paid for, sailors who perished in the storm while trying to get the life line out to the drowning, persecuted and tried souls who endured without complaint malignity and abuse, those who had only ordinary equipment for body and ordinary endowment of intellect, yet devoted all they had to holy purposes and spiritual achievement. As I see this, the largest of all the divisions, from all lands and from all ages, pass in review before the King on the great white throne I am reminded of the wonderful parable of the talents and more especially of my text: "To another one."

FEMININE FASHIONS.

Dressy Gowns and Airy Robes That Will Be in Vogue for the Summer.

A dainty dressing sack is an indispensable adjunct to the wardrobe of the well-gowned woman. Cream crepe de chine is used for an extremely dainty one, which is made with a shirred flounce at the bottom, the neck being cut square and the sleeves loose and flowing, saya a fashion exchange.

Another exquisite gown for house wear is of cream nun's veiling over yellow silk. This has a small yoke of lace, the design of which is outlined in gold thread. Down the front, on both sides and extending around the bottom of the skirt, are wide bands of gold braid. The sleeves are of the veiling, with the undersleeves of lace.

Every woman knows the value of a silk waist, from the ready-made affair, suitable for a tailor gown, to those covered with soft lace for more dressy wear. Among the latter white and white combined with gold, blue or black all hold the popular fancy.

Few evening gowns are prettier than those of printed mousseline de soie. One of palest ivory, ornamented with tea roses, would be remarkably soft and pretty trimmed either with ruchings of glace silk or fine white lace.

One of the new bathing costumes is of white silk-finished brilliantine, made with a broad sash and open collar of the palest shell pink. The cap to be worn with it is of the same materials, lined with oiled silk, and made with a long point falling at the side, after the style of those worn by Neapolitan fishermen.

Lace robes of every design and workmanship worn over silk gowns are remarkably popular with London women. A new fad to make a chiffon or silk tea gown more effective is to wear over it a lace coat which is made either three-quarter length or full length with a train effect.

A useful addition to a woman's wardrobe is a yoke of point d'esprit, threaded through with velvet baby ribbon, which will transform an evening gown into one suitable for less ceremonious occasions.

Sequin robes are more elaborate than ever. One handsome gown seen recently was made of an embroidery of jet paillettes on a white ground, worn over an ivory glace taffeta. Around the bottom of the skirt was a design of rose petals of silk and velvet caught together with embroidered stems.

Amusing Experience of a Senator's Wife at a Fashionable Gathering in Washington.

The exceedngly handsome wfe of a certain senator is going about these days doing what only the hundredth woman would ever think of doing. She is telling a story on herself, says the Washington Post. Not very long ago a woman of fashion gave a very elaborate luncheon, and the senator's wife was present. As she seated herself and drew off her gloves she noticed that beside her sat a stout and elderly person, obviously wesithy, obviously dressed by a provincial modiste after a cut paper pattern, and just as obviously unused to the ways of polite society. She seemed not to know anyone present. Indeed, she presently turned to the senator's wife and confessed it.

"I guess yours is the only face here I know, except Emily's there"—indicating the hostess. "She's my niece. But I knew you the minute I set my eyes on you. I says to myself: 'There's Mrs. Senator Blank,' and I know it."

"Perhaps you've seen me somewhere before," said the senstor's wife, graciously. "I think you are from my husband's state, are you not?"

"Yes, I am," admitted the stranger, "but I ain't never seen you before."

"My picture in the magazines, then?" said the senator's wife, who has appeared in the public prints frequently of late.

"That's it," answered the other, eagerly. "That's just how I came to know you as soon as I saw you. I've been seeing you in the backs of my magazines for months, and, I say, I want to ask you, confidential like, is that soap you advertise really as good as it's represented to be?"

Sardine Salad.

Scrape sardines carefully and sprinkle them with lemon juice or vinegar and let them stand for half an hour. Then arrange them around the edge of a salad dish. Chop fine three or four small onions, cut a cucumber into cubes, stone several olives and mix them with the onions and cucumbers. Place these in the middle of the dish. Make a plain French dressing and pour over the vegetables; garnish with cress and quartered lemons.—Indianapolis News.

Creamed Parsnips.

Boil tender, scrape and cut into slices a third of an inch thick. Put over the fire with two tablespoonfuls of butter, pepper and salt, and a little minced parsley. Shake until the mixture boils. Dish the parsnips, add to the sauce three tablespoonfuls of cream in which has been stirred a quarter of a spoonful of flour. Boil once and pour over the parsnips.—Ladies' World, New York.

Kidneys with Bacon.

Chop a small onion very fine; add to it double its quantity of bread crumbs, a pinch of salt, some pepper, a few drops of lemon juice, and some chopped parsley. Moisten a bit with a beaten egg. In it roll some thin slices of kidneys and fry with bacon till done. That is, fry the bacon till crisp and in its fat fry the kidneys.—Boston Budget.

A NEW TARIFF ARGUMENT.

Indications of a Revolt Against Protection Are Growing More Plentiful.

Representative Babcock, who introduced a bill in the last congress providing for the reduction and even the removal of certain tariff duties, reports that his policy is favored by many manufacturers. However, there is one argument which he uses, and which others have used in favor of lower duties, that may be used by those who oppose a more liberal trade policy. We refer to the fact that our manufacturers in many cases sell more cheaply to foreigners than they do to the people at home. That this is unfair, and especially so from the protectionist point of view, cannot, of course, be denied. The American people have taxed themselves for years to build up and maintain certain industries on the express understanding that ultimately they would be able to buy the products of those industries at a much lower price than would otherwise have been possible, and, therefore, it seems most unjust for these protected producers to charge those who have protected them more than they charge those against whom they have been protected. We have, at their request, given them practical control of the home market, and now we find them discriminating against that market.

But in spite of all this it has already been suggested that the people ought to be willing to pay higher prices than foreigners pay, because by so doing they help our manufacturers to capture foreign markets. This matter has been made very clear by foreign writers. Only the other day an English authority warned the people of England that the competition of American trusts would be increasingly formidable as the years passed. He argued that the monopolistic production in the United States was of the most economic kind, and that it was further helped by the tariff, which enabled them to make a great deal of money in the home market. His theory was that they made so much at home, behind the shelter of the tariff wall, that they could afford to sell in foreign markets at cost, or even below it. Thus the effect of a protective tariff, in a trust-controlled market, may be to stimulate exports by increasing the power of our exporters to compete in foreign markets.

We have no doubt that this argument will be pushed vigorously by those who are interested in keeping up tariff duties. It will be said that it is as important to develop trade as it was to establish industries, and that the former is as much a public object as the latter. Our favorable balance of trade will be dwelt on with the utmost impressiveness, and it will be attributed to the fact that our people are willing to pay "a little more" for their goods than they would have to pay without the tariff, thus making it possible for our manufacturers to beat the foreigner even in his own market. It will be pointed out that every dollar's worth of goods sent out of the country means the employment of just so much more labor. And we shall be reproachfully asked whether, for the sake of saving a little money, we are willing to shut up American factories, or seriously curtail their operations, and throw American workingmen out of employment. It will not be easy for the converted protectionists to meet such arguments. But the revolt against protectionism is bound to come. Every trust that is organized in a protected industry will be an argument in favor of greater commercial freedom. And every evidence of fear of American competition abroad will strengthen the American people in their conviction that protection is no longer needed.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

HOW ABOUT TEDDY?

The Hanna Candidacy Boom Seems to Conflict with a Certain Understanding.

It is eminently natural that Mr. Perry Heath's interview, booming Senator Hanna for the presidential nomination in 1904, should greatly tickle Senator Hanna. There is probably but one other development in the political line which would tickle Mark more—and that would be his nomination, with the trusts solidly arrayed to bring about his election.

For you must keep in mind the fact that no American really makes a joke of the chance of the presidential nomination if other Americans are inclined to seriously consider him as a desirable candidate.

Perry Heath is not the only republican to urge the nomination of Senator Hanna. Senator Scott, a member of the republican national executive committee, has but recently made the same suggestion, and these two "booms" for Hanna have led to a suspicion that the republican national committee would like to see Hanna nominated.

But isn't all this mighty rough on Teddy Roosevelt? It was understood when Teddy graciously consented to accept the vice presidential nomination that he was the accepted republican heir apparent to the presidential nomination in 1904. And now comes all this talk of Mark Hanna, between whom and Teddy there is not much love, for the place which Teddy so strenuously covets. Col. Roosevelt climbed San Juan hill in his deliberate match on the white house. Will he now find the burly Hanna a more insurmountable obstruction?—St. Louis Republic.

——The administration is about to order its diplomatic and army officials to stop talking. If Mark Hanna really wants Perry Heath to stop talking about 1904, why doesn't he get him another office?—Albany Argus.

CUBA TO BE MILKED.

Certain Protected Interests in This Country Getting Ready to Do Business.

When Senator Platt talks about what is "morally incumbent" on the United States in the case of Cuba he is deceiving no one, not even himself. If the Cubans accept his amendment it will not be because they believe such a yielding will procure them any favors here. It will be simply and solely because they are convinced that the surrender is unavoidable. The mere command of a power like this is equivalent to the use of force, and even the independents grasp at the amendment now to avoid the alternative of annexation.

Prospective reciprocity may seem to be a factor in the matter, but if a resolution of congress can be construed out of its plain meaning what do vague assurances of friendliness on the part of a single senator amount to? Should the Cubans pretend to take them seriously it would only be for the somewhat sterile satisfaction of piling up the "morals" to make them artistically complete. They would know as well as any American politician that the practical side of the question was left untouched. Its import, however, is not a mystery. It was quite apparent when the National Cigar Leaf association decided to lobby against any concession whatever to Cuba.

The undeniable fact is that certain interests in this country propose to milk Cuba. If we control the island under the Platt amendmenet they will oppose reciprocity. If we annex the island they will oppose free trade. They have no thought of uniform laws, and if they believed that annexation would bring them about they would throng the corridors of the capitol to prevent any such consummation. The kind of annexation which they might favor would leave Cuba outside the constitution and under unequal laws made in Washington. This would be an ideal condition from their standpoint and particularly advantageous for the milking process.

It is evident, therefore, why the Cuban radicals prefer the amendment to annexation, whatever they may think of the chances of reciprocity. The developments incline them to keep as clear as possible from the dictation of the hostile interests here.

The people of the United States would honor our pledges to Cuba, but trade interests have no bowels.—Chicago Record-Herald (Rep.).

SPEECHES OF THE PRESIDENT

Outcroppings of a Tendency to Lay Aside the Old Chinese Wall of Duties Idea.

The character of the president's speeches has been a surprise even to his party friends. With no elections in sight, and with the next session of congress more than six months off, it was supposed that Mr. McKinley's responses to the greetings en route would be made up of that pleasant oratorical compound known as "taffy." Instead of this, the president has not only reaffirmed his adherence to "expansion," which he has good reason to know is popular at the south, but has boldly hinted at a progressive economic and commercial policy.

It was announced before the president's departure from Washington that "during his trip he would be regularly informed of the progress of the plans for local revenues in Porto Rico, and the moment the expenses of the island are met by its local revenues the proclamation of free trade between Porto Rico and the United States will issue, wherever the president may be, though of course it will be dated from Washington." This action will offend the tobacco and sugar growers of this country, who have protested that "free trade" with our new possessions will spell ruin to them. But the president forestalled this complaint in his Memphis speech in saying that "nowhere are we not as profitable as markets," and by admonishing his hearers that we must "solve the problems that confront us untrammeled by the past."

Some of the old republican maxims about the beauties of a one-sided trade behind a Chinese wall of duties, once expressed in the question of a spread-eagle western senator: "What is abroad to us?" have been smashed by the logic of trade events of the last four years. We have an enormous foreign trade and are reaching for more.

Mr. McKinley perceives this, and evidently purposes to shape the policy of his second term without being too much "trammeled by the past."

There is no better politician in the country than William McKinley; and what he hears "with his ear to the ground" is quite likely to come to pass.—N. Y. World.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

——Billy Mason informs an anxious public that he is willing to do six years more of blushing at the old salary and perquisites.—Omaha World-Herald.

——Hanna's declaration that "there are no trusts" was a "good-enough Morgan till after election," but it sounds a little odd now.—N. Y. World.

——Quay's declaration that he intends to quit politics "for good" is wholly superfluous. He couldn't quit politics for anything else.—Chicago Record-Herald (Ind. Rep.).

——Mr. Hanna is one of those republicans described by Mr. Babcock, men who hold the high protective tariff as a "fetish to be worshiped and not touched." It is contrary to all logic that the tariff should be touched by the people. On the contrary, the people must expect to be "touched" by the tariff.—Albany Argus.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

EXCELLENT PIGGERY.

Description of a Building That, According to Its Designer, Will Soon Pay for Itself.

It has long been a well established fact that pigs furrowed in winter are much more profitable than those farrowed in summer. Many farmers claim that one winter pig is worth two summer ones. With many this could not be true, for the winter pig would usually be a dead one. It may be that for lack of proper preparation some of our readers are just now passing through disastrous experiences in winter pig raising and that they would welcome some suggestions in regard to preparation for another season.

With proper preparation and care, pigs farrowed in midwinter can be raised with as little mortality as those farrowed in summer. In addition to proper feed, the great requisite is comfortable quarters for the sow and youngsters. This can hardly be had without the aid of artificial heat and a building especially designed for the purpose. A farmer of Ohio is preparing for the erection of a building after the plan shown by accompanying diagram. This diagram shows building and adjacent lots. The building is to be 12-sided or hexagonal, and is to be divided into 12 apartments of equal size with space about 10 feet in diameter in center. Eleven of these apartments will be used as farrowing pens, and one will be left for a passageway. The greatest diameter of building will be about 26 feet. Floor will be of cement and will be made to slope gradually from center to circumference. Each pen will contain a floor space of about 38 square feet and will be provided with fenders, which will consist of boards so arranged as to project six inches from walls and will be placed six or seven inches from floor. This latter idea is well known and is recognized as being a great aid in keeping sow from crushing her pigs. The youngsters which would otherwise be pressed against the wall find protection under this projecting shelf. The inside ends of pens will be made of wire so as to not resist the heat from a common stove, which will be placed in center of building. A large skylight placed in south side of roof will admit an abundance of light.

The outer series of spaces represent small lots, one for each pen. These are not large, but large enough for the purpose. They are one rod at outerend. The whole will occupy about one-third of an acre and will be built for about $100. In some localities it would cost more, but with careful management we believe it can be built almost anywhere for $150. It can be readily seen that such a building will soon pay for itself. For the purpose designed we have never seen anything to equal it.—H. E. Tweed, in Ohio Farmer.

THE SUPPLY OF HOGS.

It Is Somewhat Below Demand at Present and Prospects for the Future Are Promising.

The man who raises plenty of corn and then raises plenty of hogs to consume it, is putting his product where it will do the most good, says Drovers' Journal. Hogs are relatively high now and according to the best information obtainable the supply in the country is somewhat below the normal at the present time. However, the best posted men on the hog situation have been mistaken on forecasts of this kind and one is bound to admit that the country is large and that it is impossible to get accurate statistics on the growing crop. There are many who believe that the light average weight is an indication that the later supply will be short, basing their judgment on the theory that no heavy hogs are available, because if they were the premium that they are commanding would force them in. Without question the marketing of so many young hogs now means less to come later on, whether the shortage will be serious or not remains to be seen. So far this winter the eastern supply has been quite large, at least large enough to keep shipments down to a comparatively low figure. It is generally believed that this supply has been pretty well marketed and so the coast is clearer for a better demand from this source later on. Perhaps the high price of corn has discouraged many farmers from feeding as many hogs as usual, but even with corn at present prices there could be no better investment than converting it into pork.

Those who have been shearing by hand should study up the economy of machine shearing. One cent for shearing a sheep is a low price, but it is possible with a shearing machine.—American Sheep Breeder.

All young birds like young and tender grass. If they cannot get to it, bring it to them in the form of sod.

SOME CLOVER FACTS.

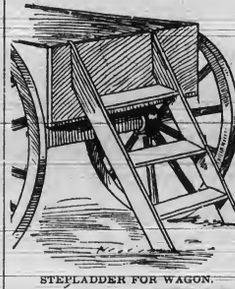
There Are Several Varieties Which Give Fair Yields and Are Valuable in Many Ways.

Clovers are among our most valuable forage plants, but they will not withstand the extremes of drought and heat that prevail over large sections of the west every year and in other sections of the same region some years. Being soil renovators they can be grown in rotation with other crops to advantage. On account of the large amount of protein they contain they have a high feeding value. There are several varieties of clovers grown in this country, among which are the following:

Red clover (Trifollum pratense).—This is the most common variety, and is grown successfully in the north wherever the supply of moisture is sufficient. In dry sections it becomes uncertain. Some call it a perennial, but it is scarcely more than a biennial, its perennial character being often assumed by new plants springing up from seeds dropped by the plants each year. It makes a good hay, but is unsuited for permanent pasture. When it is desired to use it for pasture, as a single plant, it is necessary to rotate, keeping the clover pasture in one place for not more than two years.

Mammoth clover (trifolium medium) resembles red clover, but has no spots on the leaves. It is adapted to more moist land than is red clover, and under favorable conditions will give a larger yield.

Alsike clover is a perennial clover whose appearance suggests a hybrid between red and white clover, but it is not a hybrid. It will thrive on soil too wet for red clover, but on ordinary soil is probably not to be so highly recommended. A writer says that it should be sown with grasses to get the best results.



White clover (trifolium repens) is a low-growing perennial, spreading by creeping stems. The flowers are white, the older ones more or less purplish tinged. It is of little value for hay owing to its small growth, but is very useful for beautifying lawns, and has some value as a pasture plant. Some farmers sow white clover seed with bluegrass and consider it an assistant to the bluegrass pasture. It stands drought fairly well, and will grow on soil too poor to give good yields of some other pasture plants. In Ireland it is called the shamrock.

Crimson clover (trifolium incarnatum) is an erect annual a foot or two high. It bears scarlet flowers in oblong heads. It was highly spoken of some years ago as a soil renovator, but of recent years has been quite generally ignored in the north. In the south it is proving valuable in some localities.—Farmers' Review.

Grading and Packing Honey.

Every beekeeper should strive to make a reputation as an honorable shipper, and after it has once been made he will not have much trouble in finding a market for his honey. It may be needless to say that this will require eternal vigilance in grading and packing. Dark honey must not be packed with light, and partly filled sections must not find their way into the middle of a case, but these should be set aside and the honey extracted from them. Grade your honey uniformly and try to have the middle of the case as good as the facing. Then provide yourself with a rubber stamp with your name and address upon it, and stamp all your goods. This will advertise your business, and buyers will gain confidence in you and will deal with you in preference to some one else who does not stand behind his goods; for if you really have a good article, consumers will continue to ask for your honey.—Farm Journal.

The Beet Sugar Industry.

Growth of the beet sugar industry in the recent past is greater than generally recognized, now that it is no longer a novelty. A little group of farmers living near Denver have just contracted to grow 300 acres of beets for three years from January 1 next to supply a new factory to be built. Like progress and development are noted in many other sections of the west, and as far east as N. Y. In Canada growers are in earnest asking the government to pay a bounty for a few years on sugar made from Canadian grown beets.

Found at Last.

When we suffer, Time seems to lag, and days, with leaden feet, creep slowly by. But, when relief comes, the past is forgotten in the light of a happy future. When Mr. T. B. Cutler was living in Cincinnati, Ohio, he wrote: "Palmer's Lotion has cured me of fetter, with which I had been afflicted for over twelve years, and from which I could find no permanent relief until I used this wonderful preparation." This is the testimony of another sufferer who truthfully calls Palmer's Lotion "wonderful." SPORT IN WESTERN CANADA.

While the Farmer's Grain Is Ripening and His Stock Growing Fat, He May Have Plenty of Shooting.

There is probably no country on the American Continent where the life of the farmer carries with it that assurance of comfort and success as does Western Canada. Nor is there to be found anywhere else such a pleasant combination. Game abounds everywhere and nowhere does it afford such perfect amusement. A noted sportsman writing of the favorite pastime says: "There is one particular spot where I saw a man drop 70 mallards one morning, and bring them all to bag, too, for they dropped in open water or on dry prairie. At the right season of the year you can see black lines and triangles cut sharply out against the sky all round you, moving very swiftly, and you begin to wonder whether you have enough cartridges to hold out. You can hear the prairie-chicken crowing like barndoor fowls; and a little to the northeast is a bit of marshy ground, cattle poached, and dappled with gleaming pools, where the snipe are nearly as thick as mosquitoes. A thin column of blue smoke curling up in the distance shows you where a few wandering Indians have pitched their camp, but there is no other indication of civilization in sight.—Still, the neighborhood is well-settled, and a short drive will bring you to a farmhouse where you can buy the finest butter and the freshest eggs for uncivilized prices.

"A very short railway journey will bring you to a country full of deer and the lordly wapiti, the king of the deer tribe the world over; and down on the flat, boggy land by the lake shores the moose will stand knee-deep in water on the summer evenings, ready to lie down when the flies get bothering. All day you breathe the wild free air of the prairie, and at night you are lulled to sleep by the surge and ripple and splash of the waves on the beach, broken now and then by the weird banshee-cry of strange water-fowl." Particulars regarding settlement of the lands of Western Canada can be had from any agent of the Canadian Government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your columns.

Judge Lassing left here enjoying the confidence of all that he would make us a first class judge, and in the words of one of the leading attorneys at the bar, "He made a good impression and every one who met him were loud in their praises of Judge Lassing as a man and of his ready decisions on the bench."—Carrollton News.

Dr. L. C. Cowen, of Rabbit Hash, made the RECORDER a brief call last Thursday. The Doctor, we are glad to say, is regaining his health and is now looking quite well. He is apprehensive that small-pox will be worse in this part of the county next winter than it has been, on account of the proper steps to stamp it out not being taken, because of the very light form in which it appeared here last winter.

Resolutions in memory of Mrs. Ora Russell Riggs.

Whereas, Death has again entered the fold of the Christian Endeavor Society of Pt. Pleasant, we esteem it a privilege on this occasion to express a few words of sympathy and respect in memory of our departed and beloved sister, Mrs. Ora Russell Riggs. She died in full faith of a better world and through her long sickness was cheerful to her last. Also Resolved, That we, the members of the Christian Endeavor Society, of Pt. Pleasant, do hereby express our sincere sympathy to our deceased sister's husband, Bro. Sherman Riggs and to her father and mother and sisters in the great loss which they have been called upon to sustain, and we devoutly commend them to God, Who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and husband as a token of our respect: that they be recorded in our minutes and a copy sent to the Boone County Recorder for publication.

The 6,000 souvenir edition issued by the Williamstown Courier, last week, was a beauty in every particular, and a credit to its enterprising editor. It contained a handsome half-tone of nearly every distinguished citizen, both male and female, of Grant county, as well as of all the public buildings and many of the beautiful residences of the county. The several writeups were in keeping with the other excellent features, and as a whole, the edition can not be excelled. The people of Grant county manifest their appreciation of Bro. Westover's journalistic labors, by a very liberal patronage of which he is justly proud and which stimulates him to the efforts necessary to send forth such an edition as that of last week.

The prettiest home wedding that has occurred in the Gunpowder neighborhood in quite a while, was that of Miss Luella Hogan, the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hogan, and Mr. William Wilson, a prominent young Grant county man, on the 29 inst. Rev. Slater, of the Lutheran church afficiated in a most graceful and impressive manner. The wedding march was played by Miss Susie Surface, and little Miss Bessie Rice, niece of the bride, was flower girl. A delightful lunch followed the congratulations of the numerous friends and relatives, after which Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left for Lexington, where they were tendered an elegant reception by Dr. Prather. The wedding presents were numerous, useful and handsome. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson begin their married life with the best wishes of a large number of friends and relatives.

Several of those subject to work on the public roads in the Constance precinct were before the county court, last week, charged with refusing to obey the summons of the supervisor. They all made an amicable settlement except Harry McNeal, who claimed he had worked the roads in Kenton county, and produced what he claimed was a receipt, but the court did not consider the receipt good, and fined him $5, which he refused to pay or replevy, and was sent to jail, where he remained three days and a half.

Dr. Smith received notice, last Sunday afternoon, that a man by the name of Hatfield, who lives near R. A. Brady, down on Middle creek, has smallpox, and could not secure medical attention. The doctor telephoned Dr. Clore, of Bullittsville, who replied that he would visit the sick man, which he did on Monday, and he says the man has smallpox.

CONFEDERATES MEET.

Gen. John B. Gordon Re-Elected Commander-in-Chief.

The Convention Adjourned After Deciding to Meet in Dallas, Tex., in 1902—A Grand Ball in the Evening.

Memphis, Tenn., May 29.—Nearly 2,500 members of the United Confederate Veterans' association, representing 1,331 camps of the organization, met in Confederate hall Tuesday morning for their eleventh annual reunion. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Gen. Joseph Wheeler and Gen. John B. Gordon were present. Before the meeting of the convention in Confederate hall the Confederate Ladies' Memorial association, in Calvary church, held a memorial meeting for Jefferson Davis, at which a memorial address was delivered by Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, of the Episcopal churches. The exercises of Tuesday were almost entirely confined to the welcoming addresses delivered by the representatives of the people of Memphis and of the state of Tennessee and by members of different organizations affiliated with the United Confederate Veterans.

The committee on resolutions will favorably report to the convention a resolution suggesting that steps be taken to prevent men who were deserters from the confederate army from procuring membership in the organization.

Memphis, Tenn., May 30.—A beautiful sight was the great floral parade with which the citizens of Memphis Wednesday afternoon honored their guests of the confederate reunion. Over a hundred vehicles, which were masses of flowers, were in line.

At the afternoon session the report of the historical committee was unanimously adopted. It stated that the chief, and probably only, impediment to the preparation and reception of a history impartially dealing with both sides of the war is prejudice. It said:

"Probably the generation now passing away will never completely outlive the prejudice engendered by the war, and contentions and misapprehensions which led to it. The passions and prejudices aroused by the war threatened to implant sectional animosities which time could never heal.

"We southern people once regarded Abraham Lincoln as one of the most despicable creatures that ever lived. Now, while we do not endorse the policy which he pursued, we honor him for his unquestioned sincerity, patriotism and ability. On the other hand the people of the north once regarded Jefferson Davis as the incarnation of selfishness and disloyalty. Now, wherever disabused of prejudices they regard him, using the language of one of their ablest scholars, as one of the "purest, ablest, most patriotic and most consistent of American statesmen."

With mighty roars of "Ayes" the delegates re-elected Gen. John B. Gordon commander-in-chief, Lieut. Gen. W. L. Cabel commander of the trans-Mississippi department, Lieut. Gen. S. D. Lee commander of the Army of Tennessee, and Lieut. Gen. Wade Hampton commander of the Army of Northern Virginia.

After a tumultuous scene Dallas, Tex., was selected for the reunion of 1902. Louisville was the only other contestant. The convention adjourned sine die at 5:50 p. m.

This convention is notable because it decided that steps are to be taken at once for the erection of the "Battle Abbey" in Richmond, Va., sufficient funds being in hand.

The parade was followed Wednesday evening by a ball in Confederate hall given by the Sons of Veterans, which was attended by 2,000 persons.

SONS OF VETERANS.

Judge R. B. Haughton, of St. Louis, Was Elected as Commander-in-Chief.

Memphis, Tenn., May 30.—The Sons of Confederate Veterans closed their convention in one of the stormiest sessions in the history of the organization. Nearly the entire afternoon was consumed in the election of a commander-in-chief. The flower parade was scheduled for the same time as the election of officers, and an effort to postpone the election was bitterly opposed by the friends of Judge R. B. Haughton, of St. Louis, who, after several hours of wrangling, was elected over Edwin P. Cox, of Richmond, Va. James Mann, chairman of the memorial committee, reported that $700 had been collected for the monument which the Sons of Veterans propose to erect in honor of the confederate women. He made a strong plea for support, and subscriptions to the amount of $5,000 were raised. This makes $5,700 pledged to the committee. The convention adjourned sine die, to meet in Dallas, Tex., in 1902.

Valuable Concessions at Stake.

SOUTHERN STORMS.

Great Damage Was Done to All the Crops, Especially Fruit, Over a Wide Area.

Dawson, Ga., June 1.—A terrific wind and hail storm visited Dawson, doing considerable damage. The storm struck the northern portion of the city, completely destroying a large amount of valuable property. The roofs were blown off the Dawson Grocery Co.'s warehouse and the Dawson crate and box factory, and off both the Seaboard and Central railways' freight houses, exposing their contents to the weather. The top and smokestack were torn from the cotton conipress, and the Dawson oil mill plant is partially destroyed, the refinery being a total wreck. The house of Mrs. J. W. Adams, on Lee street, was wrecked, and Mrs. Adams arm broken by falling timbers. The wind played havoc in Negrtown, totally destroying a great many houses including a church which had just been completed and leaving the large Odd Fellows' hall a mass of ruins. Stock was killed by lightning. Crops in this section are greatly damaged by the rain and hail, and the fruit crop, which has been ripening very fast, is badly injured.

Three houses were destroyed at Belmont, four miles north, and several houses were unroofed at Parrott, nine miles north.

About 30 houses were destroyed in and near Dawson. Telephone and telegraphic communication is cut off, and all electric wires are down, leaving the city in darkness.

Vicksburg, Miss., June 1.—A wind storm, almost cyclonic in proportions, passed through the southwestern section of Claiborne county Friday morning, prostrating trees, houses, and everything else in its path. So far only one fatality is reported, the 5-year-old daughter of Elijah Copeland, colored. Copeland's house was smashed like an eggshell and three of his children caught under the falling timbers, the little girl being instantly killed. The others escaped with slight bruises. The wind was accompanied by heavy hail, and the damage to crops will be heavy.

Houston, Tex., June 1.—A heavy rain and hail storm covered a wide area Friday morning, and great damage has been done to all crops, especially the fruit. Eastern Texas was affected to a greater extent than any other section. A special from Longview says hail was 20 inches deep in places, and much damage was done. A special from Pelestine says the damage to property inside the city and to the crops in the surrounding country.

Specials show the greatest damage sustained in the counties of Anderson, Nacogdoches, Rusk, Shelby, Smith, Hill, Gregg, Cherokee and Fisher, while many other counties report lighter damage.

Nashville, Tenn., June 1.—A special from Bentonton says a terrific hail storm passed over Polk county, doing great damage to corn and cotton and completely wiping out the wheat crop along Hiwassee river. The storm was fiercest near Wetmore, where the hail drifted over a foot deep.

TILLMAN AND M'LAURIN.

Gov. McSweeney Refused to Accept Their Resignations as Senators From South Carolina.

Columbia, S. C., June 1.—Gov. McSweeney Friday, acting, he said, in accordance with the wishes of the people, who did not wish a primary, with its incident strife and unrest, refused to accept the resignation of Senators Tillman and McLaurin. These resignations were announced at a political meeting in Gaffney, May 25.

He wrote a communication to the senators, in which he said at first that he "returned their resignations for further consideration." In the closing paragraphs of his letter, however, the governor unequivocally "declined to accept" the resignations.

MINISTER FRANK LOOMIS.

Officially Admitted That He Will Not Return to Venezuela—Will Be Given Another Position.

Washington, June 1.—It is officially admitted that Minister Loomis will not return to Venezuela. Mr. Loomis has suffered in health at his uncongenial position. The president moreover is not disposed to expose him again to the attacks made on him in Venezuela because of his execution of orders from the state department. Mr. Loomis, who is now in Europe seeking to recuperate, will be given another diplomatic position as soon as a suitable place can be found. Meanwhile Mr. Russell will remain in charge of the United States legation at Caracas for a period of time not yet determined upon, but likely to be fixed by the attitude of the Venezuelan government.

Murderer Hanged.

Westville, Miss., June 1.—Charles Haverson, a white man, was hanged here for the murder of A. A. Ammonds. About 5,000 people witnessed the execution.

Gen. Buffington's Successor.

Washington, June 1.—Rumors in the war department were that Capt. Wm. Crozier, of the ordnance department, has been practically selected to succeed Gen. Buffington as chief of ordnance on the retirement of that officer this fall. He is one of the junior officers of the ordnance department.

Murder and Suicide.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 1.—John T. Price, a veteran, while in the memorial parade, was murdered by his brother-in-law, Ant. Miller, who killed himself to escape arrest.

A MILITARY PARADE.

Memorial Day Was Observed in New York City.

Ceremonies at the Dedication of the Hall of Fame—Tablets in Memory of Many Distinguished Persons Were Unveiled.

New York, May 31.—Although there were threatening signs of rain throughout the early part of Thursday the Memorial day exercises in this city were carried out with more than the usual interest. The important events of the day's programme were the military parade, which was reviewed at Madison square by Gov. Odell and Mayor VanWyck, the exercises at Grant's tomb, where Wu Ting Fang made an address, and the dedication of the Hall of Fame at the New York university, at which Senator Chauncey Depew delivered an oration. The parade included the old guard, acting as an escort to Gov. Odell; several detachments of United States regulars, a number of military organizations, a battalion of United States marines, and all of the local posts of the G. A. R. In all there were about 15,000 men in line. A feature of the parade was the firing of a salute by the naval post opposite the statue of Farragut in Madison square.

At Grant's tomb Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister, in accordance with instructions given by Li Hung Chung some years ago, placed an offering of flowers on the stone coffin containing the general's remains. Mr. Wu also delivered an address.

For the first time on this side of the continent countless graves of the great deep were decorated Thursday from the deck of the battleship Massachusetts, now lying at the New York navy yard. This was in accordance with the movement recently set on foot in California and indorsed by Adms. Dewey, Sampson and Schley.

The ceremonies at the dedication of the Hall of Fame were opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis. Senator Chauncey M. Depew then delivered the oration.

Following the oration Chancellor McCracken, of the New York university, in an address, made formal declaration at the opening of the hall.

The unveiling of tablets was then begun as follows: Washington tablet, by the Society of the Cincinnati; Lincoln tablet, by the Military Order of the Loyal Legion; Webster tablet, by the Daughters of the American Revolution; Franklin tablet, by the Colonial Dames; Jefferson tablet, by the Sons of the American Revolution; Clay tablet, by the Daughters of the Revolution; Adams tablet, by the Sons of the Revolution; Grant tablet, by the Grand Army of the Republic; Farragut tablet, by the National Association of Naval Veterans; Lee tablet, by the United Daughters of the Confederacy; Marshall tablet, by the American Bar association; Kent tablet, by the Bar Association of New York; Story tablet, by the American Academy of Political and Social science; Peabody tablet, by the Peabody Education fund; Cooper tablet, by Edward Cooper, Abraham S. Hewitt and R. Fulton Cutting; Stuart tablet, by the National Academy of Design; Fulton tablet, by the American Society of Civil Engineers; Morse tablet, by the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; Whitney tablet, by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; Audubon tablet, by the American Society of Naturalists; Gray tablet, by the Botanical Society of America; Edwards tablet, by the Society of Christian Endeavor; Mann tablet, by the National Education association; Beecher tablet, by the Y. M. C. A.; Channing tablet, by the New England society; Emerson tablet, by the New York Normal college; Hawthorne tablet, by the Peter Cooper High school; Irving tablet, by the Wadleigh High school; Longfellow tablet, by the Brooklyn Girls' High school.

AT SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

A Floral Wreath Placed on Lincoln's Tomb—The Veterans' Graves Decorated.

Springfield, Ill., May 31.—Memorial day was observed in Springfield as usual by the closing of all public offices and a general closing of business houses and decoration of houses with flags. In the afternoon graves of veterans of the civil war in Oak Ridge cemetery were decorated, and at the national Lincoln monument a floral wreath was placed on Lincoln's tomb. County Judge Geo. W. Murray was orator of the day. Thousands visited the grave of former Gov. Tanner.

Gettysburg, Pa., May 31.—Decoration day at Gettysburg attracted an unusual crowd from neighboring towns and from Baltimore, Washington and Harrisburg. Over 500 school children decorated the graves at the National cemetery. The oration was delivered by Hon. Henry Hall, of Pittsburg, and a poem was read by Dewitt C. Sprague, of Washington.

Tablet to Adm. Meade.

Annapolis, Md., May 31.—A handsome blue stone tablet to the memory of the late Rr. Adm. Richard Meade, U. S. N., was unveiled in the navy yard here Thursday under auspices of Lafayette Post, New York City.

Count Wm. Bismarck Dead.

Berlin, May 31.—Count Wm. Bismarck is dead, after a six days' illness, of peritonitis. His funeral will occur next Monday, which is the day set by the emperor for the unveiling of the statue of his father, Prince Bismarck.

How Mothers may Help their Daughters into Womanhood

Every mother possesses information of vital value to her young daughter. That daughter is a precious legacy, and the responsibility for her future is largely in the hands of the mother. The mysterious change that develops the thoughtless girl into the thoughtful woman should find the mother on the watch day and night. As she cares for the physical well-being of her daughter, so will the woman be, and her children also.

When the young girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she experiences headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep, pains in the back and lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude, and a dislike for the society of other girls, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, then the mother should go to her aid promptly. At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and is the surest reliance in this hour of trial.

Miss Good asks Mrs. Pinkham for Help.

June 12th, 1899.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been very much bothered for some time with my monthly periods being irregular. I will tell you all about it, and put myself in your care, for I have heard so much of you. Each month menstruation would become less and less, until it entirely stopped for six months, and now it has stopped again. I have become very nervous and of a very bad color. I am a young girl and have always had to work very hard. I would be very much pleased if you would tell me what to do."—MISS PEARL GOOD, Cor. 29th Avenue and Yesler Way, Seattle, Wash.

MISS PEARL GOOD

The Happy Result.

February 10th, 1900.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. It is just simply wonderful the change your medicine has made in me. I feel like another person. My work is now a pleasure to me, while before using your medicine it was a burden. To-day I am a healthy and happy girl. I think if more women would use your Vegetable Compound there would be less suffering in the world."—MISS PEARL GOOD, Cor. 29th Avenue and Yesler Way, Seattle, Wash.

$5000 REWARD

Owing to the fact that some skeptical people have from time to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing, we have deposited with the National City Bank, of Lynn, Mass., $5,000, which will be paid to any person who can show that the above testimonial is not genuine, or was published before obtaining the writer's special permission.—LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO.

HOGS CATCHING FISH.

Washington Farmers Must Keep Their Swine Away from Rivers Because of Their Liking for Salmon.

In the state of Washington, as all school boys and girls doubtless know, are the greatest salmon fisheries in America. Every spring the swift mountain streams are fairly alive with these beautiful reddish yellow fish (three and four feet in length and weighing often 25 and 30 pounds), as they go up the river to deposit their eggs in the headwaters of the mountain streams. Then in the early fall they come down again. It is during these two seasons that what is known as the salmon run is at its full height, and this is the time to which the Washington boys look forward to all the rest of the year.

But the queerest fishers are neither Indians nor boys, says an exchange of that state. They are hogs. So fond are the hogs of this delicacy, which costs the people of London one dollar a pound, that the farmers who have pastures along the rivers have great trouble fencing the farms so that the hogs cannot get into the streams. Mr. Hog wades in, or swims in, according to the depth of the stream, and then watches for the salmon. The salmon swims along unsuspectingly. Mr. Hog is ready for him. Quick as a flash he fastens his greedy jaws about the great fish and carries him ashore, there to devour him with the greatest relish. Then back he ships into the water to watch for the next traveler along that way. He will keep this up until his hunger is satisfied. This indulgence ruins the hog for pork, however, as it gives it a "fishy" taste, and no one will buy it. That is the reason the farmers keep their hogs as far from the streams as possible.

GROUND STONE AS FOOD.

Scarcity of Edible Matter in India Leads to the Consumption of Friable Rock.

On account of the absence of seeds and succulent roots of grasses, says the chief medical officer of Rajputana in a recent report, the bark of trees and even ground-up rocks are used, principally to give bulk to the scanty meal, and thereby stay the pangs of hunger for a longer time. At present small proportions of ground Khejra bark are in use nearly everywhere, and in the proportion of about one part to twenty of flour it does not impair the digestion of the laboring classes, although it does so if taken in excess, says St. James' Gazette. Indeed, small quantities of this bark, well ground, are said to aid digestion, and to make up to some extent for the want of fresh vegetables. A soft stone, pila Chata, found on the Bikanen-Marwar border of Jaipur, is largely used in that part of the country to give bulk to the meal. This stone is friable, and easily ground into fine powder. It contains an oleaginous substance, which has some nutritious qualities, and the people have found that when finely ground and used in the proportion of about one-fourth to three-fourths of flour it does not impair digestion for a considerable time; but when it is used in excess it soon gives rise to malnutrition, emaciation, bowel disease, swollen feet and other signs of starvation. Other barks and earthy substances are more injurious, but the flesh of the cattle that died, which was used extensively, had no ill effects.

Hoyle's Literary Work.

The father of the game of whist, Edmond Hoyle, lived to be 97 years old. His treatise on cards has been published in all languages and probably no work except the Bible has passed through more editions. The original work appeared in London in 1742 and 1770. It had reached its fifteenth edition. Then the commentators, revisers, critics, iconoclasts, pirates and expounders set in and from that time on down to the present day innumerable "Hoyles" have been issued.

The Czar's Modesty.

THE AFFAIRS OF STATE

No Need of an Extra Session of Congress at Present.

Action of the Cuban Constitutional Convention Was Not a "Substantial" Compliance With the Platt Amendment.

Washington, June 1.—The cabinet was unable to reach any conclusions as to the Philippine tariff situation as affected by the recent insular decisions of the supreme court. Attorney General Knox will make a careful examination of the language of the decisions at once and ascertain their exact bearing on the tariff between this country and the Philippines. He will then state to the president and his advisers the powers now vested in the government in dealing with this subject. There was little discussion of this matter owing to the general lack of clear understanding as to the real effect of the decision. Mr. Knox may report his conclusions on the subject at the next cabinet meeting, and probably also will discuss the results of his examination of the opinions of the court with the president individually. Meanwhile discussion of the need of an extra session is deferred, as consideration of the question of an extra session was regarded as premature at this time. Members of the cabinet individually refrained from even expressing their general opinions as to the possibility of congress being convened in extraordinary session.

The cabinet held that the amendments and interpretations and the wealth of wheresses placed by the Cuban convention upon the Cuban amendment amounted to a practical modification of the Platt amendment such as was beyond the power of this government to accept. The message of rejection sent to Gen Wood advises the Cubans in unqualified language that there is no power resting in the United States government to change the terms of the Platt amendment, and that this government insists on the acceptance of the Platt amendment, without amendment of qualification. The Cuban convention is still in session and the message of rejection will be delivered to it immediately. The administration is confident that the Cubans will understand the exact attitude of this government and make a satisfactory acceptance within a reasonable length of time.

The only other important matter brought up at the session was a statement by Secretary Gage as to the finances of the government. The president and cabinet had been away from the city for some weeks and Secretary Gage took the opportunity to point out that the surplus in the treasury is steadily mounting upward, and that national financial conditions in general were very gratifying.

CUBANS DISAPPOINTED.

Surprised Over Administration Decision Not to Accept the Cuban Constitution as Adopted.

Havana, June 1.—The decision of the United States government not to accept the Cuban constitution as adopted by the Havana convention caused great surprise and keen disappointment to the members of the convention who voted in favor of the constitution as adopted. Two leading conservatives who were interviewed Friday night on the subject said in substance that they had reason to suppose that the constitution would be acceptable to Washington, and that otherwise they would not have voted for the majority report as submitted. As they also pointed out that in order to avoid a possibility of rejection the majority had been changed at the last moment by striking out the interpretation at the end of the clauses and putting these in the form of a resolution by themselves, thus accepting the Platt amendment as passed by congress.

Both delegates expressed regret that misunderstanding had arisen and said they doubted that the convention would now reconsider this action, as the fight had been hot, the victory had been won by only one vote, and those who had tried to do their duty toward their country had been bitterly assailed as traitors and perjurers.

A SEVERE BATTLE.

The Field Was Strewn With Dead and Wounded When the Boer-British Conflict Ended.

DOWIE'S ADDRESS.

He Proclaims Himself as Elijah, the Prophet, Before an Audience of 5,000 People.

Chicago, June 3.—"I am Elijah, the prophet, who appeared first as Elijah himself, second as John the Baptist, and who now comes in me, the restorer of all things. Elijah was a prophet, John was a preacher, but I combine in myself the attributes of prophet, priest and ruler over men. Gaze on me, then; I say it fearlessly. Make the most of it, you wretches in ecclesiastical garb. I am he that is the living physical and spiritual embodiment of Elijah, and my commission to earth a third time has been prophesied by Malachi, by God himself, by his son Jesus, by Peter, and 3,000 years ago, by Moses. All who believe me to be in very truth all of this will stand up."

And over 3,000 people rose to their feet and greeted the declaration with cheers and handclapping.

John Alexander Dowie, true to his promises, made this statement from the platform of the Auditorium Sunday night in the presence of 5,000 people. It was the culmination of a frenzied speech, in which he denounced everybody and everything not in Zion, cursed the pope and the Roman Catholic church, spat literally at the masonry, the newspapers and the bankers of Chicago, and raged and tore up and down the stage like a mad man.

"Understand well what I mean," he continued. "I will take no counsel in my methods of government. I have come to proclaim theocracy, pure and simple, the government of God, by God and for God, and I will never rest till all other forms of government have been driven from the earth.

"You talk about your democracy. Bah! I tell you democracy has been tried in the balance and has failed. The government of the people, by the people and for the people is twaddle. I stand loyal to the flag and countenance no revolution, but I demand here and now that the name of God must be placed foremost in the constitution of the United States and the supreme authority of God over all things must be recognized.

Listen to the first message of the phophet," he demanded. "You must pay your tithes and offerings into the storehouse of God. Accursed be ye if ye would seek to rob His house of its fullness by not obeying this, His will, sent through Elijah."

OPENINGS IN THE EARTH.

A Strange Phenomenon at Butte, Mont.—The Citizens Are Much Alarmed.

Butte, Mont., June 3.—The strange sliding movement of the city of Butte which has been noticeable at intervals for several years has again manifested itself by five large cracks in the earth in different sections of the city. The largest crevice occurs on West Galena street, where a crack 12 inches wide and of considerable length and depth has appeared. Three openings occur on the west side of the town and two on the east side. There is no caving, but a distinct parting of the earth, and the granite walls can easily be seen in them. The gas and water companies have much trouble on account of the strange movement which frequently breaks their underground pipes. City Engineer Riekenbach says the engineering department of the city encounters the same trouble, as elevations and bench marks in certain parts of the city are constantly changing. This is particularly true of the section west of Main street and north of Broadway, where the marks have been known to shift to the extent of a foot in a very short space of time. The continuance of the strange phenomenon is beginning to cause some alarm among the citizens of Butte.

IS GROWING WEAKER.

Reports Concerning Mrs. McKinley Not Reassuring.

The Complaint That Nearly Ended the Sufferer's Life at San Francisco Still Present in a Less Aggravated Form.

Washington, June 3.—Mrs. McKinley continues very weak. Her condition is not greatly changed from that of Saturday, but each day that elapses without a gain in strength lessens her powers of recuperation. The complaint which came near ending her life in San Francisco is still present. It is in a slightly less aggravated form, but gives the physicians and the president much concern. Mrs. McKinley has shown remarkable vitality, but her illness has so reduced her strength as to leave her very feeble indeed. It is feared that unless a change for the better soon manifests itself her strength may become so near exhausted as to leave her without rallying power. The news given out by the physicians in attendance Sunday was not reassuring, though hope of better things still continue. After a consultation between Drs. Rixey, Sternberg and Johnston the following bulletin was issued:

"Mrs. McKinley passed a comfortable night, but her condition has not materially changed since the report of Saturday."

There were no further consultations of the physicians during the day, but Dr. Rixey called during the evening and spent some time with the patient. In response to inquiries from time to time the statement was made that there had been no change in the condition of the sufferer.

President McKinley spent most of the day at the bedside of his wife, though late in the afternoon he went out for an hour's drive. He departed alone, but met Judge Matson, of Ohio, an old friend, on the way, and the latter accompanied him to the white house.

There were many callers at the white house during the day and evening, making anxious inquiries regarding Mrs. McKinley. With few exceptions they simply left their cards after being assured by the doorkeepers that there was no change in Mrs. McKinley's condition.

Drs. Rixey and Sternberg both were in attendance at the white house during the evening, although the latter did not remain very long. Dr. Rixey was at the mansion for over two hours, and when he left for the night, shortly before 11 o'clock, he announced that at the time Mrs. McKinley was resting comfortably, as she had done all the afternoon. Senator Elkins called on the president during the evening, and was with him for about 15 minutes.

A MOB'S WORK.

Althcas, Cal., June 1.—Calvin Hall and his three sons, Frank, Jim and Martin, and Dan Yantis, who had been stealing horses for years, were arrested and guarded by three officers. A mob of 40 masked men took them at 1 o'clock and hung them to a bridge near Lookout. The officers in charge of the prisoners were overpowered and compelled to help hang them. The mob dispersed within five minutes. The bodies were still hanging at noon. Sheriff Street and District Attorney Bonney and Reporter Dean have gone to the scene of the hanging.

Lookout, the scene of the lynching, is in the Hot Springs valley, on Platt river, 25 miles from Alturas, the county seat of Modoc county. There is no telegraphic communication with the valley, and the news of the lynching was brought to Alturas by a courier. Particulars are, therefore, very meager.

The bodies have been cut down. The district attorney of Modoc county is on the way to the scene of the lynching. Hall was a man of considerable intelligence. His wife was a squaw.

San Francisco, June 3.—Gov. Gage Sunday offered a reward of $5,000 for the arrest and conviction of the persons implicated in the lynching of the five men at Lookout, Modoc county, Friday last.

THE NEGOTIATIONS.

China's Acceptance of 450,000,000 Taels to Be Paid As Indemnity Gives Satisfaction.

Peking June 1.—China's unconditional acceptance of 450,000,000 taels as the indemnity to be paid the powers has caused great satisfaction among the foreign ministers, as it only leaves, practically, a few minor details to complete the negotiations.

The phrase in the joint note, "To the satisfaction of the powers," may cause some delay in the evacuation of Chinese territory, as the ministers fail to see how China can guarantee payment, and as all the ministers believe it would be a mistake to have a large body of foreign officials collecting revenue. Were revenue thus collected, over 2,000 officials would be required, and the aggregate salaries of these men would be very large, and amount to more than the ordinary Chinese "squeeze."

The majority of the ministers now favor raising the customs to ten per cent and taking 5,000,000 taels yearly from the Likin tax. This method would give, after the payment of interest on foreign debts now existing, about 23,000,000 taels a year. The ministers would agree to this system if China will discontinue the collection of all Likin duties on foreign goods.

GARRARD-WHITE FEUD.

Jule Webb Acquitted of Killing Chad Hall—Two Other Cases Dismissed.

London, Ky., May 30.—The case against Jule Webb, charged with killing Chad Hall, both members of the Garrard-White feud in Clay county, but on opposite sides, was given to the jury at 4 o'clock Wednesday evening. The jury, after being out five minutes, returned a verdict of acquittal.

This case was brought to this county on a change of venue from Clay county.

The cases against Bill McCollum and Taylor Spurlock, jointly indicted with Webb for the killing of Hall, were dismissed by the court after Webb was acquitted. The evidence against Jule Webb showed that he killed Chad Hall, but acted in self-defense in so doing, as Hall was trying to kill him at the time and would have done so if his (Hall's) pistol had not snapped.

George Hall, a brother of Chad Hall, attacked Attorney Sam Cash, who was defending Jule Hall, in the court house during the noon adjournment, and would have killed him had not friends interfered. When court met in the afternoon Hall was put under a $1,000 bond to keep the peace.

Mr. Cash made a statement to the court that his house in Manchester had been shot into and his windows smashed, and that he believed that George Hall was the man who did it, and that George Hall had on several occasions tried to kill him, and that he tried again to kill him during the noon adjournment of court.

All is quiet and no further trouble is looked for here.

A TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

Mrs. Katie Hester Killed Her Husband, Innocent Babe and Herself at Covington, Ky.

Covington, Ky., June 1.—Murder of her husband and innocent babe, to say nothing of the distruction of her own life, is the charge that a Covington woman, already before her Maker, must account for. The crimes committed Friday evening are the most appalling in police annals of the Kentucky city.

Ottie Hester, a saloon keeper at Third street and Western avenue, known to every follower of pugilism in Covington, is the murdered man. His 5-year-old daughter Katie met her fate a short time after her father, while Mrs. Katie Hester did not wait a great while to turn the murderous weapon with which the crimes were committed upon herself.

Just what causes prompted the wholesale slaughter are a matter of conjecture. No part of the entire affair was witnessed by any one now alive, as it all occurred in the living apartments of the Hester family. True, shots were heard by many people in the vicinity, but nobody was able to locate the direction from which they came.

The last seen of Mrs. Hester was about 6 o'clock in the evening. At that time she was tending the bar in the place, as her husband employed no barkeeper. Hester was then somewhere about Covington upon business pertaining to another saloon which he was about to open.

The track was in fairly good shape and the sport very exciting. There was seven races on the card and all of them proved lively betting affairs. Russian, winner of the fifth race, was bid up by W. L. Hazelip form $300 to $500, but retained by his owner, George Innes.

Hulabalee ran away four miles in the third event.

During the intermission between the first and second races Manager Fowler, of the Queen City Jockey club, was presented with a fine horse and rubber tired runabout by the horsemen and bookmakers at the track. The presentation speech was made by Judge Russmurm. Mr. Fowler responded with a few well chosen words and the band played "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

H. C. Diers, of the Central Hotel at Harrison, Ohio, was around, last week, shaking hands with and receiving the congratulations of his numerous friends on his improved appearance since his removal to the Buckeye State.

I subjoin the population of our Boone county towns as there seems to be a surprising lack of information on the subject. According to the census of 1900 there are in Walton, 533; Petersburg, 508; Burlington 350; Florence 258; Verona 246; Union 175; Grant 125; Hebron 110; Constance 100; Hamilton 82; Beaver 51; Richwood 47; Big Bone 40; Limaburg 35; Bullittsville 34; Berkshire 30; Gunpowder 26; Hathaway 20; Idlewild and Frogtown unknown.

The funeral of Allen Arnold, 61, an old landmark of the town, took place Sunday at the Baptist church at 2:30 p. m. The procession of the Odd-Fellows was very imposing in our little village. It was composed of a large delegation from the West End 176, of Covington nearly the entire membership of the local lodge and quite a number of individuals from the various lodges in adjacent places. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. G. W. Hill, and the remains were consigned to their last resting place in the cemetery adjoining the church.

Seven Years in Bed.

"Will wonders ever cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Pease, of Lawrence, Kan. Young Women

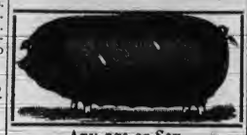
The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders started at that time soon grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are filling graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to fit young women for every duty of life. $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Miss Della M. Stayer, Tully, Kan., "I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything, in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Thedford's Black-Draught, when needed, and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."



For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, - - KENTUCKY.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels, B grade, with celebrated Gotier steel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Winchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and pattern, which I claim has no equal. The body will be good, seasoned yellow popiar; sills and rises good seasoned ash and hickory—not Cottonwood as the factories are now using. Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them bursting out, something I guarantee my work not to do.

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters bufled, not split, roof and curtains 30 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be something neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes. If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 60, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of T. J. Childress' toll-gate.

He has been shown at several Northern Ky. fairs the past two years and has never been beaten in a show ring. His colts are large, blocky mules, the kind that makes good feeders and sellers. BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

ANY old cloud can produce a good shower of rain now.

GOV. DURBIN, of Indiana, said in Washington that the climate of Indiana agrees with "Governor" Taylor perfectly.

SINCE Sampson was not at the battle of Santiago, it is perhaps appropriate that his head should be put on its medals. Otherwise, he wouldn't be in it at all.

THE President has pardoned Randall Adams, of Knott county, convicted in 1895 of being implicated in the murder of Deputy United States Mashal Wireman.

REALLY it seems to be rubbing the thing in, to present Admiral Schley with a Santiago medal on which Sampson's head is engraved and to require him to wear it.

A TARIFF was put on wool to increase the price. The price has declined wonderfully during the past year, and the tariff remains the same. What's the matter?

THE monthly report of Secretary McDonald to the State Prison Commission shows that the prisons under the present administration have passed the self-sustaining point.

THERE never was a chance for an extra session of Congress. The rumor to that effect grew out of the minds of Washington people who find it deadly dull there when Congress is away.

AN order has been issued by Superintendent of Immigration Powderly forbidding admission to this country of any persons suffering from tuberculosis. The order applies to all classes of alien passengers.

W. P. WALTON, many years the editor of the Interior Jaurnal, at Stanford, has purchased the Harrodsburg Democrat and will make a Semi-weekly of it. Mr. Walton is one of the best newspaper men in the State.

INCREASES in salaries of Kentucky postmasters have been allowed as follows. Flemingburg, $1,300 to $1,400; Elkton, $1,100 to $1,200; Georgetown, $1,800 to $1,900; Falmouth, $1,100; to $1,200; Franklin, $1,500 to $1,600; Greensville, $1,100 to $1,200.

CUBA must toe the line without any explanation or interpretation. If the administration wants to reverse itself later on, it doesn't want to be hampered by any written declaration of present principles. The President has not forgotten his unfortunate experience with "plain duty."

THERE is good reason to believe that President Mckinley's ideas in regard to protection have been much modified of late years but it is entirely certain that he would not dare to admit the fact if he were now serving his first term and not his second. The trusts control the Republican party absolutely.

COLLECTOR SAPP and the Evening Post, one or the other, or both, are sapping the life out of the Republican party in Louisville, very much to the delight of the Democratic local leaders in that city. Sapp and the Post are engaged in a bitter fight for the leadership, with Sapp on top, with every indication that he will retain his position.

IT has been decided that the Secretary of War shall have supreme control of the proposed civil government in the Philippines, but it has not been decided whether the General commanding the army or the Civil Governor shall be supreme in the Philippines. The government will not be conducted under the Spooner law. That law will only be accepted as sanctioning a civil-military rule.

SENATOR MCLAURAN, of South Carolina, saw the light of duty which Gov. McSweeney turned upon his course and decided not to abandon the people of the State. He informed the Governor in a letter that he is willing to hold on to his commission, but wishes it distinctly understood that he does so because the Governor says it is for the good of the State and not because anybody's afraid.

Live Stock Notes.

Heating and constipative foods are bad for colts and for brood mares.

More clover, bran and oats for the pigs, and more profit to their owner.

Horses and colts do well on carrots and other roots as a part of their rations.

It is the litter of two to four year old dams that grow to most profitable hogs.

Iron mangers for grain are preferable to others, as they are easily kept sweet and clean.

Confinement, filth, and impure water precede hog cholera in ninety cases out of a hundred.

The brood mare should have regular exercise, but it should never be carried to the point of fatigue.

The horse has a rather small stomach. This truth should be kept in mind when coarse fodder is fed to horses.

The pig is one of the quickest money makers known to the farm, and he can lose the same owner money as rapidly when disease reaches him.

If a horse is inclined to stock up in a tie stall, he should have the freedom of a box stall. Try it. The high spirited, nervous horse will always do better in a box stall.

Good grade draft horses have been selling in the Chicago market, ranging according to quality at $180 to $280, partly for export. Extra fine, weighing 2,000 pounds and more sold as high as $500. A number of 1,800 pounds, fine grade draft horses sold up to $265.

Overhead hay racks cause much trouble with the eyes of horses. It is better to place the horse's feed low so that he will have to bend his head to reach it. This is good in several ways. It is the natural feeding posture of the horse. With his head bent down he will have a freer flow of saliva in his mouth to wet his food. In this position he runs no risk of getting seeds, or awns, or hulls, or dust in his eyes.

It is a good plan if your tie stalls are not quite warm enough, or are exposed to the in-rush of cold air when the outer doors are opened, to hang curtains at the back of the stalls from rods placed near the ceiling. These curtains can be made of old blankets, pieces of carpeting or old meal sacks sewed together. They should be fastened to rings on the rods so they can be pushed back and forth as occasion demands.

ACCORDING to the Georgetown papers a few ex-Democrats joined hands with the negroes and bossed the job in the Republican convention in that city the other day. The new additions in Scott county have lost no time in allying them selves with the dominant element in the Republican party there.

THE total valuation of property in Kentucky subject to taxation, as equalized by the State Board of Equalization, is $598,-800,122. This is an increase over the equalized valuation for last year of $15,935,150. These figures are approximately correct. The official report of the board, now in course of preparation, and which will be completed within a week, may make some slight changes.

A small black worm about an inch in length, of the "measuring" species, has made its appearance in countless numbers on North Hogan creek and seriously threatens the apple crop. It attacks both the foliage and the fruit, stripping the tree of the former and eating the latter. Spraying the tree in advance of the attack seems to act as a preventive. Prompt and concerted action seems necessary if farmers would save their promised harvest.—Lawrenceburg Register.

Louisville and New Orleans towboat pilots are paid $600 a trip. Some of them have already made three trips since last November, and are likely to make two or three more before the season closes.

Feeding Dairy Cows.

The call for good grass butter is urgent to-day, and consumers actually long for the spring season when grassmade butter makes its first appearance. So delicate and attractive is the color and flavor of June butter that all like the product and hold it above that made at any other season. Packers and merchants store this June butter and hold it all through the winter season, selling it gradually at an advance over all others. If it were needed other evidence could be cited to show that grass is the most natural and best food that can be fed to the dairy cows. Good June grass performs a work in the economy of nature that no artificial methods have yet duplicated. Nevertheless, some dairymen show such dense lack of appreciation of this that they fail to have a decent grass pasture on their farms. Dairying without good pasture fields is very much like playing Hamlet without Hamlet. It is impossible for the farmer to produce the desirable results which he may have vaguely in view.

Grass and hay, then corn and other succulent foods, should be the relative order of foods which the dairymen should keep constantly in mind. His farming should be based upon a proper conception of the value of these foods so that when he plants a crop he knows exactly what he will get in return for it. A good pasture farm is a small fortune to a dairyman, but the science of keeping up this pasture to its full production is worth more to him. And yet there is no great secret in the question. It is merely the application of common sense, knowledege and judgment in furnishing the grass and hay crops with the right food to keep them going. Robbing the soil and starving the grass roots must always be followed by poor grass and hay crops sooner or later. Neglect the crop this season and we will have to pay for it next. Sometimes the payment comes sooner than we expect, and again it is postponed for some indefinite time. When an overdraft is made upon the soil it is always wise to make restitution as soon as possible. Put on an extra supply of fertilizers this year, and do not neglect it until too late. We cannot take from the soil more than there is in it, but we can cultivate crops so that the full food supply is developed and expanded. A good deal of the food supply of any soil is wasted, as a rule, through lack of cultivation and a proper method of utilizing it. These secrets should be known and then used to their utmost.—A. B. Barrett, Minnesota, In Michigan Farmer.

The Boston negroes wrecked the Republican machine that has long been running in the county. The Sinclair Bros., have been operating it to a Queen's taste, but the sons of Ham, from Boston, simply smashed it and sent it to the bow wows Saturday. The colored voters have at last learned what the News has tried hard to teach them, that they could control conventions as easily as they can vote. They will do both in the future. Hurrah for the courage and the interest the colored voters have showed and manifested in the last convention.—Georgetown News.

About three o'clock last Sunday morning four men, whose names are Roberts, King, May and Bourne, managed to get out of the jail cell into the corridor and up through a trap door into the attic. They cut the sheeting and tin, making a hole large enough to permit them to get on the roof. They then climbed down a tree to the ground and began their run for safety. Roberts and King went to Gratz and procured without permission a boat from the wharf there and started down the river. They were intercepted at Worthville by the officers and brought back to the jail here, where they are now securely locked. Among the prisoners who escaped were two horse theives. Four prisoners were left in jail who refused to try to make their escape. "Uncle" Joe Haydon, the venerable jailer, thought he had fastened the jail securely.—Owenton News.

GRANT COUNTY.

From Williamstown Courier.

There is the finest crop of rye, wheat, oats, clover timothy and blue grass in Grant county this year that has been seen in these hills in many a day. Blue grass has made a wonderful growth and is luxurious to an extreme. Wheat will be more than an average crop and the same is true of the other grasses, also fruits.

About one half of the tobacco crop in Grant county has been set and the remainder will be put in the ground this week if the weather continues as favorable as it has in the past week. The plants are small and late, but the crop in Grant county will all be put in the ground unless some unforseen circumstance prevents. The acreage this year may not be quite as large as last, but the indications are at this time, that a good sized crop will go in the ground and will be as early as it is desirable.

George W. Rose, about whom an article was published in a Cincinnati paper, and which was reproduced in the Courier some two weeks ago, died last Wednesday at noon, and it is supposed that his death is due indirectly to the effects of the drug which was given to put him to sleep. He got well enough to come home, but went immediately to the home of his sister near Heekin, where he took to his bed and grew worse from day to day until he died. It will be remembered that Rose claimed he was drugged in a George street saloon in Cincinnati and robbed of about forty dollars in currency. The police evidently did not believe his story, and not much investigation was made. Rose was a farmer about fifty years old and unmarried. While he drank considerably, he was not given to overindulgence. He was comfortably fixed in life. He was a member of the Oswego Tribe of Red Men and was buried by that Order Salem.

As a result of the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Insular cases Embassador Chaote, at London, England, was much embarassed Friday when two Filipinos called on him for passports. He declined to give the passports until it is shown that they are entitled to American citizenship. He doesn't know whether citizenship follows the flag or remains behind with the constitution. President Mckinley on Saturday ordered Mr. Choate to issue the passports. What a medley of affairs. The Court decides that Congress alone has the right to make laws for the Islands. McKinley has declared that he will not call Congress together in extra session to legislate on the subject, and therefore McKinley is Emperor of the Islands without a constitution or a law to control.—Winchester Sun.

The First Swine in America.

According to historical records, says the New York Farmer, the first swine in America were brought from Spain by Christopher Columbus on his second voyage, in 1493, and landed at Hispaniola. The London Co., introduced the hog into Virginia in 1609, when 600 swine were set free. These became "wild" and multiplied so rapidly that the people of Jamestown had to build palisades to keep them out of that settlement. They ate everything. These were the ancestors of the "razor-back" hogs of the southern states of to-day.

Improvement of breeds began when General Washington received a pair of blooded pigs from Duke of Bedford. Washington left these pigs in the care of English farmers who brought them over, and he sold them. They were called the Bedford or Woburn breed, and in some places were called the Parkinson breed. They had deep, round bodies, thin hair, short legs and their color was white, broken with dark blue or ashy spots.

They spread through Maryland, Virginia, Delaware Pennsylvania. They were hardy, vigorous, and prolific and easily kept. They ranged in weight from 300 pounds at the age of a year to 700 pounds at the age of 20 months.

Hogs in those days were much coarser in every way than they are now. No class of live stock has been more improved than hogs, and the various breeds are now nearly perfect by improvement and good feeding.

Uncle Nelse.

There lives in the county an old colored man known to everybody as "Uncle Nelse." He is a unique character, full of homely wit, and honest, according to his light. He is a master with the hounds, and never a fox chase is complete unless Uncle Nelse rounds up the dogs. It is told of him that on one occasion he was called into service in this capacity by a man well known in the county as a lover of the chase. About dusk an itinerant preacher came by the house and asked to be put up for the night, and the proverbial Kentucky hospitality threw open the door to him. Several friends of the host had gathered to join in the sport that night, and Nelse was told to start the dogs, as they might find a trail close to home. After supper the men were impatient to begin the fun, but the preacher asked them to join him in family prayers. The request could not be refused without discourtesy, and the men, with thoughts straying over hill and dale following the hounds knelt about the room. Probably inspired by such an audience, the preacher waxed eloquent, and made his prayer so lengthy his listeners felt like a band of penitents trying to reach the cross over a bed of nettles. Just as the preacher drew in his breath to make a fresh start the door burst open and Uncle Nelse, fairly dancing with excitement, rushed in "Gawd a' mighty Marse!" he exclaimed, "this an't no time fer prayer. Come on! The puppies is arter 'im!" And the prayer meeting broke up.—Harrodsburg Sayings.

We make the assertion without fear of contradiction that there are more firearms scattered about in the great county of Hopkins than can be found in any county of similar size in the world. If all fellows could be reached by the law who are carrying concealed deadly weapons in violation of it, it would keep the courts busy trying the cases, the Governor busy writing out pardons for the imprisonment part of the sentence for a long time and a good revenue would be added to the coffers of the Commonwealth. But it seems that there is no way to effectively enforce this law and it frequently occurs to us that it were best repealed, and instead of making the carrying of the deadly weapon an offense, make the improper display or careless use of the same the point the law should seek to reach and punish.—Madisonville Hustler.

The continued high price of corn is not due entirely to speculation, by any means. The crop last fall, though a large one, was not out of proportion to our increased population. Besides, foreign nations are learning to use more of the crop every year. Another reason, not often mentioned, is the fact that a large amount of the white corn is used in the cheaper grades of flour. The millers don't publish this, and other people know but little about it. The prospect is, therefore, that corn will bear a good price the coming fall, and for years following.

Parable of the House Cleaning Man.

And it shall come to pass in those days that about the third month of the year and the latter days of the month the housewife shall arise early in the morning and say unto her husband:

"Up, get you out of this, for lo! the springtime cometh, the day is at hand, and it is house cleaning time."

Then the man yawneth and stretcheth and maketh all manner of unkind remarks, albeit he crawleth out of bed and donneth an old shirt and a pair of cast-off trouserloons.

And after his wife hath made him eat a mighty slim breakfast out on the old greasy kitchen table, she sayeth unto her husband:

"List ye now, and harken unto my voice. Take down the front window curtains carefully, one at a time, and put them on the line.

"Remove all the pictures from the walls, and after ye have done as I have commanded, tarry yet a while for further orders."

And the man yanketh the old wooden stepladder into the room, climbeth thereon, and doeth even as his wife commandeth. Yea, even as his wife commandeth doeth he.

Then he sayeth unto her: "Woman, what would ye that I should further do? Make known thy wants quickly, for lo! I have a date with a man down town at 11:55."

Then the woman wipeth her nose upon her gingham apron, giveth her dust cap a twitch, and sayeth:

"Take ye the old tack puller and start in on the Brussels carpet, for lo! the dust of many years lieth underneath and thou mayest try thy muscle upon removing the same. See-lah!"

And the man lifteth his voice in lamentation and murmerings; but when his wife giveth his coat collar a yank and he seeth the dizzy look in her eye, he straightway goeth to work.

He pulleth tack after tack, using considerable tact to emphasize his attack. He sweateth and roasteth inwardly. His knees get sore; yea his knees and his back are as the boil on the back of the neck, or elsewhere.

Behold the man two hours later as he wrestleth with the stovepipe.

He standeth on the stepladder while his wife steadieth the consummate thing.

A batch of soot covereth her pretty nose; yea, she looketh exceedingly tough, even as a nickel's worth of dog meat.

And the stovepipe sticketh, and the man giveth it a yank, accompanied by the proper cuss word.

And it falleth to the floor as the stepladder slippeth and then the man taketh a tumble to himself.

And the man ariseth in his wrath and kicketh the stove pipe out into the back yard.

And sayeth bad words and pulleth off his old duds, dresseth himself in haste and hiketh off down town, leaving his wife to fight it out alone as best she may.

Is it not so fellows, even as recorded?

Yea, ...Iyb

You bet!

It was stated some time ago that the Pacific states were short on beef cattle, and that considerable shipments were being made from Texas, Colorado, etc. Word now comes recent importations to this country from Mexico show about 9, 000 head per month, and that California has been getting the bulk of these for grazing and slaughtering, and the outlook is for a heavy movement over the line during the next three months. In March the total import was 6, 501 head, of which California received 3, 910, and the balance divided between Texas and Arizona and New Mexico. Out of the total 905 came in for slaughter and Arizona killed 762 of them. Thus far this year receipts show a heavy increase over the same period of last year.

It is very necessary to have good fences for all our stock, and the fence question is a very important one in regard to expense, but it does not make any difference how expensive it is, it is one of the important items in successfully raising young stock. You can not give them the proper care if they run everywhere, especially in the yard around the house, or, worse still, the neighbor's house or premises. It is very necessary to have your stock just where and when you want it. It is very necessary to have numerous yards and fields so as to seperate young and old stock and fattening cattle and the weaker ones from the stronge.—Kansas Farmer.

WHOLESALE SHOOTING.

Killed Daughter, Fatally Wounded Wife, and Shot Mother, Brother and Sister.

Beaverton, Mich., June 6.—Will Arnell, proprietor of a hotel and saloon here, ran amuck and before he was overpowered shot and killed his 6-year-old daughter, fatally wounded his wife, and shot his aged mother, brother and sister. No reason can be assigned for the shooting.

When Arnell, who had been drinking for several days, entered the house Wednesday he went upstairs to where his daughter was hiding from him under a bed and killed her. He then came down and fatally shot his wife and firing at his invalid mother, who was sitting in her chair, shooting her through the head. Mrs. Samuel Dopp and Arnell's sister were attracted by the shooting, and as they appeared, Arnell walked out to the street and opened fire on them, wounding his sister slightly.

At this juncture Arnell's brother and Mrs. Dopp's husband came on the scene, and Arnell shot his brother through the arm. Dopp was armed with a shotgun and opened fire, wounding Arnell, who was then captured and taken to the county jail. His wound is not fatal.

SOLD LIQUOR ON SUNDAY.

Tax Tax Certificate Held By Jas. J. Corbett Revoked By the New York Supreme Court.

New York, June 6.—The liquor tax certificate held by James J. Corbett, the pugilist, was revoked Wednesday by Justice Freedman, of the supreme court, on considering the report of Alfred Page, as referee in a proceeding brought for the revocation of the license by Rev. J. A. Henry, superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon league. The testimony showed that Charles P. Hanford, a special agent of the excise commissioner, and others visited Corbett's saloon in Broadway on Sunday, May 5, 1900, and were served with liquor and cigars. There were other men drinking in the place. Rev. Herman Plass, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league for Greater New York, with two companions, called at Corbett's place early in the morning of May 2, 1900, and bought whisky. These allegations were denied by Corbett, who contended that his premises were closed at the proper hour.

AMERICAN GUESTS.

London, June 6.—The banquet tendered by the London chamber of commerce to the delegates of the New York chamber of commerce at Grocers' hall Wednesday night was one of the handsomest affairs of the kind ever given in a city famed for lavish hospitality. No effort was spared to honor the American guests, but it must be confessed that the latter did not sustain the reputation America has for brilliant after-dinner speaking. Nor did the British speakers do much to relieve the tedium of four hours' speaking. All the speeches, however, teamed with extreme friendliness and faith in the establishment of permanent friendly relations. All the speakers expressed the belief that Great Britain and the United States rule the destinies of the world, and that their unwritten alliance would always work for peace and the benefit of mankind.

Reformed Presbyterian Synod of America Refused to Pray For the Eight Hour Working Day.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 6.—Just before final adjournment Wednesday night the Reformed Presbyterian Synod of America refused to accede to the request of the Federation of Labor unions, of Chicago, to pray for the eight-hour working day. The resolution adopted on the subject expresses sympathy for the laborer in his struggle for the betterment of his condition, but condemns the secret nature of labor unions and says Sabbath meetings are destructive of spiritual life.

The synod will meet in Syracuse, N. Y., next year.

THE LAW WAS UPHELD.

Nervy Georgia Sheriff Prevents the Lynching of a Negro.

The Arrival of State Militia Averted Further Threatened Trouble—The Prisoner Taken to Atlanta Under Guard.

Carrollton, Ga., June 8.—The nerve of Sheriff Joseph Merrill upheld the law of the state and saved the life of a Negro from a mob. In protecting the Negro, who was saved from the gallows only a few hours before through the efforts of his lawyers, one life was lost and two men were wounded. The arrival of the state militia averted further threatened trouble, and a special train bore the Negro, whose crime was the murder of a little white boy whom he found fishing alone, to Atlanta under guard. The man killed in attacking the jail was George Bennett, of Carrollton, and the wounded men are Thomas S. Word, father of the murdered boy, and an unknown man, presumably a farmer.

Williams, the Negro, who caused the trouble, was tried and found guilty of murdering Otis Word January 1, 1901, and sentenced to be hanged Friday. He was in the morning refused a new trial, but his attorneys filed a bill of exceptions, and carried the case to the supreme court.

A large crowd of people had come to town to witness the hanging, and when it was learned that an appeal had been taken to the supreme court there was much excited talk, which crystalized soon after in the formation of a mob. At noon the mob made an assault on the jail. They battered down the outside door despite the warning of the sheriff, and entered the building. They made a demand upon the sheriff for the keys to the cell, but were refused.

They began their advance upon the sheriff and the few deputies which he had been able to summon to his aid. They were told to stop or they would be fired upon, but the order was not obeyed.

As they advanced down the corridor toward the sheriff the order was given to fire. Bennett fell dying almost instantly. Word, who was in the front of the mob, was badly shot, as was also an unknown countryman.

FATAL SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Honston, Tex., June 8.—As the result of an indictment charging hog theft a shooting affray occurred here in which Thomas Payne and L. G. Echols were killed, J. B. Perkins was fatally and Dave Echols badly wounded. Payne's son was on trial and the two Echols had been summoned as witnesses. The men met down town and after a few words the shooting began. Perkins was a brother-in-law of Payne, and he and L. G. Echols fired at about the same time. Echols' bullet struck Payne, and at the same instant Perkins shot and killed Echols. Dave Echols opened fire on Perkins and on young Payne.

MANY SHOTS EXCHANGED.

Fight Between City Policemen and Students of University of Tennessee at Knoxville.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 8.—Students of the University of Tennessee and five city policemen engaged in a fight here in which numerous shots were exchanged, but no one was shot. The fight grew out of the attempt of the police to quell recent disturbances made by students with cannon. The police were called on by the university commandant to stop the disturbances. This enraged the students, who attacked the policemen, firing on them from behind trees on the campus and showering them with stones. Quiet was not restored until after midnight. Another clash is feared by the police authorities.

TERRIFIC CYCLONE.

Extensive Cotton Mill at Opelousas, La., Demolished—A Boy Killed and One Injured.

Opelousas, La., June 8.—A terrific cyclone passed across the extreme northwestern corner of the town Friday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock and almost completely demolished the extensive buildings of the Saint Landry cotton oil mill, killed a white boy, aged 14, named Albert Gautreaux, and seriously injured John Zoder, a young white man, both of whom were employed in the mill, completely demolished the residences of E. B. Lewis, Willie Lewis and Ben Melacon, and damaged a portion of the office building of the Opelousas ice and bottling works. The path of the cyclone was only about 400 feet wide.

LINCOLN'S REMAINS.

Recent Reinterment Placed It at the Mercy of Body Snatchers—Defect to Be Remedied.

Chicago, June 7.—A story is printed saying that the recent re-interment of the remains of Abraham Lincoln at Springfield, Ill., has been done in such a manner as to leave them in a measure at the mercy of body snatchers, and that steps are to be taken at once, at the instance of Robert T. Lincoln, to have the body placed as in the former monument under a huge block of cement, where it will be out of the reach of any attempt at molestation.

Mr. Lincoln some time ago conceived the idea that the remains of his father were not properly secured against possible desecration by body snatchers, and determined to make an investigation on his own account. He went to Springfield in the disguise of a workingman, and spent much time in and around the new monument. He came to the conclusion that the present location of the body left it in a measure at the mercy of anybody who should desire to carry it away, particularly as there is no watchman around the monument at night. He will take steps at once to have the matter remedied, and have the body placed so that it will hereafter be secure from any interference whatever.

ACID HYPEROXIDES.

An Important Antiseptic Discovery By Two Noted Physicians Made Public.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 7.—An important antiseptic discovery upon which Drs. Frederick G. Novy and Paul C. Freer have been working for over a year in their respective laboratories has just been made public. The new antiseptics are organic acid hyperoxides. In a water solution five one thousandths of one per cent. of active oxygen derived from the hyperoxide is fatal to all bacteria. The hyperoxides which was used for the experiments is benzo-acetyl, and this as was shown by experiments on dogs, can be taken internally in large doses without poisoning effect. The discovery may, it is claimed, lead to the further discovery of the fundamental causes in an important field of medical and surgical science.

INDIANS ENTER SUIT.

Ask the Court to Prevent the Opening of Certain Lands in Oklahoma to Settlement.

Washington, June 7.—Suit was begun Thursday in the supreme court of the District of Columbia by Lone Wolf and other Indians representing the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache tribes, asking the court to enjoin Secretary Hitchcock, Commissioner Hermann, of the general land office, and Commissioner Jones, of the Indian office, from carrying into effect the law providing for the opening of the parts of the lands of those Indians located in Oklahoma territory to settlement. They also ask that the law authorizing the opening of the lands be declared void on the ground that consent by the Indians professing to represent the tribes was unauthorized.

The Royal Entrepot, the biggest warehouse in the city, has been destroyed, with its contents, and adjoining property has been much damaged. A large quantity of American goods, especially cotton, tobacco and machinery, burned. The estimated loss is $7,500,000.

PLATT'S EXPLANATION.

A Letter to Secretary Root Regarding His Amendment.

Measure Was Prepared With the Object of Avoiding Any Possible Idea of Establishing a Protectorate or Suzeralaty.

Washington, June 8.—During the conference between Secretary Root and the Cuban commission, the secretary wrote a letter to Senator Platt, of Connecticut who introduced the Platt amendment, asking for his views relative to intervention as mentioned in the third clause of the amendment. Senator Platt replied, and his letter was furnished the commission confidentially by the secretary of war and was incorporated in and made a part of the acceptance of the Platt amendment by the constitutional convention. The latter, however, appeared in a Havana paper, and was made public by the war department. The text of the letter is as followed:

"I am in receipt of your letter of this date, in which you say that the members of the commission of the Cuban constitutional convention fear that the provisions relative to intervention made in the third clause of the amendment which come to bear my name may have the effect of preventing the independence of Cuba and in reality establish a protectorate or suzerainty by the United States, and you request that I express my views of the question raised.

"I reply I beg to state that the amendment was carefully prepared with the object of avoiding any possible idea that by the acceptance thereof the constitutional convention would thereby establish a protectorate or suzerainty, or in any manner whatsoever compromise the independence and sovereignty of Cuba, and, speaking for myself, it seems impossible that such an interpretation can be given to the clause. I believe that the amendment should be considered as a whole, and it ought to be clear on reading it that its well-defined purpose is to secure and safeguard Cuban independence, and set forth at once a clear idea of the friendly disposition of the United States toward the Cuban people and the express intention on their part to aid them, if necessary, in the maintenance of said independence. These are my ideas, and although, as you say, I can not speak for the entire congress, my belief is that such a purpose was well understood by that body. Very respectfully yours,

"O. H. PLATT."

Havana, June 10.—The conservative members of the constitutional convention are absolutely confident that the Platt amendment will be accepted and that several radicals will join with the 15 delegates who have heretofore voted in favor of acceptance. The last few days seem to have brought about a decided change in the attitude of delegates who had been bitterly arraigning the Washington government for rejecting the convention interpretations of the amendment. The strong pressure from the outside brought to bear upon the convention to finish its business and to place the country on a settled basis has had an excellent effect upon the radicals, inducing them to accept the inevitable, and some of them now urgne that it would be perhaps better to accept the amendment.

LEAVES CHINA.

"In company with large German detachments I attended the funeral of the French soldiers killed in the recent affray."

A GLORIOUS SIGHT.

Fields of Wheat in Which the Stocks Were So Thick It Was Impossible to Drive Between Them.

To the Editor:

A gentleman from Duluth made a trip through a portion of Western Canada last summer, and writing of what he saw, says:

"Wheat, for instance, will average twenty-five or thirty bushels to the acre. I saw shocks so thick in the field that it would be almost impossible to drive between them. Winters, it is said, are longer than near Duluth, but the Japan current, warm chinook winds and dry atmosphere make the winters comparatively mild."

Thousands of such testimonies are to be had from settlers who have taken advantage of the low-priced lands of Western Canada. During the present year new districts will be opened up in the Saskatchewan Valley, and advantage should be taken of this at once. Information can be had from any agent of the Government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your columns.

All Astonished.

If people are too conservative they are very apt to find cause for astonishment when some person they have overlooked does something worthy of praise, or some familiar medicine effects a great cure. Such was the fact in the case of Mr. Nimrod Price of Milford, Ohio, who wrote: "My wife, myself, and all our neighbors are astonished at the wonderful effects of your Lotion in curing a distressing eruption on my wife's face, it having done what no doctor, or other medicine, had done before." If your druggist hasn't it, send to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl St., New York, for sample of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

Help for Women

Who Are Always Tired.

"I do not feel very well, I am so tired all the time."

You hear these words every day; as often as you meet your friends just so often are these words repeated. More than likely you speak the same significant words yourself, and no doubt you do feel far from well most of the time.

Mrs. Ella Rice, of Chelsea, Wis., whose portrait we publish, writes that she suffered for two years with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and had all kinds of miserable feelings, all of which was caused by falling and inflammation of the womb, and after doctoring with physicians and numerous medicines she was entirely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you are troubled with pains, fainting spells, depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere, headache, backache, and always tired, please remember that there is an absolute remedy which will relieve you of your suffering as it did Mrs. Rice. Proof is monumental that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest medicine for suffering women.

IS STILL IMPROVING.

Mrs. McKinley Sat Up for a Few Minutes Sunday.

It Is Not Expected She Would Be Strong Enough to Travel Before July, Even if Improvement Continues.

Washington, June 10.—The reports from the sick room up to a late hour Sunday night were decidedly encouraging. Dr. Rixey appeared much better satisfied with the patient's condition Sunday night than for some time. Mrs. McKinley sat up for a few minutes Sunday. It was the second time she has been able to do so in some time. Surgeon General Sternberg remained longer than usual Sunday evening. Heretofore he has maintained a sphynxlike silence about Mrs. McKinley's condition, but when he left Sunday night he said, "Mrs. McKinley is doing very well now. There are no new developments."

Mrs. McKinley will be taken to Canton whenever she is in condition to bear the journey. Extensive improvements have been made in the McKinley home in Canton, including the building of a portecochere and the remodeling of portions of the house, and it was planned last autumn that she and the president should go to Canton about July 1 of this summer. In case Mrs. McKinley recovers this plan will be carried out, though it is not expected she would be strong enough to leave here the first of July, even if improvement should continue steadily. Dr. Rixey said Sunday night he was unprepared to predict whether she would be able to carry out these plans. It is believed that considerable benefit would accrue from removal to her old home, especially as it is cooler and more breezy there than here.

The farmers, who had purchased twine and harvest machinery are asking the local dealers to take them back, and the dealers have referred the matter to the factories. By a unanimous vote the tribe decided to sail for Chicago June 22 under the leadership of Chief Isaac Quigno, the youngest and most daring full-blooded Indian of the tribe. Cushway, Stephen Topash, Joseph Motay, Charles Motay, and Andrew Rupp were elected members of the new council.

The Pottowatomies propose to invest the lake front of Chicago and then proceed to prove their claims to the lands which they believe will be sustained. If the Chicago claim is established, they will squat on all the lake front from the Indiana line to Grand Haven, Mich., which they say is their land by virtue of the same treaty upon which they base their Chicago claim.

A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

Two Trains, One Containing a Car of Dynamite, Collide.

Five Men Were Killed and Seven Injured—Both Trains Were Completely Wrecked—One Engine Badly Smashed.

Binghamton, N. Y., June 10.—Five men were killed and seven injured in Saturday night's wreck at Vestal. The dead: John P. Kelly, head brakeman of wild cat train; S. R. Polsamus, conductor of Train No. 61; Elmer Polhamus, trainman of Train No. 31; John Coulter, fireman first engine of the wild cat freight; Fred Witherby, fireman second engine of the wild cat freight.

Seven others, all but two of them trainmen, were injured.

Several of those who were thought to be fatally hurt Saturday night recovered from the concussion and Sunday figured in the list of slightly hurt. All through the early morning hours the rescuers toiled about and among the burning freight cars at the scene of the explosion, but it was not until late Sunday afternoon that portions of the last dismembered body of the accounted for were discovered a quarter of a mile from where the explosion occurred.

The tracks of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad were completely blocked until past midday. Both trains were completely wrecked and the engines of the wild cat freight, which ran into the rear of Train No. 61, which was taking water at the time and which carried the fatal car of dynamite, were reduced to scrap iron, pieces of which have been picked up at a distance of half a mile away.

Aside from the damage to railroad property, much minor damage is reported. Nearly every house in the villages of Vestal and Union, which is across the Susquehanna from the wreck, lost more or less of its window glass, while farmers' houses and barns near the scene are badly shattered. None of the inmates, however, were injured.

Pittsburgh, June 10.—Maj. W. H. Daly, surgeon general on the staff of Lieut. Gen. Miles in Porto Rico, committed suicide at his home Sunday by shooting himself in the right temple.

The body of the doctor was found in the bathroom, lying in a pool of blood. Dr. Foster, who was summoned at once, found the bullet hole in the temple and announced that death had taken place several hours before.

No cause is known for Daly's deed unless it be that insomnia drove him to temporary insanity. For some time past he has been unable to sleep regularly, and it is thought that after a sleepless night he concluded to end all. The doctor was a widower and leaves no immediate family. He was 59 years old, and for many years has been prominent in medical circles. He gained international prominence during the Cuban war, as it was his report to the commanding general of the army that started the "embalmed beef" investigation.

AN UNUSUAL SCENE.

A Preliminary Murder Trial Held in a Grove in the Presence of About 2,000 People.

Galena, Mo., June 10.—An unusual scene was presented here at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. John Stallion, her father, James Crabtree, and his two sons, Frank and Charles Crabtree, for the murder of Alice Stallion, the woman's 16-year-old stepdaughter. The hearing was held in a grove, the two justices sitting at a table under a tree, and 2,000 people, attracted from points for miles around, forming a circle about the court and defendants. Galena is off the railroad, and the fact that 2,000 people would care to come miles to attend the hearing was considered significant.

It has been decided to exhume the body of the girl that it may be examined by the doctors to investigate a theory of the county prosecutor that criminal assault was made upon her by one or both of the Crabtree boys and that they killed her to hide the crime.

Sticks and stones were hurled at the car until there was not a whole window left in it. The police restored order with great difficulty, the Italians being bent on getting at the car crew, but the counsel of the priests in the procession averted a more serious conflict.

Owensboro, Ky., June 8.—In the circuit court Friday a sensational answer was filed in a suit setting up a marriage between Miss Josie Dryer, of this city, and Max Schneider, in Cincinnati in 1898, that has been kept a secret to this day.

A few weeks ago Josie as executrix filed a suit to settle the estate, and Friday the two sons filed an answer setting up the secret marriage of their sister in Cincinnati by a magistrate, and then, because they were Catholics, a subsequent marriage by a priest at Bardstown.

We have been having plenty of rain. There has been a good tobacco season for two weeks.

Dogs made a raid on Dol Allen's sheep Saturday night, killing and crippling several; and on Sunday night they killed 5 and crippled 5 for Chas. Hensley.

Quite a pleasant surprise was tendered Mrs. Mary Eliza Hensley on the 2nd inst., the occasion being her 65th birthday anniversary. Her children, grand-children and a few of her friends were present, all bringing well filled baskets and quite a number of nice presents.

LAWRENCEBURG FERRY—The Rice Bros. sold a crop of tobacco raised by Clay Woffard, to Jas. Thompson for 5½c per pound.

Bert Smith and John Baldon passed over to the burg last Monday on business.

About all the farmers of this vicinity had to plant their tobacco the second time and some the third time.

Those of this vicinity who attended the musicale at Burlington on the 8th inst., were well pleased with the entertainment.

Quite a number of bicyclists passed up Ferry creek, the other day, but they carried or pushed their wheels instead of riding them.

While attending to his horses, the other day, Capt. Hartman was struck between the eyes, disfiguring his features for a few days.

Mrs. Wm. Boda and sister, of Manchester Ridge, Ind., and Mrs. Fisher, of Home City, Ohio, were the guests of Louis Hitzfield, Sunday.

After spending the winter in Chattanooga, Tenn., R. H. Ferry has returned to his native soil, Boone county, to spend part of the summer.

Harry Mallot is visiting Charlie Riggs.

Say, Gunpowder, who is Noah Tanner, anyhow?

A fine rain fell here Wednesday and Thursday, and everybody finished setting their tobacco.

Cut worms are very bad in this section. Several had to plant all of their tobacco a second time.

The Swan took a raft of logs to Louisville last Sunday, returning Friday evening, and is now on duty again.

We would like to have the Midway cor. tell us what a blackberry drizzle is. We had some hail here but no blackberries fell.

Ira Adams, formerly of Rabbit Hash, and J. F. Love, of Rising Sun, have started a hotel on the Riverside Corner at the latter place.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ryle, of Hamilton, are visiting relatives here. The shop where Will works is shut down on account of the machinists' strike.

We receive the Recorders here on Friday, while nearly every other office in the county receives them on Thursday. But it is a welcome guest nevertheless.

A letter from J. P. Ryle, who is now at Portland, Oregon, states that he is well pleased with the country, and is in much better health than when he was here.

In giving the population of the Boone county towns, the Walton scribe left Rabbit Hash out. Perhaps he never heard of R. H. Anyway Rabbit Hash is a growing city of 100 inhabitants and we expect to have a street railway and telephone exchange soon.

FRANCESVILL. — Henry Schaffer lost a valuable cow last week.

Elsie Harper and wife were the guests of Holland Goodridge and wife, last Sunday.

Charlie Beall has a gray or squirrel colored yearling calf missing; and A. Corn has lost four of his sheep that were on pasture in Hubert Cropper's field near here. Any information leading to them will be thankfully received.

Robert Hayes, of Brownstown, Ind., came in on Friday morning to make arrangements for the burial of his father, W. H. Hayes, of that place, who died at his home on Thursday night. The remains were interred in the family burying ground at Sand Run, Saturday afternoon.

WALTON.—On last Friday night a large delegation from Verona visited Walton Lodge to witness the conferring the Master Mason's degree upon W. E. Waller, son of Chas. Waller.

Hons. J. S. Gaunt, of Carrollton, and S. W. Tolin, of Burlington, were visitors here last week.

Miss Lena Hedges is slowly recovering from the dangerous illness that afflicted her so terribly at the time of the High School commencement.

Mrs. Alice Coffman, Misses Mary Ronse and Effie J. Lermond left, Monday last, to take the summer course at the Lebanon, O., Normal School.

Miss Mabel Bagby, A. M., the accomplished daughter of Dr. D. M., has returned from the Georgetown College, where she graduated with high honors.

Supt. Voshell was over here, last week, and stated that examinations for Common School Diplomas will be held at Burlington on the last Thursday in June. All those wishing to take the examination, please remember the time and place. The probability is that a diploma from the common school will be honored by the admission to the Graded School.

The strange ailment of Miss Pearl Byrd that was so mystifying to the Doctors, since the first day of last Jan., until the 23d day of May, was terminated when she found a foreign substance in her nostrils that she took to be a piece of gristle, but which, under a magnifying glass proved to be a bristle from a tooth brush, and, which was so nearly fatal, should make people very careful how they select tooth brushes, and it might also be a hint to our physicians that an investment by the Medical Society in an Xray instrument might be advantageous "occasionally at whiles," as the sage of "Stringtown on the Pike," Billy Bunting (not mentioned in Lloyd's book however) was wont to observe about the taking of alcoholic stimulants.

The town went wild with excitement when it became known that the L. & N. Railroad Co., refused to pay the tax voted for the Walton Graded School; and the consternation of the trustees was immense when they found that they could not enforce the collection of the same by law, which requires that the petition for graded schools shall be held for thirty days. The attorney for the trustees wrote the petition, and, it is said, that he also requested that the court act upon it immediately, and that when it was presented to Judge Roberts he signed it then and there. Another election will have to be called and all the legal formalities strictly observed, and the people will have their beloved school, all the lawyers to the contrary notwithstanding. Many who did not vote for the tax before unhesitatingly say that they will support the measure on another vote.

Sam Lancaster, of Beaver, intended to paint the town a deep crimson, one day last week, and went up and down the main st[illegible] the top of his voice, and shouting that he was from Beaver, proclaiming in filthy words that he could take the town and pointed his revolver at several persons, but took the trail out High Street, at the approach of Marshal Hance and was breaking the record as a sprinter. Fred Eskew joined the chase on his bike and at a scorching gait was rapidly overhauling him when he turned down the road at Mrs. Lermond's corner. Fred had just time to see him throw his pistol over into Tom Hord's garden when he run upon "the terror" and leaping from his wheel, threw his arms around his neck and then the Beaver gent was safely collared. He went as meekly along with the Marshal to the jail as Mary's little lamb, and when he was safe inside he wept copious, gushing tears to find that in place of a game man he was a dirty, low-down poltroon, in jail, and none of the Walton men were stretched out reeking in gore. At his trial in the Police Court Judge Botts fined him $5 and cost $3.50 and sentenced him to 5 days in jail. His friends paid the fine and the judge suspended the imprisonment, charging him not to be caught in Walton again. On Saturday he was in town again and was arrested on a bench warrant charging him with torts committed in the Beaver neighborhood, and he gave bond for his appearance at circuit court.

The Clutterbuck boys had bad luck again last week—they had a good horse to die.

The great American Minstrels are entertaining and amusing the people at Verona.

Benjamin Sturgeon, of Petersburg, who had been quite ill for some time, died last Friday.

The great American Minstrels give you as good an exhibition as any troup that does the country towns.

The picnic at the Harvest Home grounds was well attended, Saturday afternoon, and all report a delightful time.

A table cloth used at the court house last Saturday night was taken by some one through mistake. They will please return it to this office.

In the death of Lewis Rice, of Richwood, last Saturday, the county loses an old and estimable citizen. Mr. Rice was one of the wealthiest men of the county, and stood very high among his neighbors. The funeral occurred last Monday.

The remains of W. H. ("Billie Hickey") Hays, who died at his home in Brownstown, Indiana, were brought to Sand Run, and interred, last Saturday. It was not many years ago that he and his family moved to Brownstown, where he conducted a meat business for some time. He had been in ill health for quite a while. In their bereavement the family have the sympathy of a large number of Kentucky friends.

Prof. Welsh's show gave two performances here last week, to large audiences. He is now making his second tour of this county, and is giving a good show. He has quite a number of people with him, each of whom seems to be worthy the respect of any community. Mr. Welsh is not leading a troup that is trying to get through the county other than by honorable means. He wants to give his patrons the worth of their money every time.

William Eli Rouse, after several months' patient suffering, died at his home near Florence, last Sunday afternoon. He was an old citizen, and having been a dealer in live stock for many years, was known to nearly every farmer in the county, and in no instance has one of them with whom he had dealings ever been heard to accuse him of a dishonorable act. He was a quiet, unassuming gentleman, liked by all. He leaves a wife and one son and many friends who deplore his death. The funeral occurred at Hopeful, Monday.

Notices have been sent out for the purpose of calling a meeting of a State Grange, in Burlington, on July 17th and 18th, 1901, there now being a sufficient number of subordinate Granges in the State (16 having been organized) to entitle the order in Kentucky to a State Grange. Fourth degree members must attend Pomona Grange meeting at Greenwood Grange, in Hebron, on the fifth Saturday in June and receive the fifth degree if they wish to take the sixth degree, which will be conferred by the State Grange at its meeting on above dates.

E. L. RILEY.

Mrs. Polly M. Popham died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. J. D. Moyer, two miles north of Aurora, Indiana, June 5th, 1901, aged 83 years and 2 months. She was born near Richwood, this county, in 1818. She united with the Baptist church of Burlington, at the age of 30, and has been a consistent and faithful member ever since. The remains were interred at Petersburg. She was married twice, first to Samuel Underhill and next to Jobe Popham. She had by these marriages four daughters, (two of whom are dead) and one brother. She leaves 19 grand-children, 48 great-grand-children, and 1 great-great-grand child.

Save Two from Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Union Drug Store Union; J. G. Oelsner of Florence; H. L. Eskew of Walton; O. N. Grant, of Bellevue. Trial bottles free.

Notwithstanding the very unfavorable weather, last Saturday evening, there was quite a good attendance at the I. O. O. F. musicale and festival, and the proceeds was a neat little sum. With one or two exceptions every person whose name appeared on the published program, was present and contributed their part to the evening's entertainment, and the members of Viola lodge feel very grateful to the good ladies of Burlington and vicinity whose liberal contributions of cakes, cream, etc., constituted such a bountiful supply for the festival. There was never a nicer collection of cakes on any occasion. Especially is it desired to thank Misses Zayda and Kittie Gaines, who sang so beautifully; Misses Bernice Duncan and Bessie Cropper, for their entertaining recitations; Miss Mary Riley and Master Duncan Riley for their sweet music on the violin; Misses Nellie Martin, Nellie Rouse and Henrietta Riddell for their beautiful piano solos, and Mr. Henry Hafer for his excellent and well executed selections on cornet. The piano used on this occasion was kindly loaned by the D. H. Baldwin Music Co., of Cincinnati, one of the largest music houses in that city.

Personal Mentions.

Mrs. G. G. Hughes was quite sick several days last week.

Miss Martha Lassing, of Union, is the guest of Mrs. J. M. Lassing.

William Houston, who has been indisposed for several days, is on the upward beat again.

R. A. Brady and wife, of the Middle creek neighborhood, were visiting at W. C. Brown's, Sunday.

Quite a number of persons from Covington, and on pleasure bent, took dinner at Mrs. Cowen's, Sunday.

F. W. Kassabaum, one of the leading business men of Aurora, and his local agent, Chas. L. Kelly, made this office a call, Monday.

Judge Lassing came home, last Saturday, from Williamstown, where he is holding court. He returned to the scene of action again Monday morning.

Miss Jonette Revill, who had been attending Bellwood seminary, Anchorage, for the last nine months, returned home last week to spend the vacation.

Rev. Kirtley and Sproles preached to a large congregation at the Woolper school house last Sunday. An excellent and bountiful dinner was served on the grounds at noon.

Misses Nellie Cleek, of Beaver, and Alva Williams, of Union, two very handsome and entertaining young ladies, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Allphin, last Sunday.

Julius Rouse and wife, of Scott county are visiting their relatives in this county, Mr. R. looks like the blue grass agrees with him. He is on his way to Ohio, to buy some fine cattle.

Herbert McKim was one of the graduates at Rugby, a few days since. It was the close of his first session at that school, and his graduation was quite an achievement. Herbert is a good student and his industry reaps its merited reward, and he is to be congratulated.

T. M. Rich, formerly of Big Bone, and Harry Herzog, both of Covington, were guests at Noah Clore's, one day last week. Mr. Herzog, is one of Covington's leading dealers in fine wines and whiskies, and is headquarters for Boone county people, with whom he is immensely popular.

Miss Ella Duncan arrived home, last Thursday, from her visit to New Orleans and other southern cities. She was delighted with her visit, to the Southland, and speaks in the highest terms of the people of that section. She spent several days with Rev. M. J. Hoover and wife at Alexandria, Louisiana, and says they are delightfully situated and loved by all.

Rankin Revill and wife of Covington, spent Sunday with Rankin's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Revill. Rankin has resigned his position as court deputy under Circuit Clerk Miller, to take effect on the 15th inst., when he will go to Memphis Tennessee, where he has accepted the position of treasurer of a telephone company. Besides being an all around good fellow, Rankin is an adept as a court room clerk, and is deservedly popular with the attorneys at the bar where he has labored for several years. His friends are sorry to learn that he is soon to leave them to cast his lot in a new field.

Dr. Rouse has at his house a very peculiar flower, the first specimen of its kind ever seen in this vicinity, and it is attracting a great deal of attention. The plant is classed with the Figwort family (Scrophulariaceae) and is known to the botanical world as Chelone Glabra. It is a perennial hebaceous plant, growing from two to three feet high and readily distinguished by its conspicuous, closely clustered flowers, the shape of which, from their resemblance to the head of a snake, has given origin to both the common and scientific name of the plant. The corolla open at an irregular two lipped mouth having four stamens and a sterile filament. This singular specimen of nature's handiwork has been known to botanists and medical men for ages, and is said to be tonic, aperient and with a peculiar action on the liver. The plant throws off a very offensive smell, scarcely told from the stench of a dead animal's carcass. The plant is so offensive that when in the yard it is constantly surrounded by Musca vomitoria, or the common blue bottle-fly. This plant formerly belonged to Mrs. Silas Rouse, of Limaburg, and when her son lay at the point of death a few years ago it bloomed, and again was in full flower a few days ago when her husband died, and she would have it no longer. The day the Doctor got it the hall door slammed and broke a large glass. It seems as if it might be a hoodoo. It is a native of America and likes moist, cool places.

Last Sunday morning Lystra Smith and family, living down on Ashby Fork, started in the road wagon to the basket meeting at the Woolper school house. Just as they started down the hill from the residence the horses became unmanageable, when all those in the wagon, except Mr. Smith, jumped from the vehicle, which in a few seconds was turned over, catching Mr. Smith beneath it, one edge of the wagon bed resting across his breast. Fortunately the horses stopped as soon as the wagon was upset. Mr. Smith's son Henry, who was near at hand lifted the wagon up and the women pulled Mr. Smith from under it, and assisted him to the house. Drs. Grant, of Petersburg, and Smith of Burlington, were sent for and found the unfortunate man badly injured about his breast. Late yesterday afternoon Mr. Smith was reported some better.

A Terrible Explosion.

"Of a gasoline stove burned a lady here frightfully," writes N. E. Palmer, of Kirkman, Ia. "The best doctors couldn't heal the running sore that followed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve entirely cured her." Infallible for Cuts, Corns, Sores, Boils, Bruises, Skin Diseases and Piles. 25c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

Dr. Talmage Arraigns the Spirit of Wild Speculation.

He Gives Some Account of the Financial Ruin of Other Days—Money a Golden Breasted Bird.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage arraigns the spirit of wild speculation and gives some account of the financial ruin of other days; Proverbs 23-5: "Riches certainly make themselves wings; they fly away as an eagle toward heaven."

Money is a golden-breasted bird with silver beak. It alights on the office desk or on the parlor center table. Men and women stand and admire it. They do not notice that it has wings larger than a raven's, larger than a flamingo's, larger than an eagle's. One wave of the hand of misfortune and it spreads its beautiful plumage and is gone—"as an eagle toward heaven," my text says, though sometimes I think it goes in the other direction.

What a verification we have had of the flying capacity of riches in Wall street! And Wall street is one of the longest streets in the world. It does not begin at the foot of Trinity church, New York, and end at the East river, as many suppose. It reaches through all our American cities and across the sea. Encouraged by the revival of trade and by the fact that Wall street disasters of other years were so far back as to be forgotten, speculators run up the stocks from point to point until innocent people on the outside suppose that the stocks would always continue to ascend. They gather in from all parts of the country. Large sums of money are taken into Wall street and small sums of money. The crash comes, thank God, in time to warn off a great many who were on their way thither, for the seduces of the thing is that a great many of the young men of our cities who save a little money for the purpose of starting themselves in business, and who have $500 or $1,000 or $2,000 or $10,000 go into Wall street and lose all. And if there ever was a time for the pulpit to speak out in regard to certain kinds of nefarious enterprises now is the time.

Stocks rose and fell, and now they begin to rise again, and they will fall again until thousands of young men will be ruined unless the printing press and the pulpit give emphatic utterance. My counsel is to countrymen, so far as they may hear of this discourse, if they have surplus to invest it in first mortgages and in moneyed institutions which, though paying comparatively small interest, are sound and safe beyond dispute, and to stand clear of the Wall street vortex, where so many have been swamped and swallowed. What a compliment it is to the healthy condition of our country that these recent disasters have in nowise depressed trade! I thank God that Wall street's capacity to blast this country has gone forever.

First of all, Wall street stands as a type in this country for tried integrity and the most outrageous trifling. Farmers who have only a few hundred dollars' worth of produce to put on the market have but little to test their character, but put a man into the seven times heated furnace of Wall street excitement and he either comes out a Shadrach, with hair unsinged, or he is burned into a black moral cinder. No half-way work about it. If I wanted to find integrity bombproof, I would go among the bankers and merchants of Wall street; yet because there have been such villainies enacted there at different times some men have supposed that it is a great financial debauchery, and they hardly dare go near the street or walk up or down it unless they have buttoned up their last pocket and had their lives insured or religiously crossed themselves. Yet if you start at either end of the street and read the business signs you will find the names of more men of integrity and Christian benevolence than you can find in the same space in any street of any of our cities. When the Christian commission and the sanitary commission wanted money to send medicine and bandages to the wounded, when breadstuffs were wanted for famishing Ireland, when colleges were to be endowed and churches were to be supported and missionary societies were to be equipped for their work of sending the Gospel all around the world, the first street to respond has been Wall street, and the largest responses in all the land have come from Wall street.

But while that street is a type of tried integrity on one hand it is also a type of unbounded swindle on the other. There are the spiders that wait for innocent flies. There are the crocodiles that crawl up through the slime to cranch the calf. There are the anacondas, with lifted loop, ready to crush the unwary. There are financial wreckers, who stand on the beach praying for a Caribbean whirlwind to sweep over our commercial interests.

Let me say it is no place for a man to go into business unless his moral principle is thoroughly settled. That is no place for a man to go into business who does not know when he is overpaid five dollars by mistake whether he had better take it back again or not. That is no place for a man to go who has large funds in trust and who is all the time tempted to speculate with them. That is no place for a man to go who does not quite know whether the laws of the state forbid usury or patronize it. Oh, how many men have risked themselves in the vortex and gone down for the simple reason their integrity had not been thoroughly established. Remember poor Ketcham. How soon the flying hoofs of his iron grays clattered with him to his destruction! Remember poor Gay, at 30 years of age astonishing the world with his fortunes and his forgeries. Remember that famous man whose steamboats and whose opera houses could not atone for his adulterous rides through Central park in the face of decent New York and whose behavior on Wall street by its example has blasted tens of thousands of young men of this generation.

I hold up the polluted memory to warn young men whose moral principles are not thoroughly settled to keep out of Wall street. It is no place for a man who shivers under the blast of temptation. Let me say also to those who are doing legitimate business on that or similar streets of which that is a type to stand firm in Christian principle. You are in a great commercial battlefield. Be courageous. There is such a thing as a hero of the bank and a hero of the stock exchange. You be that hero. I have not so much admiration for the French empress who stood in her balcony in Paris and addressed an excited mob and quelled it as I have admiration for that venerable banker on Wall street who in 1864 stood on the steps of his moneyed institution and quieted the fears of depositors and bade peace to the angry wave of commercial excitement. God did not allow the lions to hurt Daniel, and He will not allow the "bears" to hurt you. Remember, my friend, that all these scenes of business will soon have passed away, and by the law of God's eternal right all the affairs of your business life will be adjudicated. Honesty pays best for both worlds.

At certain times almost every prosperous merchant wakes up, and he says: "Now, I have been successful in my line of trade, and I have a tolerable income. I think I shall go down to Wall street and treble it in three weeks. There's my neighbor. He was in the same line of business. He has $300,000 or $400,000 from the simple fact that he went into Wall street. I think I shall too." Here they come, retired merchants who want to get a little excitement in their lethargic veins. Here they come, the trustees of great property, to footeverything away. Here they come, men celebrated for prudence, to trifle with the livelihoods of widows and orphans. Do you wonder that sometimes they become insane? It is insanity. Do you know there are hundreds of young men who are perishing under the passion for stock gambling? Do you know that in all Christian lands this is one of the greatest curses?

It is not peculiar to mercantile Americans. Oh, no! Almost every nation has indulged in it. The Hollanders, the most phlegmatic people in the world, had their gambling seizure in 1683. It was called the tulip mania. It was a speculation in tulips. Properties worth $500,000 were turned into tulips. All the Holland nation either buying or selling tulips. One tulip root sold for $200, another for $2,000. Excitement rolling on and rolling on until history tells us that one Amsterdam tulip which was supposed to be the only one of the kind in all the world actually brought in the market $1,816,000! That is a matter of history. Of course, the crash came, and all Holland went down under it.

But France must have its gambling expedition, and that was in 1716. John Law's Mississippi scheme, it was called. The French had heard that this American continent was built out of solid gold, and the project was to take it across the ocean and drop it in France. Excitement beyond anything that had yet been seen in the world. Three hundred thousand applicants for shares. Excitement so great that sometimes the mounted military had to disperse the crowds that had come to buy the stock. Five hundred temporary tents built to accommodate the people until they could have opportunity of interviewing John Law. A lady of great fashion had her coachman upset her near the place when John Law was passing in order that she might have an interview with that benevolent and sympathetic gentleman. Stocks went up to 2,050 per cent., until one day suspicion got into the market, and down it all went—John Law's Mississippi scheme—burying its projector and some of the greatest financiers in all France, and was almost as bad as a French revolution.

Sedate England took its chance in 1720. That was the South sea bubble. They proposed to transfer all the gold of Peru and Mexico and the islands of the sea to England. Five millions' worth of shares were put on the market at £300 a share. The books open, in a few days it is all taken and twice the amount subscribed.

Excitement following excitement until all kinds of gambling projects came forth under the wing of this South sea enterprise. There was a large company formed with great capital for providing funerals for all parts of the land. Another company with large capital—£5,000,000 of capital—to develop a wheel in perpetual motion. Another company with a capital of £4,000,000 to insure people against loss by servants. Another company with £2,500,000 capital to transplant walnut trees from Virginia to England. Then, to cap the climax, a company was formed for "a great undertaking, nobody to know what it is." And, lo, £600,000 in shares were offered at £100 a share. Books were opened at nine o'clock in the morning and closed at three o'clock in the afternoon, and the first day it was all subscribed. "A great undertaking, nobody to know what it is."

But it was left for our own country to surpass all, about 37 years ago. We have the highest mountains and the greatest cataracts and the longest rivers, and, of course, we had to have the largest swindle. One would have thought that the nation had seen enough in that direction during the morus multicaulis excitement, when almost every man had a bunch of crawling silkworms in his house, out of which he expected to make a fortune. But all this excitement was as nothing compared with what took place in 1864 when a man near Titusville, Pa., digging for a well, struck oil. Twelve hundred oil companies call for a billion of stock. Prominent members of churches, as soon as a certain amount of stock was assigned them, saw it was their privilege to become presidents or secretaries or members of the board of direction. Some of these companies never had a foot of ground, never expected to have. Their entire equipment was a map of a region where oil might be and two vials of grease, crude and clarified. People rushed down from all parts of the country by the first train and put their hard earnings in the gulf. A young man came down from the oil regions of Pennsylvania utterly demented, having sold his farm at a fabulous price because it was supposed that there might be oil there—coming to a hotel in Philadelphia at the time I was living there, throwing down a $5,000 check to pay for his noonday meal and saying he did not care anything about the change! Then he stepped back to the gas burner to light his cigar with a $1,000 note. Utterly insane.

The good Christian people said: "This company must be all right, because Elder So-and-so is president of it, and Elder So-and-so is secretary of it, and then there are three or four highly respected professing Christians in the board of directors." They did not know that when a professed Christian goes into stock gambling he lies like sin. But alas for the country! It became a tragedy, and a thousand million dollars were swamped. There are families to-day sitting in the shadow of destitution who but for that great national outrage would have had their cottages and their homesteads. I hold up before the young men these four great stock gambling schemes that they may see to what length men will go smitten of this passion, and I want to show them how all the best interests of society are against it, and God is against it and will condemn it for time and condemn it for eternity. I do not dwell upon the frenzied speculations in Wall street last month. You all have enough remembrance of that financial horror. I only want you to know that it was in a procession of monetary frenzies, some of which have passed and others are to come.

O men of Wall street and of all streets, stand back from nefarious enterprises, join that great company of Christian men who are maintaining their integrity, notwithstanding all the pressure of temptation. In the morning, when you open business in the broker's office or in the banking house, ask God's blessing, and when you close it pronounce a benediction upon it. A kind of business that cannot be engaged in without prayer is no business for you. I wish that the words of George Peabody, uttered in the hearing of the people of his native town—Danvers, Mass.—I wish that those words could be uttered in the hearing of all the young men throughout the land. He said: "Though Providence has granted me unvaried and universal success in the pursuit of fortune in other lands I am still in heart the humble boy who left yonder unpretending dwelling. There is not a youth within the sound of my voice whose early opportunities and advantages are not very much greater than were my own, and I have since achieved nothing that is impossible to the most humble boy among you." George Peabody's success in business was not more remarkable than his integrity and his great-hearted benevolence. I pray upon you God's protecting and prospering blessing. I hope you may all make fortunes for time and fortunes for eternity.

Some day when you come out of your place of business and you go to the clearing house or the place of custom or the bank or your own home—as you come out of your place of business just look up at the clock in the tower and see by the movement of the hands how your life is rapidly going away and be reminded of the fact that before God's throne of inexorable judgment you must yet give account of what you have done since the day you sold the first yard of cloth or the first pound of sugar. I pray for you all prosperity. Stand close by Christ, and Christ will stand close by you. The greater the temptation the more magnificent the reward. But, alas, for the stock gambler—what will he do in the judgment? That day will settle everything. That to the stock gambler will be a "break" at the "first call." No smuggling into Heaven. No "collaterals" on which to trade your way in. Go in through Christ the Lord or you will forever stay out. God forbid that after you have done your last day's work on earth and the hushed assembly stands around with bowed heads at your obsequies—God forbid that the most appropriate text for your funeral oration should be: "As a partridge sitteth on eggs and hatcheth them not, so he that getteth riches, and not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days, and at the end he shall be a fool," or that the most appropriate funeral psalm should be the words of the poet:

Price of many a crime untold—
Gold, gold, gold, gold.

ON BEING OVERHATTED.

There Should Be Harmony Between the Face and the Head Covering.

A very showy hat reminds me of my mother's saying to me when a girl, apropos of a greatly coveted new hat something on the garden-of-roses order, that no hat is in good taste which attracts attention away from the wearer's face to itself. A hat should serve merely as a frame to a picture, says Lian Carpenter, in Ladies' World, New York.

Some people seem to have the vaguest ideas of hats in relation to their own heads. They know a pretty hat when they see it, but fail to realize that a hat which looks enchanting on a head of a certain type, may be fatal to the good looks of a different shaped face. We must learn to study our hats subjectively rather than objectively.

The face with high or prominent cheek bones requires, perhaps, more care in choosing a becomingly-shaped hat than any other. High cheek bones are often accompanied by a high forehead. This type calls plainly for breadth in the arrangement of the hair on either side of the face; it calls no less plainly for a broad and not too low effect in the trimming of hats. A small crown is always unbecoming to this type of face, unless so much disguised by trimming as to have practically the effect of a large crown. A hat which tilts slightly forward is usually more suitable for this order of face than the more popular hat which turns up in front. For every-day hats his latter shape is an unpractical one for busy people, for, however becoming it may be to women with low foreheads, it takes up so much time adjusting the veil inevitable, in windy weather, with that toppling, fly-away style of headgear.

Small hats and toques look well with small faces, but are trying to large ones. Short women should wear medium or small hats; very large head-gear has a tendency to dwarf people. Girls with naturally frizzy hair, particularly if they be short and thickset, should be careful to choose simple hats. They may be good and more expensive than showier hats, but they must not be fussy in style. Ostrich feathers, unless used very carefully, have a tendency to look common on this style of girl.

The angular face with sharp nose, pointed chin and square forehead is much accentuated by wearing severe hats with uncompromising straight lines and angles, such as the perennial walking hat, especially when wide-brimmed, the sailor and kindred shapes. To break the unbecoming repetition of straight lines, the owner of this face should dress the hair loosely, in soft, wavy lines, and the brim and general contour of the hat should be broken; soft and undulating rather than hard. Attention to these obvious ideas can transform a plain face into a pleasing one, and give the impression of youth where the hard lines suggest middle age.

The wedge-shaped face, broad in the upper part and sloping to a pointed chin, is also caricatured by a low hat with a broad brim, this shape accentuating the wedge-like look of the face, and giving the wearer a suggestion of likeness to a fox. On the other hand, this type looks charming in the ordinary shaped toque or small hat.

A heavy jaw, too, needs careful treatment; the tiny, jaunty hat accentuates it cruelly, while a larger shape has the opposite effect. If a bonnet is worn, its keynote should be breadth in trimming.

A big flamboyant bow of a color tried and proved to be becoming to the complexion of the wearer is very effective as trimming; a ribbon or stock collar of the leading shade in a hat adds considerably to its becomingness. Then hats, beautiful in themselves, though gorgeous in color, will look well with a sober-colored costume, while they look almost vulgar in conjunction with a costume of an opposing shade, or worse still, combination of shades. A lady should always err on the side of being too quietly rather than too loudly dressed. American girls have been criticised for this latter fault in English society.

Flower Hats for Summer.

Toques and small hats made of flowers continue to be favored by La Mode, but milliners have to exercise their ingenuity and make them as varied as possible, since the wholesalers are placing on the market good assortments of these articles which find a ready sale at the stores. Among the latest novelties in this line are the toquea composed of geranium flowers and leaves. Mme. Reboux made one the other day in white geraniums and brownish-green leaves, slightly powdered with white; ed geraniums or pelargoniums are, however, more usual. Cherry leaves and bunches of flowers and fruit make pretty toques. Others have the low crown covered with blue or pinkish blue forget-me-nots, and a double cordon of the gray-green foliage round the brim. Tulle is also provided, sewn all over with small flowers, such as violets, cowslips, forget-me-nots, hyacinth bells, or the petals of roses, which may be draped according to fancy, on hat or toque.—Millinery Trade Review.

Rhubarb Jam.

Cut the rhubarb in small pieces; cook in a very little water until tender; remove from the fire and mash thoroughly. Add three-fourths of a pound of sugar to one pound of fruit. Return to the fire and cook half an hour, stirring constantly to prevent scorching. The jam should be thick and perfectly smooth when properly finished.—Ladies' World, New York.

STILL THE SHIP SUBSIDY.

Republicans Quietly Arranging to Pass the Iniquitous Measure at Next Session.

No great strain is put upon popular credulity in accepting the statement from an authorised republican source that arrangements are being quietly made to pass the ship subsidy inquiry at the next session of congress. The prime and most active advocates of the measure have never thought of abandoning their original purpose and are now quietly making an effort under the most approved methods to acquire the necessary support in congress. This is to be had on acceptable terms, provided the people can be reconciled to this further drain upon their resources, and it is largely with the local molders of public sentiment within the republican party that the plutocratic lobbyists are laboring. They are not tooting fanfares from noisy horns, firing cannon or beating tomtoms, but employing the quiet methods of the literary bureau.

What they seem to handle as their knockdown argument amounts, when analyzed, to a point blank assertion that a Nicaragua canal will make it absolutely imperative that the merchant marine be placed in control of our carrying trade, through the bounty of the government. The answer to this dogmatic assertion is that the canal, even when built, will have little to do with the expansion of our sales in foreign markets, for the only take such surplus of our production as they must have, and would take no more if the American fleet were larger than all the rest combined. But if it be granted that the isthmian waterway is going to make a greater call upon our resources and means of transportation, that fact will in itself make sea-going vessel property remunerative and invite corporate capital without reference to government aid. The fact is that the canal is a remote contingency when considered in connection with present conditions, and can only be used in this connection for purposes that are unjustified and misleading.

The purchase of a large English transportation line by the syndicate which J. Pierpont Morgan represents was made without any reference to the canal. Yet we have no doubt that if a new subsidy bill be introduced next term it will make liberal provision for this same fleet. But that it is in itself a paying venture is evident beyond dispute in the fact that the shrewd promoter went after it and paid 45 per cent. more than the shares showed it to be worth in the judgment of its English owners. Another fact that should tend to set the popular mind against the proposed subsidies is the fact that the movement to capture the people is under the personal direction of President Griscom, of the International Navigation company, the man who had modestly and adroitly managed to feather his own nest, inside and out, by the provisions of the bill defeated by the last congress.

It will be recalled that the smooth Mr. Griscom had so arranged his hoppers as to catch all but the bran and middlings of the subsidy grist. He had way the best of all the proposed legislation, retroactive, present and future. Either by connivance or an intuition that can discount miracles, he had all inside information and had his interests in a position to rake down the bulk of the subsidies. He had no rival as the prince of grabbers. He dictated the bill. He enlisted its powerful and wealthy supporters, he formed the reports of committees and inspired the speeches of the subsidy champions on the floor. Yet he had the humility of Uriah Heap when interviewed for public information. Knowledge of what he has brought about in the alienation of national statesmen from their allegiance to the people, and of the motives that actuated him, should discredit him and his movement to revive the subsidy scheme.—Detroit Free Press.

PRESS COMMENTS.

—Depew is the first republican who has dared to give voice to his thoughts and mention McKinley, "the man of destiny" (or was it destiny?), as a candidate for a third term. But our Chauncey always was a humorous somebody.—Houston (Tex.) Post.

—Mr. Hannah may say "poohpooh" and "tut-tut" and "d—d nonsense" and all that, but it is to be noticed that he has not turned Perry Heath out of the office of the national committee for suggesting him for president in 1904.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

—The truth that a coustry injures itself by shutting out or increasing the price of raw material is almost self-evident, and it is equally clear that with higher-priced materials the only chance to reduce prices for competitive purposes must come through cutting wages.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

—At Buffalo Senator Hanna was still jesting about his nomination for the presidency. That is all right, if it goes no further, but the danger is he will become so fond of the joke that he will want to work it off in practical form on the American people as a whole, and that would be a situation entirely devoid of humor for quite a number of people.—Baltimore News.

—When Conkling and his cohorts planned for the third election of Grant to the presidency they did not pay high compliment to the intelligence of the American people. The talk of a third term for McKinley is even less of a compliment. Certainly what Grant could not accomplish would not be easy of accomplishment by McKinley. If it has come to such a pass that we must elect a man to a third term in order to sustain business or carry out defined policies, then it is high time to change our form of government.—Omaha World-Herald.

THE END OF QUAY.

Pennsylvania Republican Boss Has Reached the End of His Political Rope.

At a dinner and reception recently given in Senator Quay's honor in Philadelphia by the State League of Republican Clubs the senator announced in the course of his speech that he would retire from politics at the close of his present term. He said:

"My political race is run. It is not to be understood that God's sword is drawn immediately against my life, nor that my seat in the senate is to be prematurely vacated, but that, with the subscription of my official oath on the 18th of January my connection with the serious labors and responsibilities of active politics ceased, except in so far as I may be committed to certain measures pending in the present legislature.

"I will never again be a candidate for nor accept any official position."

The public service would have gained in decency and dignity and the state of Pennsylvania would have gained in prestige and influence in national affairs if Mr. Quay had made this decision many years ago. Such a determination would have commanded the hearty support and approval of a majority of the citizenship of the Keystone state. It would have received, also, the unqualified indorsement of a very large and respectable portion of the republican party.

But now that we have it from the lips of the Pennsylvania boss himself that his political race is run, it is interesting to look over the public record that is soon to close for any evidences of high-minded statesmanship or constructive legislative genius that might be suggestive or inspiring to the ambitious young men of the country. What public service has Mr. Quay rendered to the country in return for the pecuniary rewards he has reaped from politics?

Careful and diligent scrutiny of his career from the time he entered politics in 1865 as a member of the state legislature of Pennsylvania fails to reveal any legislative idea or measure that may be traced to his authorship or that owes its enactment to his championship. As secretary of the commonwealth, as recorder of Philadelphia, as treasurer of the commonwealth, he never instituted any conspicuous state or municipal reforms. As United States senator he never participated in any great debate or made a notable speech upon any issue of national importance.

The "political race" which he now says is about to close extends over 35 years of public officeholding and party dictatorship. Its close will end the political career of a man who will be remembered only as one of the most sagacious, unscrupulous and invincible party bosses that ever figured in our political history.—Chicago Record-Herald (Rep.).

DECISION OF SUPREME COURT.

The Porto Rican Question Settled to the Satisfaction of American Syndicates.

Out of the conflicting opinions of the supreme court of the United States in the insular cases one fact is painfully apparent, and that is that the constitutionality of the Foraker act as respects Porto Rico is upheld.

Thus Porto Rico, the Philippines and the Hawaiians become mere dependencies of the United States, domestic territory for some purposes and foreign countries for other purposes. Their commerce and industry may be burdened by taxation or destroyed by taxation as congress may decide. For the purposes of the tariff they are not American territories.

This view is based on the theory presented by the administration that territories of the United States are beyond the pale of the constitution and that they may enjoy its benefits only as congress, the supreme authority in the premises, shall condescend to extend them. There may be some doubt even as to the question whether the power of congress in the matter is limited by the bill of rights.

While the decision cannot fail to shock countless Americans, it is certain to give great satisfaction to the syndicates which have made American expansion for the first time synonymous with injustice and inequality. Lands won by the valor of American soldiers and sailors or purchased with money wrung from American toil are to be exploited in the interest of commercial combinations at whose demand the precedents of a hundred years have been set aside.

The court's opinions are in conflict in some respects and they do not appear to be wholly clear in others, even to the justices themselves, but the judgment sustaining the Foraker law is vital and seems to cover the whole ground. If congress may levy tariffs in the United States against Porto Rico and in Porto Rico against the United States the same authority obtains with respect to Hawaii and the Philippines.

The power of congress will be conceded by many Americans who do not approve of the specific acts of congress in an exercise of that authority. The apparent intimation that this power may be exercised without constitutional restraint is the feature which constitutes the new and dangerous doctrine in the premises.—Chicago Chronicle.

—Mr. Hanna has been an intimate part of the administration, but he did not go with the president to California. Perhaps he is waiting till the spring of, say, 1909. That time, according to any calendar that Hon. Perry S. Heath might take a notion to get out, would be directly after his second inauguration. Mr. Hanna would not care to go on a trip of that so, t merely as an "understudy" of the president.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Changes In Revenue Law

The Reduced War Taxes as They Go Into Effect July 1

Beginning with July 1 certain changes in the war revenue bill will go into effect. The original measure, it will be remembered, was enacted by congress June 13, 1898, just after the breaking out of the Spanish-American war. Just prior to adjournment the last congress made certain amendments to this act. Perhaps the changes that will be most noticed by the general public will be the removal of the tax on bank checks and drafts, sight drafts, money orders, leases, mortgages or conveyances in trust, promissory notes and telegraph messages. The tax on bankers of $50 for $25,000 and $2 for each additional $1,000 is to be retained. So also is the tax on stock brokers of $50, on pawnbrokers of $20, on commercial brokers of $20 and on custom house brokers of $10.

Proprietors of theaters and like places of amusement and proprietors of circuses are still to be taxed $100. The tax of $10 on all other exhibitions is also retained. The new law made no change in the tax of $5 levied on each bowling alley or billiard table.

Tobacco and snuff come in for a discount of 20 per cent. on the old tax. There is a distinction drawn in the case of cigarettes. The tax on those of a certain grade and weight is retained; on others the tax is reduced. Dealers in tobacco and leaf tobacco, and manufacturers of tobacco and of cigars, will be taxed according to the rate now prevailing.

On bonds, debentures, etc., and on certificates of stock of original issue the tax of 5 cents per $100 is to be retained. In the provision taxing transfers of stock 2 cents per $100, the same tax is extended to bucket shops. The tax on sales of products at exchanges is cut in half. In the case of sales of merchandise in actual course of transportation the tax is entirely removed. The tax on all forms of insurance is repealed.

Proprietary medicines, perfumery and cosmetics and chewing gum are all to be exempted from taxation. Petroleum and sugar refineries are still to pay one-fourth per cent. of their gross receipts in excess of $250,000. Each sleeping and parlor car ticket will continue to pay 1 cent to the government. Legacies of charitable institutions, religious, literary or educational in character, will not be taxed after July 1.

Epitaph and Pun.

One evening at a small party which included the two friends, Douglas Jerrold and Charles Knight, the author-publisher, the talk turned on epitaphs.

As they were walking home together, Knight, half lightly and half in earnest, asked the wit to write his epitaph for him. Jerrold made no answer, but when they came to the parting of their ways, he suddenly said:

"I've got your epitaph."

"Well, what is it?"

"Good Knight!"—Youth's Companion.

Traffic in Russia.

Early in April there were lying at the stations of three Russian railroads, waiting to be forwarded, 27,000 car loads of grain, equal to about 12,000,000 bushels, much of which had been waiting for months. Complaints that railroads are not able to handle their traffic are common in Russia.

Trout of the Ocean.

The weakfish is revisiting the Atlantic coast, much to the satisfaction of epicures, who know that the fish thus handicapped by its name is the trout of the ocean.

Out-Door Relief in England.

In the southwestern counties of England 37 out of every 1,000 persons are in receipt of outdoor relief. This number falls to 19 in the northwest counties.

Arsenic for Hardening Shot.

Shot is generally hardened by the addition of a small quantity of arsenic to the lead.

Mother and Queen.

Queen Victoria always made it a point to keep the religious instruction of her children as much as possible in her own hands. Once when the archdeacon of London was catechizing the young princes, he said:

"Your governess deserves great credit for instructing you so thoroughly."

At which the youngsters piped up:

"It is mamma who teaches us our catechism!"

It is not perhaps generally known that the queen occasionally taught a Bible class for the children of those in attendance at Windsor palace.—London Beacon.

In Honor of an Inventor.

A movement has been started in Georgia to perpetuate the memory of Eli Whitney by converting into an elegant country club the scene of his labors near Augusta, where he perfected his cotton gin. An organization has been perfected, and a charter for the club secured.

Free Medical Help.

In England 972,000 people a year receive free medical attendance, compared with only 230,000 in France, and the cost of these French invalids is only £38,000, compared with £150,000 spent in medical relief in Ireland.

A Big Battleship.

A battleship of 16,000 tons displacement, the largest ever designed, is to be added to the United States navy. If the proposed speed of 21 knots is secured, this ship will be the masterpiece in naval construction.

QUEER NEWS IN FIGURES.

Strange Facts About the Population and Emigration Statistics of the British Isles.

While the emigration from Ireland increases from year to year, a curious phenomenon is observed in the United Kingdom. The number of marriages is increasing and the number of births is decreasing. There never were so many marriages in England as there were in the year 1899. But the records of the birth rate run down to the lowest figure. England, that was so proud of her increase in population, from 12,000,000 to 40,000,000 since the commencement of the French revolution, while during the same period the population of France increased only from 25,000,000 to 38,000,000, now finds her population diminishing. But the strange thing about it is that the same phenomenon is observed in Australia, in New Zealand and in all the countries inhabited exclusively by Anglo-Saxons. The London Daily Telegraph gives a cause for the phenomenon which may perhaps be the true one, and this cause is none other than the rebellion, often noticed by close observers, of the Anglo-Saxon women against maternity—a rebellion which is the consequence of their passion for independence and their constantly increasing desire to become equal, if not superior, to men in intellectual occupations and in physical exercises. In saying this we refer particularly to American women. For the ladies of the law, and the medical and journalistic ladies maternity is a nuisance, just as it is for those whose greatest delights are bicycle riding, tennis, golf and hockey, says the Independence Belge.

Coming back to Ireland, we find, according to the official figures, that 47,107 emigrants abandoned in the year 1900 the country to which they are so deeply attached. These figures represent 10.5 per thousand of the population. They show an increase of 3,347 over the figures for 1899 and 13,000 over those of 1898. Since the beginning of the reign of Queen Victoria the population of Ireland decreased from 8,000,000 to 4,500,000. The laws in favor of the farmers, the establishment of elective county councils and the numerous lines of railway have had no effect upon emigration. Nothing can stop it except home rule.

MODERN SPRINKLING WAGONS

An Improvement on the Old Style—Many American-Made Sprinklers Exported.

The modern sprinkling wagon is very different from the old-timer. The chief improvement is in the spray head, which enables the driver to control the flow of water much better than the old style. Thus, whether it is a dirt or a macadam road, or a stone-paved or asphalted street, there can be supplied from the modern street sprinkler just the amount of water required to lay the dust in it, says the New York Sun.

The spray head on each side has its own valve rod running to the driver's seat, with a step there for the foot. The driver can operate both heads at once, or he can run only one head; he can shut off or open either one at pleasure. With this sort of wagon the expert driver leaves behind him dry crosswalks with perfectly defined limits; and when he comes to a carriage or a street car, upon which he doesn't want to throw water, he shuts off the flow on that side and keeps the other side going. Sprinkling wagons are made in various sizes, ranging from 150 gallons to 1,000 gallons capacity. There are 20 sprinkling wagons sold in this country nowadays where there was one sold only a few years ago. This great increase in their use is due in large measure to sanitary reasons, to the great extension of good roads, and to the common desire for comfort.

Sprinkling wagons are used nowadays commonly in many smaller towns and villages, where they were never thought of some years ago. And American sprinkling wagons are now found all over the world wherever sprinkling wagons are used.

They are exported to Australia, Cuba, Porto Rico, South America, South Africa and Europe. The modern sprinkling wagon that the traveler chances to see in Paris, or Berlin, or Hamburg, came very likely from the same factory as the one he saw here before he left home, going through his own home street.

Belts on the Planet Neptune.

Neptune, the most distant known planet of the solar system, presents to the telescope only a small, greenish disk on which no distinct markings are visible. But during the past year the great telescope of the naval observatory at Washington has revealed indications of the existence of streaks on Neptune bearing a resemblance to the belts of Jupiter. A few years ago similar streaks were seen on Uranus. Saturn also possesses them, so that it may be said that cloud-like belts are a feature common to all of the four great outer planets.—Science.

Citizenship in Great Britain.

Before a foreigner can become a citizen of the United Kingdom he must have resided in Britain or have been in the service of the crown for five years. Having this qualification, and having also the intention of residing permanently in the United Kingdom, or serving under the crown, he may apply to the home secretary for naturalization.—N. Y. Sun.

Same Old Trick.

After six months of darkness the arctic sun crept shyly over the edge of the glacier. Mr. Ojibiwockky had just returned from the Eskimo club. "What time is it?" asked Mrs. Ojibiwockky, suddenly waking up. "Quarter pash February," replied Mr. Ojibiwockky, somewhat thickly. It was in reality half past May, and having no desire to pry into family affairs, we will draw a veil over the scene that followed.—Philadelphia Record.

Going Too Far.

"This reckless speculation must be stopped," said the earnest citizen to the trust magnate.

"Indeed it must," agreed the latter. "Indeed, it must. Why, yesterday two or three fellows who are not in our crowd at all made several thousand dollars by taking flyers. That sort of thing won't do."—Baltimore American.

Danger in Old Sayings.

"What a fine head your boy has," said an admiring friend.

"Yes," replied the fond father, "he's a chip of the old block—ain't you, my boy?"

"Yes, father; teacher said yesterday that I was a young blockhead."—Stray Stories.

"Do you not wish now," inquired the prison visitor, "that you had followed the straight and narrow path?" "Dat's de one I did foller," replied Jimmy Dores. "If I'd only dodged inter dat crooked alley dey'd never 'a' ketched me."—Philadelphia Press.

"If there ever was a terrible child in this world," remarked the worried mother, "he's one." "What's his particular fault?" "Do what I will, I can't break him of the habit of telling the truth right out when we have company."—Philadelphia Times.

FOR SYSTEMIC CATARRH

Peculiar to Summer Pe-ru-na Gives Prompt and Permanent Relief.

Clem G. Moore, Editor of the Advocate-Democrat of Crawfordsville, Ga., writes the Peruna Medicine Company as follows:

Gentlemen—"After four years of intense suffering, caused by systemic catarrh, which I contracted while editing, and traveling for my paper, I have been greatly relieved by the use of Peruna. I gave up work during these years of torture, tried various remedies and many doctors, but all the permanent relief came from the use of Peruna. My trouble was called indigestion, but it was catarrh all through my system, and a few bottles of Peruna made me feel like another person, noting the improvement after I had used the first bottle. Peruna is undoubtedly the best catarrh remedy ever compounded.—Clem G. Moore.

Captain Percy W. Moss, Paragould, Ark., says: "I think Peruna is undoubtedly the finest and surest catarrh cure ever prepared, and it has taken but two bottles to convince me of this fact."

Judge Wm. T. Zenor, of Washington, D. C., writes from 213 N. Capital Street, Washington, D. C.:

"I take pleasure in saying that I can cheerfully recommend the use of Peruna as a remedy for catarrhal trouble and a most excellent tonic for general conditions."—Wm. T. Zenor.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

DEATH

begins in the bowels. It's the unclean places that breed infectious epidemics, and it's the unclean body—unclean inside—that "catches" the disease. A person whose stomach and bowels are kept clean and whose liver is lively, and blood pure, is safe against yellow fever, or any other of the dreadful diseases that desolate our beautiful land. Some of the cleanest people outside are filthiest inside, and they are the ones who not only "catch" the infections, but endanger the lives of all their friends and relatives. There's only one certain way of keeping clean inside so as to prevent disease and that is to take CASCARETS. Perfect disinfectant and bowel strengtheners. All diseases are

Mr. J. S. Reno, writing to the Breeders' Gazette of some of the advantages of mule raising, says: "They will go on the market at least one earlier than the horse. They will bring from $20 to $30 more per head than the horses of like average. They are hardier and less liable to disease. In conversation with a buyer who has bought 125 mules in our locality in the last few weeks, he said that ninety-five per cent of the mules he bought were without blemish and that ne could ship them from two to ten years old. After a successful experience of thirty-five years I will say there is no line of stock raising that can compare in quick and sure profits with the breeding of the mule.

Lime is a great preservative and wood washen with it will last many years. It is often desirable to have whitewash of different colors, but the trouble is to get them to mix. The best way is to make a paste of lampblack, salt and wood ashes, then mix it with the lime. It is known that there are buildings that were painted twenty years ago, and to-day they look well. Whitewash No. 1—Put one bushel of well burned lime in a barrel, slake it with boiling water, add fourteen pounds of salt, let stand two days, then take eight pounds of rice flour and make four pailsful of paste, which is added to eight gallons of skim milk and mixed with the wash. A house painted with this mixture will last three to five years and still look well. Withewash No two—Two quarts of lime, pour on boiling water, and a duart of salt, let it stand till cold and add water to thin it. A preparation of lime and rosin, or lime and soap makes also a good wash. Use a common whitewash brush. Have a piece of wood or leather on each side of the brush letting the bristles extend from one-half to three-fourths of an inch, and the brush will last for years—Ex.

BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, - - KENTUCKY.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels, B grade, with celebrated Gotier steel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Winchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and pattern, which I claim has no equal. The body will be good, seasoned yellow poplar; sills and rises good seasoned ash and hickory—not Cottonwood as the factories are now using. Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them bursting out, something I guarantee my work not to do.

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters buffed, not spilt, roof and curtains 30 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be something neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes. If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 69, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of C. J. Childress' toll-gate.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19, 1901. NO. 35.

FLORIDA, Texas and Kentucky each has oil fever.

THE county board of health can do nothing without the assistance of the fiscal court. Will the board get that assistance?

THE British have been defeating the Boers some more. More Boers have been killed and captured than were in South Africa at the beginning of the war.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY has removed all question as to whether he wants to be President again, but he has a record for changing his notion in regard to matters.

SAMUEL ADAMS, of Erlanger, was in town, one day last week. He and the Hon Stephen Henry are having a neck and neck race for the Democratic nomination for representative in the county district.

THIS county has splendid prospects for a fine crop of corn and an abundant crop of wheat, and all kinds of fruit will be abundant. The outlook for an adequate supply of good things for this winter is splendid.

THE Committee appointed to investigate has found that the British War Department is utterly incompetent. Hence it has been decided to do nothing about it at present. This so reminds us of our own way in such matters.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY has sat down upon Representative Grosvenor's prediction. If Grosvenor keeps on making mistakes like this, his prognostications as to the vote in 1904 will not be taken so seriously as they have been in the past.

THE protected interests of the country are very anxious to prevent Senator Cullom from going to the head of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate. Cullom, you know, favors the adoption of the reciprocity treaties and the protected interests oppose them.

NOTHING but the most complimentary reports have been heard in regard to Judge Lassing's work on the bench. He is giving entire satisfaction in every respect, and it now begins to look as though he will have no opposition for a nomination for election this fall.

THE contest for the Democratic nominations for county offices is warming up over in Kenton, but, nevertheless, the party will present a solid front at the regular election this fall. The Kenton county Democrats seem better organized than they have been for many years.

IT seems that the two factions in the Democratic party in Louisville, have buried the tomahawk, and each has representatives on the city ticket. This action was unexpected on the part of the Republicans, who were anticipating an easy fight for the city offices this fall.

THE appointment of the judge for the new federal district in this State seems to have had somewhat of a demoralizing effect on the Republican party, and old breaches were opened while new ones were made. Too many aspirants, and too many thought they could have whomsoever they pleased appointed.

THE fiscal court of this county should convene at once to take some steps in regard to preventing any further spread of the smallpox in this county. The time to stamp out the disease is before every neighborhood in the county is infected. Prompt action at Walton and Verona prevented the spread of the disease in those neighborhoods, but there seems to be a lack of the proper precaution at present, and it is said that one or two of the persons who have smallpox have been seen away from home after being informed of the nature of their disease, and before they had recovered. No citizen has the right to imperil the health of another, and to suppress this carelessness on the part of patients, the fiscal court should meet and cooperate with the county board of health in its effort to stamp out the disease at once.

Now that President McKinley has set the hope of official reward behind him, will he not do his duty and discipline some of the violators of the civil service law? Collector Sapp, of Louisville, for instance, has been openly defying the law long enough.

THERE is no denying the fact that the Supreme Court is losing its high reputation. The shift in the income tax case was a hard blow, but it is nothing compared to the colonial case which was practically decided by one justice in opposition to the other nine.

SCIENTISTS are telling us horrible tales about the potato these days. One says that sprouting potatoes are full of a deadly poison known as solanin and another declares that through long reproduction by "eyes," the potato has lost the power of producing seed and must soon become extinct.

WHEN editor Roberts, of Lexington, attempted to make an 1903 Vice-Presidential candidate of Mr. Yerkes, he was figuring at random, and Mr. Yerkes made a hasty denial of his having any aspirations, whatever, in that direction. Probably Mr. Roberts considers every Republican ready to take any office he can get.

JOHN W. JOLLY, of Newport, who was tried, convicted and sentenced to death in the Circuit Court, but was granted a new trial by the Court of Appeals was again indicted by the grand jury for murdering his wife. The crime occurred on August 7th, 1900, when he shot his sister-in-law Minnie Klekamp and his wife. The former died almost instantly and Jolly was indicted for the murder of her. His wife lived nearly two months after, and he was not indicted for the killing of her until the present time. He will not be placed on trial until after the summer vacation.

A. B. ROUSE, of Burlington, has been tendered by Congressman-elect Gooch, the position of private secretary, which has a salary of $1,200 a year attached. Mr. Gooch could not have made a better selection, and as Mr. Rouse is being looked forward to as Boone's coming Congressional candidate, the position will be of infinite value to him. It is generally understood that Mr. Gooch's selection of Mr. Rouse as his private secretary is in the nature of a proper recognition of the excellent political service rendered Mr. Gooch by Mr. Rouse's uncle, Jerry F. Blyth, during his canvass for the Democratic nomination. Be this as it may, the selection is one that all the Democrats in Boone will endorse most heartily.

Crop and Stock.

Henry Stevenson, of Bratton, Robertson county, has a cow which has been the mother of nine calves within the past four years. For three years she gave birth to twins, and a few weeks ago she gave birth to triplets, two of which are living. This, we believe, breaks the record.—Mt. Olivet Advance.

It is estimated that the Kansas wheat crop this year will amount to 100,000,000 bushels. This is many million bushels more than last year's crop, which was the largest in the history of the State. The State Employment Bureau estimates that 15,000 men from other States will be needed to help harvest the crop.—Farmers Home Journal.

Tobacco growers can do very much towards heading off cutworms by using the following formula in their newly-planted tobacco fields says an authority: Add a spoonful of Paris green to two quarts of sweetened water, and stir in enough brand to make a stiff mash. Put a spoonful of the mixture beside the young plants and the work is done. It will save planting and uneaven tobacco fields, not to say a great deal of labor.

Northern Indiana farmers are experimenting in the domesticating of quail, and the results are highly gratifying. Nearly every farmer in that section has from one to three coveys on his farm, and is giving them kind and careful attention. During the snow season they are fed regularly and on some of the farms they have become so tame that they roost with the barn-yard fowls. As the quail is the natural enemy of the chinch bugs we suggest to the Kentucky wheat growers that the example of the Indiana farmers is worth a trial.—Exchange.

CLOVER AND CORN.

Clover as a flesh former, an albumen producer and lime supplier is one of the best articles of food, yet inexpensive to the farmer. While it is said half a ton of corn produces less than a pound of lime, white clover contains thirty times as much, and red clover 28. Its introduction as an article of food has materially reduced the cost of keeping, and at the same time largely increased the egg production of the flock. The great trouble has been that we have fed hens from sheer force of habit in the most expensive manner possible. The economy of feeding is just opening the eyes of the breeders to the possibility of the business.

As the difficulty of obtaining clover hay, every one must consult his own circumstances and conveniences, still we venture the opinion that there are but few poultrymen who cannot procure a half ton of clover hay for the purpose mentioned. Throughout nearly all sections of the country the second crop is secured in September, and in most years is abundant. It is better furnished with leaves, has less stalks and properly dried, will make just the green food required by fowls.

Throughout the great West and South corn is so cheap, so convenient, and so fattening that it naturally leads the breeders to use it, little thinking that while it fattens it fails to stimulate egg production. Fowls having large range in winter in the sections of country named, find a great amount of other food, also such materials as nature demands to make up the variety which goes to build up the body and furnish the egg organs with the ingredients for forming the eggs. This leads the casual observer to the conclusion that corn is as good as any other grain. Whereas, if his fowls were closely confined, as is often necessary with the regular and careful breeder, or when the long, steady cold weather makes confinement imperative, he would soon learn that strictly corn diet would retard and suspend egg production. In this connection let us again remark that the greatest profit through winter eggs is derived by securing early pullets to do the laying. Such pullets as have matured sufficiently to begin laying in the fall, before the cold weather sets in, if fed properly and not suffered to become too fat will lay throughout the winter season.—Fancier's Gazette.

IN MEMORY OF

John S. Ransom, who departed this life at the residence of his son-in-law, A. S. McClure, Wednesday, May 29th, 1901, aged 86, years, 4 months and 28 days.

He was a man possessed of genius, energy and enterprise that ranked him among the first as a citizen of Boone county, where he was born, and lived the greater part of his life. His quiet, affable, amiable disposition won the love, esteem and respect of all with whom he came in contact; his generous, hospitality was proverbial.

In August, 1843, he united with the Particular Baptist church at Salem, Boone county, and from that time till the end of his mortal pilgrimage he lived an honored and consistant christian life, worthy the emulation of his brethren left behind, and none perhaps, will ever excel. Nothing except sickness ever kept him from filling his seat at his regular meetings—he never stopped on account of weather or bad roads. His home was a home for his brethren far and near. Religion was the theme of his life, the meekness and gentleness of a lamb was a peculiar trait of his character, and yet he was as bold as a lion in defense of the convictions of his faith—ever showing a readiness to spend and be spent for the cause of truth.

He has left two children, a son, Mr. Eddie Ransom, of Boone, and a daughter, Mrs. A. S. McClure, of Grant county, at whose home he had lived for a number of years where he died, and whose tender care of their aged parents, was noted and marked by all who knew them. He was a man among men, wise in counsel, and will be missed by his family, his neighbors and the church left to mourn his departure. But, we sorrow not as those without hope, for we believe our loss is his infinite and eternal gain.

His funeral was attended by a large concourse of sympathizing friends and neighbors, conducted by the humble writer, whom he had requested years ago to preach his funeral. "Weep ye not for the dead, neither bemoan him, but weep sore for him that goeth away: for he shall return no more nor see his native country."—Jeremiah 22:10.

J. TAYLOR MOORE.

How it Is.

Don't tell fibs to your wife. Never teach a monkey to make faces.

If your wife has a temper, don't show yours. No one has yet discovered anything better than cold water to put out fires with.

Don't yawn before your wife, because, as a man and his wife make one, she will come to the conclusion that you are bored in your own company.

Don't spend half your time bothering, tormenting your wife, or you will discover yourself in the act of spending the other half indemnifying her for it.

Don't ever say to your wife: "What's the matter with you, dear?" because she will answer you: "What's the matter with me? Surely you ought to know." Very often she does not.

Remember always that, in the eyes of a woman, you have to be manly, this is to say, generous, magnanimous. A woman will rather forgive an act of brutality than an act of meanness in the man she loves.

A woman can afford to be wrong, because she has not to acknowledge it; but you, my dear man, don't ever make such a mistake as to be wrong, because, being able to acknowledge it, you will have to pay dearly for it.

If you see your wife about to reach across the table for the butter, don't let her try to be successful, but go quickly to her assistance; it will be economy, as the seams of her bodice are not so strong as those of your coat.

If you wish your wife to be agreeable while at dinner, don't tell her just before she enters the dining room that her hair is badly done. Besides, by so doing you also run the risk that she will return to her room, stay there half an hour, and spoil the dinner.

For the love of everything which you hold sacred, never commit the slightest act which may cause you to appear ridiculous in the eyes of your wife, or even may make her laugh at you. The day on which a woman has laughed at her husband she has ceased to love him.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Marriage and death notices are simply business advertisements. One heralds a new copartnership and the other a dissolution.

A penurious north side man was so affected by a charity sermon the other Sunday that he borrowed a dollar from his neighbor and put it in his own pocket.—Chicago News.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

Nothing makes a thin man so proud of himself as the sight of a fat woman trying to act bashful.

Probably if Lot's wife had been turned into a pillar of sugar it would have seemed like a bigger miracle to the old man.

If you make a man mad enough he will always tell the truth; if you make a woman truthful enough, she will always get mad.

The Table.

The plates should be properly heated and placed before the carver.

A meal should never be announced until everything is in readiness.

The coffee should be served very hot and with hot milk.

The glasses should be freshly filled with clear, cold water.

The butter should be kept in the refrigerator until the last minute in summer, but kept where it will be soft enough to spread easily in winter.

The table should always be so kept as to be ready for a guest with but a moment's notice.

A cotton flannel "silence cloth" not only makes the tablecloth look infinitely handsomer, but preserves the varnished surface from stains from hot dishes.

A polished table if used must be spotless; it is therefore not desirable for every day use, as there is too much work involved in keeping it in order.

A sufficient number of knives, forks and spoons should be placed on the table so that nothing need be called for after the family are seated.

The farm Journal says that a cow giving 5,000 pounds of 4 per cent milk will produce only $50 worth of butter, while one that will produce 8,000 pounds of 5 per cent milk will produce $100 worth of butter, and her calf is worth three times as much as that of the first. There will be little difference in the cost of keeping the two cows, so that where the first gives a profit of $30 the latter will net the owner $100, if we count the first cow's calf at $10 and the other at $30. Some people do not think there is much difference in cows, but some cows forget to pay their board bills, while others take great pleasure in supplying the table with luxuries, paying the interest, clothing the baby and paying the hired girl. The good cow is a poor farmer's friend.

The following is an extract from Boonesborough by George W. Ranck, a history of the heroic period of Kentucky that is meeting with distinguished approval and is being extensively quoted. "Boone's Station," here referred to was located near the present town of Athens. Fayette county, and was only a short distance from the famous pioneer stronghold, Boonesborough. Mr. Ranck says: "But early in the spring of 1873, in spite of the assurance of peace, minor Indian outrages began again and continued, and among them, and special interest to Boonesborough, was the attempted capture of Boone. It seems the Shawanes still sighted for the companionship of their adopted brother, and four of them undertook to bring him back to his former Indian home. They haunted Boone's Station and caught him at last outside of it at work, says Peck, in his tobacco barn. Boone submitted so good naturedly that his delighted red kinfolks allowed him to go up into the loft of the barn as he requested, to get some fine tobacco to carry along. In a twinkle he sprang down upon them with an armful of dry tobacco that he scattered as he fell, and before the blinded and sputtering savages could recover themselves he was safe within his stockade."

The ear of the horse is not only a partial index to the animal's character as for as vice and docility are concerned, but its movements will at times sound the keynote of danger or warn us to be on the alert. In this connection a somewhat remarkable incident was related a few years ago by one of the Union soldiers who escaped through the famous hole of Libby prison, but was afterwards retaken. The officer who recaptured the man subsequently informed him that his proximity was first revealed by the ears of his (the officer's) charger.

The story, in brief, was that the escaping soldier and a messmate were concealed in a woods. One night they were closely pursued by the southern officer and his men, and while stealing away from them as cautiously as they could, the crackling of the dry leaves attracted the attention of the captain's horse, which somewhat suddenly and without apparent reason pricked its ears and seemed alarmed. The officer, taking the hint, ordered his troops to surround the spot, and by the morning he had the two fugitives closely corraled.

GRANT COUNTY.

The Dry Ridge Baptist church will not be dedicated until the fourth Sunday in July instead of the fifth Sunday in June, as was announced. The date is postponed because of the delay in receiving the new pews.

After being in session six days the Grand Jury reported twenty-five indictments last Saturday afternoon. All were for misdemeanors but two, one of them being for manslaughter and the other for rape.

There have been very few interesting cases tried at the present term of court, nearly all being minor offenses and no one has been sent to prison. Judge Lassing has presided with credit to himself and the county. Five indictments were reported missing Monday morning, but later turned up, after a good deal of commotion had been raised.

A Pendleton county citizen states that the tobacco crop in that county, and in the vicinity of Morgan, in particular, will be almost an entire failure. Plants, he says, are almost an entire failure and much of the land which was to have been planted in tobacco has been given up to other crops. In Grant two-thirds of the crop has been set and is doing nicely, the cool cloudy weather having been conducive to its growth.

There was a good County Court day crowd in town Monday. Business in all lines was good. Considerable live stock was offered on the streets, but cattle and hogs did not command as high prices as formerly. Several horse buyers were here, and as usual took out a large number of our best horses. The supply of horses and mules is not equal to the demand. One of the best sales of a horse made Monday, was that of R. Conrad, who sold a fine black for $200.

A Good White Wash.

Take half a bushel of unslacked lime. Slake it with boiling water. Cover during the process to keep in steam. Strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer. Then add to it a peck of salt previously dissolved in warm water; three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in while hot; half a pound of clean glue previously dissolved by soaking in cold water, and then by hanging over a slow fire in a small pot hung in a larger one filled with water. Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, stir well and let it stand a few days covered from dirt. It should be applied hot, for which purpose it can be kept in a kettle or portable furnace. A pint of this whitewash mixture if properly applied will cover one square yard. It is almost as serviceable as paint for wood, brick, or stone, and is much cheaper than the cheapest. Coloring matter may be added as desired.—Ex.

Honest Berry Boxes.

Some States have enacted laws in the endeavor to cause berry boxes and fruit packages to be of specified measurements, so that they may hold what they are claimed to hold. If all States would do so and try and enforce them it would be better for the seller as well as the buyer. Quart boxes that hold but a pint and a half, and peck baskets, of which five can be filled from a bushel, not only are soon discredited and sold at lower prices than those guaranteed full measures, but they help to cast a shade of doubt over all others and keep prices lower than they should be.—Exchange.

At Greenville, Ohio, last week, Senator J. W. Bailey, of Texas, bought twenty head of shorthorn cattle, which with a lot of other cattle he shipped to his Texas farm. It is Senator Bailey's intention to cross the shorthorns with his Texas range cattle.

FERRY BOAT SUNK.

The Northfield, Loaded With People, Rammed by the Mauch Chunk, at New York.

New York, June 15.—The wooden sidewheeler, Northfield, which has been in the service of the Staten Island Ferry Co. for the past 38 years, was rammed by the steel-hulled propeller, Mauch Chunk, used as a ferry boat by the Central railroad, of New Jersey. The collision occurred just off the Staten Island ferry slip, at the foot of Whitehall street, and in less than 30 minutes afterwards the Northfield, which had a crowd of passengers, estimated at from 800 to 1,200, sank at the outer end of the Spanish line pier in the East river. The Mauch Chunk, which was badly damaged, landed two dozen passengers who were aboard of her. Over a hundred of the passengers of the sunken Northfield were dragged out of the water by people along shore and the crews of the fleet of river tugs, which promptly responded to the ferry boat's call for help. A few of the Northfield's passengers were hurt in the accident, and the police believe that some lives were lost.

Capt. Daniel Gully, of the tugboat Mutual, who saw the ferry boats crash together, says that immediately after the collision between 25 and 30 of the passengers leaped into the water, and that many of those perished. Capt. Gully also declares that he is sure over 100 of the Northfield's pasengers were drowned. The captains of other tug boats who were early on the scene however are inclined to think that the disaster was not as serious in regard to loss of life. Thus far no dead bodies have been recovered.

While the Northfield was well supplied with life preservers, which were stowed in an out of the way place, not more than two dozen of the endangered passengers were able to get the life belts on.

Capt. Abraham Johnson, of the Northfield, was arrested about midnight on a charge of criminal negligence. He is held without bail and was arraigned Saturday.

ON THE SAME GALLOWS.

Five Colored Men, Convicted of Murder, Hanged at Sylvania, Ga.—No Attempted Rescue.

Sylvania, Ga., June 15.—The hanging of five men upon the same gallows at the same moment marked the end of what is thought to have been an organized gang of murderers here. The men executed were Arnold Augustus, Andrew Davis, Richard Sanders, Wm. Hudson and Sam Baldwin, all Negroes. The victims of their crime were Constable Mears and Fillmore Harrington, whom they ambushed and shot to death, and Capt. Wade, whom they seriously wounded.

The execution was strongly guarded by the local military on a rumor that an effort would be made by Negroes to effect the rescue of the condemned, but there was no disturbance, nor the suggestion of any. The hanging was in private, the stockade being surrounded by a strong cordon of troops.

A BRITISH REVERSE.

A Detachment Surprised in Camp by the Boers.

Two Pompoms Were Captured By the Boers—Severe Fighting Near Reitz, With Considerable Loss on Both Sides.

London, June 17.—Lord Kitchener has cabled from Pretoria under Sunday's date as follows:

"Near Welmansrust, 20 miles south of Middleburg, 250 Victoria mounted rifle from Gen. Beaston's column were surprised in camp at Steenkoolspruit by a superior force of Boers at 7:30 p. m., June 12. The enemy crept to within short range and poured a deadly fire into the camp, killing two officers and 16 men, and wounding four officers and 38 men, of whom 28 were slightly wounded. Only two officers and 30 men escaped to Gen. Beaston's camp. The remainder were taken prisoners and released. Two pompoms were captured by the enemy. Full details have not yet been received."

"During the march from Vrede Gen. Elliott's column engaged De Wet near Reitz, June 6. After severe fighting they captured 71 loaded wagons, 45 prisoners, 38 rifles, 10,000 rounds of ammunition and 4,000 head cattle. The Boers left 17 killed and three wounded.

"Our casualties were three officers and 17 men killed and one officer and 24 men wounded.

London, June 17.—The serious reverse which Lord Kitchener reports is the first accident of the kind that has happened to the Australian contingent, and it is supposed to be due to neglect of proper picketing. Although it is offset by the defeat inflicted on DeWet, the loss of the guns is regarded as a serious matter, which will encourage the Boers to continue the struggle. More or less fanciful accounts are published on the continent of alleged peace negotiations, but there is nothing in them, and nothing has come of interview between Mrs. Botha and Mr. Kruger beyond revealing the fact that Mr. Kruger will listen to no proposals unless they are accompanied with a guarantee of the independence of the republics.

The Daily Mail's Cape Town correspondent says that Cecil Rhodes, speaking at Buluwayo Saturday, predicted that a federation of South African states would come in three or four years; but he contended that to grant self-government to the republics before federation would render federation impossible.

THE BISMARCK STATUE.

The Shaft Unveiled in Berlin Sunday in the Presence of Many Distinguished Persons.

Berlin, June 17.—The Bismarck statue, facing the Column of Victory in front of the reichstag building, was unveiled at midday Sunday in the presence of the emperor and empress, Prince Herbert Bismarck, Count Von Buelow, Prince Hohenlohe, the ministers and members of the legislative houses and the memorial committee.

There was an imposing array of officers, officials, veterans' associations, students, etc., and an enormous gathering of other people. Emperor William inspected the guard of honor, and then took his place under the Baldachin with the empress. A thousand school children sang the chorus, and Dr. Von Levetzow, conservative leader of the reichstag, delivered a brief eulogistic address.

IS CONVALESCING.

The Improvement in the Condition of Mrs. McKinley's Health Still Continues.

Washington, June 17.—The improvement in Mrs. McKinley's health continues, and Dr. Dixey said Sunday night on leaving the white house that he was satisfied with her condition. She sat up in her rolling chair during the day and chatted and laughed with the president and others. As night came on Mrs. McKinley again took to her bed, after passing a fairly comfortable day. During the past three days the weather has been cloudy and rainy, and Sunday was particularly gloomy. This had a somewhat depressing effect on the patient, but with the return of good weather more satisfactory results are expected.

Sunday was a very quiet one at the white house. The president spent most of the day with his sick wife. Captain and Mrs. McWilliams, of Chicago, accompanied by their son, called during the evening, and others left their cards.

Word comes from Canton, O., that the improvements on the president's home there are about completed, and that everything will be in readiness for occupancy by July 1. If Mrs. McKinley's condition permits her removal by that time, she will be taken to her own home where it is believed the chances for permanent improvement will be greater than in Washington. Hope is expressed that she may be able to travel by the first of July if the present rate of progress toward recovery is maintained.

BATTLESHIP WISCONSIN.

On Her Trial Trip the Vessel Made 16.45 Knots An Hour Under Natural Draught.

San Francisco, June 17.—The battleship Wisconsin steamed into this port Sunday morning after a 48-hour trial in the Santa Barbara channel, during which it was demonstrated that the Illinois will have to look sharp if she would retain the honor of being the fastest sailer of her class in the navy.

According to members of the trial board and the experts in naval construction who were aboard the Wisconsin when she was put through her final paces before being accepted by the government, the battleship will show a speed of more than 18 knots an hour if put under forced draught.

The Wisconsin left this port last Friday morning, and during the two days had fair sailing in an easy sea. With full head of steam and natural draft the official record for two hours was 16.45 knots an hour. For the 48 hours the average was 15.3 knots an hour.

Last Saturday while being brought to this port from Puget Sound the officers in charge gave the Wisconsin her head from Point Arena to Point Reyes and had the satisfaction of seeing her put 37.2 knots behind her in two hours, or 18.6 knots an hour.

AN AGED CIRCUIT RIDER.

The Death of Rev. John L. Dyer, One of the Most Famous Preachers in the West.

Denver, Col., June 17.—Rev. John D. Dyer, one of the most famous preachers who has figured in the history of the west, died here Sunday from paralysis of the throat after a lingering illness.

Rev. Mr. Dyer was born in Franklin county, Ohio, in 1812. "Father" Dyer, as he became known, began preaching in Wisconsin in 1849, and was the oldest, if not the last, of the old Methodist "circuit riders." Coming to Colorado in 1861, he met with many thrilling adventures in his travels in this state and New Mexico, and through his zeal in preaching the Gospel to the widely separated and almost inaccessible mining camps in all kinds of weather he earned the sobriquet of the "Snowshoe Itinerant." He is the author of a book bearing that title.

IN THE BATOUM DISTRICT.

American Pumping Machinery Coming into Favor Because of Cheapness and Lightness.

London, June 17.—A British consular report on trade in the Batoum district of Asiatic Russia says that British manufacturers supply the bulk of the machinery for the oil industry, but that American pumping machinery is coming into favor because of its cheapness and lightness. The latter attribute is important as it offsets a great saving in customs duties.

The report further says that air compressors of American manufacture are also coming into use in this section of Russia.

HE WILL CAPITULATE.

Gen. Cailles Ready to Surrender to the Americans.

His Action Is Regarded With Much Satisfaction By the Authorities at Washington—The Insurgents Disintegrating.

Manila, June 17.—Cols. Infant and Juviri, representatives of Cailles, Sunday signed the name of their principal to an agreement to surrender. Under the terms of this agreement Gen. Cailles is to assemble his men at Santa Cruz, Laguna province, as quickly as possible and there surrender himself and his command to the American authorities. The exact number of his force is uncertain, but there will probably be more than 500.

Washington, June 17.—Officials of the war department are very well pleased with the prospective surrender of Gen. Cailles, the Filipino insurgent leader. Advices received at the department indicated that this would soon occur. Cailles is a man of considerable influence, and with his backing of some hundreds of men, has been a menace to the efforts of the military authorities to stamp out the rebellion in Luzon. His capitulation, therefore, is regarded with much satisfaction by the authorities here, who say they see in it another evidence of the general disintegration of the insurgent forces.

Vindictive and Cruel.

For more than a year past Gen. Cailles has commanded the insurgent forces operating on the east side of Bay Lake, north of Manila. He is said to be a French half caste, and during the last revolution he has acquired a reputation for vindictiveness and cruelty.

The society of Mando-Ducats, whose practice it was to assassinate and bury alive those of their countrymen who accepted American sovereignty whenever the latter fell into their hands, operated with the cognizance, if not the support of Gen. Cailles. At one time Cailles offered a reward of $10 for the heads of all Americans brought to him, and more recently he offered a reward of $10,000 for the head of Capt. Edward N. Jones, jr., of the 4th infantry.

Since the capture of Aguinaldo, Cailles, who was one of the first insurgent leaders who did not surrender under the terms of amnesty, has been persistently pursued by the American troops. He was declared to have been injured in one engagement last month, and negotiations for his surrender have been going on with Gen. Sumner for some weeks past. He was declared to be an outlaw by the American authorities, and this fact, which meant that he could not expect to enjoy immunity for his past deeds and violations of honorable warfare, he would have to stand trial on the many charges against him, doubtless compelled him to prolong his resistance. The members of the federal party advised him to surrender but this he persistently refused to do until he saw that his capture was inevitable.

Cailles was a man with considerable influence with the Filipino people and an aggressive fighter. He kept his followers well in hand; his system of mobilization was excellent. In the mountains of Laguna province, where Cailles practically confined his operations, he had many advantages over the American troops frequently sent to dislodge him, and rendered their efforts futile. He is credited with the Sinalan affair of last year in which a few American troops were badly cut up, losing more than 50 per cent of the number engaged.

Cailles at one time declared himself to be Aguinaldo's successor. He and Gen. Malvar were the only two troublesome insurgent leaders remaining in Luzon.

VESSEL CAPSIZED.

Transport, Undergoing Repairs in a Dock, Slipped From the Blocks and Toppled Over.

New York, June 15.—While the United States transfer Ingalls was in the balance dry dock at the Erie basin, South Brooklyn, where she was about to undergo extensive repairs, she suddenly slipped from the blocks and capsized. One man is known to have been killed and many injured. There were about 240 carpenters, machinists and other laborers at work on the vessel and dock at the time.

It is supposed that the vessel was thrown from an even keel by ballast improperly placed, or by the shifting of the blocks on which she rested, causing her to list to starboard, driving the shoring beams through the rotten walls of the old floating dry dock in which she was cradled. Besides the mechanics and other workmen, which crowded the dock, preparing her for a voyage to Manila, there were supposed to have been about 30 Italian laborers in the hold of the ship, employed in shifting the pig iron ballast. While the workmen were trying to escape, the dock itself, overbalanced by the weight of the ship, turned on its side and sank in 50 feet of water. A number of men were borne down into the water, and jammed under and beneath the wreckage, which rose to the surface. How many were caught could not be learned Friday night. Martin Anderson, a painter, was caught under the descending side of the ship and killed outright. Others were dragged out of the water badly injured or half drowned and hurried to the hospitals. Added to the horrors of the night was the uncertainty of the fate of the men in the vessel's hold. Some managed to get to the dock and leaped into the water as the vessel was sinking, but it is feared that the majority were less fortunate.

MINISTER CONGER.

Called on the President and Secretary Hay Preparatory to His Return to China.

Washington, June 15.—Hon. Edwin H. Conger, United States minister to China, is in Washington for the purpose of calling on the president and Secretary Hay preparatory to his return to Peking. He saw both these officials Saturday. THE FOREIGN MINISTERS.

Mr. Rockhill Makes Fresh Propositions Looking to the Payment of Chinese Indemnity.

Paris, June 15.—Dispatches received here from Peking say the foreign ministers are considering fresh propositions from Mr. Rockhill affecting the Chinese concessions looking to the payment of the the indemnity. The propositions concern minor matters, and may or may not be accepted, but until they are disposed of the ministers will not pronounce a decision as to the matter in which China is to pay the powers, though it is virtually settled that the British proposal will be accepted. All hope of the acceptance of the United States suggestion to submit the matter to arbitration at The Hague seems to have disappeared.

BURNT TO THE GROUND

Mineral Springs Hotel at West Baden, Ind., in Ashes.

There Were Several Narrow Escapes From Death—Entire Loss on Building and Personal Effects Will Be $300,000.

West Baden, Ind., June 15.—Of the 268 persons who were in the Mineral Springs hotel fire here it is now believed that every one escaped with his life.

During the excitement of the fire a report was sent out that many lives were lost, which, fortunately, proved to be incorrect.

The loss on the hotel building is estimated at $250,000, with insurance aggregating $110,000. In addition to this the loss in diamonds, jewelry and clothing belonging to the guests will, it is estimated, reach, $50,000.

The conflagration had its origin in the kitchen, which is located on the ground floor of the hotel immediately under two rows of sleeping rooms, all of which were occupied. The fire was discovered by the night watchman, who attempted to extinguish the blaze with hand grandes, but seeing that his attempts were in vain, he rushed to the office notifying the night clerk, and together they ran rapidly through the halls kicking open doors and yelling "Fire."

To add to the great excitement it was but a few moments after the discovery of the fire that the electric circuit was burned out and the panic stricken guests groped around in their rooms for wearing apparel and other personal property.

T. C. Hawkins, a business man of Marion, Ind., was one of the first to leave the building. He was awakened by the cry of fire and had time to dress himself. His business partner escaped, half dressed, through a window. Amy Leslie, the theatrical critic of the Chicago News, who has been at the hotel with her niece for the past two weeks, escaped with nothing but her night robes.

Miss Sinclair, daughter of one of the proprietors of the hotel, had a very narrow escape, losing all her wearing apparel, diamonds and other personal property. Mrs. Harris, of Milwaukee, lost everything. Miss Blanche Hall, daughter of a Chicago theatrical manager, lost a valuable wardrobe and jewelry. Mr. and Mrs. Davis, who were married in Cincinnati two weeks ago, were spending their honeymoon at the hotel. They escaped with a very meager wardrobe.

The building was provided with fire escapes, and on the front of the building, extending from the ground to the roof, was an escape built in a spiral fashion. It was through this that many of the guests got out. During the rush for safety four ladies became wedged in this spiral escape, but were rescued.

Col. Wing, of Cincinnati, who is a member of Gov. Nash's staff, and also police commissioner of Cincinnati, occupied a room directly over the kitchen. He had a very narrow escape, saving nothing but his night shirt on his back. Col. Howard, general agent of a life insurance company of New York, barely escaped in his night clothing. M. M. Weller, of the firm of Weller & Bro., who are in business at Hartford City, Ind., was one of those escaped with the greater part of his wardrobe, but in the excitement he lost a valuable diamond stud.

Superintendent Clark, of the Elwood plate glass works, and wife were among the guests. After gathering a few personal effects together, Mr. Clark in the excitement grabbed a woman supposing her to be his wife and carried her screaming from the building. On reaching the lawn in front of the hotel he discovered his mistake and ran back into the burning building and in a few minutes appeared with his wife.

It is estimated that diamonds to the value of $50,000 and from $5,000 to $6,000 in cash were lost in the flames. The massive fireproof safe in the office contained $10,000 in cash which the guests had deposited for safekeeping. The safe is in the cellar completely covered with the burning debris, and it will not be known for several days whether the valuables contained therein are safe.

A BIG COAL TRUST.

Movement on Foot to Consolidate All the Mining Companies in Indiana and Illinois.

Chicago, June 14.—Chicago capitalists are behind a movement for the consolidation of all the coal mining companies of Indiana. Options on a score of Indiana mines owned by Chicago firms were secured Thursday by John S. Bays, of Sullivan, Ind., and the combine which is to have a capital of $15,000,000, will be formally launched in a few days.

The consolidation of the Indiana mines is but the forerunner of a greater coal trust that is to embrace practically all of the coal producing states. As soon as the Indiana combination is effected an organization of the Illinois mines will be formed. Combinations among the mine owners of Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Ohio, which have existed for some time, will be consolidated with the Illinois and Indiana combinations, with a capitalization of $300,000,000.

John S. Bays, who has charge of the preliminary work, announced Thursday night that over 75 per cent. of all the mines in Indiana were held in option by the proposed trust. Thursday he called on many of the Chicago companies, and by Friday he claims he will have options on the mines owned by the following companies: L. A. Dickason Coal Co., New Pittsburgh Coal and Coke Co., Keller Coal Co., Washington Fuel Co., Rainbow Coal and Mining Co., Harder & Hofer Coal Mining Co., Torrey Coal and Mining Co., and the Hymera Coal and Mining Co.

"There are about 130 large coal mines in Indiana," said Mr. Bays, "that will be a party to the agreement. I have at present options on one hundred or so, and securing options on the others is but a question of doing the work."

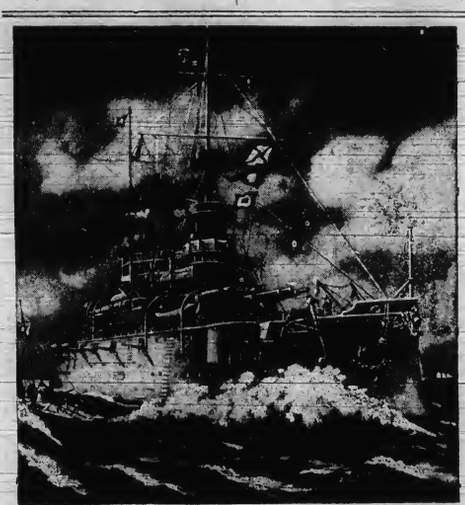
A SPEEDY BATTLESHIP



The Illinois Proves to Be the Fastest of Her Class.

She Proved Her Ability to Turn Upon An Enemy With Extraordinary Quickness By Describing a Circle in Short Space.

Boston, June 13.—With the distinction of being the fastest battleship in America and the speediest of her class in the world, the Illinois lies at anchor in President's Roads Wednesday night. Over the government course from Cape Ann to Cape Porpoise and return, a distance of 66 nautical miles, she raced Wednesday, watched by United States naval representatives, and established a new record by maintaining an average speed of 17.31 knots for four consecutive hours. Not only did she demonstrate that she was faster than any warship of her size afloat, but she proved her ability to turn upon an enemy with extraordinary quickness by describing a complete circle within 300 yards, or little more than twice her length, in three minutes and ten seconds, while ploughing through the sea at full speed.

Steadiness and reserve power characterized the performance of the ship throughout the severe test. The work of her engines was smooth and even, and the records of the day showed but one-tenth of a knot difference in speed between the northern run and the return. The machinery easily met every requirement and not an accident of any kind marred the success of the day.

Rr. Adm. Sampson, who was aboard unofficially; Rr. Adm. Evans, who acted as president of the trial board, and the other naval officers who participated in the trial, were thoroughly pleased with the new champion, and as she steamed back to her anchorage with a broom at her masthead, the officials of the Newport News Shipbuilding Co., whose three years of labor had reached such a happy climax, were enthusiastically congratulated.

The United States Battleship "Illinois."

The day could not have been more perfect for the trial. The ship crossed the starting line at 10:12 a. m., with her engines registering 117 revolutions a minute. Buoy No. 6, indicating the end of the 33-knot run northward, was passed at 12:06:07, showing the elapsed time for the run to be one hour, 45 minutes and 4 seconds, giving an average speed for the 33 knots of 17.35 nautical miles per hour. For a part of the northward run the Illinois made a speed of 17.84 knots an hour, and at no time did she drop below 16.97. On the return the elapsed time between buoys was about the same as during the first half of the trial. Again she reached a maximum speed of 17.84, with a maximum of 16.97. The finish line was passed, and the speed trial was over at 1:18:33, the elapsed time being 1:34:42, and the average speed for the second half of the trial 17:26. The completed figures for the entire 66 knots was 5:48:46 elapsed time, and the average speed 17:31 knots per hour.

Washington, June 13.—News of the splendid performance of the battleship Illinois on her trial trip Wednesday came to Secretary Long Wednesday night in a dispatch from Capt. Robley Evans, the chairman of the trial board. Secretary Long said: "We think she will prove herself one of the best ships in the American navy. KENTUCKY COAL MINES.

Eastern Capitalists Are Endeavoring to Secure Control of Them—A $10,000,000 Combination.

Louisville, Ky., June 15.—Eastern capitalists are trying to secure control of every important coal mine in Kentucky in order to form a $10,000,000 combination.

On next Tuesday a meeting will be held in Chicago, when the preliminary organization will be formed.

It will be the idea of the combination to increase the output of coal in Kentucky and bring it in more direct competition with coal mines in other states. It has already secured options on several thousand acres of land in Eastern Kentucky, which contain virgin coal beds. This land will be developed. Some of the larger mines now in operation will be operated to their fullest capacity, and many of the smaller ones will be closed. The men financiering the scheme are understood to have secured options on a number of large mines in the eastern part of the state, and are after others. When the company is organized it will be capitalized at $2,000,000, and the mines in Eastern Kentucky will be purchased. Later the capital stock will be increased to $10,000,000, and other mines purchased. There seems to be no doubt that the company will be organized, and will be able to secure as many mines as it needs.

They urge that the little colloquy between Attorney Brown and Circuit Judge Cantrill, in the presence of the jury, was a prejudical move to their client. They make many objections to questions asked witnesses for the prosecution and to the ruling out of answers of witnesses for the defense. They close their petition with an appeal for justice.

On account of the continuous wet weather the farmers have had but little opportunity to cultivate their crops, and some of the corn fields are getting a little grassy.

The corn crop is doing very well at this time, and the cut-worms have about quit, and with a favorable season in the future, we will have a most flattering prospect for a potato crop.

E. H. Surface and L. P. Aylor are not the laziest men we know, but they have each purchased a riding cultivator, and are doing good work with them and doing it easy. Pete says, walking and plowing corn is a thing of the past with him.

The graceful 9 year old fairy, who handed this in just as the mail was being closed, requested that it be written to suit the correspondeut. Thank you, kindly my dear child, it cannot be improved and must go as you have written it: "The most notable event of the season was an outing given to the little folks of Walton by Mrs. W. A. Murphy in honor of her daughter's Miss Maud Grace Murphy's ninth birthday, on Tuesday last, in the beautiful grove of Mr. Lambert Hopkins, three miles from town, where they were treated to all the delicacies of the season. She was the recipient of many beautiful presents."

The three teachers of our graded school, who are receiving the finishing touches at the Lebanon, Ohio, Normal Institute, have been heard from. An attack of homesickness developed in the case of one of them with evident symptoms of a more virulent form in the case of another one. They will be all right as soon as school work settles them down. The stoppage of work on the new school house will not cut any great amount of ice, as the graded school will go right on without interruption in the studies.

The T. A. Snyder Preserve Co., have instructed their agent here to furnish all their contractors, who are shy on tomato plants, with all they may need at a cost of 12½cts per 100. This is what the company pays for them at Columbus, O. The company pays the expense of delivering them at this point and will take their pay for them from the first delivery of tomatoes. A great many growers are very short on plants.

County Clerk Adams claims to have the best garden in Burlington or within ten miles thereof. We understood him to say that he has peas, cabbage, beets, radishes, onions, potatoes, lettuce, cucumbers, beans and fried chicken galore. It has been understood all spring that Bro. Sproles was at the head of the Burlington class in affairs pertaining to the garden.

Robert Popham, who lives with Geo. W. Popham, across Gunpowder creek, has small-pox. Dr. Clore, of Builttsville, has made him one or two visits. There is no cause for any undue excitement, but as a good old Baptist brother said once, when being joked about leaving his mowing machine during a thunder storm, he believing that what is to be is bound to come to pass; "The doctrine is all right, but it is just as well to be a little careful."

One of our printers recently tried his hand at farming near Gaynorsville, but he could not make things work right and will be back Monday at the "case." He had a "wrong font"—a mule and a horse—and they wouldn't "justify." He said the farmer "fired" him after he had "pied" four "columns" of potatoes. He exposed his limited experience by asking the farmer's wife if she wanted the hens set solid or leaded."—Greensbur (Ind.) News.

Mr. George Gordon, of the Constance precinct, had a narrow escape from being killed by a street car, last Wednesday. While passing from a neighbor's house to her own home she was hit by a glancing shot from a gun in the hands of Frank Taylor, who was giving an exhibition of his marksmanship on an adjoining lot. The missile struck about a quarter of an inch in front of her right ear, but fortunately had about spent its force and failed to lodge in the flesh.—St. Paul, (Neb.) Republican.

Little Miss Ferris, of Cincinnati, also pleased the audience so that she was recalled and Miss Terrill, Miss Duncan, Miss Riddell and Miss Held were most highly complimented on their excellent performances. EFFIE BENTHAM SOUTHER.

About six weeks ago Col. G. C. Graddy received a letter from Mr. H. H. Vall, editor of the American Book Co., whose headquarters are in New York City, requesting him to buy him a saddle horse. The Colonel purchased a beautiful black mare of Mr. Isaac Bates, of Clifton, and shipped her by express. When he went to the Citizens National Bank to draw on Mr. Vall he found that the money had already been placed to his credit in that bank. This was quite a compliment as Mr. Vall had never seen the horse. Sunday the Col. received the following letter:

Mr. G. C. Graddy, Burlington, Ky.

Dear Sir:—I have now become quite well acquainted with the mare you sent me, and I thank you for selecting a horse that seems to fully meet my views. We have got acquainted with one another and now she will do what I desire her to do. She is speedy enough for all purposes and seems strong and vigerous. I am perfectly contented with my bargain. Very respectfully,

A Novice in the West.

Between St. Paul and Minneapolis, the Great Northern Railway has four tracks, passing through a well settled suburban district, in full view of the imposing structure of the State Fair grounds, of giant grain elevators and of State University buildings. At Minneapolis the Mississippi river is crossed on a stone arch bridge, from which can be seen the historic Falls of St. Anthony, and the largest flouring mills in the world. From the Four City the Great Northern has two lines running to the West, the coast route, following the West banks of the Mississippi to St. Cloud, thence through the famous Lake Park region of Minnesota to Fuegus Falls, crossing the Red river at Fargo, N. D. The Winnipeg route is via Lake Minnetonka, the popular summer resort, throwing off branch lines into South Dakota and reaching the Red river at Breckinridge and Wahpeton. From Fargo the Manitoba and Coast route is north to Grand Forks, thence to Devils Lake, the largest body of water on the plains east of the Rockies. Westward, through North Dakota, famous for wild geese and blizzards, a glimpse is gotten of the Turtle Mountain country, and as settlements become less frequent, bands of horses, cattle and sheep are seen cropping the buffalo grass. At Ft. Buford, the mouth of the Yellowstone is seen, adding its turbid load to the waters of the "Big Muddy." For many miles the way is along the valley of the Missouri, thence 180 miles along the Milk river, small stations for the shipment of stock being scattered along the track. The first real mountains seen, are the Little Rockies, south of Harlem. At Ohinook, the Bear Paw Mountains rise to view across the meadows. At Havre the Montana Central diverges to Helena, the State Capitol, Butte, the great mining center, and Anaconda, noted for its smelting interests. For many miles west of Havre on the Coast line, the Essex Grass Hills and the International boundary line are in sight. At Galanes, Mont., 1038 miles from St. Paul, the first view of the Rockies is had, with their towering rocks and beds of snow. Here, now and then, is seen a rancher's cabin and a herd of sheep or cattle. The trip over the Rockies and down into Flathead Valley is an ever changing scene. From Kallispell the chief town of Flathead country, it is 140 miles to the Idaho line, passing enroute over the Cabinet Mountains and along the Kootenia river. At Jennings, steamer connection is made for Ft. Steel, B. C., where miners of precious metals can be seen at work from the car windows. The Washington State line is reached at Newport, after having crossed the Pend d'Oreille river. Forty miles more and the beautiful city of Spokane is reached, here one breatbes the pure, salt-laden air of the Pacific, crisped by its flight over the icy Cascades and wild flowers may be gathered in the shadows of perpetual snow-capped mountains. GLIMPSES OF GOD.

Discourse of Dr. Talmage on the Divine Saviour.

He Raises High Expectations of Day When That Now But Dimly Seen Will Be Fully Revealed.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

In this discourse Dr. Talmage raises high expectations of the day when that which is now only dimly seen will be fully revealed; text, Job 26, 14: "Lo, these are parts of His ways. But how little a portion is heard of Him? But the thunder of His power who can understand?"

The least understood being in the universe is God. Blasphemous would be any attempt by painting or sculpture to represent Him. Egyptian hieroglyphs tried to suggest Him by putting the figure of an eye upon a sword, implying that God sees and rules, but how imperfect the suggestion! When we speak of Him, it is almost always in language figurative. He is "Light" or "Dayspring from on High," or He is a "High Tower" or the "Fountain of Living Waters." His splendor is so great that no man can see Him and live. When the group of great theologians assembled in Westminster abbey for the purpose of making a system of religious belief, they first of all wanted an answer to the question: "Who is God?" No one desired to undertake the answering of that overmastering question. They finally concluded to give the task to the youngest man in the assembly, who happened to be Rev. George Gillespie. He consented to undertake it on the condition that they would first unite with him in prayer for Divine direction. He began his prayer by saying: "O God, Thou art a spirit, infinite, eternal and unchangeable in Thy being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness and truth." That first sentence of Gillespie's prayer was unanimously adopted by the assembly as the best definition of God. But, after all, it was only a partial success, and after everything that language can do when put to the utmost strain and all we can see of God in the natural world and realize of God in the providential world we are forced to cry out with Job in my text: "Lo, these are parts of His ways. But how little a portion is heard of Him? But the thunder of His power who can understand?"

Archbishop Tillotson and Dr. Dick and Timothy Dwight and Jonathan Edwards of the past and the mightiest theologians of this young century have discoursed upon the power of God, the attribute of omnipotence. And we have all seen demonstrations of God's almightiness. It might have been far out at sea when in an equinoctial gale God showed what He could do with the waters. It might have been in an August thunderstorm in the mountains when God showed what He could do with the lightnings. It might have been in South America when God showed what He could do with the earthquakes. It might have been among the Alps when God showed what He could do with the avalanches. Our cheek was blanched, our breath stopped, our pulses fluttered, our whole being was terrorized, but we had seen only an instance of Divine strength. What was the power of that storm compared with the power which holds all the oceans? What was the power that shook the hills compared with the power that swings the earth through all the centuries and for 6,000 years and in a formative and incomplete shape for hundreds of thousands of years? What is that power that sustains our world compared with the power which rolls through immensity the entire solar system and all the constellations and galaxies and the universe? The mightiest intellect of man would give way if for a moment there came upon it the full appreciation of what omnipotence is.

We try to satisfy ourselves with saying: "It is natural law that controls things, gravitation is at work, centripetal and centrifugal forces respond to each other." But what is natural law? It is only God's way of doing things. At every point in the universe it is God's direct and continuous power that controls and harmonizes and sustains. That power withdrawn one instant would make the planetary system and all the worlds which astronomy reveals one universal wreck, bereft hemispheres, dismantled sunsets, dead constellations, debris of worlds. What power it must be that keeps the internal fires of our world imprisoned—only here and there spouting from a Cotopaxi, or a Stromboli, or from a Vesuvius, putting Pompeii and Herculaneum into sepulcher, but for the most part the internal fires chained in their cages of rock, and century after century unable to break the chain or burst open the door. What power to keep the component parts of the air in right proportion, so that all around the world the nations may breathe in health, the frosts and the heats hindered from working universal demolition! Power, as Isaiah says, "to take up the isles as a very little thing." Ceylon and Borneo and Hawaii as though they were pebbles; power to weigh the "mountains in scales" and the "hills in balances"—Teneriffe and the Cordilleras. To move a rock we must have lever and screw and great machinery, but God moves the world with nothing but a word; power to create worlds and power to destroy them, as from the observatories again and again they have been seen red with flame, then pale with ashes and then scattered.

We get some little idea of the divine power when we see how it buries the proudest cities and nations. Ancient Memphis it has ground up until many of its ruins are no larger than your thumb nail and you can hardly find a souvenir large enough to remind you of your visit. The city of Tyre is under the sea which washes the shore, on which are only a few crumbling pillars left. Sodom and Gomorrah are covered by waters so deathful that not a fish can live in them. Babylon and Nineveh are so blotted out of existence that not one uninjured shaft of their ancient splendor remains. Nothing but Omnipotence could have put them down and put them under. The antediluvian world was able to send to the postdiluvian world only one ship with a very small passenger list. Omnipotence first rolled the seas over the land, and then told them to go back to their usual channels as rivers and lakes and oceans. At Omnipotent command the waters pounced upon their prey, and at Omnipotent command slinking back into their appropriate places. By such rehearsal we try to arouse our appreciation of what Omnipotence is, and our reverence is excited, and our adoration is intensified, but after all we find ourselves at the foot of a mountain we cannot climb, hovering over a depth we cannot fathom, at the rim of a circumference we cannot compass, and we feel like first going down on our knees and then like falling flat upon our faces as we exclaim: "Lo, these are parts of His ways. But how little a portion is heard of Him? But the thunder of His power who can understand?"

So all those who have put together systems of theology have discoursed also about the wisdom of God. Think of a wisdom which can know the end from the beginning, that knows the thirtieth century as well as the first century. We can guess what will happen, but it is only a guess. Think of a mind that can hold all the past and all the present and all the future. We can contrive and invent on a small scale, but think of a wisdom that could contrive a universe! Think of a wisdom that can learn nothing new, a wisdom that nothing can surprise, all the facts, scenes and occurrences of all time to come as plainly before it as though they had already transpired! He could have built all the material universe into one world and swung it a glorious mass through immensity, but behold His wisdom in dividing up the grandeurs into innumerable worlds, rolling splendors on all sides, diversity, amplitude, majesty, infinity! Worlds! Worlds! Moving in complete order, shining with complete radiance. Mightiest telescope on one hand and most powerful microscope on the other, discovering in the plan of God not one imperfection. What but Divine wisdom could have planned a human race and, before it started, built for it a world like this, pouring waters to slake human thirst and giving soils capacity to produce such food and lifting such a canopy of clouds embroidered with such sunlight and surrounding the world with such wonders that all the scientists of the ages have only begun to unroll them? Wisdom in magnitude and in atom, in archangel and in mollusk. Think of a wisdom that was able to form without any suggestion or any model to work by the eye, the ear, the hand, the foot, the vocal organs! No wonder that Galen, the most celebrated of medical authors among the ancients, fell on his knees at the overwhelming wisdom of God in the constitution of the human frame. Our libraries are filled with the wisdom of the great thinkers of all time. Have you considered the far superior wisdom which fashioned the brain for all those thoughts of the Infinite Mind that built those intellects? But it is only the millionth part of that wisdom that has come to mortal appreciation. Close next to every discovery is a wonder that has not been discovered. We see only one specimen among 10,000 specimens.

A tradition says that Abraham of the Old Testament was when an infant hidden in a cave because of the persecutions of Nimrod. The first time the child came out of the cavern it was night, and he looked up at the star and cried: "This is my God," but the star disappeared, and Abraham said: "No, that cannot be my God." After awhile the moon rose, and Abraham said: "This is my God," but it set, and Abraham was again disappointed. After awhile the sun rose, and he said: "Why, truly, here is my God," but the sun went down, and Abraham was saddened. Not until the God of the Bible appeared to Abraham was he satisfied, and his faith was so great that he was called "the Father of the Faithful." All that the theologians know of God's wisdom is insignificant compared with the wisdom beyond human comprehension. The human race never has had and never will have enough brain or heart to measure the wisdom of God. I can think of only two authors who have expressed the exact facts. The one was Paul, who says: "Oh, the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God, how unsearchable are His judgments and His ways past finding out." The other author was the scientist who composed my text. I think He wrote it during a thunderstorm, for the chapter says much about the clouds and describes the tremor of the earth under the reverberations. Witty writers sometimes depreciate the thunder and say it is the lightning that strikes, but I am sure God thinks well of the thunder or He would not make so much of it, and all up and down the Bible He uses the thunder to give emphasis. It was the thunder that shook Sinai when the law was given. It was with thunder that the Lord discomfited the Philistines at Ebenezer. Job pictures the warhorse as having a neck clothed with thunder. St. John, in an apocalyptic vision, again and again heard the thunder. The thunder, which is now quite well explained by the electricians, was the overpowering mystery of the ancients, and standing among those mysteries Job exclaimed: "Lo, these are parts of His ways. But how little a portion is heard of Him?

So, also, all systems of theology try to tell us what is omnipresence—that is, God's capacity to be everywhere at the same time. "Where is God?" said a heathen philosopher to a Christian man. The Christian answered: "Let me first ask you where He is not?" The child had it right when asked how many Gods are there and he answered: "One." "How do you know that?" he was asked again. He answered: "There is only room for one, for He fills earth and Heaven." An author says that if a man were set in the highest heavens he would not be any nearer the essence of God than if he were in the center of the earth. I believe it. If this Divine essence does not reach all places, what use in our prayer, for prayers are being offered to God on the other side of the earth as well as here, and God must be there and here to take supplications which are offered thousands of miles apart. Ubiquity! No one has it but God. And what an alarm to wickedness, an everywhere present Lord, and what a reenforcement when we need help! God on the throne and God with the kneeling child saying its evening prayer at his mother's lap. God above you, God beneath you, God on the right of you, God on the left of you, God within you. No pantheism, for that teaches that all things are God, but Jehovah possesses all things, as our souls possess our bodies. God at the diameter and circumference of everything, as close to you as the food you put to your lips, as the coat you put upon your back, as the sunlight that shines in your face. Appreciation of that, if through Jesus Christ, the atoning Saviour, we are right with God, ought to give us a serenity, a tranquillity, that nothing could upset. Would it make us gloomy? No, for God is the God of joy and will augment our happiness. God in full possession of us is a thought out of which you ought to make anthems and entwine garlands and kindle illuminations.

So every system of theology has attempted to describe and define the Divine attribute of love. Easy enough is it to define fatherly love, motherly love, conjugal love, fraternal love, sisterly love and love of country, but the love of God defies all vocabulary. For many hundreds of years poets have tried to sing it and painters have tried to sketch it, and ministers of the Gospel to preach it and martyrs in the fire and Christians on their deathbeds have extolled it, and we can tell what it is like, but no one has yet fully told what it is.

Only glimpses of God have we in this world, but what an hour it will be when we first see Him, and we will have no more fright than I feel when I now see you. It will not be with mortal eye that we will behold Him, but with the vision of a cleansed, forgiven and perfected spirit. Of all the quintillion ages of eternity to us the most thrilling hour will be the first hour when we meet Him as He is. This may account for something you have all seen and may not have understood. Have you not noticed that after death the old Christian looks young again or the features resume the look of 20 or 30 years before? The weariness is gone out of the face; there is something strikingly restful and placid; there is a pleased look where before there was a disturbed look. What has wrought the change? I think the dying Christian saw God. At the moment the soul left the body what the soul saw left its impression on the countenance. I think that is what gave that old Christian face after death the radiant and triumphant look. The bestormed spirit has reached the harbor; the hard battle of life is ended in victory. The body took that look the moment Heaven began, and the curtain was completely lifted and the glories of Jehovah's presence rushed upon the soul. The departing spirit left on the old man's face a glad good-by, and that first look gave the pleased curve to the dying lips and smoothed out the wrinkles and touched all the lineaments with an indescribable radiance.

Last summer we journeyed thousands of miles to see the midnight sun from North Cape, Norway. We stood on deck in the arctic seas, our watches in our hands, and it was 11 o'clock at night, but light as an ordinary noonday. Then it was half past 11 o'clock at night, then it was 15 minutes of 12, but a long, wide, thick cloud hung over the sun. Are we to be disappointed as thousands have been and the journey here a failure? Ten minutes of 12, and the sun is still hidden. But about five minutes of 12 the cloud lifted, and the midnight sun, the most wondrous spectacle of all the earth, appeared, pouring forth a refulgence that turned the arctic sea into 20 miles of pearls and rubies and diamonds and emeralds and overpowering us with a glory that left us with body all a-tremble, and a mind full of all ecstasy, and a soul full of all worship. Thank God we saw it—the midnight sun. So with that departing Christian soul; the voyage of life has been long and rough and tempestuous; chilling sorrows have again and again snowed down upon him, and it is an arctic sea. Many clouds have filled the sky. It is approaching 12 o'clock, and the close of life's day. Friends stand around and count the parting moments. The clock strikes 12, and God breaks through the clouds and shines upon the features of the departing saint until they are transfigured with the glories of the Sun of Righteousness. That is what has so changed the features of the old man in the shining of the Midnight Sun.

DECISION OF SUPREME COURT.

To a layman the decision of the supreme court in the Porto Rican cases is rather wobbly and presents some rather curious anomalies. The constitution does follow the flag, and then again it does not stay with it. The island is territory of the United States, and yet the people there have no free trade with the country to which they belong. Then again they decide that vessels trading with the island are in the coastwise trade of the United States, and yet when they ship any goods by these coastwise vessels they cannot land them in any of our ports without paying a tariff duty on the same. Yet the goods they shipped here prior to the passage of the Foraker act should not have paid duty, and it must be refunded to those who paid it.

There is only one clear matter about the decisions—that congress has the sole right to legislate as it pleases for these territories. Otherwise, if President McKinley had himself written the decisions they could not have been a more complete straddle, from the view of an ordinary layman. No doubt the lawyers will understand the exact status in time.

That the court itself was not very clear about some of the points at issue can be seen by the remarks of one of the justices, who taunts his brother judges with reversing themselves on one of the nine cases. Justice Harlan, one of the four minority judges, said: "I reject altogether the theory that congress, in its discretion, can exclude the constitution from a territory which we have held to be a 'domestic territory of the United States,' acquired, and which could only have been acquired, in virtue of the constitution. I cannot agree that it is a domestic territory of the United States for the purpose of preventing the application of the Dingley tariff act imposing duties upon imports from foreign countries, but not a domestic territory and part of the United States for the purpose of enforcing the constitutional requirement that 'all duties, imposts and excises' imposed by congress 'shall be uniform throughout the United States.' I do not understand how Porto Rico can be a domestic territory of the United States, as we have distinctly held in De Lima vs. Bidwell, and yet that it is not, as is now held, embraced by the words 'throughout the United States.' The 'expanding future of our country,' justifying the belief that the United States is to become what is called a 'world power'—of which so much was heard at the argument—does not justify any such juggling with the words of the constitution as would authorize the courts to hold that the words 'throughout the United States,' in the taxing clause of the constitution, do not embrace a 'territory of the United States.' This is a distinction which I am unable to make, and which I do not think ought to be made when we are endeavoring to ascertain the meaning of a great instrument of government."

PORTO RICO'S PLIGHT.

Dejection of the Islanders Under the Oppression of Imperialism.

The news from Porto Rico says that the merchants there are dejected since they heard that they have no rights under the constitution and can be taxed to suit the pleasure of an American republican congress. One of them says when the Hollander bill comes into full force July 1 we will be under practically double taxation. The cheerful news, however, is given in the same Associated Press dispatch that "Gov. Allen is giving his earnest consideration to the practicability of securing at an early date free trade relations between Porto Rico and Germany." Is that to be the end of our colonial system, free trade with all the world but the United States? But perhaps this is necessary to protect the sugar and tobacco trusts. No wonder the islanders are dejected, but they must cheer up. When the democrats control congress they will deal with them more righteously, and the day is not far distant, or all political signs fail.

—Of course the tariff muddle in the new islands acquired by the United States would be a much more serious affair than it is if it were not for the certainty that within a few years at best the whole scheme of protection will fall to pieces of its own weight.—Kansas City Star.

PRESIDENT'S SOVEREIGNTY.

Probable Course of McKinley Regarding the Philippines Since the Supreme Court Decision.

The supreme court decision on the Porto Rico cases made considerable flutter on the president's train, according to the correspondent of the Washington Post, who accompanied the party on the trip. He forecasts the action of the administration to meet the new conditions in the Philippines brought about by the decision as follows:

"The president will probably issue an order applying solely to the Philippines, imposing upon goods exported from those islands to the United States a rate of duty equal to the tariff imposed by the Dingley law upon the same articles entering the United States. This, it is believed, will close the door by a method certain to be sustained by the supreme court if a test case should be brought before that tribunal for decision."

Some consideration was given to the question whether the president had the power under the Spooner act to impose a duty in this country upon articles imported from the Philippines. The general opinion was that grave doubt existed as to whether he possessed the power, and it seemed to be accepted that the export duty plan offered the most feasible solution. The importance of speedy action was emphasized, in view of the fact that if the matter is left unsettled until congress meets next December there will be very large importations from the Philippines without the payment of duty. In addition to this, it was realized that the exporters of Chinese tea, which pays ten cents a pound duty, and Chinese silks, which are also subjected to a high tariff, would send their goods to the Philippines, paying the slight duty exacted there, and then have them forwarded to the United States, where they would be entered without additional cost. Japanese and oriental goods of all descriptions could also enter the United States by the roundabout but economical route.

From this it will be seen that the triumph of imperialism also has its trials and tribulations, and the end is not yet.

THE FLAG COVERING SLAVERY

President McKinley Takes No Steps to Liberate His Island Subjects.

When once men have been enslaved how difficult it is to reinstill them with the love of freedom. The English foreign office reports concerning the working of the decrees freeing the slaves of Zanzibar and Pemba. Fewer slaves appeared for freedom in 1900 than in 1899, because, the British commissioner avers, most of the slaves know that they are not likely to gain much present advantage, seeing that those who were thrown on their own resources have a difficult time to make a living.

The masters have been kinder since the slave legislation was enacted, and seek to make their service more attractive.

Perhaps this is the reason that President McKinley has not taken steps to free the slaves in our islands of the sea, but then our flag floats over republican institutions—or has until the new imperial policy was inaugurated—and Britain is an empire. Surely we should not be behind the English in at least attempting to free our slaves, especially as the constitution commands it.

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

—The trusts declare that free trade will have little or no effect upon them, but they do not want the tariffs abolished just the same.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

—Pierpont Morgan bought $200,000 or $300,000 worth of curios on the continent, and then bethought himself of the fact that it would cost half as much more to get them past the customs officers in New York. So he gave the lot to the British museum. This tariff of ours is a great convenience at all times.—Rochester Herald.

—The Filipinos can now rest assured that under our plan of "benevolent assimilation" they will get all that is coming to them. The supreme court has decided that those who are not killed can be allowed to live; those not deported or imprisoned may retain their liberty, and those having property may keep it—subject to the right of congress to take it away from them.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

HUMOROUS.

"Why are you reading the book if you don't like it?" "Well, because I began it."—Harlem Life.

"I suppose," said the family friend, jocularly, of the summer girl, "you'll be engaged to the same young man this season at the shore?" "Which one?" she inquired, demurely.—Philadelphia Times.

"Why am I not shown common courtesy?" demanded the woman, warmly. The sales person lost her temper at once. "You didn't ask to be shown anything but two-cent prints!" retorted the latter.—Detroit Journal.

Mrs. Swainson—"How came you to recommend that girl you had to Mrs. Gregson? You know you said you positively hated the girl!" Mrs. Pearson—"Yes, but I don't hate her as much as I do Mrs. Gregson."—Glasgow Evening Times.

Johnny—"On the stage when a man leaves a king's presence he always goes out backward. Why is that, pa?" Learned Pa—"It is because his trousers are not in proper repair behind or because he is afraid the king may be handy with his boot."—Boston Transcript.

A Pertinent Query.—"And just in the nick of time," said Maj. Bluff, describing an alleged experience in the Philippines, "I was rescued. That was an awful ordeal. I was afraid every minute I would become hopelessly insane." "And didn't you?" inquired Miss Sharpe.—Philadelphia Press.

Schoolmaster (turning round sharply)—"Which of you is it that is daring to make faces at me?" Six Youngsters (in chorus)—Freddy Brown, sir." Schoolmaster—"Ah! then you boys stand out and be caned. If you saw Freddy Brown making faces, it shows that you were not attending to your lessons."—Fun.

ABOUT STANDARD TIME.

How It Is Imparted All Over the Country from the Washington Observatory.

"What time is it?" Few questions are more common than this, and yet each day the United States government goes to a great expense in giving it an official answer. To ascertain the instant when it is noon on the seventy-fifth meridian, and to send that information all over the country, is a great and a costly task. The astronomical observatory in Washington computes the true time, which is thence transmitted by electricity to every important city and town, says Youth's Companion.

About five minutes before the Washington noon the telegraph companies cut off all their regular business, except on lines where they have more than one wire. They then connect all important points, from which there may be numberless ramifications, with an electric wire going into the great clock in the observatory, so that all over the country its tickings may be heard. For the ten seconds just before 12 o'clock there is silence, which is broken by the "noon beat." Regular business is then resumed.

In some cities the wires connect with a timeball which drops with the noon beat. The timeball in Washington over the state, war and navy department building is three feet in diameter, and can be seen from all parts of the city. Crowds frequently gather about to see it fall, a distance of 21 feet, high in the air. The man whom some of the spectators suppose to be dropping the ball is merely there to hoist it again to its place.

In the building beneath are 23 clocks which are each day automatically corrected by it. An electrical device "sets" them, placing hour, minute and second hands exactly vertical at the instant the ball drops. The hands that are too fast are pushed back, and those that are slow are thrust forward.

Although Washington is on the seventy-seventh meridian, the noon hour is for convenience computed for the seventy-fifth, the time standard for the eastern part of the United States. In the central belt, which is governed by the ninetieth meridian, the signal from Washington means 11 o'clock, in the Rocky mountain belt it is ten o'clock, and on the Pacific coast it is nine.

Japan's Official Language.

It may be news to many to hear that English is the language of the Japanese foreign office—in its intercourse with foreign diplomatists, and even in its telegraphic correspondence with its own representatives abroad. All telegrams from Tokio to the foreign agents of Japan are written and ciphered in English and replied to in the same manner, though if the foreign minister has occasion to send a written dispatch this, as a rule, is in Japanese, which may be said to be a cipher in itself. Important dispatches from Downing street are, of course, always taken to their destination—especially if it be in Europe—by a special king's messenger, but from Tokio they are simply sent out in the form of a registered letter. The United States government takes a middle course. It commits its dispatches to the personal care of the captains of the Atlantic liners, by whom they are then forwarded to a special agent in London—his office is in Trafalgar street—who then sees to their further dispatch and delivery.—London Chronicle.

No Views.

Mrs. Ourhington—I suppose, now that you have been abroad, you have your own views of foreign life.

Mrs. Newrich—No, we ain't got no views. We didn't take no camera along. It's so awful common.—Philadelphia Record.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

The United States has 107 social settlements. The rest of the world has 55.

London hospital collections on hospital Sunday are divided among 86 hospitals and 35 dispensaries.

A Sunday service in a trolley station of Philadelphia for motormen and conductors has been organized by Christian young people of that city.

London hospitals have 9,100 beds of which over 1,500 are usually vacant for lack of funds. Paris has 9,006 hospital beds, and 13 asylums with 10,000 more.

A minister of the German Evangelical Reformed church in New York city recently married his three-thousandth couple. He has been in the pastorate of the same church for 25 years.

George W. Carroll, of Beaumont, Tex., made rich by the oil discoveries, has given $50,000 to Baylor university, in Waco, Tex., to erect a science building, and has promised more if the sum given is insufficient.

Dr. Enno Littman, of Oldenburg, Germany, who has been called to Princeton to deliver courses in the Semitic languages, will be officially ranked as an instructor in the college and a member of the library staff.

There is a noticeable falling off in the supply of pastors for Protestant churches in both England and America. There is also a prospect of a similar deficiency in Germany, for while ten years ago out of every 1,000 students who entered the German universities 206 were students of theology, in 1893 the number was 150 for each 1,000, while this year it is only 101.

COON CATS THRIVE IN MAINE.

A Breed That Was Brought to America by Early French Settlers.

Coon cat is almost an unknown term in Minneapolis except to those who claim the state of Maine as a birthplace, and to those who are fortunate enough to own such a cat.

The term coon cat does not imply in any way that these cats are any more edible than the ordinary house cat; neither are they a cross between a coon and a cat, as generally believed. They are a species of cat brought to America by the early French settlers of Canada. Thence they were brought to Maine, which is the only part of the United States where they are numerous.

They feed upon milk, liver, potatoes, corn and catch mice as any cat would do, says the Minneapolis Journal. They are not fond of water, are playful and have very nervous dispositions. If they are shut up in a box they crouch down and then stretch out. These cats require a great deal of fresh air and are best kept in a barn. When they dislike anyone they spit and growl like a wildcat. Their appearance is such on these occasions that they frighten even men away and at times they have been taken for polecats because of their shape and the breadth of their tail. Persons meeting them under misapprehension often beat a swift retreat to a place of safety.

Yet they are most tractable and are really prized over other cats on account of their beauty. The Angora must take a back seat in a contest with the coon cat for points in a beauty show. The fur lies smooth. The cheek bones are higher than those of the ordinary cat. The face is flat. The tail is very bushy and broad. The claws are very sharp, like those in a raccoon's feet. The hind leg between the knee and the foot resembles that of a fox. The kittens come twice a year, are very small at birth and with their spike tails resemble a small rat.

The difficulty in bringing these cats from Maine by express is that they are liable to die from nervousness on the way. The transportation companies take them at the owner's risk. A man in North Anson, Me., is in the business of raising this particular kind of pet. They are worth from five dollars to $100 apiece and the supply does not meet the demand. Their popularity is shown from the fact that one firm shipped from Bar Harbor nearly 3,000 in 1899. Ignorance in regard to coon cats is not understood in Maine, where one will find several in every village.

Bargain Was Made.

The Coney Island museum proprietor was standing in the vestibule when a well-garbed man accosted him.

"Want to hire a freak?" asked the well-garbed man.

"Maybe," said the museum proprietor, guardedly. "Where is he?"

"I'm he."

"Come off. What's the matter with you?"

"I'm a tramp."

"You don't look it, but what's he in a tramp got to do with my hiring you?"

"E-erything. I'm the best-dressed tramp in the profesh. I ain't afraid of water. I take a bath every chance I get. I like all kinds of dogs. I hate pie. Nobody ever heard me refuse to saw a pile of wood. I never wore a tomato can in my life. I like work if I can find a job. I—"

"You're engaged. Take the vacant seat between the nail swallower and the man with the big spectacles—the chap that we call the four-eyed monster."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Thoroughly a Duke.

The duke of Richmond has the distinction of being "three times a duke." He is duke of Richmond in England, duke of Lennox in Scotland and Duc de Aubigny in France, a title conferred upon an ancestress by Louis XIV. in 1663.—Chicago Record-Herald.

TRAMP'S ESCAPE.

Most Remarkable Thing That Has Occurred in an Engineer's Twenty Years' Experience.

John Smith, a well-known Illinois Central passenger engineer, relates a remarkable story about a man whom he found asleep on the ties of a railroad track a few nights ago.

Mr. Smith was bringing into Chicago the Fish special, occupied by President Stuyvesant Fish and other officials of the road, returning from a general inspection of the line, when, about a mile north of Ashkum, he saw dimly outlined some unknown object, apparently sitting on the rails. The engineer supposed it was a man, and at once applied the emergency brake, says the Chicago Tribune.

The engine had nearly passed the object when it stopped. Descending from the cab, Mr. Smith found a man soundly sleeping. He was sitting with his back to the rails, and so close to them that his head would have struck the oil cups of the engine had he arisen.

The noise made by the approaching locomotive had not awakened the man, and he was not aware of his danger until the engineer grasped his shoulder and roughly shook him.

"Let me alone. 'Tain't time to get up," he protested, drowsily.

Had the man raised his head an inch when the engine approached he would have been killed.

It was the most remarkable thing that has occurred during the engineer's 25 years' experience.

Engineer Smith the next night ran over and killed an unknown colored man at Chebanse, the second station from Ashkum. The colored man accidentally stepped in front of the locomotive.

Help Wanted.

When we cannot find what we need close at hand, we must carry our research further afield, nor must we hesitate to institute an inquiry for same where we hope it may be found, but act as did Mr. P. T. McKenny, of Newton, Indiana, who wrote: "One-half bottle of your Lotion has done me great good for a bad eruption on one of my ankles of nearly three years standing. Nothing I had before tried had benefited me. In what nearby town can I find it?" From our own druggist we got it, send at once to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl St., New York, for samples of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

Going Too Far.

"This reckless speculation must be stopped," said the earnest citizen to the trust magnate.

"Indeed it must," agreed the latter. "Indeed, it must. Why, yesterday two of three fellows who are not in our crowd at all made several thousand dollars by taking flyers. That sort of thing won't do."—Baltimore American.

Motherhood

$5,000 REWARD

Owing to the fact that some skeptical people have from time to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing, we have deposited with the National City Bank, of Lynn, Mass., $5,000 which will be paid to any person who will show that the following testimonials are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writers' special permission. — LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO.

How shall a mother who is weak and sick with some female trouble bear healthy children?

How anxious women ought to be to give their children the blessing of a good constitution!

Many women long for a child to bless their home, but because of some debility or displacement of the female organs, they are barren.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound more successfully than by any other medicine, because it gives tone and strength to the parts, curing all displacements and inflammation.

Actual sterility in women is very rare. If any woman thinks she is sterile, let her write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., whose advice is given free to all expectant or would-be mothers.

Mrs. A. D. Jarret, Belmont, Ohio, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I must write and tell you what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. Before taking your medicine I was unable to carry babe to maturity, having lost two—one at six months and one at seven. The doctor said next time I would die, but thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I did not die, but am the proud mother of a six months old girl baby. She weighs nineteen pounds and has never seen a sick day in her life. She is the delight of our home."

Mrs. Whitney's Gratitude.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—From the time I was sixteen years old till I was twenty-three I was troubled with weakness of the kidneys and terrible pains when my monthly periods came on. I made up my mind to try your Vegetable Compound, and was soon relieved. The doctor said I never would be able to go my full time and have a living child, as I was constitutionally weak. I had lost a baby at seven months and half. The next time I continued to take your Compound: and I said then, if I went my full time and my baby lived to be three months old, I should send a letter to you. My baby is now seven months old, and is as healthy and hearty as any one could wish. I cannot express my gratitude to you. I was so bad that I did not dare to go away from home to stay any length of time. Praise God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and may others who are suffering do as I did and find relief. Wishing you success in the future as in the past, and may many homes be brightened as mine has been."—MRS. L. Z. WHITNEY, 4 Flint St., Somerville, Mass."

Mrs. Baggins—What has he done now?

"I've been at him for six months to buy some new furniture for the parlor, and he has just paid $40,000 for an old seat in the stock exchange."—Philadelphia Record.

Impressed Upon His Notice.

The various features for which the Lackawanna Railroad has become noted are involuntarily impressed upon the notice of the passenger, who realizes the luxury of hotel or club appointment in the electric lights; the smooth-running journals of the wheels; the extraordinary cleanliness made possible by the use of anthracite coal, avoiding all dust and nauseating smoke; the consciousness of being always on time—which conforts force an ease of mind and body most favorable to the enjoyment of the unsurpassed scenery through which its lines pass. It is but the natural sequence that the Lackawanna is prosperous in like degree to its excellence of service, and its warm friends are equal in number to its whole list of patrons, for once to test its service means an ardent admirer and friend earned for the road.—Van Etten Breese.

Sour Stomach?

Back up a sewer, and you poison the whole neighborhood. Clog up liver and bowels, and your stomach is full of undigested food, which sours and ferments, like garbage in a swill-barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, headache, furred tongue, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. CASCARETS quietly, positively stop fermentation in the stomach, make the liver lively, tone up the bowels, set the whole machinery going and keep it in order.

Don't hesitate! Take CASCARETS to-day and be saved from suffering!

"After I was induced to try CASCARETS, I will never be without them in the house. My liver was in a very bad shape, and my head ached and I had stomach trouble. Now, since taking Cascarets, I feel fine. My wife has also used them with beneficial results for sour stomach."

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

MAPLE GROVE.—Miss Annie Smith is quite ill of malarial fever.

Jordan Beall was renovating the roads in his bailiwick, last week.

Dorcey Anderson has discontinued his bread wagon. He says the people of this neck o' woods are evidently not hungry.

Henry Gerjins sold his stepper, one day last week. Hope no one will corner the horse market, as it is a 10 to 1 shot that he will want to purchase another.

George Gordon came very nearly being run over by a street car at Riverside, last Wednesday. The wagon was wrecked, and Mr. Gordon was thrown upon the railing of the platform of the car, when the motorman saved him by grabbing him by the collar and holding him until the car was stopped. He was not badly hurt.

GASBURG.—Ben Berkshire is feeding 50 hogs for market.

A great deal of fishing has been done lately but the catch has been light.

The apple crop will be much lighter than was expected early in the season.

Mr. Gelsinger and family, of Prospect Hill, were down exploring the recesses of Split Rock, Sunday.

Bud Moreland became so discouraged over the poor prospects for farming interests, that he pulled up stakes and went to Illinois.

Henry Terrill had the misfortune to lose two fine young mares by overwork and heat, last week. One of them left a three weeks old colt.

This immediate vicinity has been deluged with rain to such an extent that crops, generally, are in very bad shape. A great deal of corn could not be planted until last week, and there still remains a considerable acreage to be planted. We usually have melon vines running before this time, but now there are none any ways near running. The crop will be unusually late, and likely of very poor quality.

BULLITTSVILLE.—We are glad to report C. W. Riley much better.

We are indeed sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Utzinger.

Edgar Graves is anticipating a new buggy in the near future.

Madam Rumor says there will be a wedding in our town in a few weeks.

Miss Leona Conner, of Iowa, is the guest of her sisters, Misses Jess and Myrtle, living near here.

Dr. Clore and wife, Mrs. C. S. Baisly and son, Kenneth, visited the city, on Monday of last week.

Will C. Graves and James T. Grant are each making a small fortune off of his crop of strawberries.

Mr. and Mrs. Wash Watts are entertaining their daughters, Mesdames Garr and Blankenbeker, of Louisville.

We were indeed glad to have Miss Lizzie Graddy with us again last Sunday. It seems her recent visit to Lexington was most pleasant.

Since my last communication several of our citizens have had 'phones put in their residences. They afford much pleasure as well as aid in business.

Miss Beulah Haines, of Idlewild, passed here Thursday on her way to the city, enroute to Lexington to visit her cousin, R. R. Early and family.

Chas. Stephens, of Idlewild, passed through here, Saturday, enroute to Big Bone, where he was the guest of Robert Willis that night and Sunday.

Hear that Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Whitaker, accompanied by Miss Sallie Willis, all of Idlewild, will leave Thursday for Canada. They expect to visit the Pan American exposition and several eastern cities, also.

Cool nights, these.

The glorious fourth is drawing nigh.

G. C. Graddy sold his buggy to Harper Rucker, yesterday.

June is the month of strawberries, cherries, roses and the fragrant grape blooms.

W. H. Rouse will "lay his corn by" this week. He has the best corn in the county.

Croquet has lost all its charms for Burlingtonites, and has been superceded by the ancient game known as pitching horseshoes.

Petersburg has made preparations to entertain a very large crowd in attendance upon the Sunday School Convention there to-morrow.

This has been a very favorable season for the potato crop, and the average sized tuber ought to be about as large as an ordinary old fashioned yellow pumpkin, this season.

The memorial services conducted by the Odd-Fellows at Petersburg, last Sunday, were very appropriate and impressive. The order has a live and useful lodge at that place.

A gentleman over in the Hathaway neighborhood, had a telephone put in his residence, recently, and he congratulated himself that hereafter he could keep posted as to the happenings at all little towns in the county. A few days only had passed when he was expecting some freight to be landed at Hamilton for him, and he drove down to get it, but it had not arrived, and it did not occur to him that he could have ascertained this fact by using his telephone, until he was getting sea-sick, as a result of being jostled over five miles of rough road. He concurs in the saying that experience is the best teacher.

Jas. Beall, of the Francesville neighborhood, expected to engage in the goose raising business rather extensively, this spring, and with that in view he put in a secure enclosure several specimens of what he supposed were his best geese of the feminine gender. He waited a reasonable period for the desired eggs to begin to put in an appearance, but not an egg did he find in the ranch. He was commenting on the circumstances to a neighbor, one day, who expressed a desire to see so worthless a collection of geese. Mr. Beall took him to his park, and you may imagine his surprise when he discovered that his neighbor Beall had about a dozen young ganders in his field, and that they all appointed him in not very complimentary terms. Beall's geese were as common,

Draft Horses in Demand.

Attention has been called to the fact that during the worst times of depression, good draft horses brought fair prices, and this condition is likely to continue. The depression of a few years ago, says one of our exchanges, lowered the value of good American bred horses to a point that attracted the attention of foreign consumers and experimental shipments were so satisfactory that exportations of horses and mules reached the phenomenal volume of one hundred thousand last year. The quality of American-bred horses is recognized as superlative in all the foreign bazars, although the present high prices in the domestic wholesale markets threaten to curtail the export movement.

A good horse of any class has never failed to command a remunerative price, while the outlook for heavy draft animals was never more propitious. The centralization of the industries and the marvelous combination of capital which has characterized the past decade will do away with panics and give a permanency and uniformity to business enterprises which promise an augumented demand for heavy draft animals. The vast commercial interests of the United States are largely dependent for expansion on the draft horses. Cotton once reigned as king, but was dethroned by corn, but the great industries are dependent for future achievements on horses that can move heavy loads.

Seven Years in Bed.

"Will wonders ever cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Pease, of Lawrence, Kan. They knew she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility; but three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk," she writes," and in three months I felt like a new person." Women suffering from Headache, Backache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy spells will find it a priceless blessing. Try it. Satisfaction is guaranteed, W. F. McKim, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner of Florence; H. L. Eekew of Walton; O. N. Grant of Bellevue. Only 50c.

FUNNY STORIES.

The editor and his wife disagree with each other very materially. She sets things to right and he writes things to set. She reads what others write and he writes what others read. She keeps the devil out of the house as much as possible and he retains him and could not go to press without him. He knows more things than he writes and she writes more than she knows.—Ex.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26, 1901. NO. 36.

It now begins to look very much like Judge Lassing will encounter no opposition for the Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge this fall. Judge Cram, who was regarded as the most formidable opponent he could have, and who was expected to become a candidate, has announced that he will not be a candidate, and last week his home paper, ever loyal to a Grant county man when he wants anything, was shouting for Lassing. The clear track which it appears Mr. Lassing is surely to have is due largely to the very excellent courts he has been holding, and in which the ablest lawyers in the district have appeared and who unhesitatingly speak in the most complimentary terms of the impartial, able and expeditious manner in which he disposes of business. The very ready way in which he adapted himself to the work of the bench, is regarded as wonderful by the old practitioners who were inclined to be somewhat skeptical about the wisdom of his appointment.

SENATOR DEBOE is not getting Mrs. Gertrude Saunders, a widow, removed as Postmistress at Newcastle, Henry county, without a hard fight on the part of the plucky widow, who has the backing of many friends. Many of the Republican patrons of the office presided over by Mrs. Saunders consider the Senator's course in the matter as outrageous, and it may be that if he ever visits Newcastle he would better be backed up with boiler plate.

WEST VIRGINIA had a terrible experience with a cloud-burst last Saturday night. Hundreds of people lost their lives while thousands were rendered homeless. It was the severest disaster with which the State was ever visited. The Elkhorn Valley country was the center of the destruction resulting, and entire towns are reported swept away. The terribleness of such disasters can not be pictured by the human mind.

Now Senator Aldrich has started a fight against reciprocity. It is a fraud, anyhow, in Democrats' eyes and might just as well be laid aside. But Mr. Aldrich's action only shows the Republican split on the tariff.

SOME one has scored a failure in trying to interview Grover on the third term question. Somebody should have given him a steer that Grover was strongly opposed even to second terms before his first election.

IF the weather in Nebraska is hot as it is here, tramps should be expected to shun that State to avoid being compelled to take part in saving the immense wheat crop now being harvested there.

ON and after next Monday no revenue stamps will be required on bank checks, express receipts, money orders, promissory notes, powers of attorney or leases.

THE Court of Appeals refused to aid Caleb Powers further by modifying its recent opinion in the manner indicated by the petition filed by his attorneys.

THE Christian county grand jury is said to have returned indictments against 30 men charged with gambling at the Western Asylum at Hopkinsville.

[Williamstown Courier.]

Judge John M. Lassing, of Boone county, adjourned Court last Saturday and left for his home at Burlington. It is but fair to say of him that he made a most excellent impression on the people of Grant county as a Judge and a gentleman. His administration of the law and his expeditiness in passing upon questions won for him much praise from the bar and, laymen alike. Judge Lassing is a young man, being yet less than 36 years of age; but he is one of the best posted and most worthy young men in this Judicial district. Since Judge Cram has officially announced that he will not be a candidate for Circuit Court Judge it leaves Judge Lassing a clean field, and he will likely get the nomination for the short term to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Judge John W. Green, without opposition. It is possibly the best thing that can be done, and Lassing, we have an idea, will make the district a splendid Judge. The Courier is always for Grant county "against the world, the flesh and the devil," but since we are not going to have a candidate of our own why not let good old Boone county and her worthy young judge have a show?

"Will wonders ever cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Pease, of Lawrence, Kan. They knew she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility; but three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk," she writes," and in three months I felt like a new person." STATE NEWS.

The State College is urging the General Council of Lexington to make an appropriation of $50,000 for the establishment of a medical department. There is also some talk of founding a law school, which would practically place State College on a university basis. The matter has been referred to a committee.

A special delivery letter came to the Mt. Sterling postoffice one day last week, which is not an unusual occurrence. The novel feature of this particular letter was in the endorsement on one end of the envelope, which was intended to serve as a guide to the carrier in locating the person to whom the letter was addressed. It ran as follows: "You will probably find him about some saloon.

After four trials the celebrated steer case of Norris vs. Nolanu is yet undecided, and upon petition of the defendants, Messers. James and Sidney Noland the motion for a new trial will be argued July 9th, before Special Judge R. E. Loberts. This case has been on docket several years and has already cost the litigants enough to buy a small herd of steers like the one in dispute.—Richmond Climax.

Thomas Lyons, who keeps a saloon in a negro quarter of Lexington, pulled from a cigar box $1,015, the amount of his taxes, which he pays on property assessed at $54,575. He never uses checks and keeps no bank account. Recently he bought a business block for $45,000, and was asked for a cash deposit by the auctioneer. He pulled a roll from his pocket and paid for the property on the spot.

If you want to see the criminal effect of using Paris green on tobacco plants, just examine a few small leaves in the window of Ray's Post-Office Drug Store. There is enough of the poison within a few inches space to kill half a dozen men. These leaves were taken from a lot of tobacco bought by a local dealer. One way to stop this criminal use of poison is to refuse to buy tobacco from any grower who puts it on his plants.—Maysville Public Ledger.

On Tuesday last Mrs. Sophia Ohne, wife of Albert Ohne, who lives between here and Ghent, was accidentally drowned in their cistern. She had been in poor health for some time and her husband left home about half-past 11 o'clock to get his mother to stay with her. He returned about 1 o'clock, and his wife not being at the house, a search was instituted and the water bucket was found at the cistern, and peering in Mrs. Ohne's lifeless body was discovered. As the bucket water was drawn with was also found in the cistern, there can be no doubt that in attempting to draw the bucket of water she lost her balance and was precipitated headforemost into the abyss below. She was the daughter of Henry Shirmer, her age was about 22 years, and was married Feb, 23, 1899, to Albert Ohne, and leaves an infant about two months old and a devoted husband. "Squire Jas. R. Ramey held an inquest Tuesday afternoon and the jury returned a verdict of "accidental drowning."—Carrollton News.

Mr. Emery Arnold, a popular ex-Pendletonite who now resides on the farm of his father-in-law, Mr. Henry Aulick, in Campbell county, is the proud owner of a 4 year-old "coon" dog that has shown an intelligence scarcely less than human. He is not only "a great coon dog" in all the term implies, but has also established his true worth as a letter carrier. His dog ship makes his home part of the time in Campbell county and the other part at E. A. Arnold's in this county, the two places being just thirteen miles apart. Always before starting on a visit this intelligent brute in some significant manner gives notice of his intentions. Frequently tests of this kind led his master to write a letter to E. A. Arnold and tie it around the dog's neck at the time he indicated he was to make his visit. The dog reached Mr. Arnold's in safety with the letter and an answer was returned in the same manner a few days later, the dog in a like manner indicating to Mr. Arnold that he was going back home. A correspondence between these two families has thus been kept up for some time, and a dozen or more letters exchanged. The dog travels altogether at night and in making the trip swims Licking river near DeMossville.—Falmouth Pendletonian.

Crop and Stock.

Several large crops of growing wheat in Madison county have been sold at sixty-five cents per bushel.

Smith & Neil, of Adair, bought a car load of hogs for October delivery at five cts.—Stanford Interior Journal.

Lambs were bringing 5 cents for immediate delivery and 4½ cents for July delivery, the past week. Quite a number were bought in the county at that price.—Winchester Democrat.

Col. J. P. Chinn has 200 acres of wheat that will make 30 bushels to the acre. The colonel also has 50 acres of hemp that is said by judges to be the finest grown in Central Kentucky in years.—Harrodsburg Sayings.

At a sale of dairy stock near Lexington, there were 42 cows sold from $60 to $100 each; calves $18 to $40. Sows with pigs brought as high at $35.50. Corn in crib $2 per barrel. Work horses $60 to $100 per head.

Walter Terhune, of Harrodsburg, says he has purchased 30 suckling mules at prices ranging from $50 to $75 per head. Good mules are in demand at good prices. The market hasn't yet opened for common grade mule colts.

The preliminary Government report indicates a reduction in acreage of spring wheat of 1,200,000 acres. The report shows a reduction of 3.8 per cent, in the acreage of oats as compared with that harvested last year. Barley has dropped 1.2 per cent and rye 1.9 per cent.

Some idea of the possibilities of cattle rearing in Texas and the improvement that has of late years been wrought in the cattle of that State may be gathered from the statement that last week a Texas breeder placed on the St. Louis market some fed yearling heifers that averaged 1,075 lbs, and sold for $4 26 per cwt., for dressed beef purposes. Some older cows were marketed at the same time by the same consignors. That tells the story.

The cattle trade has been remarkably good of late, with some appreciation in value. The top quotations for fancy stock are $6,25, and sales of some extra prime steers are reported at $6 in Chicago, the highest price at actual sales for a month past. The domestic and export demand have both been active. Grassy stock is discriminated against. Eastern shippers of milch cows have withdrawn from the market, and prices have declined $2 to $10 per head.

The Winchester Democrat says: The men who bought lambs at six cents now wish they hadn't, as six cent lambs are losing the dealers a bushel of money. Many of these lambs were bought to weigh so much and be fat, and in consequence it has to be a first class lamb that the buyer will take; sheep are at least a cent and a half lower than this time last year. Many lambs are still in the hands of the farmers as they expected the market to run like it did last year when it got better all the time, and those who held their lambs longest did the best. It looks now like there will be some cheap lambs after a while.

Rev. C. A. Majors, pastor of the Independence Baptist Church of Evansville, Ind., surprised his members by sending to each of them the following ill-tempered notice:

"You are hereby summoned to appear before the session Friday night and bring a dollar with you. If you come and fail to bring the dollar you will regret it. I have grown tired of living on dried apples and sanctified looks, and have decided to ask for something more substantial. All members who fail to bring money to this meeting will cease to be members. I mean exactly what I say, and do not expect to have any back talk. I have served you long and faithfully, and propose that you shall show some little appreciation."

In California they have not the material out of which to "mob a nigger" occasionally but they do not deny themselves the rare sport because thereof. At Adin, Thursday night of last week, about forty citizens went to the house of an old man aged 70, occupied by himself and three sons and a "friend." They were suspected of being guilty of petty thieving throughout the neighborhood and a search of the premises revealed the fact that suspicions were correct, much of the missing propery being found. They didn't do a thing but hang all five.

GRANT COUNTY.

From Williamstown Courier.

Many Williamstown and Grant county people are preparing to attend the Pan-American exposition later in the season.

The heavy rain last Thursday afternoon did considerable damage to all sorts of crops in various sections of the county.

The lawyers fared pretty well in the settlement of the Cavanaugh estate. $3,300 in fees were allowed to them in addition to the allowance to the administrators of alike sum.

Grant county will have no candidate for Circuit Court Judge, from present indications. Considering the proverbial inclinations of the average Grant county citizen to run for office, this is a little out of the ordinary.

The tobacco crop was about planted last week, the very heavy rains did considerable damage in many portions of the county, however, especially in the bottoms, where the weed was pretty badly covered up. Al Biddle, of near town, lost his crop of four acres.

Busy times are ahead for the millers of Grant county. The wheat crop promises to be the biggest ever harvested. Ed and Joe Collins, of the firm of R. L. Collins & Sons, Crittenden, are buying a very large amount of grain in advance of the harvest and expect to buy every bushel of good grain they can find.

THE DAIRY.

One of the first considerations with every dairyman is to cheapen the food of his cows. The cost of production is the vital point in money making on the farm, and this means to buy as little food as possible for the cows. Study to raise every mouthful you feed them consistent with economical management. This point is set out with startling distinctness by a writer in the New York Farmer. For instance, take any ground grain that is bought in the open market; he must pay profits, first, to the farmer who grew the grain; second, to the middleman, who took it from the grower; third to the elevator man, who stored it; fourth, to the miller who ground it fifth to the feed middleman, who took the feed from the miller; sixth, to the wholesaler, who took it from the middleman, seventh, to the retailer, who took it from the wholesaler; and eighth, to the railroads that carried it from the farm to the elevator, to the mill, to the wholesale store, and to the retail store. This, too, is saying nothing about the manipulator on the grain exchange, who often takes more than all the others put together.

At the same time, with such good and nearly always necessary in a ration feed as wheat bran, some of these charges must be paid, because bran cannot be made on the farm, but it can be largely substituted.

The real point is, of course, to know what makes the best compound for a ration, and then study the markets and compare prices with the material you have or can raise on the farm. You may not be able to grind on the farm as cheaply as you can at a nearby mill, but if you must go to town to buy, then figure up what an engine and mill would cost you.

As a rule, this will depend on the amount of stock you have to feed. Cotton seed meal or even the raw cotton seed is often a good substitute for wheatbran and is generally convenient to the farmer of the South. Wheat or flour mills all become overburdened with bran, shorts and mill feed, when running at their flush season, and will sometimes sell at little over cost of removal to get this out of the way. A good, tight floor in a loft will hold many car loads of it, and that is the time to buy.

Sometimes you can sell enough to neighbors to pay for the whole of it, and leave you enough to feed your cows. The custom among Northern dairymen is to combine together and buy carloads and divide it up between them. With good cows, feeding the skim milk to the cows will pay better on a butter farm than to feed that milk to any other animals. The cow is not particular, after she once learns to drink it, whether the milk is sweet or sour. There is great room to study the feed problem, and many ways to save money by learning the principles involved.

In Boyle, the growing crop of wheat of J. C. Caldwell, about 12,000 bushels, sold at 65 cents per bushel. In Madison, several large crops sold at 65 cents.

Wedding Bells at Verona.

[From Warsaw Independent.]

One of the happiest and prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized at the Glencoe Baptist church Wednesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, when Froman Myers, a young gentleman of Verona, Boone county, and Miss Nora Callendar, a charming young lady of Owen county, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock by Rev. Z. W. Pigg. The pretty bride was handsomely attired in white satin, cut decollette, and entraine, and trimmed in ribbon and chiffon. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and ferns. The groom was neatly attired in a suit of black. The attendants were Denton Cotton, of Verona, and Miss Lulie Callendar, a cousin of the bride, who wore a stylish dress of white swiss. The wedding march on the organ under the skillful touch of Miss Mary Ames, announced the arrival of the bridal party, and the soft notes pealed forth as they retired from the church after the ceremony. The church was very prettily decorated with roses and honeysuckles and there was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The happy young couple retired at once to the home of Rev. Pigg, where they received the congratulations of their many friends, and then amid a shower of rice they took their departure for Cincinnati on the evening train, where they spent several days on their honeymoon, following which they will return to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Callendar, of near Jonesville, where they will reside for the present. The groom is a son of Scott Myers, of Verona, and is a very worthy young man. The bride is but 17 years old and graduated from the League Institute at Verona last month. She is a lovely young lady. The best wishes of a large circle of friends is tendered the happy young couple.

Roberts-McElroy.

The wedding of Miss Ura McElroy and Mr. J. T. Roberts at the home of the bride's parents, June 19th, was one of the delightful events of the social season. The bride is beautiful, charming and popular in social circles of Verona. She is the daughter of Mr. John McElroy, a prominent farmer of the neighborhood. Mr. Roberts is a promising young business man of Verona. The marriage was solemnized at 3:30 o'clock. The bridal party entered upon a white pathway trimmed in ferns. They stopped beneath a beautiful decoration of flowers designed into hearts. Rev. Dr. Adams performed the marriage service. The bride was handsome in her bridal robes of white silk, made en-traine. Miss Effie McElroy was the charming maid of honor, and wore a beautiful dress of Paris Mousseline with insertings and laces. Mr. Jessie (Boss) Wilson, of Berkshire, was best man. Immediately after the ceremony the party was driven to the elegant home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Roberts, parents of the groom, and was entertained with an elegant reception. The dining room was truly like Fairy Land, wreaths and festoons of beautiful flowers, colored lights, the elegant table decorations and service, Oh! it was enough to tempt the appetite of anyone. As the bridal party entered slow music, beautiful strains from Lohengrin was rendered by Miss Della Roberts. The table was in charge of Miss Lizzie Roberts, Mrs. E. E. Fry and Mrs. A. W. Smith, assisted by the prince of good fellows, Mr. Boone Roberts, and they deserve praise for the delightful manner in which they entertained the 150 guests. After the banquet, for it was truly such, the festivities were continued until a late hour upon the lawn, which was beautifully lighted. Just before leaving the bridal cake was cut by Mrs. John Tom Roberts (the bride.) Then the young ladies were invited up to take their chances for the ring, thimble and darning needle. The ring was secured by Miss Della Roberts. Congratulation and goodbys followed. A. W. SMITH

INJUNCTION REFUSED.

Court Will Not Enjoin the Opening of Oklahoma Reservation.

Justice Bradley Held That the Remedy Rests With the Congress and Not With the Judiciary.

Washington, June 21.—The district court Thursday decided the suit of the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache Indians to enjoin the secretary of the interior from opening up to settlement the reservation in Oklahoma against the plaintiffs.

Counsel for the Indians immediately gave notice of a special appeal to the district court of appeals. Now that the case is decided it is believed that the president in about ten days will issue his proclamation opening to settlement the Kiowa, Comanche, Apache and Wichita lands.

Justice Bradley held that if the act of June 6, 1900, is violative of the treaty of 1868, the remedy rests with congress, not the judiciary. He said that the right of the Indians to the reservation is a possessory one only; that the wrong, if any, threatened by the execution of the act of June 6, 1900, is a wrong to the tribe as a tribe; and that no individual member will suffer any injury which will not be shared in common by the other members. The decision declares that the suit can not be maintained by members of the tribe as individuals.

Justice Bradley holds that these Indians are the pupils or wards of the nation; that the duty of providing for their maintenance, civilization and education, and of protecting and caring for them rests upon the federal government and is committed to its legislative and political branch. He further holds that an act of congress and a treaty are, under the constitution of the United States, upon an equal footing; that an act of congress will repeal a prior inconsistent act of congress; that the making and enforcing of treaties are under our constitution committed to the political branch of the government, and that the judicial tribunals of the county are without authority to enforce treaty stipulations, or to grant redress for wrongs inflicted by their breach.

FIRE WORKS EXPLODED.

It Is Thought 14 Persons Perished in a Fire That Followed—The Explosion Was Terrific.

Paterson, N. J., June 22.—Fourteen people are believed to have been killed and a number injured in a fire following an explosion among a quantity of fire works in the store of Abraham M. Rittenberg. The store was on the ground floor of a four-story frame tenement building. The cause of the explosion is not known. The property loss will not exceed $35,000.

A number of people received minor injuries, but went to their homes. The explosion occurred shortly after noon, and many of the occupants of the building were at dinner.

Ten families occupied flats in the building. So great was the force of the explosion that a boy playing in the street half a block away was lifted from his feet and hurled against an iron fence. One of his legs was broken. A trolley car was directly in front of the building when the explosion occurred. The burst of flame blown out into the street scorched the sides of the car and singed the hair of the passengers.

A number of those who were on the upper floors of the building when the explosion took place were either stunned and then burned to death, or found escape cut off and were suffocated. After the first explosion there was a succession of smaller ones, and then came a second big explosion, which was muffled and deadened and probably occurred in the cellar. Every window seemed to be emitting flame within a minute after the first explosion. Mrs. Williams, her clothing on fire, leaped from a window to the yard below. Her dead body was dragged out of reach of the flames, but the flesh was roasted and dropped from the bones. Mrs. Williams' husband was a cripple and she is supposed to have remained longer than she could with safety in an effort to save him. He was found burned to a crisp in his bed.

STABBED TO DEATH.

Before coming here he was prominent in the politics in his own country, and on returning to Japan became a member of the cabinet, serving as a minister of communication. His official life in Washington and at home were marked by vigor and decisiveness, and his characteristics brought him much enmity in certain political circles of Japan. This resulted in charges affecting his integrity as a member of the cabinet, and rather than compromise his associates by the controversy, he tendered his resignation and began libel suits against his detractors.

This is why, for the past twenty-five years, thousands of women have been confiding their troubles to Mrs. Pinkham, and whose advice has brought happiness and health to countless women in the United States.

Mrs. Chappell, of Grant Park, Ill., whose portrait we publish, advises all suffering women to seek Mrs. Pinkham's advice and use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as they cured her of inflammation of the ovaries and womb; she, therefore, speaks from knowledge, and her experience ought to give others confidence. A TERRIBLE DEATH.

Adelbert S. Hay Fell From a Hotel Window at New Haven, Ct.

The Father Is Stricken With Grief and Is Confined to His Bed—His Condition, However, Is Not Thought Serious.

New Haven, Ct., June 24.—Adelbert Stone Hay, former consul of the United States at Pretoria, South Africa, and eldest son of Secretary of State John Hay, fell from a window in the third story of the New Haven house, in this city, shortly before 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning and was instantly killed. The dead man was a graduate of Yale, of the class of '98, and his death occurred on the eve of the university commencement, which brought him here Saturday, and in which, by virtue of his class office, the young man would have been one of the leaders.

Half a dozen physicians who were hastily summoned were unable to do anything and the body awaited its disposition at the order of the coroner's deputy, Medical Examiner Bartlett.

Repeated efforts to locate Secretary Hay by wire were futile until the early morning hours, when a request from the father reached Mr. Seth Mosely, the proprietor of the hotel, to take care of the body until the members of the family could reach town. Meanwhile the sensation occasioned by the tragedy continued. Every movement of Young Hay was traced in an effort to penetrate the uncertainties of his awful taking off.

It was learned that the young man on May 29 left Washington with his mother and two sisters for Newburn, N. H., the summer home of Secretary Hay. Last week he left New Hampshire for New York, where he spent some days. He arrived in New Haven Saturday evening in time for dinner, and went immediately to the New Haven house, where he was assigned to Room No. 47, third floor front, directly over the Chapel street entrance to the hotel office.

There was a solitary spectator to the terrible tragedy, a laborer on the city streets. At the hour mentioned the workman saw the form of a man falling through space. An instant later the body lay directly in front of the main hotel entrance. The horrified laborer rushed to the spot, and his shouts brought others. The usual crowd gathered. In it were several belated Yale graduates. They bent over the body. One of them, Julian Mason, a son of the late Edward G. Mason, of Chicago, and a classmate of young Hay, drew back, and, horror stricken, cried: "My God; it's Del Hay." By this time the hotel clerk had reached the scene and made the identification complete. The body was clad in pajamas.

On the window sill of the room occupied by young Hay was found a partly consumed cigarette. On the floor near the window was a ring worn by the victim. His clothing had been neatly arranged, and the bed clothes were drawn back. The bed, however, had not been occupied. Here the mystery becomes intangible. The popular theory seems to have it that the young man, having prepared for bed, thought to indulge in a "good-night smoke;" that he chose the cool of the window, possibly dozed, lost his balance and fell from the window. The presence of the ring on the floor, however, gave rise to the fancy that possibly while toying with the ring, it dropped, and that in an effort to recover it, the fall resulted. However it happened, the known facts make it conclusive that it was all a frightful accident.

New Haven, Ct., June 24.—Hon John Hay, secretary of State, worn out by the trip of nearly nine hours from Washington, to New Haven, and nearly prostrated by grief at the untimely end of his oldest son, Adelbert S. Hay, here Sunday morning, reached this city at 5:45 o'clock Sunday evening. He was accompanied by his secretary, Mr. Whitney, and was met at the station by R. L. McDuffy, of New York city, and Mr. Charles Wade, of Cleveland, O. Col. Hay gave evidence of extreme fatigue, and the mental agony incident upon his great affliction was unmistakably written on his features.

The secretary, with his party, immediately entered a carriage and was driven in great haste to the residence of Mr. Seth Mosely, 36 Wall street. In the drawing room of the house reposed the remains of his dead son. In the presence of the beloved dead Col. Hay utterly collapsed, and, prostrated by his great grief, took to his bed. Dr. Samuel D. Gilbert was summoned and administered to the patient.

Late Sunday night Dr. Gilbert, who is at the bedside of the secretary, announced that the condition of Col. Hay is not serious, adding that he is simply overwhelmed with grief, and that the prostration will disappear after sufficient rest.

FLOOD AND STORM.

At Least Four Persons Lost Their Lives in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania—Much Damage.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 24.—The storm and flood which broke over Allegheny county on Saturday afternoon, besides causing much damage in every part of the county, is known to have caused at least four deaths, besides bringing injury to two.

From all over the county Sunday night come fuller reports of damage done by wind and water, but no additional fatalities are reported.

The Turtle creek district was again visited by a heavy rain storm Sunday and the conditions of Saturday were duplicated with even more destruction. Damage to the town and valley amounted to thousands of dollars. At East Pittsburgh the Westinghouse plant, which extends for nearly a mile parallel with the hill, was submerged again Sunday with six feet of water on the lower floor, which left three feet of mud when it receded. More than 400 street car motors are apparently destroyed, and the loss to the Westinghouse company, it is believed, will reach $500,000.

Lincoln, Ill., June 24.—This city was visited by a tornado, which did $190,000 damage. The storm's path was a mile and a half wide and 12 miles long. The Lincoln mattress factory was almost destroyed and great damage was done to the Illinois Asylum for Feeble Minded Children, the Illinois Odd Fellows' home, Lincoln college, the flour mills and the county poor farm. Several stores were unroofed, a number of houses were wrecked, and thousands of trees were torn up. An elevator at Middletown was destroyed and several stores damaged. At Elkhart freight cars were blown from the tracks and great damage was done to wheat, corn and oats.

LIVES LOST IN A FLOOD.

Horrible Disaster in the Great Kanawha Valley.

The Town of Keystone, Population of About 2,000, Almost Washed Away—Much Damage at Other Points.

Bluefield, W. Va., June 24.—This entire section has just been visited by a flood, the extent of which in all probability will equal or exceed that of Johnstown in 1889 so far as the loss of property is concerned. Early Saturday morning, shortly after midnight, a heavy downpour of rain began, accompanied by a severe electric storm, which violently increased in volume, and continuing for several hours. This continued throughout the entire day and night, and at 10 a. m., while the storm has abated, the lowering clouds would indicate another terrific downpour at any moment. Many miles of the Norfolk and Western track, bridges and telegraph lines are entirely destroyed, and communication is entirely cut off west of Elkhorn, so that it is impossible to learn the full extent of the loss of life and property, but officials of the coal corporations located in the stricken district have sent out messengers to Elkhorn, the terminus of both telegraphic and railroad communications, and have received a report that a conservative estimate as to the loss of life will easily reach 200. Some of the drowned are among the most prominent citizens of the coal fields.

The Pocahontas coal field is located in a basin, with high mountains on either side, Elkhorn creek flowing through the center of the basin, which ranges from on-fourth to one mile in width. From Ennis, W. Va., to Vivian Yard, Va., a distance of ten miles, miners' cabins, coal company commissaries and coke plants line this basin. Elkhorn creek, being fed by numerous small streams coming from the mountain side, rises very rapidly, and this water spout came so suddenly that the entire basin between the two mountain ranges was flooded, and before the terror-stricken people realized what was upon them, they were carried down by the flood, which swept everything in its path.

The little town of Keystone, with a population of about 2,000, seems the greatest sufferer, practically the entire town being washed away. The town is the principal one in the Pocahontas coal fields, and is located near its center. It was to a great extent the headquarters from which the mining population purchased supplies, and was also the only place in the field where whisky could be purchased. At this place there were some 12 to 15 saloons, all of which was washed away.

On the Clinch valley branch of the Norfolk and Western railway, between this city and Norton, Va., communication is entirely severed west of Tazewell, Va. Reports come from that point of great loss of life and property throughout that entire section. In Shakerag, a Negro settlement on the outskirts of Tazewell, the water stands to the depth of six or eight feet in the street and houses, all of the occupants having been removed to points of safety by means of a boat.

The report comes that the mining population are now occupying the banks of the streams below catching the merchandise and barrels of whisky and beer as they float down. A great number of the coal and coke plants at the mouth of Pocahontas region are reported practically destroyed and are in some instances entirely washed away. Owing to the very high water which has flooded the region and prevented communication, anything like a correct estimate of the loss of property is impossible, but from the best information obtainable so far Sunday the loss to property will easily reach $2,000,000. Landgraf, the beautiful home of Gen. Manager Ord, is reported gone, but his family is said to be safe.

Passenger Train No. 4, of the Norfolk and Western railway, reached Vivian about 8:30 a. m., met the flood and was unable to proceed further. The waters reached such a depth that the coaches had to be abandoned, the passengers being rescued by means of ropes strung from the windows of coaches to the tops of remaining coke ovens some distance away. Between Elkhorn and Vivian Yard, a distance of ten miles, 100 cars are said to be washed from the tracks and many of them were carried down the streams.

A rough estimate places the number of bridges washed away between Bluefield and Vivian Yard, a distance of 28 miles, at from 15 to 20, and from present indications it will be impossible to get trains through to Vivian and points west of there under a week or ten days. This will render it impossible to get relief into the stricken district.

Of a family of six named Anderson, two children, Ida and Clara, aged 7 and 8, were killed. The mother, Mrs. Mary Anderson, was not badly hurt, but the shock made her very ill. Her daughter, Bertha, and son, Theodore, aged 10 and 12, were seriously injured. No other casualties are as yet reported.

The family of Jacob Berg and a man named Metz were injured when their houses were demolished, but not seriously. Mrs. Anderson said:

"When I saw the storm coming I grabbed the youngest child and took two with me. When the storm struck it took it right into the air and that was the last of it.

"I hurried to my children, but the storm took two of them away from me and killed them. I laid down and held my baby. The wind also took it away from me. A timber struck me and broke my shoulder."

Mrs. Greening, mother of the Greening family, is expected to live but a short time. Her shoulder is broken and she is injured internally.

The father of the Greening family was found a quarter of a mile from the house badly mangled. Both arms and legs and back were broken and absolutely there is no chance for his life. Little Maggie and Jacob Greening were found 600 yards from where the house stood. They were stripped of all their clothing, but were not disfigured.

The tornado was preceded by a severe hail storm. Stones fell that are said to have measured ten inches in circumference.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman were out a short distance from Naper and both of them were injured by the hail. Mrs. Herman was struck on the head and was injured badly.

William Eli Rouse.

William Eli Rouse departed this life June 9th, 1901. He was born Aug. 23d, 1830, aged 70 years, 9 months, 16 days. He was married March 3rd, 1859, to Lucy L. Utz, who survives him. He was the father of two children, James Albert and Ezra Owen. One of these, James Albert preceded him to the realm of spirits; three grand-children, in the course of time, entered his life and gladdened it. These are Erice J., and Edith Belle, the children of James Albert, and Viletta, the daughter of Ezra Owen, who still survive him.

He was born, reared, married, lived and died in Boone county and was one of its best citizens. He was a man of enterprise and worked for the advancement of his county. In a business relation he came in contact with many people, and was therefore, one of the most widely known men in the county. He was, in his dealing with his fellowmen, strictly upright. Of him, father Ed Stephens said at his funeral, "I never met a more honest man." This was no exaggeration. Even in a business transaction any one could trust his word and he never would betray his trust. He was of a kind nature. The needy found, in him, a helper; the friendless, a friend; the poor, a benefactor.

His last days were spent in the midst of intense suffering. What he suffered the pen cannot describe. His nights were nights of agonies. One day after he had just passed through a spell of suffering, he said to Mrs. Ezra Rouse, "You are a good christian woman, tell me why I must suffer such agonies?" This was not said with a complaining spirit. He bore his suffering in the spirit of resignation. But his mind was struggling with the perplexing problem of human suffering which baffles all minds and longing for its solution. Life fails to solve the problem. Faith looks with joy beyond it, but reason fails to find a solution for it. His sufferings are now passed and in that world of light it has been given him to know why he suffered so. And in the light of that knowledge he is able to exclaim with the Psalmist, "It is good for me that I have been afflicted." The problem now clear to him is to us who tarry in the "vale of tears" still dark. Suffering is still our lot. But to assure our faith and to strengthen us into patience is the precious assurance of Him with whom the solution of all baffling problems, "all things work together for good to them that love God." To Him Who has in the gift of His Son revealed Himself as a loving Father and Who has promised to wipe away all tears, I direct the surviving friends for comfort and help.

The RECORDER is always ready to assist in pushing along any kind of an entertainment in the interest of any of the churches or secret orders in the county, but it does think that when any of these have any job printing done they should not go out of the county to drop their money, and then ask the RECORDER to dish up a free blow. Those to whom you give your job printing are the persons to whom to go for your free puffs. Occasionally those who go elsewhere to get their printing done and then call on the RECORDER for free puffs are so kind as to enclose a copy of the posters they have gone to Covington or Cincinnati to have printed. If it is so easy to communicate with this office when a free notice is desired it is just as easy to communicate with it when job work is needed. There is no county paper that deals more liberally with its patrons and friends than the RECORDER.

A Card.

Having completed a limited purchase of lambs in Boone, not to exceed 2,000, I hope to have benefitted every shipper and the lamb interest of the county. As all shippers well know there has been a great discrimination against Boone county lambs—claiming short run and heavy fill.

This purchase will not disturb the Cincinnati market, as they will go direct East, and if they prove satisfactory, will enable us in former years to keep more of them out of their hands, that dislike them so much. While my time was limited, making purchase in less than three days, I have not been able to see one-tenth of the lambs in the county, and will say, should you not be able to sell your lambs at satisfactory prices, remember me at the Covington Yards, as every lamb has a value and I am ready to see that they bring the same. I can safely assure you the market there as well as in Cincinnati, where our house has daily orders, besides the local trade, and have an unlimited order from Covington. But they are to be bought on the market and I assure you the local trade will take the butcher lambs higher than Cincinnati market, and no reason you should not be benefitted in Covington.

While the trade is lower than former years, I trust it will strengthen some and remain steady so every one may realize a fair price for their lambs, as the sheep product is entirely too low, compared with prices of other meats—as hogs are showing great strength and generally supposed will sell higher; and cattle are also selling well, especially good, heavy cattle. I am frank to say there is no one that has tried harder to protect the interest of his countryman in the live stock trade than the writer, and will continue to serve you in the best possible manner in either market, Covington or Cincinnati.

I remain respectfully,
J. M. CONNER.

OBSERVING THE WIND

Value of Prompt Action in Anything Undertaken Is Shown.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

From a passage of Scripture unobserved by most readers, Dr. Talmage in this discourse shows the importance of prompt action in anything we have to do for ourselves or others; text, Ecclesiastes 11:4: "He that observeth the wind shall not sow."

What do you find in this packed sentence of Solomon's monologue? I find in it a farmer at his front door examining the weather. It is seedtime. His fields have been plowed and harrowed. The wheat is in the barn in sacks, ready to be taken afield and scattered. Now is the time to sow. But the wind is not favorable. It may blow up a storm before night, and he may get wet if he starts out for the sowing; or it may be a long storm, that will wash out the seed from the soil; or there may have been a long drought, and the wind may continue to blow dry weather. The parched fields may not take in the grain, and the birds may pick it up, and the labor as well as the seed may be wasted. So he gives up the work for that day and goes into the house and waits to see what it will be on the morrow. On the morrow the wind is still in the wrong direction, and for a whole week and for a month. Did you ever see such a long spell of bad weather? The lethargic and overcautious and dilatory agriculturist allows the season to pass without sowing, and no sowing, of course, no harvest. That is what Solomon means when he says in his text: "He that observeth the wind shall not sow."

As much in our time as in Solomon's times there is abroad a fatal hesitancy, a disposition to let little things stop us, a ruinous adjournment. We all want to do some good in the world, but how easily we are halted in our endeavors. Perhaps we are solicitors for some great charity. There is a good man who has large means, and he is accustomed to give liberally to asylums, to hospitals, to reform organizations, to schools, to churches, to communities desolated with flood or devastated with fires. But that good man, like many a good man, is mercurial in his temperament. He is depressed by atmospheric changes. He is always victimized by the east wind. For this or that reason you postpone the charitable solicitation. Meanwhile the suffering that you wish to alleviate does its awful work, and the opportunity for relief is past. If the wind had been from the west or northwest, you would have entered the philanthropist's counting-room and sought the gift, but the wind was blowing from the east or northeast, and you did not make the attempt, and you thoroughly illustrated my text: "He that observeth the wind shall not sow."

There comes a dark Sabbath morning. The pastor looks out of the window and sees the clouds gather and then discharge their burdens of rain. Instead of a full church it will be a handful of people with wet feet and the dripping umbrella at the doorway or in the end of the pew. The pastor has prepared one of his best sermons. It has cost him great research, and he has been much in prayer while preparing it. He puts the sermon aside for a clear day and talks platitudes and goes home quite depressed, but at the same time feeling that he has done his duty. He did not realize that in that small audience there were at least two persons who ought to have had better treatment. One of those hearers was a man in a crisis of struggle with evil appetite. A carefully prepared discourse under the Divine blessing would have been to him complete victory. The fires of sin would have been extinguished, and his keen and brilliant mind would have been consecrated to the Gospel ministry, and he would have been a mighty evangel, and tens of thousands of souls would have, under the spell of his Christian eloquence, given up sin and started a new life, and throughout all the Heavens there would have been congratulation and hosanna, and after many ages of eternity had passed there would be celebration among the ransomed of what was accomplished one stormy Sunday in a church on earth under a mighty Gospel sermon delivered to 15 or 20 people. But the crisis I speak of was not properly met. The man in struggle with evil habit heard that stormy day no word that moved him. He went out in the rain uninvited and unhelped back to his evil way and down to his overthrow. Had it been a sunshiny Sabbath he would have heard something worth hearing. But the wind blew from a stormy direction that Sabbath day. That Gospel husbandman noticed it and acted upon its suggestion, and may discover some day his great mistake.

There was another person in that stormy Sunday audience that deserved something better from that pastor than extemporized nothingness. It was a mother who was half awakened to a sense of responsibility in regard to her household. She had begun to question herself as to whether it would not be better to introduce into her home a religion that would decide aright the destiny of her sons and daughters. Her home had so far been controlled only by worldly principles. She had dared the riots of the elements that morning, and had found her way to church, hoping to hear something that would help her to decide the domestic question which was to her a solicitude. A good, strong sermon under the Divine blessing would have led her into the kingdom of God and afterward her whole family. The children, whether they became farmers or mechanics or merchants or artists or men of learned profession or women at the head of households, would have done their work in a Christian way and after lives of usefulness on earth would have taken thrones in Heaven. It would have been a whole family saved for time and saved for eternity. But the pastor had adjourned the strong and effective discourse to a clear Sunday. The mother went home chilled in body, mind and soul, and concluded not to trouble herself or her household about the future, and to let to-morrow take care of itself and keep on doing as they had been doing. No God in that home. No religious consolation in time of bereavement. No formation of thorough Christian character in the lives of those growing up boys and girls. They will go out into the world to meet its vicissitudes without any sublime reenforcement of the Gospel. What a pity it was that he did not put down the manuscript of his well prepared sermon on the Bible if he preached from notes or pour it out of his soul if he had lodged it there through careful preparation! No. He allowed that opportunity, which could never return, to pass into eternity unimproved. He observed by the way the rain dashed against the windows of the parsonage and the windows of the church that the wind was from the east or the northeast, and he did not sow, or sowed that which was not worth sowing.

In all departments of life there are those hindered by the wind of public opinion. It has become an aphorism in politics and in all great movements: "He is waiting to see which way the wind blows." And it is no easy thing to defy public opinion, to be run down by newspapers, to be overhauled in social circles, to be anathematized by those who heretofore were your friends and admirers. It requires a heroism which few possess. Yet no great reformatory or elevating movement has ever been accomplished until some one was willing to defy what the world should think or say or do. But there have been men and women of that kind. They stand all up and down the corridors of history, examples for us to follow. Charles Sumner in the United States senate, Alexander H. Stephens in Georgia convention, Savonarola staking his life in time of persecution, Martin Luther fighting the battle for religious freedom against the mightiest anathemas that were ever hurled, William Carey leading the missionary movement to save a heathen world while churches denounced him as a fanatic and with attempting an impossibility; Jenner, the hero of medicine, caricatured for his attempt by vaccination to beat back the worst disease that smote the nations. They who watch the wind of public opinion will not sow. It is an uncertain indication and is apt to blow the wrong way.

How many there are who give too much time to watching the weather vane and studying the barometer! Make up your mind what you are going to do and then go ahead and do it. There always will be hindrances. It is a moral disaster if you allow prudence to overmaster all the other graces. The Bible makes more of courage and faith and perseverance than it does of caution. It is not once a year that the great ocean steamers fail to sail at the appointed time because of the storm signals. Let the weather bureau prophesy what hurricane or cyclone it may, next Wednesday, next Thursday, next Saturday, the steamers will put out from New York and Philadelphia and Boston harbors and will reach Liverpool and Southampton and Glasgow and Bremen, their arrivals as certain as their embarkation. They cannot afford to consult the wind, nor can you in your life voyage.

Young man, you have planned what you are going to be and do in the world, but you are waiting for circumstances to become more favorable. You are, like the farmer in the text, observing the wind. Better start now. Obstacles will help you if you conquer them. Cut your way through. Peter Cooper, the millionaire philanthropist, who will bless all succeeding centuries with the institution he founded, worked five years for $25 a year and his board. Henry Wilson, the Christian statesman who commanded the United States senate with the gavel of the vice presidency, wrote of his early days: "Want sat by my cradle. I know what it is to ask a mother for bread when she has none to give. I left my home at ten years of age and served an apprenticeship of—it years, receiving a month's schooling each year, and at the end of 11 years of hard work a yoke of oxen and six sheep, which brought me $84. In the first month after I was 21 years of age I went into the woods, drove a team and cut mill logs. I arose in the morning before daylight and worked hard till after dark and received the magnificent sum of six dollars for the month's work. Each of those dollars looked as large to me as the moon looks to-night." Wonderful Henry Wilson! But that was not his original name. He changed his name because he did not want on him the blight of a drunken father. As the vice president stood in my pulpit in Brooklyn, making the last address he ever made, and commended the religion of Christ to the young men of that city I thought to myself: "You yourself are the sublimest spectacle I ever saw of victory over obstacles." For 30 years the wind blew the wrong way, yet he did not observe the wind, but kept right on sowing.

Many of us who are now preachers of the Gospel or medical practitioners or members of the bar or merchants or citizens in various kinds of business had very poor opportunity at the start because we had it too easy—far too easy. We never appreciated what it is to get an education because our fathers or older brothers paid the schooling, and we did not get the muscle which nothing but hard work can develop. I congratulate you, young man, if to you life is a struggle. It is out of such circumstances God makes heroes, if they are willing to be made. Cut your way through. If it were proper to do so and you should stand in any board of bank directors, in any board of trade, in any legislature, state or national, and ask all who were brought up in luxury and ease to lift their hand, here and there a hand might be lifted. But ask those who had an awful hard time at the start to lift their hands, and most of the hands would be lifted. The heroes of church and state were not brought up on confectionery and cake.

But my subject takes another step. Through medical science and dentistry that has improved the world's mastication and stronger defense against climatic changes and better understanding of the laws of health human life has been greatly prolonged. But a centenarian is still a wonder. How many people do you know a hundred years old? I do not know one. We talk of a century as though it were a very long reach of time. But what is one century on earth compared with centuries that we are to live somewhere, somehow—ten centuries, a million centuries, a quintillion of centuries? We are all determined to get ready for the longer life we are to live after our exit from things sublunary. We are waiting for more propitious opportunity. We have too much business to attend to now or too much pleasure to allow anything to interfere with its brilliant progress. We are waiting until the wind blows in the right direction. We are going to sow, and sow the very best grain, and we are going to raise an eternal harvest of happiness. We like what you say about Heaven, and we are going there, and at the right time we will get ready. But my lungs are sound, my digestion is good, the examining physician of the life insurance company says my heart beats just the right number of times a minute, and I am cautious about sitting in a draft, and I observe all the laws of hygiene, and my father and mother lived to be very old, and I come of a long-lived family. So we adjourn and postpone until, like the farmer suggested by my text, we allow the seedtime to pass, and sudden pneumonia or a reckless bicycle or an ungoverned automobile puts us out of life with all its magnificent opportunities of deciding aright the question of everlasting residence. A Spanish proverb says: "The road of By and By leads to the town of Never."

Whether in your life it is a south wind or an east wind that is now blowing, do you not feel like saying: "This whole subject I now decide. Lord God, through Thy Son Jesus Christ, my Saviour, I am Thine forever. I throw myself, reckless of everything else, into the fathomless ocean of Thy mercy."

"But," says someone in a frivolous and rollicking way, "I am not like the farmer you find in your text. I do not watch the wind. What do I care about the weather vane? I am sowing now." What are you sowing, my brother? Are you sowing evil habits? Are you sowing infidel and atheistic beliefs? Are you sowing hatreds, revenges, discontents, unclean thoughts or unclean actions? If so, you will raise a big crop—a very big crop. The farmer sometimes plants things that do not come up, and he has to plant them over again. But those evil things that you have planted will take root and come up in harvest of disappointment, in harvest of pain, in harvest of despair, in harvest of fire. Go right through some of the the unhappy homes of Washington and New York and all the cities and through the hospitals and penitentiaries, and you will find stacked up, piled together, the sheaves of such an awful harvest. Hosea, one of the first of all the writing prophets, although four of the other prophets are put before him in the canon of Scripture, wrote an astounding metaphor that may be quoted as descriptive of those who do evil: "They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind." Someone has said: "Children may be strangled, but deeds never."

There are other persons who truthfully say: "I am doing the best I can. The clouds are thick and the wind blows the wrong way, but I am sowing prayers and sowing kindnesses and sowing helpfulness and sowing hopes of a better world." Good for you, my brother, my sister! What you plant will come up. What you sow will rise into a harvest the wealth of which you will not know until you go up higher. I hear the rustling of your harvest in the bright fields of Heaven. The soft gales of that Land, as they pass, bend the full headed grain in curves of beauty. It is golden in the light of a sun that never sets. As you pass in you will not have to gird on the sickle for the reaping, and there will be nothing to remind you of weary husbandmen toiling under hot summer sun on earth and lying down under the shadow of the tree at noontide, so tired were they, so very tired. No, no; your harvest will be reaped without any toil of your hands, without any beseeching of your brow. Christ in one of His sermons told how your harvest will be gathered when He said: "The reapers are the angels."

THE REAL BABYLON.

Interesting and Important Results of Recent German Expedition's Explorations.

Reports have just reached here of the extraordinarily successful results of the German exploration party on the site of ancient Babylon.

Dr. Koldewey, the leader of the expedition, declares that the description of the city by Herodotus is right in the main facts, but quite wrong as to its extent, says the London Mail.

According to Herodotus, Babylon was as large as Paris, London and Berlin combined. As a matter of fact, its real dimensions were equal to about one-fifth of the superficial area of London.

The walls of Babylon, Herodotus says, were of enormous size and thickness. This is not so, as the German archaeologists have proved.

The principal town was on the left bank of the Euphrates. It was built in the form of a triangle, the sides of which measured 4½, 3½ and 5½ kilometers. It was surrounded by still traceable walls. The diameter of the city was about 15 kilometers.

Much excavation has been accomplished, with the happiest result. Several buildings have been unearthed which are easily located in the Bible. One of these is the kasr or palace of Nebuchadnezzar. This is identical with the Schuana of ancient Scriptures. The New Year's day procession for the Temple of Marduk started from this point, and the king was obliged to accompany it on pain of the forfeiture of his throne.

The principal Babylonian temple, Amran, identical with the Egasila of the Scriptures, has also been discovered; also the road between Egasila and the citadel or palace of Schuana, called Ai-Bur-Shabou.

Imgur Bel and Nimiti Bel, the great Durani of Babylon, are not walls, as had been thought, but bastions.

The Babylon of the Bible is distinctly not the city, but the fortified palace or citadel of Nebuchadnezzar.

The hill Babil is probably the ruins of the celebrated hanging gardens of Semiramis. The tower of Babylon probably stood near the Temple of Marduk, on the spot now known as the hill Sikkurat.

Many extremely interesting finds have been made proving the extraordinary richness, elaboration and plenitude of the decoration of the palace.

Certain reconstruction and restoration will be reverently carried out under the direction of Dr. Koldewey, who expects to be many years at work.

THE FLORIDA RAZORBACK.

A Species of Swine That Is Possessed of Many Sterling Qualities.

The "Florida razorback" is the hog indigenous to this climate and soil, says the Forest and Stream. He is usually large of limb and fleet of foot, being the only known porker that can outrun a darky. He has a tail of wondrous length, which, while he is in active motion, he twists into the tightest corkscrew, but with which, while quietly feeding, he raps his leathery sides much in the same manner that a docile cow uses her tail. He is self-supporting. He earns his own living, and thrives equally well in the highwoods, in the flatwoods, in the hummocks and in the marshes. He subsists upon anything he can find above the earth or underneath its surface. He has a clear, far-seeing eye, and is very sensitive of hearing. Nature has equipped him with a snout almost as long as the beak of the wild pelican of Borneo, with which he can penetrate the earth many inches in quest of worms, snakes and insects. He is the most intelligent of all the hogs, and is likewise the most courageous. He has been known to engage in mortal combat with a coon for the possession of a watermelon, and to rend asunder a barbed wire fence.

He is so intelligent, that when he lives in the towns he becomes as familiar with the railroad schedules as are the train dispatchers themselves, and plies his vocation in great numbers about the railroad stations, and yet no train ever ran over a "razorback." Whenever the railroad companies are forced to pay for the killing of a hog, it always proves to be a Berkshire, a Guinea or some other fine breed—never a "razorback." He is too active and alert to be caught even by a locomotive. He is nervous, restless, energetic, and hence does not thrive well in pens. Confined he loses rather than gains flesh. He is always ripe for market, as his condition is as good in August as it is in January. His owner respects his intelligence, admires his nerve and is fond of him as food, for he may always be depended upon to afford the proverbial "streak of lean" with a very small "streak of fat." He is the king of hogs. He can be grown more profitably than any other known variety, since, as has been observed, he is energetic and intelligent enough to feed and clothe himself.

Real Excitement.

"Don't you sometimes feel like going to a theater or a ball game?"

"Never," answered Mr. Meekton.

"But don't you sometimes long for excitement?"

"Of course. That's only natural. When I do, I go with Henrietta to a department store or else stay home and watch her clean house."—Washington Star.

MILITARY DESPOTISM.

Ostensible Civil Government Resting Upon Half Concealed Bayonets for the Philippines.

Secretary Root, in an interview, sets forth clearly and distinctly the fact that the president's reliance for authority in the Philippines is solely upon the military power. Secretary Root's interview, which may be copied as the official interpretation of the president's present policy in the Philippines, says:

"In the Philippines the president has announced a distinct policy of governing the islands under his power as commander in chief of the army, with a constant regard for the rights of the people and with the determination, as rapidly as conditions would allow, to diminish the use of military agencies and increase the employment of civil representatives of his power. This policy will be adhered to, and will be extended, as occasion requires, to every branch of government in the islands."

The matter no less than the manner of this announcement is startling. The president relies upon his military power—"his" power, not the power of a constitutional popular government, nor even the power of congress as enlarged by Justice Brown's decision—but upon "his" power as a military dictator. The poor makeshift of the Spooner amendment, whereby congress attempted to abdicate its powers, is contemptuously brushed aside. The president will continue to rule as the man on horseback with the bayonet as his symbol and the Mauser rifle as his prime minister.

Of course, all will be done "with a constant regard for the rights of the people," and "with the determination to diminish the use of military agencies and increase the employment of civil representatives of his power." That goes without saying. George III. never intended to rely permanently upon the Hessians to carry out his plans for "the rights of the people" in the colonies; his idea also was, as far as feasible, to "increase the employment of civil representatives of his power." In fact, he did employ the civil representatives of his power until the people unreasonably demanded that their power be recognized, when he was obliged to resort to the military. It was the custom of Julius Caesar and of the Roman emperors, as soon as they had benevolently assimilated a conquered nation, to give it some form of civil government, subject to the power and caprice of the Roman ruler.

There is little to be chosen between a military despotism, pure and simple, and an ostensible civil government resting upon half-concealed bayonets, such as the empire of the third Napoleon, for instance—and, of the two, the military despotism, plain and undisguised, is the honester and in the end less destructive of liberty.

Could the secretary of war in any cabinet prior to President McKinley's have uttered such language as is attributed to Secretary Root without causing an instant investigation by congress, and, in case the president sanctioned these words, impeachment proceedings against the president as an intending usurper and subverter of our form of government? What is the matter with congress? Has patronage hopelessly corrupted the representatives of the people? Whither are we drifting?—Albany Argus.

TRUSTS AND TARIFF.

Without Protection the Monopolistic Combines Would Not Long Be in Existence.

In the discussion of the tariff and its creation, the trusts, which was the feature of the recent Washington session of the industrial commission, Congressman Taylor, of Ohio, submitted certain figures which were enlightening as bearing upon the monopoly combine system.

Mr. Taylor defended the Dingley tariff law, and had no remedy to suggest for abatement of the trust evil; yet he expressed himself as deeply apprehensive of the cost of the latter to the consuming public. He called especial attention to the recently organized steel trust, declaring that its securities now amount to $1,500,000,000, while its cost had not been one-third that amount. Nevertheless, asserted the Ohio congressman, the holders of those securities would demand returns upon them.

It is the purchasers of the products of the steel trust, and the laborers employed by the steel trust, who must pay to the holders of inflated steel trust securities the returns demanded. This will come from the consumer in the form of higher prices dictated by the trust, which absolutely controls all markets. It will come from the laborer in the employ of the steel trust in the form of lowered wages accepted at the dictation of the trust, which exercises a large control of the labor market. And just as the billion-dollar trust operates to the sore cost of the consumer and the laborer, so do the smaller trusts operate in their respective fields.

Congressman Taylor is either of defective vision in failing to get a full and wide view of the tariff and trust field, or else he has not the courage of his convictions and so declines to give them full expression. He should know that most of the trusts could not exist without the high tariff. He should know that the tariff continues to enrich the trusts at the expense of the people. He should know that the removal of the high protective tariff would also remove the trusts. And he should be brave enough to frankly confront the truth and work on the people's side.—St. Louis Republic.

TRICKSTERS IN TROUBLE.

Certain Republicans Are Raising a Row Over McKinley's Reciprocity Toy.

Representative Dalzell, who represents the gigantic industrial infants of Pennsylvania on the ways and means committee, is badly frightened.

When Mr. McKinley assured him that the Babcock bill and similar measures would amount to nothing he replied: "They will split the republican party. They amount to that much at least."

Therefore, Mr. Dalzell is urging all congressmen who look upon the Dingley fetich as too sacred to be touched to meet him in Washington, that they may take counsel together.

It is safe to say that Mr. McKinley himself is not so confident as he pretends to be. His outgivings for the past two years and more to the effect that we must seek foreign markets by means of reciprocity treaties show that he perceives the danger to the fetich. He sees that something must be done to pacify such republicans as Mr. Babcock, who are able to see the connection between monopoly combines and the tariff, and who think the people can see it and will make trouble unless something is done to remove the great bulwark of the confederated monopolies.

The McKinley plan for saving the Dingley tariff is to make a lot of reciprocity dickers and parade them before the people as the only thing to build up the export trade. His theory is that if the people are amused with reciprocity treatics and colonial toys they will think no more about the tariff-fattened combines and the Dingley tariff except as it is touched in spots by the treaties.

But Mr. Dalzell and his like are no better pleased with reciprocity treaties than they are with Babcock bills. They regard both as wicked devices of the enemy of sacred Dingleyism. Besides, they perceive that men like Mr. Babcock are not going to rest content with the reciprocity mode of favoritism, because they know that manufacturers who can export their products and sell them under the very noses of their most formidable rivals do not need protection at all.

The McKinley attempt to substitute reciprocity treaties of more than doubtful constitutionality for the removal of duties which serve only to enable their beneficiaries to exact far more from Americans than they are glad to get from foreigners will not work.

It will not satisfy the Dalzell protectionists, who mean to fight to the death against reduction of duties in any degree or manner. It will not satisfy such republicans as Mr. Babcock, who do not believe that those who need no protection should have a tariff to shield them in robbing their own countrymen while supplying foreigners at competitive prices. It will not satisfy the victims of the tariff-buttressed combines—victims who cannot be kept in ignorance of the fact that they are forced to pay from $15 to $20 for an article which the same American manufacturer sells to foreigners for ten dollars.

The president's reciprocity toy will not satisfy anybody, because it will not fool anybody. Republicans who want a tariff for protection stand face to face with republicans who want a tariff for robbery only. The conflict between them is irrepressible.

No reciprocity dickers or jugglery of adroit politicians can reconcile them or avert the impending struggle for mastery.—Chicago Chronicle.

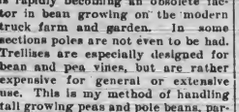
PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

——The American solider will be given the opportunity to still further acclimate himself to the climate of Cuba.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

——Whatever the president may think, the trusts have too great a hold upon the machinery which governs the republican party to permit any change in the law which has been declared by competent authority to be their mother.—Johnstown Democrat.

——As a matter of fact McKinley has shown more imperialism than Grant did, but the country is becoming more accustomed to it, and there is some delusion in the fact that McKinley is not a military man. It is very probable that the republican nomination can be secured for him.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

——If Mr. McKinley is the protectionist that he once was why does he never say so himself? He has carefully avoided the issue in all his recent state papers and was very reticent about it during his canvass for reelection. The plain fact is that imperialism and the "protective principle" are two things that do not belong in the same wash. Mr. McKinley had to give up either the one or the other, and he has done so with all the grace and dexterity of a finished politician.—Boston Globe.



——Mr. Hanna is reported to have said that he does not expect any great change to be made in the Dingley tariff bill by the next congress and the administration is said to be opposed to any such change. These expressions are entirely natural. There is in the republican party a disposition to change the tariff laws, and if some opposition is not shown the cut made might be very deep. Hence, these words of opposition are merely in the nature of a move to prevent radicalism in dealing with the favorite law of the republican party. The people of this country will not submit to a law which results in foreigners being charged less for American goods than an American is charged. And no one knows this better than the republican party. Its ear is never a foot from the ground.—Dallas (Tex.) News.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

STRONG BEAN TRELLIS.

On Modern Truck Farms and Gardens It Has Supplanted the Pole of Days Gone By.

The old-fashioned bean pole has or is rapidly becoming an obsolete factor in bean growing on the modern truck farm and garden. In some sections poles are not even to be had. Trellises are especially designed for bean and pea vines, but are rather expensive for general or extensive use. This is my method of handling tall growing peas and pole beans, particularly limas. The first essential is to have perfectly straight rows. To insure this, stretch a garden line over finely prepared soil, and lima beans are placed by hand, eye down, every eight or ten inches along the line, holding and pressing in the bean with the thumb and forefinger and covering lightly by a simple, single movement of the three remaining fingers.

After cultivating and hoeing once or twice, solid posts are set at both ends of the row, two to three feet deep, depending upon the length of row and possible amount of prospective strain, and from six to seven feet high. These end posts are braced with double strand of No. 8 or 9 wire, running from top of post to an imbedded anchor of stone or chunk of wood or post driven into the ground at an angle of about four to six feet from posts. Stakes or posts are placed at intervals of from 30 to 50 feet along the row, same height of end posts. A No. 11 wire is then run through, first at the top, fastening on each of center stakes with wire staple, loosely driven, secured at one end and made perfectly tight with fence or wire stretcher. A second run of wire is placed on bottom of posts six to eight inches from the ground. Grape or light wool twine, either two or three ply, is now put on these wires from bottom to top and fastened with loop or knot, which are six inches apart to prevent shifting, as shown in lower figure. The strand over "1" in word knot is passed up back of wire, brought over above, then in front, under and up, back and up over in front and between line wire and the first circle over.

Most of the vines will get hold of the strings without training and any that do not may readily be placed on the twine by hand. Hoeing and horse cultivation may be carried on until beans come in bloom. Rows should be four feet apart. The pods are more easily gathered from this arrangement than from poles. The original cost is but little more than poles, while the galvanized wire will last a lifetime. Peas may be grown on this plan as well as beans. Twine and dead vines should be stripped from wires at the end of season and wire coiled for another year.—R. M. Winans, in Farm and Garden.

SORTING APPLES PAYS.

A Fact Which Intelligent Fruit Growers Should Bear in Mind All the Year Around.

Market peculiarities have to be met and their demands satisfied. The man that sells apples should always sort them, for he will find a readier market for the different sizes if sorted than if sold together. No one appears to fancy a lot of little and big apples in the same lot. Buyers are governed by different motives in their purchases. Some well-to-do buyers want a uniform lot of large apples of good color, and will pay an advanced price for them. But many people prefer apples of medium size or below providing they are well-colored. This is especially true of the heads of families of children, where apples are purchased in quantities of a peck at a time. A peck of big apples is soon used up, while a peck of medium-sized or small apples will last longer and give the children more satisfaction. The purchasers of these apples prefer them even at the same price they might have to pay for the large ones. Another very large class of people purchase small apples. They are the keepers of boarding houses and hotels, and the purchases by these people are very large in quantity. The boarding house keeper knows that, as a general thing, each guest will eat only one apple, whether large or small, and as a matter of economy the small fruit is purchased. These things show the necessity of sorting all fruit like apples.—Farmers' Review.

Fighting the Cabbage Worm.

The cabbage worm is hatched from an egg laid by the white butterfly. Numerous remedies have been proposed, but the best method is to destroy as many of the butterflies as possible. Hot water, saltpeter, black pepper, etc., have not given satisfactory results. The kerosene emulsion will prevent attack, but it leaves an odor on the cabbage. For a small patch insect powder is excellent, but it must be used frequently. Paris green is used, but consumers object, fearing its poisonous effects, though it is claimed as a safe remedy.

LOOKING FOR NOVELTIES.

Uncle Sam Constantly Introduces New Fruits and Vegetables from Foreign Countries.

Have you ever eaten a crosne, a stachys or a vegetable marrow?

These are some of the new fruits and vegetables which the agricultural department is about to introduce into the United States.

Some time ago congress appropriated $20,000 to collect valuable fruits and vegetables in foreign countries. An expedition was sent to Italy and other Mediterranean countries in search of new foods.

The vegetable marrow is the most familiar of the lot. It is a sort of summer squash and looks like a large green cucumber. It is eaten before it is fully ripe, and is digestible. The department suggests that it should be served with meat. The finest marrows come from Algeria.

One of the most important finds was the crosne, a little-known French vegetable. It comes originally from Japan and looks like a string of large beads. These beads or tubers are two or four inches long and about as large as one's finger. The plant is boiled or fried and served with meat. It is extremely hardy and will grow in any ground.

A new variety of strawberry was also found. It is known as the "large-fruited, ever-bearing strawberry." Ordinary berries will yield only a few weeks, while the new variety will produce for months from the same stems.

A new muskmelon has been brought from Smyrna which is said to be superior in sweetness and flavor to any thing in this country.

An attempt is also to be made to introduce the pistache nut into general use. In Italy this nut is more popular than the walnut.

Several superior varieties of asparagus, lettuce and onions were also brought back from Europe.—N. Y. World.

HINTS FOR GARDENERS.

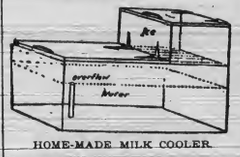
Sugar corn planted the latter half of June generally finds an empty market and sale at profitable prices. It may follow peas or other early market garden crops.

Green clover makes an ideal mulch for raspberries and blackberries. Spread it two feet each side of row, sufficiently deep to cover the soil and keep it moist. This is only practical on small patches.

For the green pea louse Thorburn's catalogue recommends spraying or sprinkling the vines freely with cold water. We have always noticed that lice thrive in dry weather, but are scarce in wet seasons.

One very effective way to check the ravages of the stinking squash bug is to search for him and murder him on sight. You will find the oval, golden yellow eggs in clusters on underside of leaves; destroy them also.

A circular issued by Burpee, the well-known seedsman, states that maggots can be kept from destroying onions by sprinkling along the rows of growing plants sand scented with kerosene. Stir half pint of oil into ten quarts of sand.



The toad is the truckers' friend and should not be molested in the garden or field. Fully nine-tenths of its food consists of insects that are injurious to plants. We should forgive our friend for taking in the other tenth that is beneficial to our crops.

The timely and proper cultivation of sweet potatoes by horse power renders hand hoeing unnecessary. It is an expensive mistake for a grower of this crop to neglect cultivation until weeds get such a start that pulling by hand and hoeing must be resorted to.—Farm Journal.

CHEAP MILK COOLER.

Anyone Having Some Old Brick and a Small Amount of Ingenuity Can Build One.

A few years ago, being in need of a tank for cooling milk in cans, and finding that a metallic or wooden tank would be quite costly, I built a room 6x8 feet in one corner of a small ice house. The walls between the room and ice were double boarded and packed with sawdust. Then I built a tank of brick across one end of the small room and cased it up with matched boards. The cut shows the framework of the chest. Any one having old brick and a small amount of ingenuity can build one at a very small cost. It does its work as well as an ice chest costing much more.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Beans Do Well in Sod.

A Michigan reader asks me whether white beans will grow well in sod. A good clover sod is always one of the best soil conditions preparatory to such crops as corn, potatoes and beans. Corn usually does first-rate on newly turned sod. I usually plow the sod land in the fall, and then work it up with pulverized (disk), spring-tooth harrow, etc., in spring. Sometimes cutworms will be very bad in sod ground, but by planting plenty of seed we can always succeed in getting a full stand. Usually I prefer to plant corn as a first crop after the sod has been turned over, and beans or potatoes afterward. But I see no reason why white beans should not do all right on a freshly turned sod.—Farm and Fireside.

Happy and merry on 36 cents a day! There are plenty of people in Louisville, says the Courier-Journal, who not only live on that sum, but eke out others' existence.

As the editor of the Greenville (Tex.) Banner was returning home from Farmersville, whither he had gone on an invitation to deliver a lecture on law and order, he was mobbed and severely beaten by those who did not like his lecture or speech.

A VERITABLE WHITE CITY.

For three months in the winter Archangel, now to become the great western port of Russia, scarcely sees the sun, and for three months in the summer seldom loses sight of it. Yet there is no city in the whole of Europe which lies for so many months—for the greater part of the year, in fact—under a mantle of snow; and because of this, the Russian fondly calls it "The White City," says Pearson's Magazine.

White, too, it is in other ways. All the chief buildings glare with white paint and blink with white blinds. The churches—and in a Russian city they are not few—are also of pure white; only the cupolas are green, and the crosses on their summits gold. And white are the private houses of the better sort—except where Norwegians and Germans live, for buff and blue and red then streak and disper the pine walls and edge of the gable ends. But street posts, gates, pillars, walls, fences—these are all white. And in the summer, for every official you see in a blue or a gray tunic, you see ten in white caps and white uniforms.

Bright color alone is left to the women and children; pink blouses, green skirts, scarlet petticoats, orange aprons, and blue kerchiefs are common enough; while a group of children will always look like a cluster of old English flowers. But otherwise, in summer as in winter, this old city of Archangel, now destined to be the capital of a new Russia in the near west, is a White city indeed.

He thinks he lives, but he's a dead one. No person is really alive whose liver is dead. During the winter most people spend nearly all their time in warm, stuffy houses or offices or workshops. Many don't get as much exercise as they ought, and everybody knows that people gain weight in winter. As a rule it is not sound weight, but means a lot of flabby fat and useless, rotting matter staying in the body when it ought to have been driven out. But the liver was overburdened, deadened—stopped work. There you are, with a dead liver, and right now is the time for resurrection. Wake up the dead! Get all the filth out of your system, and get ready for the summer's trials with clean, clear blood, body, brain free from bile. Force is dangerous and destructive unless used in a gentle persuasive way, and the right plan is to give new strength to the muscular walls of the bowels, and stir up the liver to new life and work with CASCARETS, the great spring cleaner, disinfectant and bowel tonic. Get a 50c box to-day—a whole month's treatment—and see how quickly you will be Messers. Joe. Reed and Harrison Noel started last week for a trip to Nebraska. Success attend them.

Miss Lula Jones has been the delighted hostess, during the past week, of the charming sisters, Misses Jessie and Bessie Allison, of Washington, Mason county. To any one acquainted with the attractiveness of Mason's fair daughters, it was not surprising that these beautiful girls created such a profound social sensation. It was only natural; to behold was to appreciate them.

The novel features of this function is bound to draw a big crowd and a grand time is anticipated. Ladies must wear calico dresses, or be fined 5 cents for failure to do so. Gentleman must wear ties of calico and bring a thimble, or be fined 10 cents for each omission. A prize will be awarded for the largest and best carpet ball made that evening. Dr. C. C. Metcalfe, Sleet Yarnell and Watson Dyas had a mind to recreate on the banks of the Ohio after the manner of the disciples of Izaak Wilson, and in pursuance of their scheme provided themselves with a gay, young colt of the Hamilton sand bar. Along in the afternoon of the day of their departure a noise was heard as the rattle of distant rifle firing by platoons far down the Lexington road. People turned out to see what was the matter (no trains being due). Soon the prancing form of the fisher of men lumbered into view and the people roared and shouted. No fish—not even a bite. The river, (not themselves, and their snake stories confirm it) was too full. They had a tent along, but had not set it up, but took shelter in a deserted house and swapt repose. But repose there was none. An army of bugs confronted them, advancing in column and en echelon, they engaged them at close quarters and keeping them engaged the whole enduring night. Life was anything but a dream to them. There were no fish stories.

Mr. Wallace Rouse has kindly furnished a copy of the notices about building the public cisterns which is herewith subjoined:

The three large cisterns to have eight inch arch walls and the small one four inch wall. The person receiving the contract is to furnish all material, and build and complete cisterns with 20 inch street cistern rings and four inch inlet pipes. Said contractor must use good cistern brick and Black Diamond cement and must guarantee cisterns to hold. The dirt will be removed by the town. Bids to be in by July 1, 1901. The trustees reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Meeting of Ky. State Grange.

The Order of Patrons of Husbandry will meet at Burlington, Boone county, Ky., July 17th and 18th, for the purpose of reorganizing State Grange. The sixth degree will be conferred by W. National Master, Aaron Jones. This is a very beautiful and impressive degree and with full regalia procured from Indiana State Grange for this occasion, no P. of H. in the county should neglect to embrace the opportunity extended to take this degree and see the work in six degrees exemplified at this meeting. The Order in this State is now on a sure footing and there is no reason why it should not in a short time resume its former position in the front ranks among its sister States. Any fourth degree member in good standing can attend, but only those having taken the fifth degree are entitled to the sixth. Be sure and attend the Pomona Grange at Hebron, Saturday, June 29, and receive fifth degree. This will be the last chance to take the fifth degree before meeting of State Grange. It cost $1 to take sixth degree, but you pay no individual dues to State Grange. There will be an evening session July 17th—the degree will probably be conferred then.

So, come with baskets prepared for dinner and supper, and remain for evening session, and assist in making the first meeting of State Grange in Boone county a success.

Cincinnati Tobacco Market.

Firmness and vigor were the chief characteristics of the Burley market last week. The offerings were principally of medium and good to fine tobacco and all were in first-class condition. There was no fancy tobacco offered, but prices ruled high on all sorts that did make their appearance. Anything with color predominated, and increased in activity as the week went along. The closing sale on Friday was the most enthusiastic of the week, as high prices were realized on only medium Tobaccos.

Trashes and Lugs were higher in the fore part of the week, but eased off a little toward the end, closing firm at last week's prices. Tips were in good demand, as was all Medium to Good Tobacco, and high prices on these grades were realized. The better grades were spuringly offered, but sold well in all instances. Most all the the Tobacco was bid off by the manufactures, very little speculative buying being done.

It would be well for those offering Tips and Trashes that they be in dry condition, since the buyers demand them so. Anything that suggests softness is sure to fall off a bid or two. What is said of Tips and Trashes also holds good of all other kinds of Leaf.

BRADFORD BROS.,

FLORENCE, - - KENTUCKY.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels, B grade, with celebrated Gotier steel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Winchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and pattern, which I claim has no equal. The body will be good, seasoned yellow poplar; sills and rises good seasoned ash and hickory—not Cottonwood as the factories are now using. Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them bursting out, something I guarantee my work not to do.

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters bulled, not split, roof and curtains 30 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be something neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would ask the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 69, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of T. J. Childress' toll-gate.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 3, 1901. NO. 37.

TOMORROW is the day to celebrate.

KENTON county can now cool off politically.

THE grain harvest is now on in every direction, and an average crop is being saved.

IT is seldom that this country experiences as long a hot period as that which has prevailed during the past month.

ALL sorts of rumors as to what will be the final outcome of the close finish in the county clerk's race in Kenton, last Saturday, are rife.

SUNDAY was a record breaker in the matter of heat, the mercury being a degree or two above 100. It takes a good instrument to stand such pressure.

The East Bend Grange gave a very successful festival at J. J. Stephens', one night last week. The attendance was large. The E. B. Grange is a live organization.

A MICHIGAN physician claims to have discovered the secret of life and is able to forestall decay. The wonderful work he professes to accomplish in prolonging life is by means of electricity.

CONSIDERABLE interest in the Kenton county primary election was manifested on this side of the line. This was on account of the extensive acquaintance of several of the candidates in Boone.

THE catalogues for the next fair at Florence are being distributed. Obtain one and select the premiums for which you desire to compete. There are several very liberal premiums that will gladden the hearts of some people.

THE Good Roads convention held at Louisville, last week, ought to result in good, as there is no State in the union that affords a better field for an improvement in the public highways. Kentucky is far behind her neighbors in that particular.

BURLINGTON had not been heard from when the report was sent abroad last Monday morning that St. Louis was the hottest town in the United States the day before. In Burlington the thermometer registered 102, being two degrees better performance than is claimed for the Missouri city.

THE Democratic Committee for this Judicial District will meet at Sparta, Gallatin county, next Friday, to decide upon the time, place and manner of nominating a candidate for Circuit Judge to be voted for at the November election. So far as known Judge Lassing is the only candidate.

THE Fiscal Court was in session yesterday, and discussed the smallpox condition in the county thoroughly, deciding not to prepare a pest house at present, and empowered the County Judge and County Attorney to take such action as may appear to them necessary in the event there are any more cases in the county. It is evident that if it becomes necessary to have a pest house the old poor-house will be fitted up for that purpose.

THE grand jury in Covington returned several indictments, last Saturday afternoon, that created a big sensation. One of the indictments is against Justus Goebel, charging that he procured the appointment of Jerry Kirtley to the position of city auditor in consideration of Kirtley paying to him $50 a month of the salary. The other indictment is against the Covington aldermen and councilmen for official wrong-doings.

THE Kenton county Democrats nominated the following ticket at their primary election last Saturday: State Senator, Joseph L. Rhinock; Representative, first district, S. W. Adams; second, J. F. Coleman; third, J. A. Averdick; County Judge, M. T. Shine; Assessor, M. Abele; County Attorney, F. M. Tracy; Sheriff, M. D. McInery; Jailer, John Maurer; Coroner, W. W. Tarvin; Supt. Schools, E. P. Rankin. The race for County Clerk between Jameson and Davezac was very close, the former winning by 27 votes, in a vote of over 6,000. Davezac has given notice of contest.

Farmers' Cheap Fertilizer.

Clover has long stood at the head of the list of fertilizers for farmers, but its cheapness is sometimes a disputed point. I have seen cases where clover was anything but a cheap fertilizer. When you get a poor stand of clover it is not cheap, but expensive far more so than if one bought commercial fertilizers outright. Clover has its place in the farm economy, and if properly used it does well. But not too much value should be set by it. If the land is right for clover, and one can get a good stand, it is a cheap fertilizer, and every farmer should make it a point to use it. But the cheapness is one of relative importance, and it cannot be said to be the best and cheapest fertilizer even in the majority of cases.

Personally, I think cowpeas where they can be raised, is a cheaper fertilizer, and likely to give the best all-round satisfaction. We all talked about the value of clover for this purpose before we knew much about cow peas. Now our ideas and methods are being revolutionized. We are raising more cow peas and less clover proportionately. And yet every now and then you will hear some farmer say that cow peas are now raised in the North by intelligent farmers. I heard it the other day from an otherwise good farmer. No, he was not otherwise a good farmer though apparently successful. In the same breath he said he never raised ensilage, and didn't think it was much better for the stock than so much stale molasses. Now, the opinion of such a man is hardly worth quoting, except to show that some are so thoroughly opposed to any innovation that they will shut their eyes to everything modern.

Cow peas are raised more and more every season in the North, and they are rapidly becoming the farmer's cheap fertilizer. They are crowding out clover in this respect, and they will eventually make our farming more profitable. Cow peas furnish nearly twice as much forage for live stock as clover, and when harvested they leave the field in better condition for other crops. Moreover, cow peas will grow on land which is unsuitable to clover, and where many grain crops only sparingly grow. Stock likes cow peas, and will sometimes eat them in preference to the best clover hay, and I think they will show up as good results from any point of view as a continuous food.—W. E. Edwards, Illinois.

OWEN COUNTY.

[Herald.]

Owenton is going to have an ice plant. The money is being subscribed to build a dam and the project seems an assured success.

Hon. T. J. Jenkins, of the New Liberty Baptist Church, has been a Christian 63 years, a Sunday School teacher 51 years, a deacon 50 years, and moderator of the church and Concord Association 36 years.

It will be remembered that some three years ago we referred to the fact that there were strong indications of oil on the premises of Mr. B. F. Doty. He has decided to bore to the depth of 2,000 feet, if necessary, and has $2,000 waiting for the party who will undertake the job for that amount. He means business and no one need be surprised to soon hear that Owenton is in the list of Kentucky oil towns.

Quite a curiosity in the shape of small worms was that seen in the courthouse yard last Friday. They came out of a small hole in the ground and after they got well started on their march formed a rope some thirty feet in length and several inches in thickness. Nobody seemed to know the particular species to which they belonged, but the supposition is that in a short time they will turn to a million or more pestiferous flies.

Judge J. M. Lassing, who is holding Circuit Court here, is making a splendid impression upon our people by the manner in which he takes hold of the work. He certainly understands his business and goes about it in an earnest and energetic way. If he does not make one of the best Judges the district ever had then his closest friends will be much mistaken in their estimate of him. It is not at all probable that he will have any opposition for the place in November.

STATE NEWS.

Benjamin F. Meek, aged 84, one of the original makers of the famous Frankfort fishing reel, is dead.

The Town Marshal at Dover has been instructed to arrest all persons heard using profane language on the street.

Rev. R. D. Divans, of the Northern Methodist church, at Nicholasville, was fined $5 and cost for breach of the peace.

The Louisville Medical College was sold for a mortgage of $15,000. The building cost $100,000, and was bid in for $37,500.

A seven-year-old son of Richard Collier, a Millstone farmer, was bitten by a rattlesnake while picking berries. He cannot survive.

M. E. Ryan, a harness maker of Bowling Green, drank carbolic acid by mistake, thinking it was whisky, and death quickly resulted.

Leslie Parker, a farmer of Bath county, was struck on the right knee by lightning, which tore off his shoe, and seriously injured him.

Mrs. Lizzie Johnson, a widow, of Whitesburg, struck her young nephew on the head with a stick of stove wood, inflicting a fatal wound.

Robert Frail, a young man of Simpson county, was killed while harnessing a mule. He became entangled in the harness and was dragged for one and a half miles.

Elmer Reasor, a four-year-old boy of Shelby county, was playing with a young colt, when the mother of the animal became enraged, and attacking the boy, kicked him to death before assistance could be rendered.

The Court of Appeals decided that, although household goods of a person with a family, the goods not to exceed $250 in value, is exempt from taxation, still these goods may be sold for taxes which the owner may owe on other property.

The administrator of Walter Martin, recently killed by lightning at Stanford, has brought suit against the Cumberland Telephone Company for $20,000 damages, alleging that it was because of the company's carelessness in not providing safeguards that the bolt of lightning was conducted to where the victim sat.

Dr. J. O. Robinson, Representative from Franklin county, is drafting a bill to be introduced in the next session of the Legislature providing for a tax of $2 to be levied on each dog owned in the State. The proceeds of the bill will be applied to a fund to reimburse persons who have suffered loss from sheep-killing dogs. He will also introduce a bill providing a penalty for using paris green on tobacco for the purpose of killing insects.

The report of State Insurance Commissioner, John B. Chenault, for the year 1900 shows that during that time the thirty life insurance companies doing business in the State received as premiums $5,325,689.60, and paid out to policy holders $2,171,840,37. Policies numbering 264,658 were written, insuring holders to the amount of $153,815,572. The premiums of the fire and marine companies amounted to $3,009,607,00, and the losses were $1,706,496,11. The rate of the loss was nearly 57 per cent.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals denied Caleb Power's petition for a rehearing and modification of the former opinion which gave him a new trial, except that the court says on the next trial witness H. Keller may testify as to whether or not witness D. H. Sinclair told him that he (Sinclair) had been promised a good office to testify in the Goebel case. On the first trial Sinclair said he had not been so promised and the defense was not permitted to prove or attempt to prove by Keller that Sinclair had said the office was promised him.

A farmer, who lives on the Lexington pike, four miles from town, bought ten dead sheep recently, paying four dollars a carcas for them, and then turned around and presented the sheep to the fellow from whom he had purchased them. The young hounds of the first man had killed them and when the other rode by and said he was "looking for sheep killing dogs," the owner of the hounds said: "You need go no further, my pups came home two nights ago with wool in their teeth; here's forty dollars; is it enough?" The money was accepted, and though two of the dogs had cost their owner $35 he shot them.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

Crop and Stock.

Wm. Vest, of Grant county, had 45 sheep killed by one stroke of lightning.

In Mercer, lightning killed a fine thoroughbred imported Wagner mare, valued at $500, belonging to W. D. Moore, of Boyle.

R. C. Gatewood and J. S. Bogie have sold to Spears Bros. of Paris, 20,000 bushels of bluegrass seed, last and this season's crops, at fifty cents a bushel, July and August delivery.—Mt. Sterling Gazette.

Recent local rains have done much damage to the tobacco crops in Robertson county. Whole fields of tobacco have been washed out. The scarcity of plants will prevent many from resetting their destroyed crops.

Farming in the vicinity of Dallas, Tex., pay $2 a day and board for hands to hoe corn and chop cotton. The grade of first-class mules that last year sold in Dallas at $150 per span cannot now be purchased at $200 per span.

Cultivate corn and don't kill time; kill weeds rather than time. Use good common sense when to cultivate corn and when to stay out of the corn field. Six o'clock in the morning ought to find a man in the field, and if he has worked as he should during the day, six in the evening ought to find him dropping the tugs for the day. Keep teams and tools in good condition and don't forget the man behind the plow. Let the boy see some daylight when he is not compelled to work hard. Getting things in readiness for making hay may also be in season right now.

The Kansas State Agricultural College has just sold in Kansas City 126 calves 12 months old. These calves were taken at weaning time and put in feed lots and fed the same as fattening steers are usually fed. They gained an average of 400 pounds each and held at the top market price. The remarkable feature of this experiment is that it required only 500 pounds of feed, while in ordinary feeding 1,000 lbs corn are required for 100 pounds of beef. On this account this experiment promises to bring about a radical change in the methods of producing beef on Kansas farms.

Live Stock Notes.

Salt and ashes aid digestion in swine.

A clear place for swine is a prime necessity.

There are many good plants for swine pasture.

One litter a year is enough for the young sow.

Lice rarely infect hogs that have plenty of sulphur.

The boar should not be of big, long extremities and small body.

The cleaner the feed and the feeding places the better the pork made.

A healthy hog's stomach is as regular as clockwork in demanding food.

The pig will give a better return for the food consumed than any other animal.

In the keeping of swine a degree of cleanliness is always attended with profit.

Stick to the Jersey cattle and Duroc Jersey swine and you will win out O. K.

A good pasture of a few acres will prove the best paying acre on the farm

Young pigs cannot do well when they are forced to sleep in wet and cold beds.

Every swine breeder should have ample pasture for the pigs, with abundant clean water.

Hogs will fatten faster if confined in rather close quarters and fed often.

Brood sows require food, rich in the elements of bones and muscle; corn is not suitable as it contains an excess of fat.

Sheep husbandry will always be regarded as one of the great industries which are at once an incident and a leading factor in the prosperity of every civilized country.

Grain when used in reasonable quantities is all right, but many a good lamb's growth has been ruined and many a mature sheep killed through ignorance of the proper use of same.

Admitting that fat sheep are the most tempting to butchers and dealers, the man who owns the sheep is the man who should determine when he should sell and what he will sell.

Don't for a moment think of breeding from a ram deficient back of the shoulder. We get a very large per cent. of lambs defective at that point even when sired by symmetrical animals.

FUNNY STORIES.

Help a dog out of a ditch and no matter what kind of a dog he is—town dog, country dog, educated or illiterate, aristocratic or plebian—he will wag his tail to paralysis and exhaust every drop of blood in his veins at your command. Help a man out of a ditch and what follows depends very much on his breed. The more we see of a great many men the better we like dogs.—Ex.

An animal will seldom go near enough to a barbed-wire fence to be badly damaged by it, if led up to it when first put out, and allowed to learn how sharp the barbs are by a slight prick from them, which will do no real damage. But sometimes one will push another against it. The greatest danger is from a barbed-wire that is not in place, but has become detached from the post and has a part of its length lying on the ground to entangle the legs of any animal or person walking along and not noticing. See that all such fences are made safe before any animals are let out there.

Indiana has, so far as known and what is claimed by its owners to be the only regularly conducted and carefully cultivated snake farm in the U. S. if not in the world. On this farm snakes are to be raised for commercial purposes with the same care and precision as are hogs and cattle now raised.

There are instances of snakes having been bred and raised simply as specimens, but never before to go on the market like other farm products. For two years the Wiseman brothers, living on a farm 10 miles east of Farnkfort, have been experimenting with reptiles of various kinds, with a view to raising them for profit, and they are now preparing to put the results of their experiments into practice. Last year they inclosed a two-acre tract especially prepared and devoted it to the propagation of snakes, confining their breeds to four or five species, to determine which could be raised with the greatest comparative profit. The kind of snakes which they have in their ten-acre field or "farm" this year indicates that they have decided upon the common "garter" snake, and what is generally known as the "house" snake. The Messers. Wiseman say they intend to grow the snakes for the oil which can be extracted from their bodies, and that their experiments show the two species named show the best results, being, of quick growth and having short, fat bodies. They say a snake, when properly fed and cared for, will show the best results in producing oil when three months of age. They claim that there is a ready demand for several times as much snake oil as the world now produces.

They have now nearly 400 snakes of the kinds mentioned, nearly all female, and expect to have several thousand of each kind before the close of the summer.

A Stormy Month.

Prof. Hicks says a combination of astronomic events out of the ordinary falls on and about the opening of July. The opposition of the planet Jupiter falls on June 30th, and the opposition of Saturday falls on July 5th. The storm period central on July 3 will bring a series of very active storms prevailing probably from 1st to 6th.

Reactionary storm conditions will exist on the 8th to 10th, continuing probably over the 11th. Falling barometer, rising temperature and winds from east and south will precede the actual storms and precipitation.

The central storm period for July falls from the 13th to the 18th. The crisis of this period will fall from Sunday, the 14th, to Wednesday, the 18th.

More or less rain, with probable cloudburts, hail and dangerous winds need not surprise anyone during the storm period which is central on the 26th. One of the warmest terms of the summer may be expected in connection with this period, and many storm clouds with severe thunder gusts will be natural about Thursday, the 26th, to Sunday, the 28th. Destructive hail storms are more than probable at this period.

The last two days of the month, with full moon and Venus at the center of her disturbing period, are reactionary storm dates. On and touching these days the barometer, thermometer and wind currents will show a return of storm condition.

State Taxation.

The total amount of taxes to be collected in Kentucky this year by the County Sheriffs is $2,799,360,-52 on an assessment of $558,707,-480, the equalized value of taxable property in the State. The increase in assessments this year amounts to $9,623,946.

The twelve largest tax-paying counties stand in the following order with Clark seventh in the list, and with the amount of taxes each will pay this year:

Jefferson, $616,155,74; Kenton, $147,930,21; Fayette, $143,481,70; Campbell, $88,325,91; Bourbon, $61,618,82; Daviess, $55,983,75; Clark, $43,009,74; Madison, $42,595,07; Christian, $42,310,03; Scott, $40,-362,54; Woodford, $39,850,35; Shelby, $39,035,26.

The equalized assessed value of Clark county is $9,055,683.

The county in the State paying the least amount of taxes is Minifee, the assessed value of which is $508,032 and amount of her taxes is $2,413,15.

The county paying the next smallest amount of taxes is our neighbor, Powell county, which is assessed at $666,979 and pays in taxes $3,168,15.—Winchester Sun.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

We believe that this community, which is rich in fertile soil, overlies vast riches in gas and oil. When the well at the blue lick was bored gas was found, but not in paying quantities, at a depth of a few hundred feet. A short distance below that the vein of blue lick water was struck and work was suspended, as a good thing was found—something that our citizens have greatly enjoyed. Another well was sunk on the Jno. F. Hill farm in the outskirts of town and was also abandoned after getting a trace of gas. In our opinion if that well was bored deeper, or others sunk, that it would be found that oil in paying quantities would be developed. Has anyone got the nerve to make up the stock to try it?—Carrollton News.

Mitchell Richardson, of Topkinsville is held under $1,000 bond for sending alleged obscene matter through the mails. He answered the advertisement of a man who wanted a wife, sending a few warm ones. When the dupe discovered the hoax he complained to the authorities.

COMMENDABLE ANGER

Talmage on How to Be Angry and Still Sin Not.

Discriminates Between the Offense and the Offender—We Should Be Indignant at One and Pity the Other.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

A delicate and difficult duty is by Dr. Talmage in this discourse urged upon all, and especially upon those given to quick temper; text, Ephesians iv., 26: "Be ye angry and sin not."

Equipose of temper, kindness, patience, forbearance, are extolled by most of the radiant pens of inspiration, but my text contains that which at first sight is startling. A certain kind of anger is approved—aye, we are commanded to indulge in it. The most of us have no need to cultivate high temper, and how often we say things and do things under affronted impulse which we are sorry for when perhaps it is too late to make effective apology! Why, then, should the apostle Paul dip his pen in the ink horn and trace upon parchment, afterward to be printed upon paper for all ages, the injunction, "Be ye angry and sin not?"

My text commends a wholesome indignation. It discriminates between the offense and the offender, the sin and the sinner, the crime and the criminal.

To illustrate: Alcoholism has ruined more fortunes, blasted more homes, destroyed more souls, than any evil that I think of. It pours a river of poison and fire through the nations. Millions have died because of it, and millions are dying now, and others will die. Intemperance is an old sin. The great Cyrus, writing to the Lacedemonians of himself, boasted of many of his qualities, among others, that he could drink and bear more wine than his distinguished brother. Louis X. and Alexander the Great died drunk. The parliament of Edinburgh in 1661 is called in history "the drunken parliament." Hugh Miller, first stonemason and afterward a world-renowned geologist, writes of the drinking habits of his day, saying: "When the foundation was laid, they drank. When the walls were leveled for laying the joists, they drank. When the building was finished, they drank. When an apprentice joined, they drank." In the eighteenth century, the giver of an entertainment boasted that none of the guests went away sober. Noah, the first ship captain, was wrecked—not in the ark, for that was safely landed—but he was wrecked with strong drink. Every man or woman rightly constructed will blush with indignation at the national and international and hemispheric and planetary curse. It is good to be aroused against it. You come out of that condition a better man or a better woman. Be ye angry at that abomination, and the more anger the more exaltation to character. But that aroused feeling becomes sinful when it extends to the victim of this great evil. Drunkenness you are to hate with a vivid hatred; but the drunkard you are to pity, to help to extricate.

Just take into consideration that there are men and women who once were as upright as yourself who have been prostrated by alcoholism. Perhaps it came of a physician's prescription for the relief of pain, a recurrence of the pain calling for a continuance of the remedy; perhaps the grandfather was an inebriate and the temptation to inebriety, leaping over a generation, has swooped on this unfortunate; perhaps it was under an attempt to drown trouble that was sought after; perhaps it was a very gradual chaining of the man with the beverage which was thought to be a servant, when one day it announced itself master. Be humble now, and admit that there is a strong probability that under the same circumstances you yourself might have been captured. The two appropriate emotions for you to allow are indignation at the intoxicant which enthralled and sympathy for the victim. Try to get the sufferer out of his present environment; recommend any hygienic relief that you know of and, above all, implore the divine rescue for the struggle in which so many of the noblest and grandest have been worsted. Do not give yourself up to too many philippics about what the man ought to have been and ought to have done. While your cheek flushes with wrath at the foe that has brought the ruin, let your eye be moistened with tears of pity for the sufferer. In that way you will have fulfilled the injunction of the text: "Be ye angry and sin not."

There is another evil the abhorrence of which you are called to, and it is on the increase—the gambling practice. Recent developments show that much of this devastation is being wrought in ladies' parlors. It is an evil which sometimes is as polite and gracious as it is harmful. Indeed, there never were so many people trying to get money without earning it. But it is a haggard transgression that comes down to us from the past blighting all its way.

I have seen in the archives of the nation in this national capital a large book in which one of the early presidents of the United States kept an account in his own handwriting of gains and losses at playing cards—on one page the gains and on the other the losses, and there are many pages. In other days many of national reputation went from the halls of congress and the senate chamber to spend the night in notorious gambling saloons. One of the ablest men of the centuries, Charles Fox, got ready for his speech against "The Petition of the Clergy" by spending 22 hours at the gambling table. Irving's life of Oliver Goldsmith says that the great poet lost £30, all his earnings, in a short tour to see the world. Gibbon, the author of "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," came to his own decline and fall through gaming practices and in a letter in 1776 said: "I have undone myself, and it is to no purpose to conceal from you my abominable madness and folly. I have never lost so much in five days as I have tonight, and I am in debt to the house for the whole."

But while you are hotly indignant against the crime, how do you feel about those who were fleeced and slain? They did not know that their small boat was so near the maelstrom. Some of them were born with a tendency to recklessness and experiment and hazard. They inherited a disposition to tempt chance. Do not heap on them additional discouragements; do not deride their losses. Help them to start again. Show them that there are more fortunes yet to be gained than have yet been gathered and that with God for their friend they will be provided for her and through the Saviour's mercy they may reign forever in the land where there are no losses and infinite gains. While you may redden in the face at the fact that gambling is the disgraceful mother of multitudinous crimes, of envies, jealousies, revenge, quarrels, cruelties, falsehoods, forgeries, suicides, murders and despair, be careful what you say of the victim of the vice and what you do. He needs more sympathy than the man who came up from inebriety and debauch and assassination, for many such repent and are saved, but confirmed gamblers hardly ever reform.

During the course of a prolonged ministry I have seen thousands redeemed, many of them who were clear gone in sin, by Almighty grace rescued. In all parts of this land and in some parts of other lands I have seen those who were given up as incorrigible and lost recovered for God and Heaven, but how many confirmed gamblers have I seen converted from their evil ways? A thousand? No. Five hundred? No. Fifty? No. Two? No. One? No. I read in a book of one such rescued. I have no doubt there have been other cases, but no evil does its work so thoroughly and eternally as gambling. Such almost hopeless of reformation ought to call forth from you deeper sympathy than you feel for any other unfortunate. Pity by all means, for those who, shipwrecked and bruised among the timbers, have nevertheless climbed up to the fisherman's cabin and found warmth and shelter, but more pity for those who never reach shore, but are dashed to death in the breakers. Be angry at the sin, but sympathize with its victims.

One act of fraud told of in big headlines in the morning papers rightfully arouses the nation's wrath. It is the interest of every good man and good woman who reads of the crime to have it exposed and punished. Let it go unscathed, and you put a premium on fraud, you depress public morals, you induce those who are on the fence between right and wrong to get down on the wrong side, and you put the business of the world on a down grade. The constabulary and penitentiary must do their work. But while the merciless and the godless cry: "Good for him!" I am glad he is within the prison doors! It is your work to find out if that man is worth saving and what were the causes of his moral overthrow. Perhaps he started in business life under a tricky firm, who gave him wrong notions of business integrity; perhaps there was a combination of circumstances almost unparalleled for temptation; perhaps there were alleviations; perhaps he was born wrong and never got over it; perhaps he did not realize what he was doing, and if you are a merciful man you will think of other perhapses which, though they may not excuse, will extenuate. Perhaps he has already repented and is washed in the blood of the Lamb, and is as sure of Heaven as you are. What an opportunity you have for obeying my text. You were angry at the misdemanor, but you are hopeful for the recovery of the recalcitrant. Blessed all prison reformers! Blessed are those governors and presidents who are glad when they have a chance to pardon! Blessed the forgiving father who welcomes home the prodigal! Blessed the dying thief whom the Lord took with Him to glory, saying: "This day shalt thou be with Me in Paradise!"

There is another evil that we ought to abhor, while we try to help the victim, and that is infidelity. It snatches the life preserver from the man afloat and affords not so much as a spar or a plank as substitute. It would extinguish the only light that has ever been kindled for the troubled and the lost. Let the spirit of infidelity take hold of a neighborhood, and in that town the marriage relation is a farce and good morals give place to all styles of immorals. Let it take possession of this earth, and there will be no virtue left in all the world's circumference. All the sins rebuked in the Ten Commandments would be dominant. The torch that shall kindle the conflagration of the earth in its last catastrophe will not do as much damage as would infidelity and agnosticism, if they got the chance. Be angry with such theories of unbelief and hatred of God. Never laugh at the witticisms of those who would belittle the Bible with their jocularity. Quote to them the four lines of Whittier:

> And wearily seekers of the best
> We come back laden with our quest
> To find that all the sages said
> Is in the book our mothers read.

Have a lightning in your eye and a flush in your cheek and a frown on your brow for a dastard that would blot out the sun and moon and stars of Christianity and leave all things in an arctic night, the cold equal to the darkness. You do well to be angry, but how about those who have been flung of scepticism, and that is more millions than you will ever know of until the judgment day reveals everything. Ah, here comes your opportunity for gentleness, kindness and sympathy. The probability is that if you had been plied with the same influences as this unbeliever there would not be a Bible in all your house from cellar to attic. Perhaps he was in some important transaction swindled by a member of the church whose taking of the sacrament was a sacrilege. Perhaps he read agnostic books and heard agnostic lectures and mingled in agnostic circles until he has been befogged and needs your Christian help more than anyone that you know of. Do not get into any labored argument about the truth of Christianity. He may beat you at that. He has a whole artillery of weapons ready to open fire.

Remember that no one was ever reformed for this life or saved for the life to come by an argument, but in humblest and gentlest way, your voice subdued, ask him a few questions. Ask him if he had a Christian parentage, and if he says yes ask him whether the old folks died happy. Ask him if he has ever heard of anyone going out of this life in raptures of infidelity and agnosticism. Ask him if it is not a somewhat remarkable fact that the Bible, after so many years, sticks together and that there are more copies of it in existence than ever before. Ask him if he knows of any better civilization than Christian civilization and whether he thinks the teachings of Confucius or Christ are preferable. Ask him if he thinks it would be a fair thing in the Creator of all things to put in this world the human race and give them no direct communication for their guidance and, if they did wrong, tell them of no way of recovery. I think if a famous infidel of our time, instead of being taken away instantaneously, had died in his bed after weeks and months of illness he would have revoked his teachings and left for his beloved family consolations which they could not find in obsequies at which not one word of Holy Scripture was read, or at Fresh Pond crematory, where no Christian benediction was pronounced. I do not positively say that in a prolonged illness, there would have been a retraction, but I think there would.

But let me confess at this crisis of my sermon that there is not an injunction in the Bible more difficult to obey than the words of the text. While it applauds a wholesome indignation, it warns against sinful anger. And there is in all the realm of passion nothing more destructive than indiscriminate hate. First of all, it frenzies the nervous ganglia. Those people who easily flare up on little provocation go into high dudgeon, take umbrage without reason, snap you up quick, have ruined their nerves, and there is only one thing worse to ruin, and that is the brain, and we say of one that is given to frequent ebullitions of temper that he is an unbalanced man. A business man of our acquaintance said: "I cannot afford to get mad. It hurts me so."

A man thoroughly mad can say enough in two minutes to damage him for 20 years. It only took five minutes for the earthquake to destroy Caracas. One unfortunate sentence uttered in affront in a speech in the United States senate shut forever the door of the white house against one of the most brilliant men of the last century.

Surpassing all other characters in the world's biography stands Jesus Christ, wrathful against sin, merciful to the sinner. Witness His behavior toward the robed ruffians who demanded capital punishment for an offending woman—denunciation for their sinful hypocrisy, pardon for her sweet penitence. He did not speak of Herod as "his majesty" or "his royal highness," but dared to compare him to a cunning fox, saying: "Go ye and tell that fox." But, alert to the cry of suffering, He finds ten lepers and to how many of the ten awful invalids did He give convalescence and health? Ten. Rebuking Pharisaism in the most compressed sentence in all the vocabulary of anathema—"Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?"—yet looking upon Peter with such tenderness that no word was spoken—and not a word was needed, for the look spoke louder than words. "And the Lord looked upon Peter, and Peter went out and wept bitterly." Oh, what a look it must have been to break down the swarthy fisherman apostle! It was such a hurt look, such a beseeching look, such a loving look, such a forgiving look! Was there any other being since time began, such a combination of wrath against wrong and compassion for the wrongdoer? "Lion of Judah's tribe!" Hear that! "Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world!" Hear that!

Like Him, let us hate iniquity with complete hatred; but, like Him, may we help those who are overthrown and be willing to suffer for their restoration. Then, although at the opening of this discourse our text may have seemed to command us to do an impossible thing, we will at the close of this sermon, with a prayer to God for help, be more rigid and determined than ever before against that which is wrong, while at the same time we shall feel so kindly toward all the erring and work so hard for their rescue that we will realize that we have scaled the Alpine, the Himalayan, height of my text, which enjoins: "Be ye angry and sin not."

HEAVY RAIN STORM.

Much Damage Wrought to Railroad Property at Connellsville, Pa.—Stock Drowned.

Connellsville, Pa., June 28.—This section was visited Thursday by a hard storm, which lasted for an hour. The B. & O. short line between Leisenring and O'Hara's Crossing was washed out and coke traffic in the district will be delayed for several days. Many cattle were killed in the farming district. Telephone communication was destroyed in all directions. Much damage was done to the new sewage system.

A huge washout at Mile Run, just below West Newton, completely tied up the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. All trains are coming in five and six hours late, and many of the trains have been transferred to the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie. The washout is about 100 yards in length, and besides this damage the railroad bridge at the same place was washed away by the torrent of water that rushed down Mill Run. It will require at least two days to repair the damage, but in the meantime it is thought some arrangement can be effected whereby trains will be put in regular running order.

Baltimore and Ohio officials here state that another heavy washout occurred at Fair Hope, near Cumberland, and that the line is completely blocked for the time being. The trains between Fair Hope and Connellsville are being transferred to the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie at the latter point, and through trains are being sent east by the way of Wheeling and Grafton. The extent of the Fair Hope damage is not yet known, but wreck trains have been ordered from both sides of it.

THE 'VARSITY RACE.

Yale Won, With Harvard Less Than a Length in the Last 100 Yards of a Four-Mile Course.

New London, Ct., June 28.—Yale won the 'Varsity race with Harvard by less than a length in the last 100 yards of the four-mile struggle. It was one of the most beautiful contests between the crews of the two universities ever seen on the river. From the sound of the referee's pistol until the finish it was anybody's race. Harvard got the best of the start and was slightly ahead in the first mile. The Yale pulled to the front. Harvard spurted and the boats were even. Then the crimson shell was a bit ahead at the three-mile mark, and it seemed as though it would be victorious, but the awful pace told on the Cambridge boat. Yale came up alongside again down the long line between rows of yachts that flanked the line it was absolutely an even thing. In the last quarter of a mile Yale hit up the strike and a hundred yards from the finish the nose of the New Haven shell was poked perceptibly to the front. Harvard was unable to respond again to the frantic call of her coxswain, and the blue was a winner. The official time: Yale, 23:37; Harvard, 23:45.

'Twas Her First Love.

On a corner stood a little barefoot girl in her rags. Her soiled, pudgy little hands hugged another bundle of rags caressingly to her stained, dimpled cheek, while she enjoyed all the joys of young motherhood. The bundle was her "baby." Tied with a string near one end, the rags formed into a head. Another string about the middle produced the effect of a waist line. A young man saw the happy little mother. "What's that?" he asked, resting a hand on the unkempt hair of the child.

"My dolly," she said, hugging the rags closer.

"Your dolly, eh? What a pretty dolly. And what do you call your baby?"

A PROVINCE IN REVOLT

Villages Burned and Hundreds of Inhabitants Killed.

An Organization of a Mongol Invasion By Prince Tuan and Gen. Tung Fuh Siang Reported By a Native.

London, June 29.—A dispatch from Che Foo reports the entire province of Sheng King in revolt. The rebels are said to be overrunning the country, pillaging and burning. It is asserted that in the vicinity of Mukden all the villages are being burned, and that hundreds of inhabitants have been killed.

The dispatch says the Russian forces are not sufficient to maintain order.

London, June 29.—The correspondent of the Times, cabling from Shanghai, says he considers the persistent native reports of the organization of a Mongol invasion by Prince Tuan and Gen. Tung Fuh Siang to be worthy of attention on account of their inherent probability.

Washington, June 29.—The Chinese minister, who was at the state department, said that he was not aware that the total indemnity was less by 35,000,000 taels than the amount China had agreed to pay, and for the present he was not prepared to say whether China would ask to be allowed to retain this amount. It is believed that the United States would decline to take any part of the excess, and that it would favor all the powers remitting this amount to China.

A BLOODY AFFAIR.

Three Men Fatally and One Seriously Stabbed By Peter Price, Colored, at Iaeger, W. Va.

Huntington, W. Va., June 29.—Dnte Pantner, George Hooks and F. M. McCran were fatally stabbed, and Chas. Davis seriously stabbed in the abdomen by Peter Price, a Negro, whom they, along with a posse of other infuriated citizens, were endeavoring to wreak vengeance upon for an insult to a lady. The bloody affair occurred at Iaeger, this county, a small town five miles south. Price, on seeing his pursuers, ran into a small room in the rear of a saloon and bolted the door. The mob broke in and as they entered the Negro cut fast and furiously with a knife in each hand. Hooks and McGran fell to the floor, when two revolvers from the crowd were turned on Price. He was shot twice, only slightly, but before he leaped from a window and escaped he laid open Davis' abdomen with one swing of his knife. The crowd continued the chase, but officers caught the Negro and rushed him on to Welch jail, and evaded the lynching. Hooks and McGran were both respected and their death has incensed the community to such an extent that a lynching may yet result.

SUDDEN SUMMONS.

United States Circuit Judge Wm. A. Woods, of Indianapolis, Dies of Heart Failure.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 29.—Judge William A. Woods, of the United States circuit court, died suddenly early Saturday morning while lying abed in his apartments at the Delano, on East Michigan street. Death came while his wife was near his bedside.

The judge had not been feeling well the early part of the evening, but paying little heed to the sickness, passed the matter lightly and prepared to retire. Shortly after midnight, however, he spoke to his wife and declared that sharp pains had seized him in the left breast in the chest and in the shoulders. He protested against her calling the attending physician, Dr. Jameson, who had been called in the day before, but again insisted that relief would soon come.

Judge Woods asked his wife to remain in the room with him. A moment later he again spoke to his wife asking for something in an adjoining room. Mrs. Woods rose to procure the article the judge had called for and left the room, returning only a second later. When she approached the bed where her husband lay he was dead.

Still hoping that life might not be extinct Mrs. Woods summoned Dr. Jameson. The physician arrived a few moments later, but upon seeing the judge declared that efforts to revive him would prove unavailing.

Immediately Floyd Woods, the only son, was notified and he hastened to the Delano. Alice Woods, the daughter, is in Massachusetts, where she went several weeks ago to spend the summer.

Attorney General W. S. Taylor and Judge Baker, of the federal court, also were notified and hastened to the Delano.

Dr. Jameson shortly after the announcement of Judge Woods' death was made public gave out the following statement:

"Judge Woods suffered from a hardening of the outside arteries of the heart—angina pectoris. Three weeks ago he suffered a slight attack. At the time, however, he did not consider the symptoms alarming, but continue his regular routine of life.

"Another attack followed about a week ago. Thursday afternoon the pain increased and the judge himself grew alarmed. I made a careful examination, but his description of the symptoms gave out the impression that he suffered with stomach trouble. I cautioned him to eat lightly and to stay in doors. Yesterday, however, the judge was out going about his business as usual. He came home feeling fairly well and ate a hearty supper. Along about 9 or 10 o'clock he began to complain. Mrs. Woods gave him some champagne. This was in the nature of a stimulant for the heart. He seemed free from pain and perfectly happy.

"The disease that proved fatal in Judge Woods' case comes on slowly, growing as one advances in age. I was somewhat fearful of its being the cause of his illness, but did not tell him so because I feared that the effect of the information might be anything but beneficial."

SKULL FRACTURED.

FIERCE STRUGGLE ON.

Union Employes of the American Sheet Steel Co. Strike.

President Shaffer, of the Amalgamated Association, Says it Will Be a Fight to the Death and One to Be Remembered.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 1.—President J. T. Shaffer, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, issued an order calling out all union employes of the various mills of the American Steel Hoop Co., known as the hoop trust. It is estimated that 15,000 men are subject to the call, which, in connection with the big strike of the American Sheet Steel Co., ordered by President Shaffer Saturday, will affect 50,000 men.

President Shaffer said Sunday night:

"The impression that only the mills of the American Sheet Steel Co. are affected by the decision of Saturday is a mistake. The workmen of all mills in the American Steel Hoop Co are interested, and will be officially notified Monday morning that the scale has not been signed, and that they will quit work. To the well organized mills this notice will not be necessary, as the men will have watched the situation carefully, but what is known as open mills, where union men have been allowed to work side by side with the non-union men, is where we have to move. Union men must walk out of these open mills in the hoop trust.

"The open mills to be notified are one at Hollidaysburg, Pa., three at Pittsburgh, and one at Monessen. The organized mills which will close on our call are the upper and lower mills at Youngstown, O., Pomeroy, O., Sharon, Pa., Girard, Pa., Warren, Pa., Greenville, Pa. This, I believe, will bring the number of men affected up to 50,000.

"It is a matter of regret that the lasue has been forced, but it now looks as though it will be a fight to the death," continued Mr. Shaffer. "The Amalgamated association is not unprepared for it. We have not had a general strike for many years, and in that time we have not been idle. We have funds, and will use them. Right here, I want to correct an impression which has been given out that no benefits will be paid strikers until two months have elapsed. The Amalgamated association will begin at once to take care of its people."

Mr. Shaffer concluded his talk by saying:

"I will say now what I said to Mr. Smith, general manager of the Sheet Steel Co., in the conference. I said if it is to be a strike we will make it one to be remembered. The officials now dealing with us have but little idea of the extent to which this strike will go once it is on."

THE MINERS' STRIKE.

President of the Union at Thacker, W. Va., and Nine Others Placed Under Arrest.

Thacker, W. Va., July 1.—Charles Burke, ringleader of the striking miners and president of the local union of United Mine Workers of America, was arrested at noon Sunday by Deputy United States Marshal Hufford and Detective F. T. Folts, and taken to Parkersburg on Sunday afternoon train to appear before Judge Jackson for tearing down the notices of injunction granted by Judge Jackson. The nine strikers arrested Sunday morning in Kentucky were lodged in jail at Williamson to await action of the Kentucky courts. These arrests have virtually broken the backbone of the strike.

During the night Detective T. L. Folts, assisted by John Justice, deputy United States marshal, and a posse of six men, went to Kentucky side of Tug river, captured the following nine strikers, who have been terrorizing the miners on the West Virginia side for the past ten days by shooting at all who could not give the proper strikers' sign as they passed and repassed along the railroad: Nelson Daniels, Sam Daniels, Ballard Smith, Chas. Smith, Andy Blackburn, Richard Reynolds, Eph Dalton, Sam Billiter and Chas. Worthington. They were all brought to this place, and are under heavy guard, waiting for a train to take them before a Kentucky judge, who will remand them to Judge Jackson at Parkersburg, this state.

They were surprised in their sleep with their Winchesters under their pillows, and surrendered with but little resistance. Even their guard was captured asleep on duty.

Much Damage to Property in Minnesota and Wisconsin—Rainfall of Nearly Four Inches.

St. Paul, Minn., June 29.—Heavy storms, with more or less damage, are reported all over this section, and the loss will run well up into the thousands, while a number of people have been injured and many head of live stock killed. The worst storm was that which passed through a large district south of New Richmond, Wis. It was a genuine tornado, and did much damage to property, although fortunately no lives were lost. On a smaller scale it resembled the tornado which swept over and destroyed the greater portion of New Richmond two years ago. Over a dozen farmers have already reported the loss of a part or all of their buildings, wind mills, live stock, machinery, etc., and the loss there will be very heavy. In some cases the buildings were crushed down and in others swept away by the wind, while flood damage was elsewhere reported. Rainfall of nearly four inches is reported there.

A tornado is also reported to have caused much loss about Star Prairie some distance to the north of New Richmond. Hector, Minn., reports all crops destroyed, six miles north of there by a destructive hail storm. Bird Island and Montevido, Minn. both suffered considerably. In these two cities the storm was very threatening, but only minor damage resulted.

The court house tower was struck and the clock therein was ruined. The roof was blown from the gas company's building. Lighting also struck a street car crowded with people. The incandescent light globes burst with long reports and caused a panic among the passengers. One woman's clothing was slightly burned, but nobody was hurt.

SHE FEARS CAPTURE.

The Empress Dowager Declines to Return to Peking.

Those Claims of the Chinese Merchants Co. Against the United States Government For Loss of Property.

Shanghai, July 1.—Marquis Tseng has received a dispatch from Sian Fu to the effect that the empress dowager, fearing a trap to capture her, declines to return to Peking, and has notified the grand council that the future capital will be Kai-Feng-Fu, in the province of Ho Nan.

Tien-Tsin, July 1.—The city of Tien-Tsin is more crowded than ever. Officers of all nations are here en route for their homes and the hotels are placing cots in every available place. Mr. Denby, who, when the foreign troops arrived, was appointed by the China Merchants Co. to protect their property, says the company, in their claim against the United States government, do not use the word "lost" against the marines, but merely hold them responsible. The greater part of the company's property consisted of rice, which was afterward distributed under orders from the British and American generals to assist those in need. Mr. Denby thinks the company's claim should have been added to the indemnity as legitimate expenditure.

Other Tien-Tsin merchants say the company never had 500,000 taels worth of property here.

It is pointed out that the company stored three boxes of valuables with the chartered bank before the troubles began, and did not withdraw these until October, and that consequently it is quite improbable any jewels were left to be looted. Moreover the place was thoroughly gone through by local looters before the allied forces arrived.

It would be legally impossible to hold any portion of the relieving force responsible for anything but the rice and coal which were used as a military necessity to feed Chinese coolies who were forced to labor, and also those who were without means of livelihood.

A THING OF THE PAST.

The Last of the Volunteer Regiments Paid Off and Mustered Out of Service at San Francisco.

San Francisco, July 1.—Two important military events occurred at the Presidio Sunday. The retirement of Maj. Gen. W. R. Shafter and the mustering out of four volunteer regiments. Gen. Shafter went on the retired list at noon, when he formally transferred the command of the department of California to Maj. Gen. S. M. B. Young. In the afternoon the 44th, 49th, 48th and 38th volunteer regiments were mustered out. The mustering out of the four regiments required the services of eight paymasters. Over one million dollars was disbursed. The money was taken from the sub-treasury to the Presidio in eight Doherty wagons, each under the charge of a paymaster and his clerk. Forty-five artillerymen, mounted and armed, escorted the treasure and pay corps to the reservation. In order to protect the soldiers on the grounds from grafters, with their swindling devices, 100 men of Troop F, 15th cavalry, were stationed around the reservation.

Two of the regiments mustered out, the 48th and 49th, were colored, and the men had between three and four months' pay due them. As soon as the volunteers had been mustered out, they rushed to the railroad ticket office for transportation to their eastern homes.

Both the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific general ticket offices put on extra forces of clerks. The ticket offices were crowded till late in the night with discharged volunteers buying tickets. Nearly 4,000 tickets were issued.

During the day an accidental shooting, which may have a fatal ending, occurred. George Price, colored, of Kentucky, Company G, 48th regiment, accompanied by John Rogers, of the same company, went into the store of Hiren Bros. to buy a revolver. Price told the clerk he wanted a gun like the one Rogers carried. With this Rogers handed his gun to the clerk without warning that it was loaded. While the clerk was examining the pistol it was discharged. The bullet entered Price's abdomen, inflicting a wound that may result fatally.

There yet remains three volunteer regiments to be discharged, the 43d, 47th and 41st. They will be paid off Monday. The volunteer army will then have passed into history.

This address was responded to by Bros. Miller and Sproles. After singing No. 721, Bro. Carney delivered an address, "The Sunday-School of the 20th Century." Song No. 733 was sung and Bro. Walton made a few remarks touching upon Bro. Carney's address. After a song Bro. Sproles, in the absence of Bro. Duncan, discussed "The Benefits of the International System of Instruction." Remarks were made by Bros. Miller and Castleman. These men seemed to thiuk this system the best system, but emphasized the fact that the Lesson Helps is not the lesson proper. Song 838 was sung, which was followed by Bro. Jones' address, "How to interest the older people;" remarks on this subject were made by Bro. Sproles, Hafer, Miller, Riggs, Stevens, Hensley, Kirtley and Stephens. After song 792 was sung the minutes of the last convention were read, and the following committees appointed: On officers—Castleman, Jones and Hafer; on time and place—N. S. Walton, Crizler and Stevens. Convention then adjourned until 1:30 p. m. for dinner.

Afternoon session.—After two songs were sung and prayer by Bro. Kirtley, the President called for the report of the committees. Bro. Walton reported that the place decided upon was Bullittsburg and the time the third Thursday in June, 1902. Bro. Castleman reported the following officers: President, N. S. Walton; Vice-Pres. W. O. Hafer; Secretary, Edgar C. Riley. Executive Committee, Bros. A. A. DeMoss, Ezra Tauuer and James Kirtley. These reports were adopted.

After the singing of another song, Bro. Castleman discussed the subject, "The Supt. is a more important officer than the teacher." This was followed by Bro. Kirtley, Bro. Dame being absent, on "The teacher is a more important officer than the Superintendent." Remarks upon this subject were made by Bros. Sproles and Early. A song was sung and Bro. Miller discussed the subject, "What have I learned from the Sunday School?" A song was then sung and Bro. Cook called for business.

The Secretary offered a motion that the County Convention withdraw from the State organization. This was seconded by Bro. Riggs. After speeches by several, Bro. Cook appointed Bros. Jones and Castleman to investigate the trouble between the two organizations and report at next convention. After the Secretary's report the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Sproles. That evening Rev. Carney preached in the Methodist Church on "Unity."

The people of Petersburg and vicinity spread a feast which would have fed twice the number of people. After thanks had been offered for the dinner, Bro. Cook told us to jump in and eat it all up, but while we could not eat all we were satisfied. Let us all attend the convention next year at Bullittsburg and enjoy ourselves.

Celebrate, but keep sober.

The hot weather appears inclined to spend the summer with us.

The Shirt-waist Dancing Club will give its first picnic at Harvest Home grounds on the afternoon of Saturday, July 13th. A good time is in store for all who will attend.

The citizens of Erlanger have arranged to celebrate the fourth in great style to-morrow. The display of fireworks at night will surpass anything of the kind in the history of the town. Of course the proceedings will be interspersed with patriotic speeches, and at Sam Johnson's there will be spread a most toothsome lunch, composed of roasted lamb and all the appropriate trimmings. People in large numbers will go in from the surrounding country to participate in the celebration.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty, of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelmer, Florence; H. L. Eskew, Walton; O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

While putting the roof on G. T. Gaines' residence a few days since, Kirb Tanner heard some English sparrows making considerable noise under the shingles, and he ran his hand into the nest and got hold of something that felt cold and clammy. He drew his hand out and tore up a shingle or two, when a large blacksnake came up through the roof after the style of "Jack in a box." The sudden appearance of the snake created quite a panic among the workmen, who, with the assistance of a long pole, finally expelled the reptile from the roof, and Miss Inez used a hoe on it with fatal results when it struck the ground.

ODE FOR INDEPENDENCE DAY.

THE rattle of crackers, the roar of the guns—
What do they tell you, O, wondering ones?
The rockets that spread
Streams of stars overhead;
The banners that float
And the bugle's brave note—
All tell the story our grandsire's sons
Heard from their fathers, of Tyranny's fall;
Tell the great story of gallantry bred
Out of men's hate for the bonds that enthrall—
Tell the high story
Of God-given glory—
Of strength for the just and the Lord o'er us all!

Deathless the love they won
While love shall last,
While still from sire to son
Precepts are passed—
While the stars shine
O'er your country and mine!
Shame on the man who is racked by the sounds—
Narrow the zone that his little soul bounds!
Let the guns roar,
Let the red rockets soar,
And bring from the smithies the anvils once more!
With the fife and the drum
And the bugle and bomb
Let the universe know that the great day is come!
For their glory who turned from the plow to the sword
Make a sound—make a scund of great joy to the Lord!

By the deeds they wrought,
By the fights they fought,
By the freedom that with their rich blood they bought,
Let us pledge ourselves anew
To be worthy of and true
To the trust they handed down,
Each a monarch in his right,
Worthy of a monarch's crown!
Let us keep the banner bright—
Keep its starry field of blue,
And its stripes of red and white
Free from stain,
So that where it floats at sea,
Or upon the starry plain
It may be
Still the emblem they designed
And, in dying, consecrated—
Still the flag they dedicated
To the glory of mankind!

What is the story the skyrockets tell,
Soaring up over the walls of the night?
'Tis the story of pride that was lofty and fell
When the stars of our freedom burst grandly in sight,
Flooding the world with their glorious light!
As the years go by
And traditions die,
And men aspire,
Let the beacons flash on crag and shore,
Let the signal-lights rise higher, higher,
Ever more brilliant than before;
Ever till earth from her orbit shall fell
Let the scepters they won
Pass from sire to son—
Each a king in his right and the Lord o'er us all!

OUR CELEBRATION AT TWO-OWE-TEE.

BY F. W. CRISSMAN.

LAST Fourth of July the weather came on cool and beautiful in our mountains. But there were three people at Black Rock Morse ranch who were anything but cool. In fact, Ferd, Florence and I were as "hot" as we could well become—not with impatience and disgust.

For more than four weeks we had been preparing for a celebration, a picnic at our cottonwood grove, with all the family and all our neighbors along Black Rock creek to join in making a great day. Ferd, who had borrowed some volumes of the Congressional Record from some local politician, had written a short address, and Florence had practiced diligently some patriotic songs. Moreover, we had expended $8 for fireworks, of a magnitude worthy of the largest attainable crowd.

Our disconfiture may be imagined when I say that father, mother and the younger children had failed in a promised return from their visit at Green River, and that, just two days before the Fourth, report had reached Black Rock Valley of a "monster celebration" which was to be held at Lander, and to which every mother's son and daughter in our neighborhood had stampeded.

We were left alone, we three; so far as we knew, there was not a soul left within 25 miles of us.

We were, of course, still looking for the return of our family from Green River, but as the morning slipped away and 11 o'clock came, with no sign of them, Ferd and I gave ourselves up to sulking. We were lying upon our backs in the shade of some cottonwoods near a horse corral, when Florence, who was still on the lookout, shouted to us.

"They're coming!" she cried, running toward us and clapping her hands joyfully. "I can see the dust of their wagon down the valley. Splendid! splendid! We'll have a celebration all to ourselves!" As there are eight of us altogether, the prospect was not quite so disheartening.

Ferd and I sprang to our feet and climbed the corral fence to look. What we saw was a flying trail of dust rising above a point about a mile distant. A glance, however, showed our more practiced eyes that the dust cloud was altogether too great to be kicked up by a span of mules and a spring wagon.

"That's not them," declared Ferd, in disgust. "It's a stampede of horses or cattle." A faint roar of trampling hoofs soon bore to our ears the proof of his assertion. The dust cloud increased in volume, and the mutter of pounding hoofs jarred like a distant murmur of thunder.

Our suspicions were quickly roused. We craned our necks and watched in silence. We had only a minute to wait before a big bunch of horses, going at a swift trot, broke cover of the point. A few seconds later, we discovered, on the outskirts of the herd, which doubtless numbered many horses of our own, two pony riders turning the leaders across the valley.

We did not have to guess that these men were "rustlers," and that there were more of them in the rear pushing the horses forward. Every movement of herd and men proclaimed the fact. A gang of our mountain freebooters had taken advantage of the stockmen's "stampede" to Lander to make another stampede, which should be vastly to their own advantage.

The men were steering their catch across Black Rock valley up to the mouth of Two-owe-tee pass. Once through that difficult gap, they would hustle the herd into the fastnesses of Owl Creek mountains, break it up into small bunches and get away with the horses at their leisure.

Ferd and I did not say this to each other—we did not need to do so. We slipped off the fence presently, and looked at each other in a grim kind of way.

"SHE STOOPED OVER—AS IF TO ATTEND TO HER FOOTING."

"Well," said Ferd, "we've got to head off that herd, stampede and scatter 'em, somehow."

"Sure thing!" I assented.

When Florence understood the case, she set up a frantic wail. "You shan't go!" she almost screamed. "Those men will shoot you dead! Anyway, if you do, I'll go along and be shot, too!"

"You will stay at home, Florry," said Ferd, kindly, but in his masterful way. "We'll take good care of ourselves, never fear."

Thereupon she ran to the house, crying. We could not stop to comfort her. While Ferd went for our guns, trappings and a snack to eat, I ran to the creek pasture, got out two of our best riding ponies and saddled them. When I had finished Ferd came out, wearing his hunting jacket and carrying my jacket and our guns.

The big side pockets of the coats were stuffed to bulging, but my jacket felt light enough, and when I thrust a hand into one of the pockets and drew out a giant "cracker" of the biggest size, I fairly whooped with delight. There were a half dozen in each pocket, and each one was a foot in length. They would make enough noise to stampede a whole tribe of Indians, let alone 400 or 500 half-wild horses.

We were off in a twinkling. We knew of an old buffalo and cattle trail a half-mile distant, leading up to the head of Black Rock, and round the slopes of several mountains into the north gap of Two-owe-tee. This trail we took.

"We'll plant ourselves in front of that herd in the gap," said Ferd, "and there we'll have our celebration. I believe we can 'counter stampede,' run 'em over that crowd and get away in the dust and racket."

The very probable event of a fight against odds, however, kept us feeling pretty sober. We clattered along the cut-off at a hard gallop, without exchanging many remarks.

We rode on for more than an hour, passing up out of Black Rock and over a mountain ridge. Then we heard a clatter of hoofs at our heels, and turned to face Florence. Her pony was sweating, her face was flushed and bescechiag, as she pulled up confronting us. As the trail was a plain one, she had had no difficulty in following.

"I can't stay behind!" she announced, breathlessly. "I should die of fright. I don't believe those men will fight when they see a girl along."

So that was her reason for coming! We looked at each other in dismay and some disgust. But she was a girl of 16, a capable horsewoman and of a determined spirit. We could not compel her to stay behind.

"Well," said Ferd, "when we get to business you'll have to stay where we put you, or we'll tie you up!"

Then we "hit" the trail again, and Florence followed. I looked back to see that she was crying, although she rode bravely, and I was truly sorry for her.

In the course of three hours of hard riding we came out of a sharp cut into the canyon of Two-owe-tee. A brief examination convinced us that we should find no better point at which to make a break in the herd and turn them back upon the rustlers. The gap of Two-owe-tee was here some 200 yards in width, with inaccessible steeps on either hand.

We rather counted on a fight, and Ferd planned for it like a general. He even consented that Florence should take a part in cannonading the herd, wherein she at once became a calm and superior person. She agreed to keep close in to the mouth of the cut, and after we should get the herd going, and in a certain length of time to take her flight back over the trail by which we had come.

Even when we told her we should fight, pointing out from a height the high banks of a dry run where we should make our stand when we had run the herd over the rustlers, she approved the plan.

"You can stand them off easily!" she declared. "Their bullets can't hit you in there, and if they charge you can stampede them with crackers."

We rather thought so ourselves. We then ate a bit of dinner and rested, listening meanwhile for the tramp of the herd. It was nearly four o'clock when we heard the rumble of their hoofs and sighted their trail of dust up the canyon.

We quickly took our places. Florence stood just outside the mouth of the cut, with several giant crackers and some matches in hand. She was a little pale, but cool and collected, and showed no sign of fear.

Ferd and I sat our ponies on either side the creek-bed and waited, I must admit, in a state of considerable excitement. We had no fear for our scats, however, as our ponies were gun-broken to áring from the saddle, and would not shy even at cannon-shots. They were, in fact, accustomed to the crack of dynamite and black powder, used in breaking rock and splitting logs near our house.

The foremost horses of the herd were soon close at hand. Of course the dust they raised completely hid us from view of the rustlers in their rear.

They were coming at a free trot on each side of the creek channel. We waited until the leaders had halted, snorting, in front of us. Then we lighted our crackers and flung them—eight or ten—one after the other. Florence took her part in the rannonade, throwing her crackers as far as she could toward the horses.

For half a minute the canyon roared and reverberated with an astoundlag racket. This thunder and smoke flung the leading horses back upon their fellows until all were bunched like a flock of scared sheep.

Then we rode at them, each of us flinging a final cracker upoa their heels, and all of us yelling like crazy Bannocks at a frolic. In no time we had them going—just "hitting the wind" in the wildest kind of a "counter-stampede." We followed, aware at first of the active operations of rustlers in our front. The swerving lines of horses told us plainly enough where they were. The dust and confusion prevented our seeing anything more than half a dozen yards distant.

By great good luck, we came together in crossing a curve of the creek-bed. We rode at the tail of the herd until assured that the frightened horses would run as long as they were able—that our stampede could not be countered for an hour or more. We knew, from the time which had elapsed, that the rustlers, not fearing immediate pursuit, had saved wind and speed for a long rhase.

And now we turned back, determined to take our stand in the mouth of the cut and guard the pass until the stockmen should begia to come in from Lander. It was only through the gap of Two-owe-tee that the rustlers could hope to rua stock off our range.

Dust hung heavily in the gap, and in order to dodge the rustlers, if possible, we rode back down the creek channel, which held only here and there pools of water.

But luck turned against us just as we had reached a point nearly opposite the mouth of the cut. While riding across a flat where the ditch was extremely shallow, we sighted four horsemen scouting cautiously, evidently trying to discover the cause of the tremendous racket which had turned the stock. They might easily have thought that miners were at work blasting rock somewhere near—doubtless they had come to some such conclusion.

But they saw us before we could get to cover. They were between us and the mouth of the cut, and they wheeled in an ugly fashion, holding their Winchesters at a "ready." We slipped out of our saddles and got behind our ponies.

The fellows were suspicious of a larger force close at hand, or they would doubtless have charged us at once. They looked about rather anxiously, scanning the creek banks above and below.

As the dust had cleared somewhat, we could see their faces quite plainly. They were not more than 50 or 60 yards away. Three of them were dressed as cowboys and looked like ordinary line riders. The fourth, and apparently the leader, wore a blue woolen shirt and a stiff hat. He had a drooping black mustache and long hair.

Presently the four got in line and began moving slowly toward us. They evidently wanted to make sure of us at the first fire.

"Halt where you are or somebody'll get hurt!" shouted Ferd. The rustlers glanced at each other, two of them grinned wickedly. They came on without pausing.

Scared as I was, I was far more frightened in behalf of those reckless men than on my own account. If they could have known how quick and certain Ferd is with a rifle, they certainly would have kept their distance. I knew one of them must fall at my brother's first fire, and if they charged in saddle I did not doubt he would kill them all before they could reach us—he is just as quick as that on the trigger, and he works his lever as a boy flips a marble. His rifle was already leveled, covering the leader.

"Halt, there, I tell you!" he called again, and in a tone that would have stopped any but the most desperate of men. The men fingered their Winchesters. They were about to begin the fight. Then in a breath and out of the dust that still banked along the steeps Florence came galloping at them.

The fellows turned their heads quickly at hearing the patter of her pony's hoofs, and the leader wheeled his horse sharply about. The latter lowered the rifle he had half-presented when he saw a girl confronting him. It was well enough for him that he did so.

Florence coolly pulled up in front and a little to one side of this astonished rustler.

"Those are my brothers down there," we heard her saying in a clear voice. "I am going to help them drive the horses. I guess my stirrup-strap is breaking loose." And she stooped over on the side opposite the man, as if to attend to her footing.

Then, before the leader or his men could recover from their surprise, Florence straightened up and flung a hissing cracker at his pony's head.

At 15 feet she ought not to have missed, but the pony dodged at the motion of her urm, and her big yellow cracker struck the rider somewhere about his belt and exploded. The man was knocked or thrown out of his saddle, sprawling like a stricken frog. The pony sprang away, reeling from the concussioa.

Oae of the mounted men yelled: "Dynamite!" and all three put spurs to their daneing ponies, and were out of range and out of sight in no time.

Ferd and I now advanced, with our guns covering the fallen rustler, who had raised himself to a sitting posture and seemed to be groping for his Winchester. He was blind and dizzy as yet from the shock he had received.

Florence had dismounted and secured his gun.

"I'm dreadfully sorry I hurt you, sir," we heard her saying, ruefully. "I only meant to stampede your horses and keep you from shooting at my brothers."

She had indeed done execution. The man's shirt front was blown away, his breast and face were blackened with powder, his mustache and eyebrows were singed off, and his eyes were red and bleary, and rolled like those of a drunken man.

He was still light-headed when Ferd and I came up. We got him to his feet and walked him around a bit. Florence ran to a pool and brought water in my wool hat. He drank eagerly.

When he had fully recovered his senses, we knew that he was not seriously injured. He sat down upon the ground presently, and although the pain of his burns must have been acute, he grinned at us in a kind of grim humor.

"Well," he asked, "goia' to shoot me up?"

I had already caught his horse.

"Get into your saddle and get out of these parts," said Ferd. "Try to make an honest living in future, and no one will hurt you."

The man, with a grimace of humiliation, mounted his animal and rode away. We were glad enough to see the last of him.

We overtook the main herd of stampeded horses near the summit of the pass. That night we slept upon beds of spruce boughs. We reached home about eight o'clock in the morning, and found the rest of the family awaiting us. They thought we must have gone to Lander.

When the stockmen came back from Lander they were in a great state of indignation. There had been no celebration, and they had ridden a hundred miles and back for nothing. It soon turned out that the rustlers themselves had caused the false report to be circulated.

I must say that Florence is now a person of considerable reputation in these parts.—Youth's Companion.

PROTECTION FOR TRUSTS.

Nothing to Be Done to Abate the Evils of a Tariff for Monopolists.

That the republican party does not intend to legislate against the trusts, however much individual members may proclaim that it is necessary, is shown by the evidence of Hon. Robert Taylor, member of congress from the Eighteenth Ohio district, given before the industrial commission. In his opening remarks he declared that any attempt to take the tariff off even trust-made goods would be bad in its effects. The tariff principle, he said, should not be abandoned.

As a general proposition, Mr. Taylor announced himself as opposed to trusts. "I am one of those," he said, "who have not been able to bring themselves in harmony with the idea that the trusts are good things."

The trusts, he declared, put too much power in the hands of a few men.

Speaking of dealing with trusts, he said he knew of no remedy for that evil if it is an evil. Publicity might be a good thing, but it would be a mere scratch on the surface. He knew that a trust has power to reduce the price of an article, but he did not think the public would get much benefit from that. In order to pay dividends on securities of the United States Steel company that company would have to extract a great deal from the public.

The witness said that apart from any other question he thought that it would be exceedingly unfortunate to introduce any elements of unrest in the country by discussing the tariff in congress or opening up the tariff for any revising.

Now Taylor is chairman of election committee No. 3, and was selected as such because he could be relied on to do the bidding of those who rule congress, and, being a friend and follower of the administration, his evidence makes it certain that there is "no remedy for the evil," as far as the republicans intend to discover one, and that even to discuss the revising of the tariff "is to introduce elements of unrest in the country."

If Mr. Taylor represents the republican policy on the trusts and the tariff, nothing will be done to abate the evils.

He admits there is robbery being committed, when he says the steel trust will "have to extract a great deal from the public," but he and the large majority of protection republicans intend to sit still and see the steel trust and the other combines "extract a great deal from the public." A very cool proceeding on the part of those who have been selected as the servants of the people to protect their interests.

The democratic position is entirely the reverse of this. They believe that there is a remedy to prevent the trusts from carrying out their plan of robbing the people and that is to revise the tariff by placing trust productions on the free list except what duties may be necessary for raising revenue for the support of the government—a tariff for revenue.

This will not kill the trusts, but it will allow the world to compete with them by withdrawing the protection that now gives them a monopoly.

LABOR MENACED BY TRUSTS.

Reduction of Wages Held as a Menace Against a Reduction of the Tariff.

The threat of the trusts to reduce the wages of their workingmen if the tariff is taken off their productions is an old tale and should deceive no one. Reducing or taking off entirely the tariff on trust productions would have no effect on the surplus they sell abroad and if the cost of what they sell at home is reduced it should increase consumption here, and if that is the case the factories will be running full blast and the demand for labor will be increased instead of diminished. Wages follow the law of demand and supply quite as closely as the prices of the articles made by labor follow likeu causes.

It is quite likely that the steel trust, for instance, might shut down its plant if the tariff is removed from its monopolies and its workmen refused to accept a reduction of wages, but it cannot long remain closed or the interest on its bonds would be unpaid and a change of owners would again take place, and it would have to fill contracts already entered into, which generally extend six months ahead.

Ship Subsidies Not Needed.

Hanna and the ship-subsidy pirates claim that the subsidy bill must pass to build up our merchant marine. There has been steady progress in shipbuilding in the United States for several years, says the Birmingham News. A tonnage of 180,548 was added to our merchant marine in 1898, 300,028 in 1899 and 393,790 in 1900. In this matter, too, statistics agree with general observation. Shipyards in all parts of the country are working to their full capacity, with orders far ahead, and new capital is being put into the business. These facts go to prove that the building and owning of ships in this country is a profitable business, subsidy advocates to the contrary notwithstanding.

——The shipping subsidy is the most repugnant form of protection. No more ships will be built under it than will be under present conditions, for at the present time all the ship yards have orders ahead and American labor in that line is fully employed, and to pay a bonus to the ship trust to run steamers purchased from foreign builders would be the height of folly.

THE RECIPROCAL IDEA.

Makeshift of Trust-Pampering Republicans to Mislead the People.

The attempt of President McKinley to reform the tariff by reciprocity treaties was stopped by the United States senate refusing to ratify them and yet there is strong evidence that the president will persist in that line of action. Reciprocity is a backhanded way of revising the Dingley tariff that can be better accomplished by straightforward methods. We cannot make a reciprocity treaty with one country that does not virtually make it apply to nearly all the others. This is brought about by the clause in nearly all the treaties, known as the favored nation clause, which allows the same rights and rates as the most favored nation is given. If a treaty is made with France that allows certain of her productions to be imported into the United States at a less duty than the rate provided in the Dingley tariff, Germany, who produces the same articles, under the most favored nation clause must be granted the same rate.

There is also another obstacle to these reciprocity treaties, a constitutional objection, that has not been adjudicated, but is believed by most of the constitutional lawyers to be a bar to such legislation. Congress cannot delegate its power to raise revenue, which is a constitutional province of congress alone, and such revenue bills must originate in the house of representatives, thus keeping the taxing power in the hands of the direct representatives of the people.

To revise the tariff law by making reciprocity treaties is a makeshift that does not touch the protection granted the trusts and monopolies and those who advocate it are attempting to still protect these giant corporations. As the trusts are selling their productions in Europe for less than they are obtaining from our own people, they no longer need protection and their products should be put upon a tariff for revenue basis or even placed on the free list that competition may benefit all alike.

ROBBERY AND RECIPROCITY.

Hanna's Programme of Subsidies Favored by Monopolistic Manufacturers.

The meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers at Detroit appears to have been captivated by the Hanna programme of ship subsidies and reciprocity. They passed resolutions favoring the subsidy and took steps to call a general convention for the consideration of reciprocity treaties with foreign countries. They also declared that tariff legislation should "furnish adequate protection to such products only as require it without providing for monopoly abuses." That is something of a concession to come from a convention of manufacturers. But it leaves plenty of room for mental reservation. Who is to judge as to the adequate protection and as to the degree of protection which shelters monopoly abuses? Each interest has always claimed the right to judge for itself, and so long as that right is conceded the abuses are not likely to cease. Neither reciprocity nor reform is likely to come from the beneficiaries of protection themselves.

That the meeting was packed in the interest of robbery of the people and its interest used to work on public opinion for that end can be judged by what the Chicago Chronicle says:

The members of the American Manufacturers' association who at the great banquet in Detroit screamed: "Louder," when a clergyman was offering prayer and then laughed uproariously at the fun of the thing were properly rebuked by the presiding officer. No car trumpets would have been needed if the preacher had been advocating some new scheme of taxing everybody for the benefit of somebody, even in a whisper. The language of prayer is quite unfamiliar to men who look upon the tariff as the author and giver of life, light and luere.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

——Free trade with the colonies and down with monopolies, is the democratic war cry.

——Our manufacturers of agricultural machinery think Secretary Gage might have given them a chance as well as the sugar trust. They think they have as much right to trade with Russia as the sugar trust has to monopolize the home market.

——What are the republicans going to do with Neely and Rathbone when the Cubans set up their own government? Bring them here for trial they cannot, and leave them to the tender mercies of the Cubans would merely result in dividing the swag with the new officials.

——The Washington Post says: "The people are tired of hearing and reading about South Africa and the Philippines." And well they might be, for it has been a carnival of crime that both the United States and England should be ashamed of and will have to repent for in the future.

——Whichever way we turn the sugar trust confronts us, and it seems all powerful. Secretary of the Treasury Gage is its willing tool, and interprets the law in its favor by imposing countervailing duties on Russian sugar. This has cut off our export trade to that country, which has imposed in retaliation for the aid given the sugar trust an extra duty of 50 per cent, on products of the United States.

BUREAU OF STANDARDIZATION

In Which Absolute Accuracy of Weights and Measures Will Be Striven For.

A million and a quarter of dollars has been recently appropriated for the establishment of a national bureau of standards for this government, and the work of designing a remarkable building for this new new feature of the government service will be commenced at once, says the Patent Record of Washington. This is a marvelous structure. It will be a place where the noises and vibrations of the outside world will not be admitted under any pretense and an absolute unvarying temperature will prevail. It will be erected on a site to be selected some distance from the city, where there will be the least possibility of the disturbing influences from the outside world, and on a lot large enough to prevent the possibility of any other building within a distance of a quarter of a mile. There will be double walls, each on a separate foundation resting on the solid rock. The building, which will contain the power plant necessary for the operation of this novel department, will be located at least a thousand yards away. All these precautions are taken in the battle with the vulgar influences of the outside world. Many of the instruments will be placed so that it is impossible for any one to approach them within a distance of 20 or 30 feet. This is to prevent the temperature of a human body from affecting their delicate constitution. The windows will be fitted so that it will be readily possible to make the rooms absolutely dark, even on the brightest days. No particle of sunshine will penetrate the shutters.

There will be maintained in this building a standard of all measures of capacity and distance. Among other things the new department will establish a standard electric cell measuring standard volts and ample means of testing all thermometers.

GOODNESS OF THE BAD MAN.

A Type of the West Whose Virtues Were a Keen Eye, Quick Hand and a Stout Heart.

The bad man is not necessarily bad at all. He is often a very good fellow. Bad is merely a synonym for dangerous. The "bad" man was formerly the "good" man. He is simply the frontiersman whose evolution has kept pace with that of the firearm—product of the border and the six-shooter, says Everybody's Magazine. Keen of eye, quick of hand, and strong of will, he has that supremacy which always comes to the man of cool and clear-headed personal valor everywhere, except in society's latest and most refined development. The term was used rather to express the feeling that he was, in the vernacular of the border, "a bad man to monkey with." To govern and control communities in which vicious men were not infrequent, where all were restless and the majority turbulent, the ordinary forms and servants of justice were inadequate. Law and order required the assistance of officers who, though enlisted to keep the peace, did not hesitate to be a law unto themselves. If civilization was afraid to indorse their actions, it was at least proud of the results of the labors of the peace officer of the border. Hickok, Tom Smith, Patrick Shugrue, Michael Shugrue, William Tilghmann, Hegler Thomas, and a score of other men as marshals, sheriffs and deputies enforced the law, made life and property secure, and brought order out of chaos by their ready courage and good sense. As Wild Bill Hickok was the original, so was he the first of the class.

Athens, Texas, Jan. 27, 1901.

Ever since the first appearance of my menses they were very irregular and I suffered with great pain in my hips, back, stomach and legs, with terrible bearing down pains in the abdomen. During the past month I have been taking Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and I passed the monthly period without pain for the first time in years. NANNIE DAVIS.

What is life worth to a woman suffering like Nannie Davis suffered? Yet there are women in thousands of homes to-day who are bearing those terrible menstrual pains in silence: If you are one of those we want to say that this same

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels. B grade, with celebrated Gotier steel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Winchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and pattern, which I claim has no equal. The body will be good, seasoned yellow poplar; sills and risers good seasoned ash and hickory—not Cottonwood as the factories are now using. Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them bursting out, something I guarantee my work not to do.

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters bulled, not split, roof and curtains 30 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be something neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes. If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 69, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1901. NO. 38.

THE Christian Endeavor meeting in the city this and last week proved a grand success.

A MOB drove twenty-one disciples of John Alexander Dowie out of Evanston, Ill. Only a few days ago they were egged.

THE Williamstown Courier of the 4th inst. published the Declaration of Independence. Was it published as a matter of news?

SIX bags of gold, each containing $5,000, were stolen from the San Francisco mint a few days since. No trace of them can be obtained.

THE action of the recent grand jury in Covington, was ridiculous from the standpoint of a great many good people, notwithstanding the judge complimented it.

MAYOR HARRISON predicts a calamity for Chicago in a year's time, unless the value of property is boosted for taxation purposes to the extent of tens of millions dollars.

THE geographical divisions of the United States are north Atlantic group, the south Atlantic group, the north central group, the south central group and the western group.

SHERIFF BEALL has commenced advertising for sale property on which taxes due are and delinquent. He intends to have all his taxes collected at the expiration of his term of office.

THE citizens of Madison county expect that a compromise will be reached regarding the disposition of the grounds and buildings in Richmond which formerly belonged to Central University.

THE Kentucky State Board of Health is again considering a quarantine against Tennessee and West Virginia because of the apparent indifference of these States to the smallpox danger.

CHARBON is killing horses and cattle by the thousands in Bolivar county, Mississppi. It is impossible to dispose of the carcasses they accumulate so rapidly. Ninety per cent. of the stock infected dies.

SENATOR R. O. COLEMAN, of Trimble county, is a candidate for Prison Commissioner, and has entered upon a canvass for the position. It is said that Pugh has assured him of the support of the Kenton county delegation in the next General Assembly.

THE Kentucky penitentiary is at last on a paying footing, and is a source of revenue to the State. It has been for some time a dead weight, and the present management is entitled to much credit for the present conditions of affairs at that institution.

A NEBRASKA hail storm tackled a train of cars, one day last week, and soon knocked out all the window glass, when the rain poured into the coaches, and the passengers began shouting for life-preservers. There is nothing better calculated to generate excitement than a western hail storm or cyclone.

MUCH activity is being manifested on the part of the Grangers in this county, and the organization is growing rapidly. Several of the Granges that had been defunct for many years have been resuscitated and are holding interesting meetings at regular intervals. The order is proceeding on a basis different from that when it first appeared in this county many years ago, and, as a consequence, will accomplish more than the original Granges did.

AN insanity trust is the latest, and is an Indiana production. The Attorney General of the State is looking into the matter. It is said persons are tried by the lunacy trust at Indianapolis without being notified or knowing anything about it—the first they or their friends know of it is when some officer comes and takes the victim to an asylum. The scheme is to get pay for doctors, Justices and witnesses. The "attending physician" generally draws $6 from the treasury for each case, while he is only entitled to the pay of a common witness, under the law.

IT will be very gratifying to both the patrons and teachers of the public schools in this State to learn that the per capita for the current year will be not less than $2.50. The full calculation has not yet been made on account of the lateness of the work of the State Board of Equalization, but enough is known to guarantee the statement that it will not fall under $2.50. It was believed for quite awhile that in view of the fact that the Court of Appeals decided that the big deficit of last year, left over from the preceding year, and amounting to something over $130,000, had to be paid out of the funds for the last school year, that a deficit would result from last year so large that the per capita for the present year would be greatly reduced. Last year it was $2.45, and none of the teachers of Kentucky believed for a moment that the present per capita would exceed the per capita of last year.

According to Supt. McChesney's figures there are 728,799 pupils this year, while last year's report showed 727,531, only 1,268 less than this year. It is believed that the census for 1901 is nearly correct. The educational branch of the present administration is to be congratulated on its excellent management of the school funds.

THE Kenton county grand jury returned another indictment against Justus Goebel, last Saturday. The indictment says he "did unlawfully, wickedly and corruptly demand, extort and receive of A. J. Landsdown the sum of $10 per month for a period of 23 months running from June 7, 1898, to May 15, 1900, and aggregating $540, and threaten Landsdown, who was a clerk in the office of the Commissioners of Water Works that unless he would pay and deliver to said Justus Goebel the sum of $10 per month that he would be removed from his position as clerk of the Water Works."

If the charges made against Goebel in the indictments are true, it looks very much like he has been the whole thing in Covington in the matter of placing official appointments.

LAST Saturday's Western Tobacco Journal says of the Cincinnati market: "The character of the market was not very high. There was some good Tobacco offered, of course, but in the main the quality was inferior. This was especially true of the offerings on Tuesday. The low grades, however, were in good demand, selling close to outside prices. Red Tobacco also received considerable attention this week, while Smokers not above nine cents were strong on Wednesday. In fact, the entire market for that day was stronger than on the previous day. Good and Fine Leaf was scarce and was not very active. Anything in Leaf above ten cents was easier, the demand for it being limited at present."

Corlett-Brown Wedding.

Nashville, Tenn, June 27, 1901. —In the beauty of its location, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Brown, is unsurpassed in West Nashville. It is a brick cottage trimmed in stone, and is one of the most approved models of architectural beauty. Rooms and reception hall are thoroughly ventilated and well lighted with gas and electricity. Furnishing and upholstering are of the latest designs. It is in fact a luxurious home in all its appointments, and was last night made the center of attraction by one of the most notable society event that has occurred during the season, when Miss Maud J. Brown was united in marriage to Mr. B. Marvin Corlett. The ceremony was performed in a very impressive style by Rev. J. E. Clark of the Adison Street Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

The bride is a stately and handsome brunette and was becomingly dressed in a wedding gown of silk mull made over white taffeta with a yoke of embroidered chiffon and an applique of point lace. A full tulle veil enveloped her form and was fastened to her dark hair with a single spray of sweet peas caught by a diamond brooch. At the appointed hour, leaning upon the arm of the handsome and blushing groom, they entered the parlor, preceded only by the ribbon bearers, as the Italian Orchestra rendered Mendelsshon's wedding march, and softly sounded "Hearts and Flowers" and "Call Me Thine Own." The parlor, dining room and reception hall were profusely decorated with palms and magnolia twined with asparagus vines. Throughout the house a profusion of pink and white carnations and LaFrance roses were employed in effective decoration.

In the dining room where frozen dainties were served immediately after the ceremony the color plan was entirely pink. Mrs. Brown received the guests in a handsome gown of green foulard applique with thread lace. Her assistants were Mrs. Dink Haley, Miss Anna Henkel and Miss Allie M. Taylor. A wedding register was kept and about seventy-five names entered. At a flower decked table in the hall frappe was served. A large number of useful and ornamental presents were received. Many of which were from a distance.

At 9:30 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Corlett left, amidst a storm of rice, for a two weeks Southern tour to Lookout Mountain, Asheville and other points, and, on their return will enter upon the arduous duties of house-keeping, and will be at home to their friends at 1409 Sigler street.

Mr. Corlett is engaged in the wholesale hat business, and has a bright future before him.

Success to the blushing bride and happy groom. May they live long and be happy. J. T. H.

Crop and Stock.

W. S. Fant, of Fleming, sold about 14,000 bushels of old wheat to Cincinnati parties at 70 and 72 cents.

The largest tobacco factory in the world is that belonging to the French Government at Lille. It turns out 60,000 tons a year.

Tom Doland, of Lexington, has sold to Chief of Police Joe Pugh, of Covington, the bay colt Baronette, two years old, by Prince Royal—little Voly, by Vagabond for $2,800.

The British Government is shipping thousands of American horses and mules to South Africa. Four transports reached New Orleans last week to load with the animals and four others are due.

The wheat crop in Nelson county is a failure. A few weeks ago the prospects for a fine yield of wheat was very flattering, but the fly made its appearance in some localities and devastated many acres of promising grain.

The wheat harvest has begun, with earlier indications favorable to a fair crop being sustained, so far as we have had report. A great deal of the wheat, however, was beaten down by the recent rain and wind storms and a considerable loss will be thus entailed.—Georgetown News.

If the latest advices from Europe can be relied upon, and they seem altogether trustworthy, the prospects look favorable for the American farmer realizing a good price for his wheat by reason of the misfortunes of the foreigners.

Consul-General Mason sends word from Berlin that "the cereal harvests of 1901 in Prussia will show the largest and most disastrous deficit that has been recorded in recent years." He estimates that the shortage of breadmaking grain in Prussia alone will be 1,766,000 tons, worth, at present prices, nearly $70,000,000.

From Paris comes the report that the French wheat crop will be so deficient as to make necessary the importation of at least 36,000,000 bushels, which will be worth about $26,000,000.

Here, then, is a prospective foreign demand for nearly $100,000,000 worth of American grain over and above the demand of last year. The Russian and Argentine wheat crops are both reported to be less than last year. Our own wheat crop, as now estimated, will be something over 700,000,000 bushels, which is one-third larger than the crop of 1900.

However, whether the present price of about seventy-two cents a bushel be maintained, increased or lowered, depends upon conditions that cannot be foreseen, though prospects look favorable for a rise in wheat before the end of the year. But for abnormal conditions that are made and unmade by a few, American wheat would rule the markets of the world.

Monday was record breaking day, three separate trials and convictions for felony, besides some routine business, being disposed of.

On Thursday the grand jury returned indictments against Newt Winters for horse stealing and for aiding prisoners to escape; Tom Minor, colored, for grand larceny, and Horace King and Marshall Roberts for horse stealing.

In the Circuit Court last Friday L. E. Walker commonly known as "Pid" Walker, an old resident of the county, was adjudged insane by a jury and sent to the Lakeland Asylum. His mind has been giving way for the past fifteen years, his son Oscar says.

Last Friday a man staggered into the court room full of booze and chin music. His journey about the room was suddenly interrupted by an order from His Honor, Judge Lassing, directing the Sheriff to steer the invader gently over to the county jail where, for four hours, he enjoyed "that innocent sleep that knits up the ravelled sleeve of care."

[News]

Last week Emmett Orr, a former resident of Owenton and ex-Representative of Owen County, was appointed Deputy Marshal for the new Federal district with headquarters at Covington. A handsome salary of $,1800 per year goes with this appointment. Emmett's friends will be glad to learn of his good fortune.

The house of Jeff Davis, near town, was struck by lightning last Friday and partially demolished. The chimneys were struck and scattered over the yard and the weatherboarding stripped off of one end of the house. Mr. Davis says but for the tin roof his home would have been absolutely torn to pieces and the occupants, his wife and children and some parties who had stopped in out of the rain, would have been killed.

One of our numerous hucksters while making his usual route last week stopped at the store of one Jones at Holbrook, near the line between Grant and Owen and proceeded to drive a trade with the astute merchant concerning the sale of a box of eggs. The trade was about consummated when a slight difference in the figuring arose, the amount in contention being four cents. They exchanged compliments and dived into a general knock down and break up. There was but one round and when finished each party was only slightly damaged, but the store had taken on a color of eggs from the cozy china corner to the dressgoods department. Showcases were literally demolished, glassware reduced to nothingness. The invoice taken just after showed the damage to be $375,80.

Serious trouble was prevented by the intervention of friends here last Monday between the parties concerned in the case of Com. vs. Tandy and others. This matter grew out of a bunch of switches found at Mr. Jim Riley's door, a prominent citizen of the Dallasburg community, Mr. Riley's suspicion rested upon L. M. (Doc.) Tandy, also a prominent citizen of that community, and others whom he thought were associated with him. An indictment was returned against Tandy and others and because of the absence of an important witness who escaped jail a short time ago the Commonwealth was not ready for trial and the case was continued to the fall term of court. There is considerable feeling in the matter which, if cool heads do not prevail, may bring about serious trouble.

The wheat harvest is now on in full blast. The yield in the county as a whole is very good, though no little damage has been done to the crop in many localities by the recent severe wind and rain storms. The grain seems to have all ripened at once, and the great demand for reapers and hands has led a number of farmers to run their binders in the moonlight—Pendletonian.

A PRIMARY CALLED.

Pursuant to a call of J. H. Cunningham, Chairman of the Fifteenth Democratic Judicial District Committee, a meeting was held at Sparta, Gallatin county, Ky., on July 5, 1901, and the following members were present: J. H. Cunningham, Chairman, of Owen; R. L. Vallandingham, of Carroll; R. B. Brown, of Gallatin, and A. B. Rouse, of Boone. The Committee elected A. B. Rouse secretary, and the following resolutions were adopted:

First, That a primary election be held in the various precincts of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Gallatin, Grant and Owen, on Saturday, September 14, 1901, between the hours of 6 a. m. and 4 p. m. standard time, for the purpose of nominating a Democratic candidate for Circuit Judge of this the Fifteenth Judicial District, to be voted for at the next November election.

Second, That on or before the first day of August, 1901, the candidates, in order that their names will appear on the ballots, must announce to the Chairman and pay to the Secretary of this committee the sum of $1,000 each, the amount of the assessment of each candidate.

Third, That if on the 1st day of August, 1901, there is but one candidate for the nomination for Circuit Judge, the chairman of this committee shall declare him to be the nominee and certify the nomination of said candidate to the County Clerks of the various counties of the district.

Fourth, That the officers of this election shall be selected by the Democratic Executive Committee of each county for that county.

Fifth, That all known Democrats, and all young men who will be 21 years old by the next November election, and wish to identify themselves with the Democratic party, will be allowed to vote.

J. H. CUNNINGHAM, Chairman.
A. B. ROUSE, Secretary.

There was blood on the moon at Aurora Monday because of the arrival in that city of two negroes from Newport, Ky., to serve as hodcarriers on the new Gibson building in process of erection. Wm. Platt, the contractor, finding hodcarriers scarce about Aurora, imported two from Kentucky. The fame of Aurora's antipathy to negroes had not reached Newport and the two unsuspecting blacks went to packing mortar with a light heart early Monday morning. The news soon spread over town that one of the time honored and unwritten laws of Aurora was being violated at the new Gibson building and two negroes were at work. In a few moments an ominous crowd gathered in the adjoining streets and threatened summary punishment if the blacks did not shake the dust of Aurora from their shoes at once. This was like a revelation to the negroes and served very soon to convince them that Newport was a safer place for them than Aurora. In vain their employer coaxed them to remain and assured them of his protection. They were unwilling to take any chances and departed on the next train. But the excitement in Aurora did not subside for several hours afterward. It is safe to say there will be no more Newport negroes settling in Aurora for the next six months.—Lawrenceburg Register.

The horrible news comes from Kansas that a boy climed a corn stalk to see how the corn was getting along and now the stalk is growing up faster than the boy can climb down. The boy is plumb out of sight. Three men have undertaken to cut the stalk with axes to save the boy from starvation, but it grows so fast that they cannot hack twice in the same place. The boy is living on nothing but raw corn and he has already thrown down over four bushels of cobs.

STATE NEWS.

In Crittenden county lightning struck Jim. Brashear while at work in a hayfield. Lightning struck his wagon, killing Brashear and his two horses and burning the wagon.

During a thunder storm on the afternoon of the 4th lightning struck the residence of ex Congressman Finley, at Williamsburg, knocking off a chimney and rendering Mrs. Finley unconscious. It then passed to the neighboring residence of United States District Attorney Hill. At neither place was any serious damage done. Mrs. Finley is the mother of ex-Secretary of State Charles Finley, now in Indiana. Damage by lightning was done at several other places.

The monthly report of Secretary McDonald, of the State Prison Commission, to the Commission, shows that for the month of June the prisons were not only self-sustaining, but paid into the treasury the sum of $1,028,28. The report shows the income of the main prison during the month to have been $11,110,48, and the expenses $9,239,17, an income above expenses of $1,871,31. The deficit at the branch prison at Eddyville was $843,03. Under the management of the present Commission the prisons have been showing a balance to the credit of the State each month for the past six months, and this notwithstanding the fact that much improvement has been going on at both institutions.

Parsnips for Milch Cows.

The parsnip is probably one of the best roots ever grown for milch cows, and it has a great advantage in that it may remain in the field until spring, when other roots are all gone, and then be used until grass has grown. It is as easily grown as the carrot, and, like that root, it wants a deep, rich and mellow soil. Many object to growing it, even in the garden, because the weeds are apt to get such a growth before the parsnips come up that the labor of weeding is greatly increased, but this may be remedied by mixing a few radish seed with the parsnip seed, which will come up so that the rows can be seen and hoed out long before the parsnips are up. They can be pulled when the parsnips are thinned.—Farmers Home Journal.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

An authority on such subjects prescribes the following simple receipt: "To stop the ravages of the little striped bug on melon and cucumber vines, use fine sand or turnpike dust, in which a little coal oil has been sprinkled and well mixed. Sift a little on and around the vines occasionally."

A man in Ohio has a goose of the gander kind that is more than 100 years old. It is said that he still leads the young broods to the creek with as much pride as he did 90 or 95 years ago.

GEN. TAFT INSTALLED.

Civil Government Inaugurated in the Philippines.

President McKinley Sends a Congratulatory Message to the New Government — Reception in Honor of MacArthur.

Manila, July 5.—Civil government in the Philippines has been auspiciously inaugurated. Commissioner Taft was escorted by Gen. MacArthur and Gen. Chaffee from the palace to a great temporary tribune just outside the palacio. Standing on a projecting center of the tribune, Mr. Wm. H. Taft, the new civil governor of the Philippine islands, took the oath of office administered by Chief Justice Arellona. Judge Taft was then introduced by Gen. MacArthur. The first gun was fired by way of salute.

The inaugural address of Gov. Taft was the announcement that September 1, 1901, the commission would be increased by the appointment of three native members, Dr. Waldo Detevar, Denito Legarda and Jose Luzuriga. Before September 1 departments will exist as follows, the heads of which have been arranged for thus: Interior, Worcester; commerce and police, Wright; justice and finance, Ide; public instruction, Moses. Of the 27 provinces organized Civil Gov. Taft said the insurrection still exists in five. This will cause the continuance of the military government in these sections.

Sixteen additional provinces are reported without insurrections, but as yet they have not been organized. Four provinces are not ready for civil government. The speaker predicted that with the concentration of troops in larger garrisons it would be necessary for the people to assist the police in the preservation of order. Free launches will be procured, he said, which will facilitate communication among the provinces as well as aid the postal and revenue departments. In connection with the educational efforts, Civil Gov. Taft said that the adults should be educated by an observation of American methods. He said that there was a reasonable hope that congress would provide a tariff suitable, one that would assist in the development of the Philippines, instead of an application of the United States tariff. According to the civil governor, there is an unexpended balance in the insular treasury of $3,700,000 and an annual income of $10,000,000. He said that any possible friction between civil and military subordinates should be discouraged. The patriotism of the leading Filipinos was commended.

"Taft, Manila.—Upon the assumption of your new duties as civil governor of the Philippine islands, I have great pleasure in sending congratulations to you and your associate commissioners and my thanks for the good work already accomplished. I extend to you my full confidence and best wishes for still greater success in the larger responsibilities now devolved upon you, and the assurance, not only for myself, but for my countrymen, of good will for the people of the islands, and the hope that their participation in the government which it is our purpose to develop among them may lead to their highest advancement, happiness and prosperity. WM. McKINLEY."

The closing event was a reception in honor of Gen. MacArthur at the residence of the civil governor. Mesdames Taft and Chaffee assisted in receiving the guests.

The United States transport Meade sailed Thursday night for Nagasaki with Gen. MacArthur and the members of his staff on board.

FIRE WALL FELL.

Two Boys Killed, One Badly Crushed and Twenty Others Were More or Less Injured.

Canton, Ill., July 5.—During the Fourth of July celebration here Thursday, while a crowd of boys were looking at a street attraction from the roof of a one-story brick building, they forced over the front fire wall and several of the boys fell to the pavement, a distance of about 20 feet. A number of people were standing in front of the building and 300 or 400 bricks fell on top of them. Iva Suydam, aged 7 years, was instantly killed; Charles Fellows was badly crushed and received injuries which will probably result fatally. Twenty others were injured, but none seriously. Some of them received scalp wounds, the noses of two of them were broken and others were badly bruised.

THE EXPRESS ROBBERY.

The Exact Amount of the Loss by the Hold-Up at Wagner, Mont., Was $41,500.

Great Falls, Mont., July 4.—Train No. 3, west-bound, on the Great Northern, was held up about 2:02 Wednesday afternoon at Wagner station, 196 miles east of this place, by three masked men, who blew open the express car with dynamite and secured the entire contents of the through express safe, $83,000. One of the robbers boarded the train a few miles from the scene of the hold-up. When the train reached the place where his confederates were lying in wait, in a ravine alongside the track, he pulled the bell cord, and as the train slowed down, jumped on the engine, and, presenting a rifle, forced the fireman and engineer to abandon their engine.

Dynamite was quickly exploded in the express car, tearing the car to pieces. The robbers then mounted good horses and rode away to the Bad Lands. A posse is in pursuit, but capture is improbable.

The robbery, in daylight, was one of the boldest that has ever occurred in the west.

St. Paul, Minn., July 6.—General Auditor D. S. Elliot, of the Great Northern Express Co., said that the exact amount of the loss by the hold-up at Wagner, Mont., on Monday last was $41,500. All but $500 was currency sent from Washington to the Montana national bank of Helena, the rest being Great Northern money in the through safe.

The consignment to the Montana bank consisted of bank notes, printed in sheets of ten and twenty-dollar bills. Only nine were signed by the president and cashier of the bank, but all could be readily passed without their signatures.

Mr. Elliot received information that the identity of the men who robbed the express safe has been established by the Pinkerton men sent from St. Paul. He did not care to give out their names until satisfied that the detectives had made no mistake.

The report that the robbers had been surrounded, Mr. Elliot says, has not been verified by Great Northern officials. Officials of the express company believe that the men eluded their pursuers and are now in the Little Rocky mountains, a wild country well supplied with hiding places. The district will be guarded by a picket line and the authorities hope to capture the men when they try to get out.

A party of cowboys has started north from Lewiston, in the Judith basin, to intercept the robbers should they continue southward from the Little Rocky mountains.

It would not be possible for me, during the next year, to make a canvass for the senate and at the same time administer to my own satisfaction the important and responsible office I now hold. I am influenced solely in this action by what seems to me the plain proprieties of the situation."

Mr. Dawes' term of office would not have expired until January 1, 1903.

A STORM IN BUFFALO.

The Midway Shows at the Exposition Were Flooded.

The Transformers and Other Machinery in the Receiving House Burned Out—Streets in Darkness and Cars Stopped.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 6.—A severe electrical storm passed over this city Friday night. The lightning struck in a dozen places. It hit the supply wires that bring electrical power from Niagara Falls to Buffalo, burning out transformers and other electrical machinery in the Buffalo receiving house. For over an hour the streets were without electric light, except that furnished from store windows which had their own plants, and the street cars were at a standstill. The rain fell in torrents, flooding many cellars.

At Crystal Beach the lightning struck two houses and three barns, setting them on fire. Mrs. Benjamin Zavitz was severely burned. Three young people, who left the dock in a row boat before the storm, had not returned up to a late hour.

The flash of lightning put out the down-town electric lights and stopped the street cars and also burned all the circuits leading to the exposition. The conduits were utterly inadequate to carry off the water and the grounds were flooded. Some of the Midway shows were flooded to a depth of three feet. The engine room under the machinery and transportation building was also filled with water and all the machinery was stopped. One small circuit, which supplies are lights in the exhibit buildings, was the only one unaffected by the storm.

THEIR SUMMER HOME.

President and Mrs. McKinley Left Washington For Canton in the Private Car Olympia.

Washington, July 6.—President and Mrs. McKinley left Washington Friday night for their former home at Canton, O., where they are to spend the remainder of the summer, except that the former may visit the Buffalo exposition and run on to Washington for a few days. They are accompanied by Secretary Cortelyou, Dr. Rixey, several clerical attaches of the white house and servants. The party occupied the private cars Olympia and Hungary, the president and Mrs. McKinley being assigned to the former. They are due in Canton Saturday forenoon.

Mrs. McKinley, as she boarded the train, showed unmistakable evidence of her recent severe illness in the thinness and pallor of her face, but she moved with alacrity from the carriage, boarded the train without any material assistance, and appeared to be in a contented and cheerful state of mind.

Canton, O., July 8.—A quiet, restful and pleasant day is reported at the McKinley home Sunday evening. The president and Mrs. McKinley, and Mrs. Barber, during the morning, drove to Westlawn cemetery and placed flowers on the graves of the McKinley children and other relatives buried there, and spent the remainder of the day at home. During the afternoon they sat on the porch for a time and seemed to greatly enjoy the cool breezes that swept over it. Only a few callers appeared at the house, and they were intimate friends or relatives, Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Barber and their children and Judge Day were entertained at dinner and remained to spend the evening. No plans for the future have been announced. Mrs. McKinley's condition continues favorable and she has experienced no relapse as the result of the trip. The weather here is pleasantly cool.

They Are One of the Attractions of the Street Fair—Two Exhibitions Each Day.

Omaha, Neb., July 6.—Three more angry and active bulls fruitlessly chased half a dozen Mexican toreadors in the arena at the South Omaha street fair Friday afternoon before a fair crowd of people. None of the animals and none of the men were injured, but the sport was exciting.

So popular has the amusement become that the management has decided to put on two fights a day hereafter, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. Tests have been made with the large arc lights, and it is believed that they will be sufficient to guarantee safety to the toreadors.

THE BIG STEEL STRIKE

One of the Subsidiary Companies Signed the Scale.

A Complication Has Arisen, Which May Affect the Action to Be Taken at the Conference Beginning Wednesday.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 8.—The National Steel Co., one of the subsidiary companies of the United States steel corporation, has signed the special steel scale for the big steel plant at Mingo Junction, Jefferson county, O. This is one of the largest plants in the country outside of the Carnegie works. This is the first of the scales of the National Steel Co. to be signed. It shows that the National Co. is willing to accept the continuous clause, including the provision to sign for all its mills.

At Steubenville late Saturday night the scale of the La Belle Iron Co. for the puddlers and bar iron men was signed.

A complication has arisen which may have an important effect on the action to be taken at the conference, beginning Wednesday, being the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and representatives of the sheet steel and steel hoop companies to settle the wage scale.

On Saturday 12 men were discharged from the Wellsville, O., steel plant, an underlying company of the United States steel corporation. No reason was given, but the men say it was because the discharged men were known to have been active in unionizing the mill. President Shaffer, of the Amalgamated association, has issued an order calling upon all union men in the mill to strike Monday. He is determined that the scale must be signed for all mills alike, and will take no chances on a settlement of the existing troubles by the conference to be held this week.

TERRIBLE RAIN STORM.

The Damage to Farm Lands in the Vicinity of Lynchburg, Tenn., Was Great.

Nashville, Tenn., July 8.—A rain storm approaching a cloudburst swept over Lynchburg, Moore county, and its vicinity. Mulberry creek, which half way encircles the town, rose ten feet in less than 40 minutes, washing away lumber, fences and buildings. The post office at County Line had to be anchored to prevent its being demolished. The damage to farm lands is very heavy. Thousands of rails were lost and much wheat in shocks swept away. In some instances the growing corn was totally destroyed. On the farm of Mrs. Callie Bobo, where wheat threshing was in progress, the thresher and a loaded wagon were carried some distance by the flood. No loss of life has been reported.

Dozens of pedestrians on Park avenue, opposite the house where the Luthys lived, saw the woman killed and saw her body fall from one landing of the fire escape to the one below. Jealousy and a quarrel growing out of a delayed dinner is supposed to have been the cause of the shooting.

PIERRE LORILLARD DEAD.

He Was Stricken With an Uraemic Chill in England on the 20th of June.

New York, July 8.—Pierre Lorillard died at 2:10 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The death of Mr. Lorillard took place at the Fifth Avenue hotel, where he was taken from the Deutschland when that steamer arrived from Europe July 4. The members of the family present at the bedside when the end came were Mr. Lorillard's daughters, Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer and Mrs. William Kent and their husbands and Pierre Lorillard, jr., and wife, and also Pierre Lorillard III.

Lorillard's recent severe illness dated from June 20. He was in England and went to his lodge at Ascot, hoping to see his horse, David Garrick, win the gold cup. He was stricken with an uraemic chill and was sick for a week. He was advised to come to America, and boarded the Deutschland, but his condition became grave each moment. His physician, Dr. Kilroy, told him that he did not think he would live to get to New York, but the magnate insisted that he would. It has never been thought he would recover since his arrival.

The funeral will be at 11 o'clock on Wednesday from Grace church. The interment will be at Greenwood.

Pierre Lorillard was the oldest son of Peter Lorillard, founder of the fortune which made the family name famous. He inherited much of the business ability of his father, and marked success attended the commercial enterprises which he planned and executed. At the death of his father he received about $1,000,000 and an interest jointly with his brothers and sisters in the great tobacco house of which his father had been the head. He at once purchased from his brothers a control of the house, and by shrewd management greatly increased his fortune. He built a handsome residence at Fifth avenue and Fifty-sixth street, and entertained in princely manner. In 1874 he became interested in the turf. His first great horse was Parole. With Iroquois in 1881 he was the first American to win the classic English Derby. He was also an enthusiastic yachtsman, and once raced his Vesta across the Atlantic. He founded and controlled at the time of his death the fashionable resort at Tuxedo. He is survived by his wife, son Pierre Lorillard, jr., and daughters, Mrs. William Kent and Mrs. T. Sufferin Tailer.

Various estimates have been made of the value of Mr. Lorillard's estate, and while its exact value at the present time is not known, it is believed that it is more than $25,000,000. As long ago as 1884 it was said to be from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000.

THE VERSAILLES FIRE.

Columbus, O., July 8.—An appeal for relief of the fire sufferers at Versailles, O., has been sent out by Mayor Calderwood and Rev. M. W. Baker, pastor of the Christian church of that town. Forty business houses were destroyed and the loss is estimated at $500,000 to $750,000.

Of five business blocks only two buildings remain. A number of persons who were worth from $1,000 to $5,000 on Saturday morning are literally penniless and homeless Sunday. It was a heartrending scene, men, women and children walking the streets crying and praying as they saw all they possessed in this world being consumed by the merciless flames.

THE DEADLOCK.

Committees Have Taken to Themselves Too Much Authority in Dealing With the Chinese.

Peking, July 8.—The minister of one of the great powers told a press representative that a leading cause for the present apparent deadlock was the fact that the various committees had taken to themselves too much authority in dealing with the Chinese, and had made certain promises dependent upon the Chinese agreeing to certain conditions which other ministers afterward found it impossible to accept.

Another factor of considerable importance, he said, was the commercial factor, involving the right of each government to make its own treaties with China and the application of the most favored nation clause.

In his opinion the first difficulty can be overcome shortly, but the commercial issue must be eliminated or it is likely to prove a definite stumbling block.

A Mob of 1,000 Drove 21 Disciples of John Alexander Dowie Out of Evanston, Ill.

Chicago, July 6.—Twenty-one disciples of John Alexander Dowie visited Evanston, a Chicago suburb, and despite the efforts of the entire police force of the place, a mob of 1,000 people drove them out of town in short order.

Several days ago four of Dowie's missionaries were egged and driven out of Evanston, and this second visit of the 21 was intended to convert the people of Evanston and show them the error of their ways. The instant the Dowieites began their meeting they were assailed with eggs, vegetables and other missiles. The guard of policemen was too small to afford much protection, and the crowd soon began to hustle the missionaries along the street in a manner that looked serious. Chief of Police Knight called the entire police force to the rescue, but it included only 30 men, and was unable to cope with the mob. Several of the male Dowieites were knocked down and both women and men were liberally bespattered with eggs and mud. The Dowieites finally abandoned their meeting and fled from the town, the police protecting them as they ran for the cars. No arrests were made.

ON ONE SCAFFOLD.

Four Negroes Hanged For Killing a Helpless Colored Man and Wounding His Wife.

Chipley, Fla., July 6.—At Vernon, 16 miles from here, four Negroes, Belton Hamilton, John Simmons, Jim Harrison and Will Williams, were hanged for murder. They had been convicted of killing a helpless Negro and almost killing his wife.

During the trial Hamilton, on cross-examination, confessed, saying: "I am guilty, before God, I am guilty, and ought to be hung until dead."

By his confession the others were convicted also. John Simmons had killed another Negro.

The four Negroes were made to ascend the gallows at one time, and after a short statement from each, all claiming to be on the road to Heaven, the trap was sprung. Only one neck was broken, the others dying from strangulation.

COOL BREEZES.

Term of Hot Weather at Chicago Is Broken—Fall of Mercury Steady Until 76 Was Reached.

Chicago, July 6.—Cool breezes from the northwest broke the term of heat weather, but before they came nine people had died, 7 more were prostrated, and one man attempted suicide.

The maximum temperature of the day was in the weather bureau, 90 degrees; on the street level, 95. The wind blew hard all day, shifting from the southwest to the northwest, but at sunset it settled in the latter point, and the fall of the mercury was steady until 76 was reached.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Raymond Albers, Aged 13, Shot and Killed Samuel Kohler, 12, and Then Hanged Himself.

Albany, N. Y., July 6.—Raymond Albers, a 13-year-old lad, shot Emanuel Kohler, a boy of 12 years, and then hanged himself. The boys were playmates, and according to statements by neighbors they had quarreled some days ago. Albers is the son of Albert Albers, a well known painter, and Koehler is the son of Rev. John T. Kohler, a minister of the Gospel. The rifle used was a 22 Flobert. The ball struck Koehler in the left breast and passed through his heart. He died almost instantly.

GRAND CHALLENGE CUP.

Leander Beat the Pennsylvania University Eight By a Length in the Regatta at Henley.

Henley, July 6.—To the disappointment of all the Americans at Henley the Leander Rowing club crew defeated the crew of the University of Pennsylvania by a length in the final heat for the grand challenge cup.

The followers of the British crew evinced the greatest confidence, and Leander money was everywhere available, but this confidence never exceeded anything beyond even money. The Pennsylvanians' friends picked up several hundred pounds, and a Philadelphia occupant of a houseboat is said to have invested £300 in favor of his crew.

FROM ALL OVER THE STATE.

THE AMBUSHED PARTY.

Four Men Were Shot Instead of Two By Young Clarence Shipp—Is Still at Large.

Lebanon, July 5.—Clarence Shipp, aged 17, who, a few days ago, it is claimed, ambushed and assassinated Richard Horde and seriously wounded John Allen on Scott's Ridge, this county, has not yet been apprehended, although a posse has been searching for him, and believe they will shortly capture him.

Deputy Sheriff Jack T. Fisher brought in and placed in jail Guldion Shipp, an 11-year-old brother of Clarence Shipp, the alleged assassin. He was with his brother in the thicket when the fatal shots were fired. He declares he is innocent, but admits having been with his brother when the shots were fired. It has been learned that four men were shot instead of two, as at first reported. Horde, who died, had 40 buckshot in his breast and head. Dave Allen was mortally wounded and John Allen is badly shot, but not seriously. A lunch basket he carried protected him.

Lebanon Ky., July 6.—Dave Allen, who was shot on Scott's Ridge Monday, died of his injuries, and Clarence Shipp, aged 17, is now a double murderer. Richard Horde was the other victim, having been killed instantly. Officers are still searching for Shipp.

LOST FIRM'S CASH.

Charles H. Bareford Makes a Statement in Regard to the Failure of Bareford & Lawson.

Louisville, Ky., July 6.—The failure of Bareford & Lawson, wholesale millinery, last Saturday, involves a sensation. Orville Lawson, the junior member of the firm, is charged with having lost $48,000 of the firm's money in stock speculation.

Mr. Lawson left Louisville on June 20, ostensibly on a business trip, and has not been heard from since. His present whereabouts is unknown. Several say that, after leaving, Mr. Bareford, his partner, received information that Lawson's valise, containing bonds of the firm which he was taking south to convert into cash, had been stolen. This, Mr. Bareford afterward learned, was a fiction to cover losses incurred in speculation.

As soon as Mr. Bareford ascertained the situation he took steps to make an assignment for the benefit of the creditors.

There are several rumors afloat regarding Lawson's movements. One is that he is in Mexico. There is nothing criminal in his use of the firm's money, and his absence is credited to his deep humiliation at his double dealing with his partners.

TO DRILL A WELL.

Continued Excitement Over Oil at Albany, Ky.—Available Lands About All Leased.

Albany, Ky., July 4.—The oil excitement in this county still continues. All available lands are about leased. A. G. Long, of this place, has leased several thousand acres of land on Spring creek for S. S. Miller, of Pennsylvania, and Miller will sink a test well at once. Capt. Gary has also leased about 2,000 acres in the same neighborhood, and is preparing to sink a well.

Robert M. Shearer, of Cincinnati, is preparing to drill a well on L. G. Duvall's farm, in the Duvall valley. Shearer is very confident of striking a gusher. He says the level of oil lies in Clinton county. This valley is about 3¼ miles from the Sunny Brook oil fields.

FOUND THEM DEAD.

Owensboro, Ky., July 6.—Friday morning, when the 8:35 train reached here from St. Louis, a man who lived here 20 years ago, named B. B. Widtmer, but who was a stranger to everybody, got off and began to inquire if anybody knew where Mrs. Pauline Widtmer lived. No one at the depot could tell him, and he came on down into town, inquiring of people as he met them as to Mrs. Widtmer's residence.

Finally he found some one who remembered the tragic suicide on the night of June 30, 1897, of Mrs. Widtmer and her only child, Miss Pauline, and told him that she was dead and told him the circumstances attending the death of herself and daughter.

The poor man became grief-stricken, and his condition was pitiable. He had come all the way from Seven Devils Hill, on Snake river, Idaho, bringing with him 20 five-hundred-dollar bills to give to his sister-in-law and her daughter, and to take them with him to his mining camp in Idaho, where he has grown rich. He expected to find them well and alive.

WRONG PISTOL USED.

One Man Fatally Shot at the Red Men's Demonstration at Bowling Green, Ky.

Bowling Green, Ky., July 5.—The big Red Men's demonstration at the fair grounds here Thursday was marred by a shooting affair about 4:30 o'clock. The sham battle was on between the Red Men on one side and the cowboys and military on the other, when one of the Red Men, John Noakes, was shot in the back and dangerously, and perhaps fatally, hurt by Peck Campbell, one of the cowboys. Campbell left the grounds immediately after the shooting, but returned later and surrendered to the officers. He admits that he did the shooting, but says it was accidental; that he had two pistols in his pocket, one loaded with blanks and the other with cartridges, and in the excitement of the battle he got hold of the loaded pistol. Noakes, who was shot, is an L. & N. engineer and lived in this city.

Sixty-Eight Bullet Holes Found in the Body of John Combs—Murdered in a Blind Tiger.

Mayking, Ky., July 4.—John Combs, aged 29 years, was shot to death on Buckhorn creek, west of here, in Knott county, by Goodloe Hutson and John Elliott Fugate, two mountain toughs. The murder occurred at a "blind tiger." A week ago, it is said, they met and Combs abused the men and struck one of them across the forehead with a revolver. When they met again Tuesday, it is said Combs cursed them and opened fire, when Hutson and Fugate literally filled his body full of lead. Sixty-eight bullet holes were found in Combs' body.

Hutson and Fugate escaped to the hills, but were later arrested by Sheriff Napper. Combs left a widow and three children in destitute circumstances.

It would be well for our merchants to be very careful as to whom they deal with in getting their garden seeds. Mr. E. P. Holder purchased some cabbage seed, labelled "Early Jersey Wakefield Cabbage Seed, by the Rush Park Seed Co., Independence, Iowa, and set out over 1,000 plants in time to be now marketing the same. They do not look like any cabbage raised around here and are a late variety. Our gardeners can do nothing with late cabbage, as the crop of that kind is always a failure. Under our laws the Rush Park Seed Co. would be liable under a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

The lightning on the 4th was terrific hereabouts, shivering a large locust tree in the rear of Mrs. Ruth Hind's residence, striking the telephone wire in front of Mrs. E. P. Holder's house, meandering along the line, frightening the denizens of South Walton half out of their wits, but, happily, doing no serious injury to life or property. Local News.

The fall in the temperature Sunday was a great relief to suffering humanity.

J. J. Walton and V. W. Gaines took a drove of 210 nice lambs through town Monday afternoon.

James E. Smith came in early Monday morning and took a new mower home to use in his hay harvest.

A. B. Rouse was at Sparta, Friday, attending the meeting of the Judicial District Committee of which he is a member.

A couple afflicted with the remnants of fourth of July booze, struck the town, last Friday, as they were homeward bound.

Remember the picnic at the Harvest Home grounds next Saturday afternoon. The afternoon will be delightfully spent.

Last Saturday 18 of the younger people of Burlington and vicinity had a most enjoyable fishing party down on Gunpowder.

— Sutters, of McVille, has bought one of the latest improved threshing machines, and expects to thresha very large amount of grain this season.

Lightning killed a fine shorthorn cow for Noah Clore on the 4th Inst. Lightning seems to have a special fondness for Mr. Clore's farm and strikes there several times every year.

Sheriff Beall had a telephone put in his office Monday. A long, a short and a long ring will catch that functionary except on the Petersburg line, on which Burlington will have to be called first.

Peaches are falling from the trees badly, and the crop may yet be quite small. In some instances very few remain on the trees, and the dropping has not ceased. The apple crop will not be large.

In the county court on the 2d inst., Mrs. Emma V. Rouse was appointed administratrix of the estate of S. J. Rouse, deceased. W. R Rouse, W. L. B. Rouse and Henry Clore were appointed appraisers.

A considerable delegation went from Burlington to Erlanger on the night of the fourth to witness the display of fireworks, which they say was a great credit to the patriotic citizens of that thriving little city.

A few days ago, G. T. Gaines sold 3 two year old steers that averaged 1,265 pounds. Only a few days before he sold a bunch of 80 pound lambs. He is one of the best stock raisers in this county.

Old meadows are a failure this season, but some of the new ones are said to be very fine. In this part of the county there are very few fields of oats, but they ought to be good, owing to the very favorable season.

A spreadding adder about 2 feet long was killed, last Friday, on the pavement at Mrs. Cowen's. Its mate appeared shortly afterwards, but got under the house before anything with which to kill it could be secured.

Bert Rouse and Jerry Delph have put in a new saw and make things hum when steam is up. It is to be hoped that their campaign of trouble is concluded, and that their crop of saw dust will assume immense proportions.

Conner & Hogan closed out their tobacco purchase of 300,000 pounds last week. They prized and shipped the tobacco as soon as possible after receiving. The lowest price for which they sold was $2.90 per 100 and the highest, $11.75.

The local showers kept the thermometers bobbing up and down last week. A shower of rain of a few minutes duration would lower the mercury for a short time, when it would rise rapidly again until reaching its former position.

The city dealers in lambs are a cute set. At the beginning of the season they throw out the farmer's lambs because they will not weigh from 75 to 80 pounds, and as soon as they begin to bring in lambs that reach the above figures they begin throwing them out because they are too large.

The directors of the North Kentucky Agricultural Association held a meeting last Saturday and arranged to have the cottage painted and the stalls and other buildings whitewashed. Orders for stalls have been coming in from horsemen up the country, and some of the best horses in the State will be exhibited at Florence this fall.

The Woolper school house burnt at an early hour on the morning of the 4th Inst. The cause of the fire is not known, but many believe it was incendiary, while others incline to the opinion that some persons had been in the house during the night and dropped a match or cigar stub, that caused the fire. The building was nearly entirely consumed before the fire was discovered. The house was, comparatively, new, having been built about eight years ago at a cost of nearly $1,000 to the district. The erection of the building caused a long litigation, which it is hoped willbe avoided when the next one is erected.

Summer complaint is usually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; C. S. Baisly, Bullittsville; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

Rev. McDonald, of Danville, preached for the Presbyterian congregation at this place Sunday morning and evening.

John Rich and "Bunk" Black, of the Southern part of the county, were looking after business in Burlington, last Saturday.

Mrs. William Carpenter, of Sparta, Gallatin county, after a week or ten days visit with her mother, Mrs. W. C. Goodridge, has returned home.

Dr. Smith celebrated the fourth by setting out cabbage plants that were as tall as he. It is not known whether he planted for shade or bean poles.

Mrs. Maud Williams, who has been visiting her mother here, for several weeks, left Saturday morning, for the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

J. W. Gaines, of the Flatsburg neighborhood, was taken violently sick on the afternoon of the 4th inst., since which time he has been critically ill.

Frank Huey, of Muncie, Ind., made the RECORDER a call, Monday, and had his subscription moved up a notch. He looks like Indiana air agrees with him.

Miss Vassie Darnell, of Newport, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Rouse. She sang for the Presbyterian congregation Sunday night, and charmed her hearers.

Kirtley Johnson, of Walton, was in town Friday. He has a sale on the 13th inst., and will leave immediately thereafter for Kansas, where he intends making his future home.

Rev. Yohannan lectured to a good sized audience at the Baptist church, Monday night. He is a native of Persia, and gives in his lecture, a great deal of information as to the habits and customs of the Persians.

Lewis A. Scott, of Lexington, was in town yesterday, and qualified as administrator of Lewis Scott, sr., who died a few days since at the home of his son, Joseph Scott, near Florence. The estate consists of $18,000 in government bonds.

Miss Julia Smith and Miss. Ethel Sebree, of Ashby Fork, called at the RECORDER'S office a few minutes, Monday afternoon. Miss Julia is very much interested in the continuance of the Woolper Sunday school, and it will hold its meeting at her house next Sunday.

E. L. Riley, one of the leading members of the Bullittsville Grange, was in town, last Friday, perfecting arrangements for the meeting of the State Grange here on the 17th and 18th inst. A large attendance is anticipated, and the meeting will be very interesting and profitable.

Major Stott, of Petersburg, was in town Saturday, looking well and in good spirits, notwithstanding he has been engaged, all season, in a war of extermination with melon bugs, he having had about as much success in suppressing them as the English have had in suppressing the Boers. The Major says he will couttnue hostilities until frost comes but what he conquers the destructive little pests.

Now comes Edwin Gaines, jr., and avows that when he said to the RECORDER last week that no young man who does not wear a shirt waist at the picnic, next Saturday, will be permitted to dance, that he did not mean to convey that idea although his language conveyed none other. He avows further that any and all persons who desire so to do will be permitted to dance, and wants them to waste no time in getting to the grounds on time to help start the fun.

It was our good fortune to accompany Edwin Gaines, jr., to the pleasant home of G. T. Gaines out on the Petersburg pike, to spend the 4th. Thos. D. Goodridge and wife, Mrs. W. C. Goodridge, and sons, Mrs. Wm. Carpenter, of Gallatin county, Mrs. Laura Foster and daughter, of Jacksonville, Fla., were the other guests. Mr. Gaines and son, Hubert, had made special arrangements for the entertainment of the male guests, and immediately upon their arrival the patriotism provided for the occasion was put on tap, and was delightfully invigorating and exhilarating on that oppressively hot day. Mrs. Gaines and her daughters, Misses Inez and Kittie, three most excellent cooks, had paid especial attention to the preparation of a dinner that would have met the demands of the most fastidious epicure, and it was served in the good, old fashion way. Fried chicken and all kinds of vegetables in abundance greeted the guests at the noon hour and the liberal manner of which they were partaken was a testimonial of the excellent cooking. The finale of the meal, ice cream and cake, was in keeping with its many other excellencies. In the afternoon Miss Kittie entertained with several songs, while the singing of Master Raymond Goodridge and little Miss Olivette Foster was greatly enjoyed. Miss Olivette not only sings nicely, but she is a regular artist when it comes to dancing. The day was a most delightful one to all present.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty, of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." It trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner, Florence; H. L. Eskew, Walton; O. N. HARVEST TIME HERE

A Sermon of Congratulation for Christian Endeavorers.

Although Dr. Talmage was hindered from attending the great annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor society at Cincinnati, his sermon shows him to be in sympathy with the great movement; text, Amos 9:13: "Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that the plowman shall overtake the reaper."

Unable because of other important duties to accept the invitation to take part in the great convention of Christian Endeavorers at Cincinnati, begun last week, I preach a sermon of congratulation for all the members of that magnificent association, whether now gathered in vast assemblage or busy in their places of usefulness, transatlantic and cisatlantic, and as it is now harvest time in the fields and sickles are flashing in the gathering of a great crop, I find mighty suggestiveness in my text.

It is a picture of a tropical clime, with a season so prosperous that the harvest reaches clear over to the planting time, and the swarthy husbandman, busy cutting the grain, almost feels the breath of the horses on his shoulders, the horses hitched to the plow, preparing for a new crop. "Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that the plowman shall overtake the reaper." When is that? That is now. That is this day, when hardly have you done reaping one harvest of religious result than the plowman is getting ready for another.

In phraseology charged with all venom and abuse and caricature I know that infidels and agnostics have declared that Christianity has collapsed; that the Bible is an obsolete book; that the Christian church is on the retreat. I shall answer that wholesale charge to-day.

Between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 Endeavorers sworn before high Heaven that they will do all they can to take America for God, Europe for God, Asia and Africa for God—are not the signs most cheering? Or, to return to the agricultural figure of my text, more than a million reapers are overtaken by more than a million plowmen. Before this, there are more people who are in the Bible than at any time in the world's existence. An Arab guide was leading a French infidel across the desert, and ever and anon the Arab guide would get down in the sand and pray to the Lord. It disgusted the French infidel, and after a while, as the Arab got up from one of his prayers, the infidel said: "How do you know there is any God?" And the Arab guide said: "How do I know that a man and a camel passed by our tent last night? I know it by the footprint in the sand. And you want to know how I know whether there is any God? Look at the sunset. Is that the footstep of a man?" And by the same process you and I have come to understand that this book is the footstep of God.

But now let us see whether the book is a last year's almanac. Let us see whether the church of God is a Bull Run retreat, muskets, canteens and haversacks strewing all the way. The great English historian Sharon Turner, a man of vast learning and great accuracy, not a clergyman, but an attorney as well as a historian, gives this overwhelming statistic in regard to Christianity and in regard to the number of Christians in the different centuries: In the first century 500,000 Christians, in the second century 2,000,000 Christians, in the third century 5,000,000 Christians, in the fourth century 10,000,000 Christians, in the fifth century 15,000,000 Christians, in the sixth century 20,000,000 Christians, in the seventh century 24,000,000 Christians, in the eighth century 30,000,000 Christians, in the ninth century 40,000,000 Christians, in the tenth century 50,000,000 Christians, in the eleventh century 70,000,000 Christians, in the twelfth century 80,000,000 Christians, in the thirteenth century 75,000,000 Christians, in the fourteenth century 80,000,000 Christians, in the fifteenth century 100,000,000 Christians, in the sixteenth century 125,000,000 Christians, in the seventeenth century 155,000,000 Christians, in the eighteenth century 200,000,000 Christians—a decadence, as you observe, in only one century and more than made up in the following centuries, while it is the usual computation that there were at the close of the nineteenth century 470,000,000 Christians, making us to believe that before this century is closed the millenium will have started its boom and lifted its hosanna.

Poor Christianity! What a pity it has no friend! How lonesome it must be! Who will take it out of the poorhouse? Poor Christianity! Four hundred millions in one century. In a few weeks of this year 2,500,000 copies of the New Testament distributed. Why, the earth is like an old castle with 50 gates and a park of artillery ready to thunder down every gate. See how heathendom is being surrounded and honeycombed and attacked by this all conquering Gospel. At the beginning of the nineteenth century 150 missionaries; at the close of that century 84,000 missionaries and native helpers and evangelists. At the beginning of the nineteenth century there were only 50,000 converts. Now there are over 1,000,000 converts from heathenism.

You all know that an important work of an army is to plant the batteries. It may take many days to plant the batteries, and they may do all the work in ten minutes. These Gospel batteries are being planted all along the seacoasts and in all nations. It may take a good while to plant them, and they may do all their work in one day. They will. Nations are to be born in a day. But just come back to Christendom and recognize the fact that during the last ten years as many people have connected themselves with evangelical churches as connected themselves with the churches in the first 50 years of last century. So Christianity is failing back, and the Bible, they say, is becoming an obsolete book. I go into a court, and wherever I find a judge's bench or a clerk's desk I find a Bible. Upon what book could there be uttered the solemnity of an oath? What book is apt to be put in the trunk of the young man as he leaves for city life? The Bible. What shall I find in nine out of every ten homes in this city? The Bible. In nine out of every ten homes in Christendom? The Bible. Voltaire wrote the prophecy that the Bible in the nineteenth century would become extinct. That century is gone, and I have to tell you that the room in which Voltaire wrote that prophecy not long ago was crowded from floor to ceiling with Bibles from Switzerland.

Suppose the congress of the United States should pass a law that there should be no more Bibles printed in America and no Bibles read? If there are 60,000,000 grown people in the United States, there would be 60,000,000 people in an army to put down such a law and defend their right to read the Bible. But suppose the congress of the United States should make a law against the reading or the publication of any other book, how many people would go out in such a crusade? Could you get 60,000,000 people to go out and risk their lives in the defense of Shakespeare's tragedies or Gladstone's tracts or Macaulay's "History of England?" You know that there are a thousand men who would die in the defense of this book where there is not more than one man who would die in the defense of any other book. You try to insult my common sense by telling me the Bible is fading out from the world. It is the most popular book of the centuries.

How do I know it? I know it just as I know in regard to other books. How many volumes of that history are published? Well, you say 5,000. How many copies of another book are published? A hundred thousand. Which is the more popular? Why, of course, the one that has the hundred thousand circulation. And if this book has more copies abroad in the world, if there are five times as many Bibles abroad as any other book among civilized nations, does not that show you that the most popular book on earth to-day is the word of God?

"Oh," say people, "the church is a collection of hypocrites, and it is losing its power, and it is fading out from the world." Is it? A bishop of the Methodist church told me that that denomination averages two new churches every day. In other words, they build 730 churches in that denomination in a year, and there are at least 1,500 new Christian churches built in America every year. Does that look as though the Christian church were fading out, as though it were a defunct institution? What stands nearest to the hearts of the American people to-day? I do not care in what village or what city or what neighborhood you go. What is it? Is it the post office? Is it the hotel? Is it the lecturing hall? Ah, you know it is not! You know that that which stands nearest to the hearts of the American people is the Christian church.

The infidels say: "There is great liberty now for infidels; freedom of platform. Infidelity shows its power from the fact that it is everywhere tolerated, and it can say what it will." Why, my friends, infidelity is not half so blatant in our day as it was in the days of our fathers. Do you know that in the days of our fathers there were pronounced infidels in public authority, and they could get any political position? Let a man to-day declare himself antagonistic to the Christian religion, and what city wants him for mayor; what state wants him for governor; what nation wants him for president or for king? Let a man openly proclaim himself the enemy of our glorious Christianity, and he cannot get a majority of votes in any state, in any city, in any county, in any ward of America.

I am mightily encouraged because I find, among other things, that while this Christianity has been bombarded for centuries infidelity has not destroyed one church, or crippled one minister, or uprooted one verse of one chapter of all the Bible. If that has been their magnificent record for the centuries of the past, what may we expect for the future? The church all the time getting the victory, and their shot and shell all gone.

And then I find another most encouraging thought in the fact that the secular printing press and the pulpit seem harnessed in the same team for the proclamation of the Gospel. Every banker in this capital to-morrow, every Wall street banker to-morrow in New York, every State street banker to-morrow in Boston, every Third street banker to-morrow in Philadelphia, every banker in the United States and every merchant will have in his pocket a treatise on Christianity, 10, 20 or 30 passages of Scripture in the reports of sermons preached throughout the land to-day. It will be so in Chicago, so in New Orleans, so in Charleston, so in Boston, so in Philadelphia, so in Cincinnati, so everywhere. I know the tract societies are doing a grand and glorious work, but I tell you there is no power on earth to-day equal to the fact that the American printing press is taking up the sermons which are preached to a few hundred or a few thousand people, and on Monday morning and Monday evening scattering that truth to the millions. What an encouragement to every Christian man!

Then you have noticed a more significant fact if you have talked with people on the subject, that they are getting disgusted with worldly philosophy as a matter of comfort. They say it does not amount to anything when you have a dead child in the house. They tell you when they were sick and the door of the future seemed opening the only comfort they could find was the Gospel. People are having demonstrated all over the land that science and philosophy cannot solace the troubles and woes of the world, and they want some other religion, and they are taking Christianity, the only sympathetic religion that ever came into the world. You just take a scientific consolation into that room where a mother has lost her child. Try in that case your splendid doctrine of the "survival of the fittest." Tell her that child died because it was not worth as much as the other children. That is your "survival of the fittest." Just try your transcendentalism, your philosophy, your science, on that widowed soul, and tell her it was a geological necessity that her companion should be taken away from her, just as in the course of the world's history the megatherium and the ichthyosaurus had to pass out of existence, and then you go on in your scientific consolation until you get to the sublime fact that 50,000,000 years from now we ourselves may be scientific specimens on the geologic shelf, petrified specimens of an extinct human race. And after you have got all through with your consolation, if the poor afflicted soul is not crazed by it, we will send forth from any of our churches the plainest Christian we have, and with one-half hour of prayer and reading of Scripture promises the tears will be wiped away, and the house from floor to cupola will be flooded with the calmness of an Indian summer sunset. There is where I see the triumph of Christianity. People are dissatisfied with everything else. They want God. They want Jesus Christ.

The fact is that infidelity and agnosticism are founded on ignorance geological, ignorance chemical, ignorance astronomical, ignorance geographical. We have heard what the enemies of Christianity have had to testify. Now I put before you the testimony of the church on earth and the church in Heaven. Not fifty, not a thousand, not a million, but all of the church on earth and all of the redeemed in Heaven. Will you take the evidence of those who have witnessed as well as felt the power of religion, or will you prefer the testimony of those who begin by declaring that they have never witnessed or felt its power? You tell me that on a certain 4th of March, 20 years ago, a president of the United States was inaugurated. How do I know it? You tell me there were 20,000 persons who distinctly heard his inaugural address. I deny both. I deny that he was inaugurated. I deny that his inaugural address was delivered. You ask why? I did not see it. I did not hear it. But you say there were 20,000 people who did see and hear him. Is not the testimony of the 20,000 who were present worth more than the testimony of one who was absent? Now, there are some men who say they have never seen Christ crowned in the heart, and they do not believe it is ever done. There is a group of men who say they have never heard the voice of Christ, that they have never heard the voice of God. They do not believe that anything like it ever occurred. I point to twenty, a hundred thousand or a million people who say: "Christ was crowned in our heart's affections, we have seen Him and felt Him in our soul, and we have heard His voice; we have heard it in the storm and darkness; we have heard it again and again." Whose testimony will you take? These men who say they have not heard the voice of Christ, have not seen the coronation, or will you believe the thousands and tens of thousands of Christians who testify of what they saw with their own eyes and heard with their own ears?

Young man, do not be ashamed to be a friend of the Bible. Do not put your thumb in your ears, as young men sometimes do, and swagger about talking of the glorious light of nature and of there being no need of the Bible. They have the light of nature in India and China and in all the dark places of the earth. Did you ever hear that the light of nature gave them comfort for their trouble? They have lancets to cut and juggernauts to crush, but no comfort. Ah, my friends, you had better stop your skepticism. Suppose you are put in a crisis like that of Col. Ethan Allen. I saw the account and at one time mentioned it in an address. A descendant of Ethan Allen, who is an infidel, said it never occurred. Soon after I received a letter from a professor in one of our colleges, who is also a descendant of Ethan Allen and is a Christian. He wrote me that the incident is accurate; that my statement was authentic and true. The wife of Ethan Allen was a very consecrated woman. The mother instructed the daughter in the truths of Christianity. The daughter sickened and was about to die, and she said to her father: "Father, shall I take your instruction or shall I take mother's instruction? I am going to die now; I must have the matter decided." That man, who had been loud in his infidelity, said to his dying daughter: "My dear, you had better take your mother's religion." My advice is the same to you, O young man! You know religion comforted her. You know what she said to you when she was dying. You had better take your mother's religion.

IGNORANCE AND IMPUDENCE.

Bad Break of a Plutocratic Organ That Seeks for Converts to Commercialism.

That republican organ of the trusts, the New York Sun, voicing, no doubt, the general feeling of the "better element of society," says:

"War upon plutocracy is hopeless. The democracy will never prevail until it satisfies the country that the democrats, not the republican party, are the friends and instruments of plutocracy. They must offer more favorable conditions for money making than the republicans can furnish, or they will remain indefinitely as poor in political strength as they are to-day."

This brazen echo of Wall street is as ignorant as insolent in thus giving advice to the democracy. The Sun evidently does not know what democracy means, or has forgotten it. Many years ago, when it was an honest sheet, it published an essay on the wide gap between democrats and republicans, and if the flippant editor who now holds rule will refer to it, he may learn something to his advantage, if only not to expose his ignorance again. The Sun now believes that by the bait of success the democrats should be willing to forego their principles and go the republicans one better in their mad march of commercialism, imperialism and exploitation of the people.

The war upon plutocracy will never be hopeless while the democracy exists. If for awhile a majority of the people are led away to worship at the shrine of plutocracy, and are willing to pick up the crumbs that fall from the table of Dives, they will soon find their mistake.

The rule of the rich cannot be a government in the interest of the people, and any party that is "the real friend and instrument of plutocracy" and that appeals to the people to support it is a fraud, delusion and a snare that only the Sun editor could belong to.

But it is well to have this exposure from such high republican authority of what the real purpose and plans of that party are. Before this if a democrat accused his opponents of being in league with the plutocrats he was denounced as a demagogue. Now he can cite this high republican authority to prove his assertion.

Despite the blindishments and corruption of the plutocrats there are yet 5,000,000 democrats that have not wavered or bowed the knee to the golden calf they have set up in the Wall street wilderness.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

—Will Secretary Gage explain why it is necessary to ship gold to France when he reports such a large balance of trade in our favor and the gold should be coming our way? These shipments of gold to France and England have been going on for some time, and must be to pay our debts.

—A mutual admiration society has been organized in Iowa with two members. Gov. Shaw proposes Senator Allison for president and Allison proposes Shaw. The railroad corporations have too good a hold on both of them for the people to second the nomination of either.

—The republicans are welcome to Senator McLaurin. Any member of congress that voted or will vote for the Hanna ship subsidy bill is not needed by the democrats, nor the honest republicans for that matter. Hanna and the ship trust have got him, and if the price was high they gave more than the goods were worth.

—The president is juggling with two important matters that will bear watching. Free trade with Porto Rico and civil government with the Philippines, both are promised to go into effect on or about July 1, but the Porto Ricans matter will be delayed and civil government in the Philippines will be in name only, for the military will still rule there.

OUR CHANGING PRESIDENT.

Mr. McKinley's Self-Sacrifice Upon the Altar of Patriotism and Politics.

Though President McKinley has in the most pronounced and emphatic manner declared that he is not and never will be a third term candidate for president, says the Chicago Public, that this expresses his "long-settled conviction," and that he would not accept a nomination even if it were tendered, nevertheless let no supporter of his despair. If the circumstances require Mr. McKinley to forego this "long-settled conviction" for the sake of his party and the continued prosperity of his country, his public record is a guarantee that he will make the sacrifice. It would not be Mr. McKinley's first sacrifice of conviction upon the altar of patriotism and politics. He was a silver coinage man who gave up his monetary convictions to save the "honor of the nation" by becoming president. Long a strenuous advocate of the "home market" for American products, he has now assumed the task of prying open foreign markets for the sake of the great trusts upon which the prosperity of his country depends. Denouncing "forcible annexation" of alien territory as "criminal aggression" within the purview of the American "code of morals," he nevertheless suppressed this ethical conviction of forcible annexation to the extent of dictating a treaty of cession from Spain and carrying on an unauthorized war of conquest against the friendly Filipinos. And though he formally and impressively described the concession of free trade to Porto Rico as a "plain duty," yet he used the influence of his office and the power of its patronage to protect the industries of his country from the ravages of Porto Rican imports. Mr. McKinley is nothing if he has not been self-sacrificing. His record proved him incapable of shrinking from the sacrifice even of "long-settled convictions," when the occasion demands it.

MENDACIOUS TRUST SERVANTS

Republican Newspapers Make Bold Assertion in Defense of Robber Combines.

The New York Mail asserts without qualification that "nothing has been adduced to show that any of the combinations known as 'trusts' take advantage of protection to maintain high prices." And this in its face of the sworn testimony taken before the industrial commission which proves the contrary and the astounding secrets let out by Mr. Frick when he quarreled with Mr. Carnegie. It is a matter of easy proof that the steel trust, the tobacco trust, the cigarette trust, the salt trust, the paper trust and others have all raised their prices and all are protected by the tariff. None of these trusts could maintain this increase if the tariff protection was withdrawn and competition was allowed to interfere with them. Steel rails have recently been advanced from $26 to $28 a ton, which means an enormous tax on the railroads which falls almost directly on the people, for it is a hold-up of transportation for many millions. The Engineering News says that at the former price of $26 a ton, the profits on this year's output of the steel corporation were estimated at $12,500,000. The cost of ore has been reduced this season $1.29 per ton, but, in the face of that reduction, the price has been sent up $2.

The duty on steel rails is $7.84 a ton, and the steel trust is selling them to foreigners for about $20 a ton and paying the freight to Europe. Would the increased price here be possible without the tariff protection?

But the New York Mail is only a sample of all the other mendacious republican protection organs. They are largely owned by the trusts and plutocrats and the truth is not in them.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

Rev. John Spurgeon, father of the famous preachers, Charles H. and James A. Spurgeon, is said to be hale and hearty, although in his ninety-first year.

Vassar girls this year have reached a record of four feet for the high jump and 14 feet for the broad jump. The old-fashioned novel heroine has no chance in this period.

The Metropolitan museum of art, New York city, reports that the number of visitors who passed through the turnstile in that treasure house of beauty in 1900 was 571,000. This indicates a daily average of over 1,900.

The appointment of Very Rev. Francis Paget, D. D., dean of Oxford, which has been made to the vacant bishopric of Oxford, in succession to the late Bishop Stubbs, is hailed with delight by the ritualistic clergy of both England and America.

Russia girl students in Paris number about 130, nearly all of whom are Jews. The monthly allowance these girls get from their families is often not more than $20, and out of that they must pay board, room rent and outside expenses. All are hard-working students, and they take especially to scientific courses, literature and philosophy, finding little favor in their eyes.

The Michigan Presbyterian denies that in the church which it represents there is any decay of belief in the terrible reality of future punishment. We do not hold, it says, the material ideas on the subject that were once common, but the changes in the emphasis and conception do not mean the abolition of hell. It is still necessary to urge men to flee from the wrath to come.

A correspondent to the Evangelist contends that elaborate music is driving boys and young men away from the Protestant churches. With some exceptions, he says, few boys care for music. They are not generally taught it, and so they weary of the long musical performance so common in our churches. Prayers are omitted or shortened to make room for it, and singing is introduced wherever possible, especially in liturgical worship, instead of the old-fashioned responses in which all, especially the young, could breathe out their thanksgiving or their penitence.

HERE IS REAL BOHEMIA.

Quaint Long Island Village Where Old Customs Are Still Observed.

One of the quaintest places to be found near New York city is the village of Bohemia, which lies a few miles from Stony Brook, a prosperous village on the Long Island railroad. This village is inhabited by Bohemians who maintain in the heart of Long Island the customs, manners, language and prejudices of their native land, says the New York Sun.

There are about 300 inhabitants in the village. It has one main street, on which are shops and stores with the names of the proprietors and the character of the business marked in words that appear to be made up mostly of consonants.

The inhabitants seem primitive in many ways. The men wear the heavy shoes, short jackets and caps of the European Bohemia and the women wear the wooden shoes of their fatherland and go bareheaded. A New Yorker who happens suddenly to fall in among these people can scarcely believe he is still on Long Island. The men are mostly farmers, some working tracts which they own and which lie beyond the village. Others work for American farmers in the neighborhood. They are sober and industrious and hard times have never struck the village.

Here on a Sunday afternoon the people give themselves up to amusement. The music sounds strange to the American, but it is that of the ancient kingdom. The villagers gather in the public dance halls and young and old dance and make merry. The provisions of the Sunday liquor law do not seem to apply to the village, and between the dances the hop brew and wines of the old country pass freely around. While the men are good citizens, still there is more talk of the happenings in the country across the sea than of what is going on in the United States.

One of the most prominent features of the village is a monument erected to John Huss. It stands near the village church. Recently the monument has fallen into decay. Some of the leaders of the village have started a fund to repair it.

Dead in Earnest.

An old gentleman walked into the prosecutor's office yesterday with an air of serious importance and consulted Assistant Prosecutor Kelly about a young man who persisted in making love to his daughter.

"That's no crime," said Mr. Kelly.

"Well, maybe not. But isn't there some law to keep him from making love to her?"

"None that I ever heard of," said Mr. Kelly. "Are his intentions honorable?"

"Yes, sir," was the answer. "He is so anxious to marry her that he's been trying to pawn his watch to get money for the license."—Kansas City Journal.

Dangerous Bacilli in Books.

A special committee appointed by the Chicago public library board reports that the books of the library ought to be immediately sterilized on account of the large number of bacilli, representing a hundred different poisons and disease germs, found in them. Dr. Kufiuaki reports that all of the 50 books submitted to him for examination were more or less infected. The dry process of sterilization, he thinks, will serve the required purpose.—Youth's Companion.

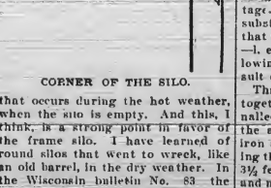
SILO CONSTRUCTION.

Observations and Experience of an Ohio Farmer Who Says He Has No Ax to Grind.

Before binding my silo I examined silos of different construction, some of stone, some of cement and others of wood; some round and some square. Then I built my silo of wood, square, with corners well rounded. I aimed to make my silo strong and cheap. There are many methods of construction, some complicated and costly. But I still think that the simplest, strongest, cheapest air-tight pit that will preserve the silage is the best.



I believe that for the best practical results the diameters should range from 12 to 16 feet, according to the amount of stock fed from the silo. I do not think it advisable or practical to build a silo smaller than 12 feet square or 12 feet in diameter. And rather than go above 16 or 18 feet in diameter I advise increasing the capacity by building more silos. The craze just now is for the round stave silos; but I think the average farmer who expects to build a silo would better build a square frame with rounded corners, for the following reasons:

A square wood silo with ribs or girts around it horizontally, lined up and down inside and weatherboarded outside, whether built in a barn or outside, whether tied to another building or standing alone, will always be firm and rigid, and will not suffer from the drying-out process that occurs during the hot weather, when the silo is empty. And this, I think, is a strong point in favor of the frame silo. I have learned of round silos that went to wreck, like an old barrel, in the dry weather. In the Wisconsin bulletin No. 83 the writer says he visited a number of stave silos that were badly damaged and wrecked in this drying-out process and by the wind. In my judgment this wrecking process would be worse in a silo where the staves had been spliced, for they must be made weaker in splicing the staves.

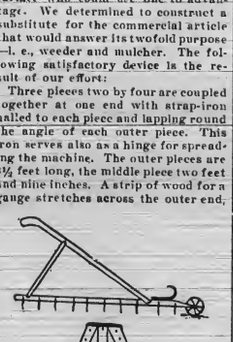
As I am not a draughtsman, I inclose an illustration from the Wisconsin bulletin that exactly indicates the framework of my silo, except that my silo is 30 feet high and that the girts are closer than here indicated. The corner pieces or segments are not properly indicated in the cut, so I have drawn another sketch that more clearly indicates them. In Fig. 2 you will see that I have the corner well rounded. From the inside of the corner (A) to the face of the segment (B) is 12 inches, and we have no trouble in going around this corner with ordinary tongued and grooved flooring. We lined this framework with yellow pine flooring and gave it a coat of hot coal tar every year; one dollar's worth of tar and one dollar's worth of labor are ample for this work. It is air-tight and preserves the silage perfectly, and I believe if the tarring is not neglected the lining will last indefinitely. Some advocate a brick lining, but I do not think this practical, for the crevices would let in the air and the outside woodwork could not well be made air-tight. While in wood-lined silo, tongued and grooved, the moisture of the silage will at once swell it into an air-tight condition, and when the tarring is well done the drying out is reduced to the minimum and the wood protected against decay.

The next pit I will build will be of the same construction, but larger. I believe it is practical to build them firm enough and strong enough against any bulging, up to 16 feet square. I do not think cement at all practical in silo construction (except as a foundation), for the least swelling or contraction would crack and break the coating and let the air in.—M. C. Morris, in Ohio Farmer.

The hedge-hog is of great value to farmers, and should be protected. He is always searching for worms and insects that are injurious to plants.

ORCHARD CULTIVATION.

Lack of It Is the Chief Cause of Barrenness, According to a Canadian Authority.



A Canadian fruit grower says that from his own experience and that of many others the conviction is firmly formed that the lack of proper cultivation is the chief cause of barrenness in orchards, although there are many other causes. The cultivation of an orchard should begin before it is set by having the soil in a splendid state of tilth and rich. The selection of a site is of importance. Peaches and apples do best on a lighter soil, but not leachy. Pears and plums do better in a heavier soil. Do not attempt to grow any kind of a grain or hay crop. They draw too heavily on the moisture which your trees require, and you cannot conserve it by cultivation. You may grow a hoed crop for a few years, but do not get too near your trees. As the roots extend keep back with your crop. Put in a hoed crop that comes off the ground early or that does not occasion any moving of the soil in the late summer or fall season. As an instance, early potatoes may be grown because they are off the ground in good time, but not late ones, for the harvesting of them keeps the soil open and prevents the proper ripening of the wood. Many young trees have been damaged or killed by lack of care in this line. A young orchard that has been enriched and well tilled tending to grow an excess of wood may be thrown by seeding down, but do not leave your seeding but a short time, as an orchard in sod will begin to go down before you are aware of it. As soon as your orchard begins to bear, stop growing a crop of any kind and cultivate shallow. As soon as the ground is in a proper condition in spring begin cultivating, and keep it mellow and well tilled until about the first of August, then if your soil is lacking in nitrogen (if the suckers show a growth of 12 inches and the leaves are a good, healthy, dark green, it is indicative that nitrogen is not deficient) seed with clover and plow under, shallow, the following June. If clover will not take, try peas. If you are not needing nitrogen, then sow some rye, but it must be plowed early in the following spring or it will rob your trees of moisture which they need later on. Some sow oats, but barley usually makes a ranker growth than the oats during the fall season. These crops die and form a splendid covering for the land, protecting the roots and making the soil much more receptive to the rainfall, which is a valuable consideration. A good cultivator or disc harrow will put your soil in good condition in the spring without the use of the plow. Cultivate thoroughly.—Prairie Farmer.

HOMEMADE WEEDER.

Description of What Is Considered a Very Fair Substitute for the Commercial Article.

A weeder, though one of the indispensable implements of modern methods of agriculture, is costly, and consequently not within the reach of every farmer who could use one to advantage. We determined to construct a substitute for the commercial article that would answer its two-fold purpose—i. e., weeder and mulcher. The following satisfactory device is the result of our effort:

Three pieces two by four are coupled together at one end with strap-iron nailed to each piece and lapping round the angle of each outer piece. This iron serves also as a hinge for spreading the machine. The outer pieces are 3½ feet long, the middle piece two feet and nine inches. A strip of wood for a gauge stretches across the outer end, fitted to a mortise in each piece and fastened in place with a 40-penny nail, these nails driven at regular intervals along the outer pieces and one at the front end of the middle piece, serving as teeth of the cultivator. From two to 3½ feet is the range. At the front of center piece is a wheel to keep the machine from dipping into the ground, also a hook of heavy wire for the attachment of the whiffletree. The handles fastened to center piece are braced with strips of wood. If one wants to go to a little more expense a small set of harrow teeth can be procured at any hardware store and used in place of the nails. This makes a stronger and more substantial weeder. Also use bolts to fasten together.—M. A. Hoyt, in Epitomist.

Rape Not Good for Horses.

Rape is essentially a sheep feed. Prof. Shaw, of Minnesota, who introduced rape into this country, says that it is an ideal succulent crop for sheep, but does not recommend it for horses and milch cows. If horses will eat it they should not be permitted to pasture on it only for a short time each day. We doubt if they will eat it if they can get grass or hay. If you have some sheep they will make good gains on rape and will eat it with avidity.—Farmers' Voice.

PIOUS BROOKLYN PARROT.

The Iceman Got Him and Afterwards Said He Was a Very Warm Proposition.

This is a tale of a good parrot that went wrong. Out in the St. Mark's section of Brooklyn, where some people live and others dwell in flats, there is a pious old lady who owned and loved the parrot, but who scorns it now. Her iceman owns the bird now, and, such are the peculiarities of human nature, he looks upon it as the most interesting proposition "that ever happened," says the New York Times.

It came to pass when the dickey birds were winging north to have a green-goods game worked off on them in the shape of a spring, that the pious old lady of St. Mark's avenue tore herself from the feverish palpitating life which obtains in Brooklyn to ease her nerves for a spell in her native village up in St. Lawrence county. And the good parrot went with her. Up in the native village dwelt the daughter of the pious old lady, whose hard luck it was to be married to a man who could not get away from the place.

The days went by, as is their peculiar wont, even up in St. Lawrence county, and rolled themselves into a full, round month, but the pious old lady of St. Mark's avenue clung to the old homestead until her son-in-law casually tacked the railroad time table up in the kitchen, and she knew that the free board limit was reached. So she packed her grip and left. And the good parrot came down with her.

The swing of the train and the hum of the wheels were lulling, and the good old dame, ere the pulsating heart of the great metropolis had been reached, had dropped asleep.

"N'York—all out!" bawled the train guard. And the old lady, startled out of her dreams, bustled out all in a flutter.

And under the seat the good parrot was left behind, in his little traveling cage.

It befell that the good parrot spent a day and a night in the baggage room of the station, waiting to be claimed. In that place there were men who spoke to each other in a patois which was strange to the parrot, but which he learned quickly when they were pleased to address themselves to him. At the end of the day and night the pious old lady came back and found the bird, and was overjoyed thereat. Whereupon she took Poll home and put him in his gilded cage and worked herself up into a fine frenzy of delight over him. And while she was yet in these hysterics, the elder who passes the hat in her church dropped in to have a talk over the good work, as well as to have a "shy" at any free lunch that was likely to appear. The pious old lady told him of the happy recovery of the bird, and he rejoiced with her. Then, to make a grandstand play for the coffee and chicken salad, he ambled over to the cage and poked the bird playfully under the left wing.

"Hello, Polly, is 'oo glad to get back home?" he inquired, most affectionately.

Poll pulled a cocoanut wafer out of his face, cocked his head on one side, and quietly remarked:

"Ah, wot'ell?"

"Say," said the iceman, as he was lugging in a short-weight piece the day after he had taken the parrot home, addressing the kitchen maid: "that 'ere bird is about the warmest proposition what ever roller-skated down the asphalted avenue."

CURES FOR HEADACHES.

Simple Remedies and Suggestions for the Relief of a Common Ailment.

Too much blood in the brain is a frequent cause of headache. Pains are felt over the head, the face becomes flushed, the temples throb and strong light or noise causes excruciating pain. In cases of this kind the sufferer should be careful in diet and should not eat meat oftener than once a day, says the New York World.

Too little blood in the brain is another cause of headache. It is recognized by dizziness, noises in the ears and pains on top of the head. The best stimulant is a cup of strong tea or coffee or a bowl of soup. People who suffer with these headaches should sleep with their heads low.

A neuralgic headache is often the result of cold caught in a bad tooth, which affects the nerves of the face and is accompanied by pains across the forehead or on the back of the head. A mustard leaf placed on the nape of the neck will relieve it. Another remedy which is sometimes effective is a piece of brown paper soaked in vinegar and applied to the painful spot.

Choice Attainments.

Cheerfulness and sweetness of disposition are often as great a force in trying situations as sheer intellectual ability. The power of restraining one's temper under provocation, of looking on the bright side of things in discouraging circumstances and of not construing a difference of opinion into a personal matter is one of those choice attainments whose winsomeness men universally recognize.—Detroit Free Press.

University of Notre Dame, Notre Dame, Ind.

The attention of readers is called to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the President, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the University, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years, according to the ability of the student. St. Edward's Hall, for boys under thirteen, is an unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class-work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

Fifty-six years of active work in the cause of education have made this institution famous all over the country.

Get Rid of your Headache!

TAKE Dr. Greene's NERVURA

BLOOD and NERVE REMEDY

"MY HEAD WILL BURST!"

"This head will be the death of me and I don't care how soon. I don't want to try to drag through life with pain like this."

Are you going to give up now? Are you tired out with the effort to bear that awful pain? Are you despondent because your suffering makes you haggard and thin? Are lines coming into your face? Is your beauty going from you? Think for one moment of the great multitude of women, suffering in just this way, who have been cured by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. There is absolute certainty of help in this grand medicine. Here is an instance.

Miss Agnes Graham, 403 W. 28th St., New York City, says:

"For years I endured the greatest agony with sick headaches. My head would throb so that every step I took was positive torture. When I was home, after work, I felt as though I never could get there. It seemed to me that every step must be my last, and when I tried to go up stairs my head ached so bad I thought I must scream.

"Nothing I took helped me. The headaches returned all the time, and I despaired of ever getting over them. My back ached, too, and often I felt so tired and weak it seemed as though I could not go to work. I was badly run down, and in a very nervous condition.

"But I am thankful to say that these terrible headaches have left me, now that I have taken Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I cannot say too much for this great medicine and what it has done for me. I began to feel its good effects after the first dose. I felt brighter and more cheerful in every way.

"After the first bottle, my nervousness was gone, and I had but one attack of headache since taking Nervura. I have now taken four bottles and have had no return of the trouble. For women suffering from woman's greatest enemy, headache, I cannot recommend this wonderful medicine too highly."

Headache powders have lost their effectiveness with you, haven't they? You are letting yourself be driven to narcotic drugs. You are letting your headaches wreck your life. Your doctor fails to help, and your nerves are in an awful state.

Just one bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will do you so much good that you won't feel like the same woman. Try it and see. If you have complications, get Dr. Greene's free advice by call or letter. His address is 35 W. 14th Street, New York City.

BLOOD and NERVE REMEDY

We also build as fine work as can be made by anyone. Put on good wheels with best Steel Tires for $12.00.

So help yourself by giving your Home Factory your work.

BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, - - KENTUCKY.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels, B grade, with celebrated Gotlis steel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Winchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and pattern, which I claim has no equal. The body will be good, seasoned yellow poplar; sills and rises good seasoned ash and hickory—not Cottonwood as the factories are now using. Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them bursting out, something I guarantee my work not to do.

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters buffed, not split, roof and curtains 30 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be something neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes. If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 69, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaiut a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of T. J. Childress' toll-gate. H. G. COLLINS,

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 17, 1901. NO. 39.

THERE were 462 divorce suits brought in Hamilton county, Ohio, from July 1, 1900, and July 1, 1901.

THE Ohio Democrats are going up against the Republicans in their own way this fall, not being hampered by the national issue that has proven a decisive failure in two campaigns.

THE drought in Missouri and Kansas has about wiped out the corn crop in a very large portion of these States. Kansas harvested an immense crop of wheat, and early in the season the corn was very promising.

GOV. BECKHAM is making a voluminous record for granting pardons, and the high water mark of Gov. Blackburn will be passed if the Governor maintains his present clip until the end of his term of office.

WILLIAM H. HOLT, United States Judge in Porto Rico, in an interview says the United States Government made a mistake in not establishing the same laws in the island that it had in the early days of Louisiana and California.

BURLINGTON should feel honored by the presence of the State Grange to-day and to-morrow. It is seldom that an isolated town like this is selected for the meeting of a State organization of any kind, hence the honor should be appreciated the more.

FOR many generations after the first bale of cotton raised in the United States was sent to market most of the cotton plantations of the country were east of the Mississippi. But now nearly one-half of the entire American crop of cotton comes from the territory west of the river.

EXCESSIVE prices for machinery forgings charged by the Midvale Steel Company and the Bethlehem Iron Company have aroused the Navy Department and ship contractors, and Congress may be appealed to in order to secure permission to obtain crank shaftings for new battleships from English manufacturers.

A SAD warning was the death of Wm. Conrad, a wealthy young farmer near Frankfort, Indiana, a few days ago. He bought a large quantity of dynamite and was taking it to his farm in his buggy. In some way it exploded and he was blown to pieces. The explosion blew a hole three feet deep in the ground and was heard for 15 miles.

IF people in this county were taxed like they are in some other places, they would rebel. The Lawrenceburg Register says:

At a recent meeting of the trustees of West Harrison, the levy for the general fund was placed at 95 cents on the $100; the special school fund, 15 cents, and the tuition fund at 15 cents on the $100.

IN some of the strong Republican localities out west trusts are becoming very unpopular, but that will amount to nothing as these fellows who are now making so much noise with their mouths will walk up and take their medicine at the next election as heretofore. That is the way a party is kept in possession of the offices, though.

BETWEEN 1855 and 1894, according to statistics published by the Dept. of Agriculture in a bulletin on "Farm machinery," the time of human labor required to produce one bushel of corn on an average declined from 4 hours and 34 minutes to 41 minutes, and the cost of the human labor to produce this bushel declined from 35¼ cents to 10½ cents.

THE farmer will be interested in the scientific experiments now being conducted by the Department of Agriculture, with a view to increasing the corn crop of this country without additional expense or labor. The scientists have found by crossbreeding the nitrogen contents of the corn are increased. Experiments made in growing 10,000 specimens of these hybrids have already demonstrated that it is possible to double the yield of corn from a given number of plants.

THE Republicans in the Louisville Congressional District are divided into Sappists and anti-Sappists and are engaged in a bitter fight, the antis wanting Collector of Internal Revenue Sapp bounced out of office.

SOME of the Ohio Democrats are up in arms because of the snub given Mr. Bryan by the State Convention, last week, and are going to make bad worse by holding another convention to nominate another State ticket.

THE Ohio Democrats are in the field with their ticket for State offices. The ticket is headed by James Kilbourne for Governor. The platform ignores Bryan and the Kansas City platform, a minority report of the committee on resolutions reaffirming the Kansas city platform and expressing confidence in Bryan was overwhelmnly defeated.

LIKE many of its predecessors, the next Legislature bids fare to be one of the most intelligent bodies that ever sat in the halls once graced by Henry Clay. The Journal reserves the right to change its mind on the subject after the solons have concluded their labors of electing a librarian, a speaker, two penitentiary commissioners and a United States Senator.—Ky-Journal.

ACCORDING to a recent report, a substitute for meat has been patented in this country. The mere fact that it is declared by the inventor to have the flavor and nutrtive properties of meat, while actually of purely vegetable ingredients, would go for nought were it not that the chemists of the Patent Office have endorsed the claim as truthful, the compound containing protein and other elements, utilzable in the body for making flesh and blood and for fuel, in about the same proportions as mutton.

MR. EMMET ORR, who misrepresented the grand old county of Owen in the last legislature, has been rewarded for his party perfidy. He has been appointed Deputy United States Marshal under Stephen G. Sharp in the new Federal Court District; and, by the way, Sharp holds the office of Marshal as a rake-off for his efforts to throw the Democratic party down in Kentucky after he had been honored by it probably beyond his merits. Some men have such a penchant for office that they are ready to swing into line with any party if there is any probability of its satisfying their desire in that direction.

"In 1900 the Democrats of Missouri cast 351,000 votes and the Republicans 311,000—51 per cent to 49. Yet the infamous Democratic gerrymander gives the Democrats 15 congressional districts and the Republicans only 1. Under an honest apportionment the Democrats would get eight districts and the Republicans seven."—Lawrenceburg Press.

Can we not get the aid of the powerful pen of the Press in favor of abolishing the wicked Republican gerrymander in this state, which with a small majority out of 650,000 votes gives the Republicans four-fifths of the congressmen, and all the senators be jases?—Register.

In politics as in everything else it depends on whose ox is gored.

THE money due on the 728,799 school-children reported in the State by the census enumerators at $2,50 is $1,821,997,50. This is paid to the counties in four installments, 40 per cent. of it on the first of October next, and 20 per cent. on the first of each of the three succeeding months. After paying this sum there will remain in the school fund for the year a balance of $36,538,79, of which sum $22,938,31 will be used in paying the interest due to counties on bonds, which, deducted leaves a balance in the school fund of $13,600,48 to pay the current expenses of the school department and any correction that may be made in the census. In this county there are 3,089 children within the school ages, white and colored, consequently Boone's portion of the common school funds this year is $7,722,50.

REV. EDGAR D. JONES.

Preparation has been made by the Beaver Christian Church for a protracted meeting to begin Monday evening, July 22d, 1901. Rev. Edgar D. Jones, of Erlanger, will assist the regular pastor William Clark. P. H. Duncan, of Ludlow, will have charge of the singing. H. D. McLachron pastor South Fork church, will also be present. A cordial welcome is extended to all. Services will begin at 7:45.

OF the platform adopted by the Ohio Democratic State Convention, on Wednesday of last week, the Enquirer says:—

"The omission of Mr. Bryan and silver was not intended to be an affront, or even a slight, to anybody. The country is now enjoying a plenitude of money, which was the principal object of the free silver movement. So there is no free silver issue now. And Mr. Bryan is not the Democratic nominee for President.

"The Democratic party of Ohio is now on a platform on which it can unite. There are some sturdy declarations of original and enduring doctrine, especially as to centralization. The resolutions are rather too long, and there is a slight injection of rubbish, but that is the result, no doubt, of trying to give a little recognition to everybody who had anything to do with the construction of the paper.

"In the essentials the platform is an excellent one—just about what has been prayed for by the conservative element that wants to win."

The Chicago Record-Herald, a leading Republican paper, says:

"At last the Cuban Constitutional Convention has accepted the Platt amendment, which robs Cuba of the pretense of being an independent and sovereign State. It was what is known throughout America as a ground-hog case. The amendment, which was a direct violation of our national promise of independence to Cuba, was forced down the Cuban throats with the threat that unless it was swallowed verbatim et literatim there would be no withdrawal of the American army of occupation.

"The very fact that the United States made the inclusion of the Platt amendment in the Cuban Constitution a condition precedent to the withdrawal of its troops wrote travesta across the face of that Constitution as the fundamental law of a people who are and of right ought to be free and independent.

"We are now the paramount power in Cuba by the act of the Cuban Convention under duress.

"As The Independent says, this coercion of Cuba into acceptance of the Platt amendment puts a stain upon the honor of the United States which cannot be effaced by Cuba's unwilling submission.

"The suzerainty of Cuba under all the circumstances of pretense, perfidy and compulsion is a stigma upon the honor and good faith of the United States which will yet return to plague our politicians."

RICHARD P. ERNST, of Covington, has been chosen as chairman of the Republican Compaign committee. Headquarters have been opened at Louisville, and ca ampaign with a view to capturing the next General Assembly is being mapped out.

KANSAS LETTER.

The Barred Plymouth Rock, America's most popular fowl, is found in all parts of the United States. It is unnecessary for me to say anything in favor of them, yet, I would feel that I would be doing the grand birds an injustice if I did not recognize their good qualities in this letter. Barred Rocks are the established favorite of the day; they are the kings and queens of poultry in this broad land; in every clime they are bred and found—in the colds of the north, they are kept for their profitable qualities, and likewise in the sunny south. My reasons for breeding them are obvious. I became infatuated with their charms more than 18 years ago and have ever since been their constant admirer. I have four reasons for considering them the best fowls in existence: First, they are the best and most popular bird in America, and are found in more poultry yards than anyother breed; second they are the best general purpose fowl, being excellent layers and fine market birds, their good size and rich yellow flesh is always in demand for table use; third, they are not only the most popular fowl, but are gaining in favor every year and the demand for them promises to be lasting, and so great has been the demand for stock and eggs of fine breeds, the supply has never equalled the demand.

A well bred flock of Barred P. Rocks is unexcelled in beauty of feathers. No bird attracts more attention or stronger competition in the show room, thus you will see why I have favored them so long. The thousands of breeders is another evidence of their qualities. I have bred these birds for eight years, and have made them a study, and have found that the two most important points is in mating and breeding. A pure bred Plymouth Rock is known by its dark bluish color, regular bars, under color, round breast, fine beak, large size and yellow legs. This is what the standard of perfection calls for. Barred Plymouth Rocks have many things to contend with, and I believe the two points mentioned above are the most important of them all.

DAVID F. UTZ.

A VERY pleasant gentleman and agent for a Chicago patent medicine firm, called on the RECORDER, one day last week, and proposed to contract with it for about $40 worth of advertising for which he was willing to pay the immense amount of $10. His proposition was politely rejected, and he went his way, but not before imparting the information that the firms he represented was getting its advertising done at this starvation rate, all of which goes to show how many publishers discriminate against home patrons.

She has passed through all the phases of college life, from the intermediate grades to the graduation. She is the first woman admitted to the Campbell county bar.

SOME consider that Tom Johnson, of Cleveland, controlled the Ohio Democratic State convention held last week. If that be the case the course of each party in Ohio is shaped by a boss located in the city on the lake.

So far it appears that Hon. James B. McCreary has considerably the advantage of the other candidates for U. S. Senator, most of the nominess for the Legislature, to date, having declared for him.

IT seems that all the county fairs anticipate a successful exhibition this year, and with that prospect before them the managers are active in their preparations for the coming exhibitions.

It is estimated that 4,000 people attended the good roads convention at Hopkinsville.

STATE NEWS.

J. D. Hughes, President of the Hughes Lumber Company at High Bridge, swore out an injunction against striking sawmill operators to keep the peace. Forty men struck a week ago and the company succeeded in getting new workmen to take their place. The strikers beat several newcomers severely.

With a small pair of tweesers the mother of "Sis" Howard, a colored girl living in Adamstown, pulled from the ends of her daughter's fingers eight pins, some of them in pieces of a quarter of an inch in length. The girl has been "shedding pins" for the past five years, and this is the fourth occasion on which they have been extracted from her flesh. On the second occasion, which was about three years ago, her mother took out 15 pins and eight needles. The girl says that whenever the pins "want to come out" she gets "kind of dizzy and feels them at the surface of the flesh." She says there is very little pain attending the operation of moving them.

A PRIMARY CALLED.

Pursuant to a call of J. H. Cunningham, Chairman of the Fifteenth Democratic Judicial District Committee, a meeting was held at Sparta, Gallatin county, Ky., on July 5, 1901, and the following members were present: J. H. Cunningham, Chairman, of Owen; R. L. Vallandingham, of Carroll; R. B. Brown, of Gallatin, and A. B. Rouse, of Boone. The Committee elected A. B. Rouse secretary, and the following resolutions were adopted:

First, That a primary election be held in the various precincts of he counties of Boone, Carroll, Gallatin, Grant and Owen, on Saturday, September 14, 1901, between the hours of 6 a. m. and 4 p. m. standard time, for the purpose of nominating a Democratic candidate for Circuit Judge of this the Fifteenth Judicial District, to be voted for at the next November election.

Second, That on or before the first day of August, 1901, the candidates, in order that their names will appear on the ballots, must announce to the Chairman and pay to the Secretary of this committee the sum of $1,050 each, the amount of the assessment of each candidate.

Third, That if on the 1st day of August, 1901, there is but one candidate for the nomination for Circuit Judge, the chairman of this committee shall declare him to be the nominee and certify the nomination of said candidate to the County Clerks of the various counties of the district.

Fourth, That the officers of this election shall be selected by the Democratic Executive Committee of each county for that county.

Fifth, That all known Democrats, and all young men who will be 21 years old by the next November election, and wish to identify themselves with the Democratic party, will be allowed to vote.

J. H. CUNNINGHAM, Chairman.
A. B. ROUSE, Secretary.

"I have heard of all sorts of barometers, or rather weather signs, but I know of no more reliable weather prophets than my birds," said a Baltimore lady who owns several canaries. "I can almost always tell when it is going to rain by the distinctness with which I can hear the trains at night, but the birds are even more reliable than that. If I hear them singing in the morning early, before I take the covering of their cages off, I know that the day will be a good one, no matter if it is raining at the moment, but if they do not sing I am sure there will be bad weather before the day is over. I have never known them to fail, and I never think of going shopping or calling unless the birds sing in the early morning. That is why I never get caught in the rain, as many of my friends do. That poor Weather Bureau man who makes so many mistakes in his prophecies ought by all means to get himself some canaries."

The pension list is larger by 2,000 names than it was a year ago, in spite of all the death losses, and the appropriation of $145,000,000 for pensions payments during the year will fall short of the amount needed to meet all demands by at least $150,000. But the most significant of all the statements in the report is that 43,874 claims have been filed at the department on account of the war with Spain. These figures seem almost incredible when it is remembered that the war actually lasted only 30 days and that the number of men engaged in hostile action on land and sea was only a few thousands. It does not follow, of course, that all the claims filed will be granted, and probably a large proportion of them will fail for good and sufficient reasons. During the 11 months ending June 30, 2,369 pensions were granted to invalids coming out of the war and to 1,156 Spanish war widows and orphans. But the enormous number of claims filed shows an inclination on the part of the persons who served their country in that war period not altogether pleasing to contemplate. It looks very much as if patriotism was not an inspiring motive in many cases so much as a desire to get a chance for a steady pull at the cash drawer of Uncle Sam. Fortunately the Pension Department, as now administered, may be depended on to make proper discrimination between unworthy and the worthy applications for national bounty.—Leslies Weekly.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean, one of the most rock-ribbed Republican organs in the country, has the following to say:

"After all has been said and done, the people are today face to face with the same issue as in 1899 and 1900. The tariff clause of the Foraker bill expires in less than a year, and then the question whether Porto Rico shall have free trade with the United States or be subject to a new tariff will have to be passed upon. Then the Republican party will still be duty bound to stand where it stood at the outset—before the beet sugar lobby appeared on the scene and raised the constitutional hubbub to cover an act of bad faith.

"Free trade with Porto Rico is still a question of justice and plain duty. If the constitution extends our customs laws to the new territory, free trade was and is Porto Rico's organic right. If the revenue clause of the constitution did not extend to the island, then congress had and has the power to enact a law including Porto Rico in our customs system."

A Vanceburg, Ky., dispatch says: Mrs. Sarah Bloomfield, living near the Carter county line, in the southeastern part of the county, is ninety five years old, and vividly remembers the year 1816, when it snowed, frosted or froze every month in the year. "The freeze in the last part of June," she said, "caused me one of my greatest life troubles. I had a fine patch of cucumber hills that had just begun to run, when the freeze caught them and killed them all. I was almost inconsolable, for one of my uncles told me if I would just turn up a half barrel of cucumber pickles he would get me a pair of new shoes. Now a pair of new shoes to a poor child in the backwoods at that day was a great fortune. Well I didn't get the shoes and the freeze cost me days of sorrow and tears. No corn was raised in these parts that year."

Meadows and pastures gain, but still fall below the average, because of weedy conditions in former and backwardness of spring in latter. Stock peas gain in acreage and condition. The general condition of live stock is improved. Peaches fall back two points and apples lose considerably, making it certain that there will be a very short crop of this fruit.

A SERMON ON MONEY.

Dr. Talmage Arraigns Those Who Live Beyond Their Means.

Causes of Great Financial Disturbances—Extravagance the Cause of Most Defalcations—Meeting One's Obligations.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows the causes of the great financial disturbances which take place every few years and arraigns the people who live beyond their means; text, Jeremiah 17:11: "As the partridge sitteth on eggs and hatcheth them not, so he that getteth riches, and not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days and at his end shall be a fool."

Allusion is here made to a well-known fact in natural history. If a partridge or a quail or a robin brood the eggs of another species, the young will not stay with the one that happened to brood them, but at the first opportunity will assort with their own species. Those of us who have been brought up in the country have seen the dismay of the farmyard hen, having brooded aquatic fowls, when after a while they tumble into their natural element, the water. So my text suggests that a man may gather under his wings the property of others, but it will after awhile escape. It will leave the man in a sorry predicament and make him feel very silly.

What has caused all the black days of financial disasters for the last 60 years? Some say it is the credit system. Something back of that. Some say it is the spirit of gambling ever and anon becoming epidemic. Something back of that. Some say it is the sudden shrinkage in the value of securities, which even the most honest and intelligent men could not have foreseen. Something back of that. I will give you the primal cause of all these disturbances. It is the extravagance of modern society which impels a man to spend more money than he can honestly make, and he goes into wild speculation in order to get the means for inordinate display, and sometimes the man is to blame and sometimes his wife and oftener both. Five thousand dollars' income, $10,000, $20,000 income, is not enough for a man to keep up the style of living he proposes, and therefore he steers his bark toward the maelstrom. Other men have suddenly snatched up $50,000 or $100,000. Why not he? The present income of the man not being large enough, he must move heaven and earth and hell to catch up with his neighbors. Others have a country seat; so must he. Others have a palatial residence; so must he.

Extravagance is the cause of all the defalcations of the last 60 years, and if you will go through the history of all the great panics and the great financial disturbances, no sooner have you found the story than right back of it you will find the story of how many horses the man had, how many carriages, how many banquets the man gave—always, and not one exception for the last 60 years, either directly or indirectly extravagance the cause.

Now for the elegances and the refinements and the decorations of life. I cast my vote. While I am considering this subject a basket of flowers is handed in—flowers paradisiacal in their beauty. White calla with a green background of begonia. A cluster of heliotropes nestling in some geranium. Sepal and perianth bearing on them the marks of God's finger. When I see that basket of flowers, they persuade me that God loves beauty and adornment and decoration. God might have made the earth so as to supply the gross demands of sense, but left it without adornment or attraction. Instead of the variegated colors of the seasons the earth might have worn an unchanging dull brown. The tree might have put forth its fruit without the prophecy of leaf or blossom. Niagara might have come down in gradual descent without thunder and winged spray.

Look out of your window any morning after there has been a dew, and see whether God loves jewels. Put a crystal of snow under a microscope and see what God thinks of architecture. God commanded the priest of olden time to have his robe adorned with a wreath of gold and the hem of his garment to be embroidered in pomegranates. The earth sleeps and God blankets it with the brilliants of the night sky. The world wakes, and God washes it from the burnished laver of the sunrise. So I have not much patience with a man who talks as though decoration and adornment and the elegances of life are a sin when they are Divinely recommended. But there is a line to be drawn between adornment and decorations that we can afford and those we cannot afford, and when a man crosses that line he becomes culpable. I cannot tell you what is extravagant for you. You cannot tell me what is extravagant for me. What is right for a queen may be squandering for a duchess. What may be economical for you, a man with larger income, will be wicked for me, with smaller income. There is no iron rule on this subject. Every man before God and on his knees must judge what is extravagance, and when a man goes into expenditures beyond his means he is extravagant. When a man buys anything he cannot pay for, he is extravagant.

There are families in all our cities who can hardly pay their rent and who owe all the merchants in the neighborhood and yet have an apparel unfit for their circumstances and are all the time sailing so near shore that business misfortune or an attack of sickness prepares them for pauperism. You know very well there are thousands of families in our great cities who stay in neighborhoods until they have exhausted all their capacity to get trusted. They stay in the neighborhood until the druggists will let them have no more medicines, and the butchers will sell them no more meat, and the bakers will sell them no more bread, and the groceryman will sell them no more sugar. Then they find the region unhealthy, and they hire a carman, whom they never pay, to take them to some new quarters where the merchants, the druggists, the butchers, the bakers and the groverymen come and give them the best rounds of beef and the best sugars and the best merchandise of all sorts until they find out that the only compensation they are going to get is the acquaintance of the patrons. There are thousands of such thieves in all our big cities. You see I call them by the right name, for if a man buys anything he does not mean to pay for he is a thief.

Of course sometimes men are flung of misfortunes and they cannot pay. I know men who are just as honest in having failed as other men are honest in succeeding. I suppose there is hardly a man who has gone through life but there have been some times when he has been so hurt by misfortune he could not meet his obligations, but all that I put aside. There are a multitude of people who buy that which they never intend to pay for, for which there is no reasonable expectation that they will ever be able to pay. Now, if you have become oblivious of honesty and mean to defraud, why not save the merchant as much as you can? Why not go some day to his store and when nobody is looking just shoulder the ham or the spare rib and in readest silence steal away? That would be less criminal, because in the other way you take not only the man's goods, but you take the time of the merchant and the time of his accountant, and you take the time of his messenger who brought you the goods. Now, if you must steal, steal in a way to do as little damage to the trader as possible.

John Randolph arose in the American senate when a question of national finance was being discussed, and, stretching himself to his full height, in a shrill voice he cried out: "Mr. Chairman, I have discovered the philosopher's stone, which turns everything into gold—pay as you go!" Society has got to be reconstructed on this subject or the seasons of defalcation will continue to repeat themselves. You have no right to ride in a carriage for which you are hopelessly in debt to the wheelwright who furnishes the landau, and to the horse dealer who provided the blooded span, and to the harness maker who capparisoned the gay steeds, and to the liveryman who has provided the stabling, and to the driver who with rosetted hat, sits on the coach box.

Oh, I am so glad when it is not the absolute necessities of life which send people out into dishonesties and fling them into misfortunes. It is almost always the superfluities. God has promised us a house, but not a palace; raiment, but not chinchilla; food, but not canvasback duck. I am yet to see one of these great defalcations which is not connected in some way with extravagance.

Extravagance accounts for the disturbance of national finances. Aggregations are made up of units, and when one-half of the people of this country owe the other half how can we expect financial prosperity? Again and again at the national election we have had a spasm of virtue, and we said: "Out with one administration and in with another and let us have a new deal of things and then we will get all over our perturbation." I do not care who is president or who is secretary of the treasury or how much breadstuffs go out of the country or how much gold is imported until we learn to pay our debts and it becomes a general theory in this country that men must buy no more than they can pay for. Until that time comes there will be no permanent prosperity. Look at the perulcious extravagance. Take the one fact that New York every year pays $3,000,000 for theatrical amusements. While once in awhile a Henry Irving or an Edwin Booth or a Joseph Jefferson thrills a great audience with tragedy, you know as well as I do that the vast majority of the theaters are as debased as debased they can be, as unclean as unclean they can be and as damnable as damnable they can be. Three million dollars, the vast majority of those dollars going in the wrong direction.

Over a hundred millions paid in this country for cigars and tobacco a year. About $2,000,000,000 paid for strong drink in one year in this country. With such extravagance, pernicious extravagance, can there be any permanent prosperity? Business men, cool-headed business men, is such a thing a possibility? These extravagances also account, as I have already hinted, for the positive crimes, the forgeries, the absconding of the officers of the banks. The store on the business street swamped by the residence on the fashionable avenue. The father's, the husband's craft capsized by carrying too much domestic sail. That is what springs the leak in the merchant's money till. That is what cracks the plates of the anvicides. That is what tears down the banks. That is what stops insurance companies. That is what halts this nation again and again in its triumphal march of prosperity. In the presence of the American people so far as I can get their attention I want to arraign this monster curse of extravagance, and I want you to pelt it with your scorn and hurl at it your anathema.

How many fortunes every year wrecked on the wardrobe. Things have got to such a pass that when we cry over our sins in church we wipe the tears away with a $150 pocket handkerchief! I show you a domestic tragedy in five acts:

Act the first—A home, plain and beautiful. Enter newly married pair. Enter contentment. Enter as much happiness as ever gets in one home.

Act the second—Enter discontent. Enter desire for larger expenditure. Enter envy. Enter jealousy.

Act the third—Enter the queenly dressmakers. Enter the French milliners. Enter all costly plate and all great extravagances.

Act the fourth—Tiptop of society. Princes and princesses of upper tendom floating in and out. Everything on a large and magnificent scale. Enter contempt for other people.

Act the fifth and last—Enter the assignee. Enter the sheriff. Enter the creditors. Enter humiliation. Enter wrath of God. Enter the contempt of society. Enter ruin and death. Now drop the curtain. The play is ended, and the lights are out.

I call it a tragedy. That is a misnomer. It is a farce.

Extravagance counts for much of the pauperism. Who are these people whom you have to help? Many of them are the children of parents who had plenty, lived in luxury, had more than they needed, spent all they had, spent more, too; then died and left their families in poverty. Some of those who call on you now for aid had an ancestry that supped on burgundy and woodcock. I could name a score of men who have every luxury. They smoke the best cigars, and they drink the finest wines, and they have the grandest surroundings, and when they die their families will go on the cold charity of the world. Now, the death of such a man is a grand larceny. He swindles the world as he goes into his coffin, and he deserves to have his bones sold to the medical museum for anatomical specimens, the proceeds to furnish bread for his children.

I know it cuts close. I did not know but some of you in high dudgeon would get up and go out. You stand it well! Some of you make a great swash in life, and after awhile you will die, and ministers will be sent for to come and stand by your coffin and lie about your excellences. But they will not come, if you send for me, I will tell you what my text will be: "He that provideth not for his own, and especially for those of his own household, is worse than an infidel." And yet we find Christian men, men of large means, who sometimes talk eloquently about the Christian church and about civilization, expending everything on themselves and nothing on the cause of God, and they crack the back of their Palais Royal glove in trying to hide the one cent they put in the Lord's treasury. What an apportionment! Twenty thousand dollars for ourselves and one cent for God. Ah, my friends, this extravagance accounts for a great deal of what the cause of God suffers.

And the desecration goes on, even to the funeral day. You know very well there are men who die solvent, but the expenses are so great before they get underground they are insolvent. There are families that go into penury in wicked response to the demands of this day. They put in casket and tombstone that which they ought to put in bread. They wanted bread; you gave them a tombstone.

And then look how the cause of God is impoverished. Men give so much sometimes for their indulgences they have nothing for the cause of God and religion. Twenty-two million dollars expended in this country a year for religious purposes! But what are the twenty-two millions expended for religion compared with the hundred millions expended on cigars and tobacco and then two thousand millions of dollars spent for rum? So a man who had a fortune of $750,000, or what amounted to that, in London spent it all in indulgences, chiefly in gluttonies, and sent hither and yon for all the delicacies, and often had a meal that would cost $100 or $200 for himself. Then he was reduced to a guinea, with which he bought a rare bird, had it cooked in best style, ate it, took two hours for digestion, walked out on Westminster bridge and jumped into the Thames—on a large scale what men are doing on a small scale.

Oh, my friends, let us take our stand against the extravagances of society. Do not pay for things which are frivolous when you may lack the necessities. Do not put one month's wages or salary into a trinket, just one trinket. Keep your credit good by seldom asking for any. Pay! Do not starve a whole year to afford one Belshazzar's carnival. Do not buy a coat of many colors and then in six months be out at the elbows. Flourish not, as some people I have known, who took apartments at a fashionable hotel and had elegant drawing-rooms attached and then vanished in the night, not even leaving their compliments for the landlord. I tell you, my friends, in the day of God's judgment we will not only have to give an account for the way we made our money, but for the way we spent it. We have got to leave all the things that surround us now.

Alas, if any of you in the dying hour felt like the dying actress who asked that the casket of jewels be brought to her and then turned them over with her pale hand and said: "Alas, that I have to leave you so soon!" Better in that hour have one treasure of Heaven than the bridal trousseau of a Marie Antoinette or to have been seated with Caligula at a banquet which cost its thousands of dollars or to have been carried to our last resting place with senators and princes as pallbenrers. They that consecrate their wealth, their time, their all, to God shall be held in everlasting remembrance, while I have the authority of this book for announcing that the name of the wicked shall rot.

Just So.

THE COLOR LINE GREW FAINT.

When It Came to a Suffering Child, Racial Differences Were for the Time Forgotten.

That she was of southern birth was self-evident; that she had southern prejudices was made known. While her heart was in the right place, she still believed in keeping negroes in the right place also—according to her own measure of where that place was located. Her tongue testified to this, says the New York Times. Hailing as she did from the land of "Jim Crow" cars, she protested indignantly when a well-dressed and evidently well-to-do negro—three-fourths white—entered a Pullman sleeper which drew out of Cincinnati. He was accompanied by two children, aged about 18 months and four years, respectively. They were in mourning—perhaps for their mother. The southern woman's ire was kindled rather than cooled when one or two northern travelers, after hearing what she had to say, declared that colored people had as many rights in a public conveyance as anybody else. She disputed the proposition, but did it with dignity, for she was a woman of refinement, not at all loud of voice.

The evening wore away and all the passengers retired, including the negro father and his two bairns. And about midnight everyone on the car was disturbed. A child passenger was taken ill and the efforts of a masculine voice to soothe it became a disturbing element in the somnolent exercises of the period. The voice was full of affection, but evidently the hand was untrained in taking care of babies. Some of the passengers growled, others were sympathetic. One was active, active though she knew that the baby wail came from a little pickaninny for whom she had expressed such profound contempt earlier in the evening. The woman from the south hurriedly dressed, and, ringing for a porter, told him to have the father bring her the child. She carried it to the smoking compartment, which was by this time vacant, soothed it as a woman can soothe fretful children, discovered what was the matter with it, applied some simple remedy, and finally cooaed it to sleep, as no doubt her own "black mammy" had often crooned her to sleep in the long ago.

At Washington the next day as she was leaving the train the child's father approached and said: "Madam, I wish to thank you for your kindness to my little girl."

"You are welcome," she replied, somewhat shortly, and they went their several ways.

GOVERNMENT LENDS A HAND.

Expert Foresters Sent Out to Aid in the Forestation of Treeless Grounds.

Selection of the trees that should be felled, protection of the ones that should be saved—in short, forestry—is needed the world over. Here in our country the division of forestry in the department of agriculture at Washington has taken a practical step toward the forestation of treeless grounds, by sending out a tree-planting agreement," says the Little Chronicle. Anyone who wants to plant and develop a "forest plantation, wood lot, shelter belt or wind break" may send in his application, and the department, after having the ground personally studied by its agents, will prepare a plan according to the best scientific methods, for the planting and care of this new forest. In other words, these expert government foresters will tell you, free of charge, exactly what to plant, how and where to plant it, and how to make it grow—all for the sake of the cause. Under this offer 200 applications have been received and 135 planting plans have already been put into operation.

These requests for assistance from the government are considered in the order of their receipt, as a rule, but the department reserves the right to give preference to those likely to furnish the most valuable object lessons. Applications are constantly coming in, preliminary examinations and planting plans are being made as rapidly as possible, and a higher standard is being reached as the public begins to recognize that method counts for more than climate in the matter of forest tree planting.

A careful study of old forest plantations shows some on one kind of soil, some on another; some pastured and some not; some with trees planted far apart; some carefully cultivated, others allowed to grow to grass and weeds. As a result of all this some of these plantations are dead or dying, while others are in a thrifty condition. Accurate conclusions drawn from the work of the past, and a knowledge of the cause of failures as well as of success, form the foundation of the help the United States department of agriculture is freely offering to tree planters.

Willing to Die on a Full Stomach.

Col. Kekewich, during the siege of Kimberley, was approached by a private who asked: "Colonel, when do you expect we are going to get something to eat?" "Eat!" exclaimed the colonel, did you join the army merely to get something to eat?" "Well, what's about the size of it." "Here," calling an officer, "give this man something to eat, and then have him shot." The officer understood the joke, and replied: "All right, colonel." The private, exhibiting no alarm, said: "Boil me a ham, cap'n, stew up a couple of chickens, bake two or three pounds of potatoes, fetch a gallon o' beer, and load yer guns. With such inducements the man what wouldn't be willing to die is a blithering idiot." A hearty meal was prepared for the soldier, but he still lives.—Chicago Record Herald.

THE ISSUE IN SIGHT.

"Protection and the Trusts Will Be Vigorously Combated by the Democracy.

One year from now the campaign for the election of the Fifty-eighth congress will be under way and the people will decide by the political affiliation of those they then elect to represent them what the future policy of the government shall be on the important issues that are now being discussed.

Hon. James D. Richardson, chairman of the democratic congressional committee, gives to the Baltimore Sun his views on some of the momentous questions, as follows:

"The development of issues," he said, "is much more rapid than that of candidates for either party in the 1904 contest. In the discussion of candidates it must be borne in mind that we have the congressional campaign of 1902 to reckon with before we enter upon the business of president making in 1904.

"Out of the earlier contest may grow conditions which will indicate more clearly candidates available for the presidency. The only excuse for the discussion at this time of candidates for 1904 seems to be found in the eagerness of some men of greater or less prominence to begin a canvass in their own interests.

"The national issues of the near future seem to me to be more clearly indicated than at the close of our latest contest it seemed possible they could be so soon. True democratic principles have great vitality. Whenever the country feels that false theories and dangerous policies are leading the government from the observance of right principles democratic doctrines are appealed to for rescue and safety.

"The tariff question, which the republican party declared a few years ago to have been settled finally and forever in favor of high protection, will be found to be very pressing in the next presidential campaign. Trusts, the offspring of the republican policy, have grown so great that they overtop the parent and Dame Protection can no longer conceal them at her back by spreading her skirts or enveloping them in the black smoke of the factories. Even the trusts themselves demand something more than simple home products to feed on, and the most robust of them are looking for an open way to foreign markets. Within the very ranks of the republican party there is discontent at the continuance of the system which shuts us out of our proper place in the world's commerce. There is a reluctant acknowledgement that the old democratic tariff doctrines furnish means to open markets to our products. It may be clearly seen by one who looks ahead that the tariff question will enter into the campaign of 1904 as an important issue, and that the democrats will be found standing where they have always stood.

"All the old articles of faith which have given the democratic party enduring life will be found boldly emblazoned in the next national campaign. The preservation of the faith of our fathers will make the great comprehensive issue of the campaign.

"The jeopardy in which the Monroe doctrine has been placed through the short-sighted policy of the McKinley administration is likely to attract very wide public attention and may even become an overshadowing issue. I do not know whether it is fully realized by our people that the agitation over the Monroe doctrine at this time is due to the fact that the administration is seriously embarrassed by the anticipated purpose of foreign governments to acquire coaling stations in the proximity of South and Central American ports.

"Prior to our adventure in the Philippines and before we had become a 'world power,' to use that term as the advocates of empire use it, the desire of foreign governments to establish bases of supplies within the sphere of American republics would have occasioned no serious embarrassment. There were no doubts excited by foreign entanglements and complications of conflicting policy. There was no question of our right to object, and it was silently acknowledged by all the world. But the new policy of the administration has placed this government in such a position that to maintain sovereignty over remote islands the United States must acquire the right to establish coaling stations within the sphere where the influence of foreign powers is recognized. How can this government deny to other powers a privilege within the sphere covered by the Monroe dictrine while it seeks similar privilege within their dominions? This is the question which embarrasses.

"The administration does not know how to refuse privileges similar to those it must ask; yet to grant them would be at least a modification of the Monroe dictrine, and would threaten our stability as a nation through permitting the establishment of bases of supplies at our very ports, from which foreign powers could operate against us in time of war. Worse than abandonment of the Monroe doctrine, this would place us in the position of not being strong enough to defend it or to defend ourselves with certainty from attack.

"This is one of the penalties we are called upon to pay for the privilege of 'expanding.' This is becoming 'a world power.' Whether we are willing to pay the penalty must be one of the things tested in 1904."

—Mr. Dawes and his merry men who look after the national banks never seem to be able to discover trouble until it is so acute that everyone but the small depositor knows it. If Dawes would pay more attention to examining banks than to Illinois politics to further his own ambition, the public might be better protected.

COMBINATION EFFECTS.

Railway Magnates Put Up a Bluff to Fool the Confiding People.

The giant railroad combination is evidently organized to fleece the public and thus pay dividends on their watered stock, not only at its par value, but on the market price of various stocks, many of which are quoted far above par and greatly above the intrinsic value for which the roads could be replaced. The great railroad magnates insist that the combination will benefit the public and better the conditions of the men employed, but this is evidently said to fool the people.

Freights have already been advanced from 30 to 50 per cent., according to the Washington Post, which says: Prominent western merchants, all heavy shippers of merchandise, are preparing to call to account before the interstate commerce commission the heads of the various railroad combinations and the "community of interests" alliances of the trunk lines throughout the country. The charges are made that following those movements of consolidation freight rates have been advanced from 30 to 50 per cent. through quiet and organized manipulation of the various classifications of commodities. Behind the movement to attack this scheme of freight advances, by applying to the interstate commerce commission for relief, lies the plan for a still more vigorous blow. The complainants intend to demand that congress shall take a hand in forcing the formation of a uniform classification of freights which shall be effective on every railroad in the United States.

It is encouraging to note that these "prominent merchants" are to take action; hitherto they have stood aloof and left the burden of fighting the railroads to the "grangers" and others.

Their plan of demanding congress to give them relief is the only one that will bring results, though it is very doubtful if the coming congress will be found willing to pass any bill that will really hurt the railroads. Nearly every republican member will ride on a free pass, not only for himself, but for his family, when he comes to Washington, and the general managers who have granted him this favor of course expect protection and favors in return.

About one year from now the caucuses and conventions for the nomination of congressmen and of legislative candidates who will elect United States senators, will be meeting, and then is the time for those who want to curb the rapacity of the railroad trust to get in their work, and in 1903 something may be accomplished.

SECRETS OF RECIPROCITY.

Split of Republicans on the Tariff Question Brings Interesting Revelations.

The controversy that has sprung up between republicans as to the merits of protection and reciprocity is good reading these days, for when thieves fall out honest men may get their dues. The American Economist, the organ of the ultra protectionists is laying down the law with a high hand. It is receiving some pretty heavy raps in return but as long as the trusts and protected monopolies put up the money to make the fight, doubtless the editor of the Economist enjoys the situation and will hit every hend that comes up to say a word against its backers. What makes the controversy more interesting is that many facts that were known but were difficult to prove are now being acknowledged. For instance, it was well known that the republican managers in the senate were held up by the protected industries affected and so the French and other reciprocity treatics were not ratified.

One of these protectionists writing about the matter makes this plain by saying: We invited the French government to make a reciprocity treaty. We told them that if they would reduce their duties upon some of our products we would reduce our duties on some of theirs. This invitation was extended under the authority of the Dingley tariff law, and therefore was the act of congress as well as that of the executive, but after the executive had performed his part of the duty congress repudiated the whole thing because a few New England manufacturers of knit goods and pinchbeck jewelry, and a few Californians who are trying to raise French walnuts, feared that their products would be reduced.

—M. de Witt, the Russian finance minister, did not mince matters in giving his opinion of Secretary Gage. He said "he cannot imagine that Mr. Gage would intentionally mislead the people of the United States, and therefore he can only conclude that Mr. Gage is not possessed of all the facts in the case." In the meantime further reprisals are hinted at on agricultural machinery, but our manufacturers must not blame Gage if they are entirely blocked out of the Russian markets; they must blame the Dingley tariff. A prompt revision of the tariff is the only hope of our manufacturers if they want to do a foreign trade.

—It is announced that up to the present time the prosecution of Mr. Neely for the Cuban post office frauds has cost the government $50,000, and he is as far from conviction as when he was first arrested. How much Rathbone has cost is not stated. It is quite evident that the republicans do not dare to vigorously prosecute these men or they would have been brought to trial long ago. The threat of Rathbone "to pull down the pillars of the temple" has evidently had its effect.

THE GREAT STRUGGLE.

Conference Comes to Naught and a Strike is Ordered.

From Present Appearances It Looks Probable That President Shaffer's Strike Order Will Be Obeyed By the Men.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 15.—The third conference between the Amalgamated association and the United States steel corporation Saturday came to naught and President Shaffer Saturday night ordered out all the union men employed in the American Steel Hoop Co., American Sheet Steel Co., and the American Tin Plate Co.

From present indications it looks probable that President Shaffer's strike order will be obeyed and the great struggle between the Amalgamated association and the steel companies will be on in earnest Monday.

In the union mills of the companies against which a strike has been declared, it is predicted that not a wheel will turn. An effort will be made also to close down some of the non-union mills of the companies and to cripple the rest.

"The strike was not of our own seeking," said President Shaffer Sunday. It was forced upon us. We were not contending for wages, but for principle—for self-preservation. The tin and sheet people will not be able to turn a wheel.

We have our forces thoroughly organized, and there will be some surprises in store. I have not heard from a single lodge in answer to my strike order, but an answer is not necessary. The order will be promptly obeyed by all our men. But there will be no trouble. Labor organizations have changed. The Amalgamated Association is not the association it was 20 years ago, not even five years ago. The men are more readily controlled; in fact, we have our men under control."

With 47,000 men affected by the original order calling out the sheet steel workers, sheet hoop and tin workers this general order will increase the numbers to more than 150,000, and will involve the Federal Steel Co., the National Steel Co. and the National Tube Co.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

Fifty Thousand Miners Willing to Walk Out and Assist the Amalgamated Association.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 15.—Fifty thousand miners employed in the many mines of the Pittsburgh district are willing to lay down their picks, walk out of the mines and assist the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers in their fight against the steel trust. Patrick Dolan, district president of the United Mine Workers, is authority for this statement, and if necessary the miners will immediately quit work.

"I deplore this steel strike, for it will be the greatest in the history of the country," said President Dolan, "perhaps causing hardships for thousands. But the men are standing up for their rights and the officials of the steel trust know this better than any one else."

TERMS REFUSED.

The Iron Molders of Chicago and Vicinity Went Out on Strike Monday Morning.

Chicago, July 15.—Action taken Sunday night by Chicago members of the Iron Molders' Union resulted Monday in a general strike of the members of the trade employed in the foundries of Chicago and vicinity. In spite of the efforts of the officers of the international organization the six local unions voted to refuse the terms offered by their employers. They also decided to renew their demand for a $3 a day wage and to strike unless their demand shall be immediately complied with. Eighty manufacturing concerns and 1,400 members of the union are affected.

May Strike Tuesday Morning.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 15.—The grievance committee of the Stationary Firemen's association of Northern Pennsylvania held a meeting in this city and resolved to call a strike Tuesday morning unless the demands of the firemen for a nine-hour day are granted by that time.

Russia Recruiting.

London, July 15.—Emperor Nicholas, according to a dispatch from St. Petersburg, has issued an order that 308,500 men shall be recruited for the Russian army and navy during the present year.

To Destroy a Fort.

Aden, Arabia, July 15.—A force of 500 British and Indian troops is about to start for a point 70 miles inland to destroy a fort built by the Turks in the territory of the Hunshad, who are under British protection.

Case Referred to the President.

Washington, July 13.—The case of Collector of Internal Revenue Sapp, at Louisville, Ky., charged with violations of the civil service law, including the views of the commission, has been referred by the civil service commission to the president.

Texas Statesman Dead.

Dallas, Tex., July 13.—Hon. Richard B. Hubbard, a former governor of Texas and during President Cleveland's administration United States minister to Japan, died at his home in Tyler, Tex.

PHRASES OF ANCIENT ORIGIN.

"A Feather in One's Cap."—It was once a custom in their wars with the Turks for the Hungarians to wear a feather in their caps for each Turk they had killed.

"Deadhead."—In Pompeii people who gained admittance to an entertainment without paying admission were called "deadheads," because the checks used for admission were small ivory death's heads.

"To Give the Cold Shoulder."—It was once the custom in France, when a guest had outstayed his welcome, to serve him with a cold shoulder of mutton instead of a hot roast as a gentle hint for him to go.

"Blackguards."—When the Horse guards parade in St. James' park, London, a crowd of bootblacks always crowd about to black their boots and do other menial work. These attendants at the guard mount have long gone by the name of "black guards."

"To Kick the Bucket."—This phrase dates back to the time of Queen Elizabeth. A shoemaker named Hawkins committed suicide by standing on a bucket placed on a table to raise himself to a convenient rafter. To kick the bucket was, of course, his last act on earth.

"Catching a Tartar."—During the war between Russia and the Tartars a private soldier cried out: "Captain, I have caught a Tartar!" The officer ordered him to bring his prisoner forward. "He won't let me!" the soldier shouted back, and investigation showed that the Tartar was holding back his captor.

"He's a Brick!"—This phrase, meaning a good fellow, has been traced to a king of Sparta four centuries B. C. A visitor to Lacedaemonia, the Spartan capital, was surprised to find the city without walls and asked the king what he would do in case of invasion. "Sparta has 30,000 soldiers," replied the king, "and each man is a brick!"

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

Three per cent. of steamers and four per cent. of sailing vessels are lost at sea yearly.

About one-third of the world's coffee production is consumed in the United States.

Bananas with purple leaves and seedless fruit have been introduced into British conservatories.

The Porto Rican native is very much given to dancing. Both men and women have a natural love for the ballroom.

Tea became known in England about the middle of the seventeenth century. It was first sold in public houses as beer is now tapped.

There are fewer contested seats in the Fifty-seventh congress than in any previous one for many years. There are practically no contests in the senate, though the session will open in December with Delaware, one of the original states, with no representative.

Extensive investigations are about to be made by the agricultural department of the whole question of fruit harvesting and marketing, including the application of refrigeration to fruit storage, both in the warehouse and in transit, so as to help the people of all the states in putting their fruits upon foreign markets.

A new whisky bottle contains a float which sinks as the spirit is extracted, always remaining on the surface; but if any other liquid is added, the position of the float is altered. It will sink below the surface if any other fluid is added to the whisky. This is intended to prevent dishonest persons taking some of the contents and replacing with water.

An Emphatic Touch.

The man who lives in a flat and is often annoyed by the violent piano playing of his otherwise agreeable neighbor of the floor below remarked to his wife the other day: "That Smith downstairs would make an elegant carpet beater."

"Why?" asked his wife.

"Oh, he has the regular carpet beater's touch," replied her husband.—N. Y. Times.

Very Airish.

"I would like to see some of the latest airs," said the customer in the music department.

Going to the Pan American Exposition?

If so, you want to go comfortably, and see something and learn something, going and coming. To do this, it will be best to have your ticket routed from Cincinnati over the C. H. & D. Railway, going via Detroit through Canada, seeing English ways and customs, and seeing Niagara Falls en route, and, if you like the voyage, come back via the Great Lakes.

Your railway ticket via this line gives you the privilege of changing your route, and coming back via the Lake Erie Steamers to Toledo, or Detroit, if you desire to do so, without extra cost.

The many relatives and friends of S. S. Terrill and family deeply sympathize with them in the death of their eldest son, George, who died July 10th, at his uncle's, Dr. R Grant, in Texarkana, of typhoid malaria, after an illness of two weeks, in the 28th year of his age. His remains reached Bullittsburg, Friday afternoon, where his funeral was preached by Revs. Kirtley and Sproles, and were then laid to rest with his own kindred, to await that blessed morn, when God will commaud sea and land to give up its dead. Truly all can say that George was a most exemplary young man, being a true, faithful and thoughtful son and brother, one who had no enemies, one in whose heart only love and justice dwelt; one of whom everybody spoke well; one who cast his lot with the people of God and with his brother and sister was baptized in his youth by Rev. J. A. Kirtley at Big Boue. Although his life was short, his work soon ended, but far better with his record with God and man than those who will live to old age in sin and evil and know uot God. Hoping this sweet thought will comfort the bereaved loved ones, and that in George's death, have more to influence them to live nearer to the cross of Calvary, more to endear them to heaven, and when life is ended with all, be one annited family in that "Sweet Home beyond Jordan."

Dr. Tobe Orr and family, of Newport, are visiting C. A. McLaughlin at the Springs; also Mrs. W. R. Miller and her many pretty daughters, of Covington, are visiting her son and wife, G. B. Miller, at their summer home near the Springs.

As Mrs. J. M. Baker and family were driving down the 'pike, last Thursday afternoon, the team became frightened at a steam thresher standing by the road side, and ran off, throwing her daughter, Miss Sallie, from the buggy against the plank fence and thrusting a splinter 1½ inches long into her arm, which required the utmost strength of Dr. Ryle to remove. Luckily none of the others were seriously hurt.

The Springs enjoyed the distinguished pleasure of entertaining the North Ky. Medical Society, Thursday, July 11th, with a grand fish-fry, provided by the Society under the management of Dr. E. J. Ryle, Chef. Geo. Kite, who understands the art, prepared the fish to the Queen's taste. Col. C. A. McLaughlin's Old Oak grove was secured and the Society was called to order by the Pres. Dr. Mathews, of Williamstown, promptly at 10 o'clock, and the promgram for the occasion was deliberately disposed of, which contained many interesting features, among which was an able paper by Dr. S. M. Adams on the "Relation of the Physician to the family," which was thoroughly discussed by several able physicians and divines, among whom were such noted talent as Dr. Thadius Reasy, Edwin Ricketts and ——— Beebe, of Cincinnati; and Revs. Hill and Davis, of Williamstown. Dinner was served promptly at 12 o'clock on the ground, with the fish and the choice edibles prepared by the good housewives, presented a feast that would have tempted the palate of the most fastidious. There have been other meetings of the Society, but this was declared by all present to eclipse anything they have enjoyed in the line of a general grand, good old, time, both professionally and socially. There were present, of physicians and visitors, the largest gathering the Society has had the delightful pleasure of entertaining since its formation several years ago. The next meeting will be at Erlanger.

E. O. Rouse shipped a car load of lambs to Cincinnati last week. He reported the market very good at that time.

Robert Tanner was so disabled with a severe case of cramps in his limbs last Friday, that he had to leave the harvest field, but he is on duty again.

J. A. Smith was in our burg last week one day, and gave us a few pointers on fishing. He said he went down to Sullivan's mill dam, a few days ago, and fished there a half day and never got a bite. He can't account for it unless uncle Thornt Blankenbeker had been there and caught them.

LIMABURG.—Thermometer 104 on the 11th, and 102 on the 15th.

Rain is needed badly. Corn is firing up.

The hay harvest is under full headway.

WANTED, HOMES.—The Kentucky Children's Home Society desires to secure good homes in kind and competent christian families, for needy children of sound mind and body. Address Rev. R. E. O'Byrne, District Superintendent, Newport, Ky.

Col. Graddy's account of his series of adventures in Louisville and vicinity did not arrive in time for last week's issue, but his experience has been of such a thrilling nature since he left Burlington, it is deemed the proper thing to acquaint his friends with it however late.

Esq. Noell, of the Beaver precinct, telephoned to County Attorney Castleman, last Friday, to come down and prosecute Fraizer Miscal for cracking J. T. Dempsey's head with a hoe. The fellow who said Frazier would not use a hoe on any occasion turns out to be a false prophet.

A short session of an impromptu Farmers' Institute was held on the court house steps, last Thursday night. Dr. Furnish presided, and after able speeches by Tony Bentler, J. C. Revill, J. L. Clore and Jailer Adams, a committee was appointed to ascertain and report to the next meeting, the proper time to sow grass seed.

The farmers have invested considerable of their capital in mole traps this season, the moles being unusually numerous and very active, especially active in yards and gardens. The increase in moles is attributed to the almost extermination, in the last few years, of the pole cats, the fur of which has been a source of considerable revenue to the trappers in this part of the country.

Our friend, John L. Conner, of the Hebron neighborhood, said to the RECORDER, last Saturday, that those who, early in the season, were, through its columns, predicting a very large yield of potatoes, will have to surrender their credentials as prophets along that line, as the yield will be small. He says when potatoe vines begin to curl from the effect of heat and dry weather, the crop is sure to be short, and the vines have been guilty of that caper already this season.

Mrs. Polly Popham, wife of the late John Popham, died June 5th, 1901, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. David J. Hogen, five miles back of Aurora, Indiana, after a painful illness of nearly two years. She bore her suffering with patience, and prayed for the end to come, which was as peaceful as a child going to sleep, leaving a smile on her face. She had been twice married, Samuel Underhill being her first husband. To them four daughters were born, two of them being dead. At the time of her death she was 83 years and 2 months old. She leaves two children, a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren to mourn her death.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled.
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
God, in His wisdom has recalled
The boon his love had given,
And although the body moulders there,
The soul is safe in heaven.
From her grandchildren.

Summer complaint is usually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; C. S. Baisly, Bullittsville; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

A young man giving his name as Sawdy and claiming Cincinnati as his home, came here Tuesday. He had no money but was resourceful. Wednesday he made a house to house canvass, selling "pink clematis," the seed of which was sent to him by his sister in India, so he said. He also sold "trailing arbutus" and "oriental palm" seed. Sawdy did a land office business and was about $50 to the good when it became known that the roots of the "pink clematis" and "trailing arbutus" were just plain, everyday rag weed roots, which he pulled from the ground on the river bank, and the "oriental palm" seed was lettuce seed secured at the stores here. When he learned that the officers were after him he paid his hotel bill and hurriedly left town. It is almost impossible to get any one to admit that they bought these "rare and beautiful flowers" of Mr. Sawdy.—Rising Sun Local.

Baisly, Bullittsville; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

Miss Mamoselle Morris died very suddenly at her home in town last Wednesday evening. She had, a few minutes before, eaten a usual supper, after which she went to the cupboard for something, when Mrs. Coleman, who lived with her noticed her in a peculiar stooping position, and upon going to her she discovered the unmistakable death pallor on her face. Mrs. Coleman called some the neighbors, but nothing could be done to stay the grasp of the grim messenger. She had been subject to heart disease for a long time and expected to die of it. She was in her 61st year and a member of the Methodist Church, her funeral being preached in that house of worship at 10 a. m., last Friday, after which the remains were interred. She leaves no immediate relatives. She was a kind hearted lady, devoted to her church, and was a good neighbor.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty, of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner, Florence; H. L. Eskew, Walton; O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mr. Louis Scott, Sr., a prominent and highly respected citizen of Boone county, departed this life on the morning of July 6th, 1901, at the advanced age of 80 years, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. John Doherty, in Cummingsvill, Ohio. He passed peacefully away after an illness of several months of heart failure. In his early boyhood he lived in Cincinnati, afterward removing to Covington where he was a prosperous merchant for many years, located on the corner of 6th and Main Sts., retiring from business in the early 60's and settling in this county. He amassed quite a competency and was a heavy loser in the Purcell failure in 1879.

On Saturday evening his remains were taken to the homestead and the funeral took place on Monday morning from St. Paul's Catholic church, Florence, Ky., with Requiem High Mass, Father B. J. Kolbe assisted by the choir. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery, near Covington. The pallbearers being his six grand-sons, respectively, Charles Scott, Joseph Scott, Wm. Scott, Louis Scott, George Scott and John Scott. Five children survive him and mourn his loss, three sons and two daughters, they are Prof. Louis A. Scott, of Lexington, Mrs. Kate Snyder, of Covington, Wm. H. Scott, of Crescent, Joseph S. Scott, of Florence, and Mrs. John Doherty, of Cummulnsville, Ohio. In this the time of their bereavement, we extend to them the heartfelt sympathy of this community.

It is not generally known that the remains of all the Czars of Russia since Peter the Great lie in a memorial chapel built on one of the islands of the Neva. The first of the anti-tuberculosis dispensaries in Paris was inaugurated in the Rue Mercadet, in the Montmartre district, the other day. The object of the work is more preventive than curative. Traveling about in marauding armies, they have well-nigh destroyed the local lobster and crab fisheries by devouring these crustaceans wholesale.

THE BRITISH ARMY.

A Part of It May Be Withdrawn From South Africa.

Gen. Broadwood Surprised With Near Lindley and Took 20 Prisoners, Among Them a Brother of President Steyn.

London, July 15.—Lord Kitchener has advised the government, so the Daily News understands, that it is possible to withdraw a large number of infantry regiments from South Africa, amounting, virtually, to the greater part of the unmounted army. At the same time he requests that he be supplied with more mounted men. The government is considering this, according to the Daily News, and will probably be guided by Lord Kitchener's advice.

"It is also contemplated," says the same journal, "if the infantry is largely withdrawn, to concentrate the British troops along the Natal railway, between Durban and Pietermaritzburg and between Johannesburg and Pretoria, thus carrying gold and provisions for the troops by a shorter route than the Cape Town route. A portion of the line from Cape Town to Pretoria may be abandoned."

"Gen. Broadwood," says a dispatch to the Daily News from Bloemfontein, "surprised Reitz due east of Lindley at dawn last Thursday, July 11. He took 29 prisoners, including Gen. A. P. Clowne and Gen. Wessels, Commandant Dwaal, First Cornet Piet Steyn, President Steyn's brother; Thomas Brain, secretary of government, and Roches de Villiers, secretary to the council. Steyn himself fled without coat or boots. Gen. DeWet is believed to have been present."

According to advices from Lord Kitchener, the columns under Col. Featherstone and Col. Dixon, have reached Zerust, Western Transvaal. They met with opposition and made some captures. The British casualties were one officer killed and three officers and 24 men wounded.

FALL OF THE BASTILE.

National Fete Day Was Celebrated Everywhere Throughout France —The President Cheered.

Paris, July 15.—Telegrams from all parts of France show that the national fete day, the anniversary of the fall of the Bastile, was celebrated everywhere throughout the country with much enthusiasm and without disorder. There were reviews at all military and naval stations, followed by illuminations, fireworks and balls in the evening.

The Parisians participated with customary zest. Wreaths were placed on the Strassbourg monument in the Place de la Concorde, by various deputations, although the police removed those of the socialists which were inscribed "to the fatherlands victims." The police also dispersed a delegation of the League of Patriots who were cheering for Paul de Roulede as they placed wreaths in his name upon the pedestal. A pro-Boer demonstration by students was stopped by the police. President Loubet, while driving to the Long Champ race course to witness the grand annual review, was cheered all along the route.

GANG OF PICKPOCKETS.

Their Operations Caused a Party of Epworth Leagners to Become Stranded.

Glenwood Springs, Col., July 15.—The thoroughly organized gang of pickpockets operating at Colorado Springs is responsible for a party of about twenty Epworth Leaguers becoming stranded here. Men and women alike have been robbed, not only of every cent they had with them, but of railroad tickets as well, and unless the railroads will issue tickets back home on their proof of having purchased and paid for transportation to San Francisco and back they will be compelled to ask aid from the county authorities.

In at least ten instances thieves even secured their victims' trunks on the stolen baggage checks.

Maj. S. K. Hooper, general passenger agent of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad authorized the Glenwood Springs agent to furnish passes to Ogden to stranded passengers who desired to continue their journey west.

SIX PERSONS DROWNED.

They Were Surf Bathing Near Savannah, Ga.—Five Bodies Swept Out to Sea.

Savannah, Ga., July 15.—Six persons were drowned while surf bathing at a picnic of the Hebrew Gamahl Hasad at Daufuskie beach Sunday afternoon.

A strong southeast wind was blowing and the tide was at flood. Fifty yards off shore is a shoal and between the shoal and the shore is a sluice. The party was bathing on the shoal, but finding the tide getting rather high, the bathers concluded to go nearer shore. Almost at once they found themselves in the sluice, over their heads, with big waves pounding and a sweeping current running. Of 19 who started across the sluice six were drowned.

Mrs. Abe Dickstein's corpse was found floating in the surf an hour after the tragedy but the others were swept out to sea.

Dead Bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prange Found on the Highway Near St. Joseph, Mo.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 15.—The dead bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prange, of Omaha, were found beside the public highway, half a mile south of Lake Station Sunday night. There was a bullet hole in the woman's right temple and one in the man's forehead. Clasped in Prange's right hand was a 38-caliber revolver. It was evidently a case of murder and suicide. The man is supposed to have killed the woman and then taken his own life.

New York, July 15.—For the first time since he was shot by Thomas G. Barker, at Arlington, N. J., Rev. John Keller preached a sermon Sunday morning. His theme was the beauty and meaning of the colors of the American flag, although he himself can see those colors but dimly now.

THE SEVERE HOT SPELL

Warm Weather Continues in Several of the States.

Drought in Texas Broken By a Terrific Rainfall of Over Two Hours' Duration, Almost Equaling a Cloudburst.

Washington, July 15.—Reports to the weather bureau show that the hot weather continued Sunday in 19 states and territories of the great corn belt, the Ohio valley and various portions of the south. There seems to be no immediate evidence of abatement, except in the southwest, where local thunderstorms may cause some moderation. The states affected include Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Colorado and Michigan. It has become considerably warmer also in the upper lake region and in New England, Marquette, Mich., reporting Sunday a record-breaking temperature of 102 degrees. Hope of rain Sunday in the region affected by the heat was not fulfilled, only traces of it appearing in one or two sections, except at Galveston, Tex., where one-third of an inch fell, and in eastern Texas, where there were local thunderstorms. The temperatures reported Sunday show only slight variation from the extremes of the past few days, and these are due to local conditions entirely. In Des Moines, Ia., Sunday the temperature was 100. In Kansas City 102, and in Omaha 102, while at Devenport, Ia., Denver, Col., Little Rock, Ark., New Orleans, St. Paul, and Vicksburg, Miss., it was 96 or higher.

Iron Mountain, Mich., July 15.—Sunday was the hottest of the year. It was 110 in the shade at 1 o'clock.

Denison, Tex., July 15.—The worst drought ever experienced in this section was broken Sunday afternoon by a terrific rainfall of over two hours' duration, the volume of rain being almost equal to a cloudburst. The storm was accompanied by a wind of almost tornado force. Reports indicate that the rain is general in this vicinity. It has come just in the nick of time to save the cotton crop. It will benefit the fruit crop and furnish stock water, which had entirely failed, causing much distress, and will also benefit lowland cotton.

PRAYING FOR RAIN.

Prayers Offered in All the Churches at Jefferson City, Mo., Sunday Evening.

Jefferson City, Mo., July 15.—At all the churches Sunday prayers were made for rain. At the Roman Catholic churches prayers are said at each mass daily for rain, under an order of Archbishop Kain, of St. Louis. Sunday night the Methodist, Baptist, Christian and Presbyterian congregations united in a union service at the Presbyterian church and prayers for rain were offered.

Gov. Dockery is receiving hundreds of requests beseeching him to issue a proclamation to the people to assemble and pray for rain. It was cloudy Sunday night with favorable indications for the rain.

SPOILED THE FLIRTATION.

The Pony Was a Racer and Kept Out in Front to His Rider's Disgust.

A gentleman who is a member of the Meadow Brook Hunt club and delights in horseback riding received a few days ago a wiry "cayuse," or cow-pony, as they are called in the northwest. The animal had some speed and an easy gait, and after riding it around the country roads a few days he rode it one evening, with a party of ladies and gentlemen who were out for a moonlight canter.

The party split up into couples, and, while the gentleman in question would much prefer to have taken the rear of the line with the lady whose escort he was, yet the pony developed an unexpected ambition to lead the procession, according to the New York Mail and Express. He let the "cayuse" have its own way, only to find that the headstrong animal insisted on being at least one-half a length in front of the horse ridden by the lady.

There was no holding that pony back on even terms with the other horse. It pranced about, jumped from side to side and pulled the bit and would be quiet only when it had its nose well to the front. The lady enjoyed it immensely, but the gentleman—well, he left unsaid many things which he had planned to say to the young lady when they started on the ride. Subsequently the gentleman found the pony had been used for racing in the west and had been trained to "go to the front and stay there."

A THOUSAND MILES AT SEA.

In Several Parts of the Earth Ships Can Get That Far from Land.

The question has been asked, is it possible to sail 1,000 miles from land? This can be done at several points. By leaving San Francisco and sailing northwestward into the North Pacific, a spot is reached where there is no land—not even an islet—for 1,000 miles in any direction. So, too, sailing from the southern point of Kamtchatka, southeastward, ships reach a point equally distant from land of any kind. The nearest to the north being the Aleutian islands, and to the south the outlying members of the Sandwich group. In the southern Indian ocean it is possible to sail 1,000 miles out from the southern points of Australia and New Zealand and still be as far from any other land, and the same may be done in a westerly direction from Cape Horn. Indeed, from this point a much longer distance may be reached, for the southern Pacific, between the Horn and New Zealand, covers a space of 80 degrees of longitude and 40 of latitude of absolutely unbroken sea, making its central point over 1,200 miles from anywhere.

The Drum in Italy's Army.

The reason given for the substitution of the drum for the trumpet in the Italian army is that in these days of short service a young soldier learns to march to the drum far sooner than to the trumpet. Again, it is found that trumpeters are very subject to pulmonary affections.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-Mark.

Justice Laughlin, in the supreme court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the injunction of the court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes, now so largely advertised and sold over the country. Allen S. Olmsted, of Leroy, N. Y., is the owner of the trade-mark "Foot-Ease," and he is the first individual who ever advertised a foot powder extensively over the country. The decision in this case upholds his trade-mark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot-Ease" advertising, in placing upon the market a spurious and similar appearing preparation, labeled and put up in envelopes and boxes like Foot-Ease. Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trade-mark and common law rights.

STATE NEWS PICK-UPS.

CAUSED A SENSATION.

Chief Hanger, of Louisville, Backed the Loser For Mayor, and Will Resign.

Louisville, Ky., July 12.—A sensation was caused Thursday by the announcement that Chief of Police Jacob H. Hanger has decided to tender his resignation to the board of public safety. Chief Hanger has not yet announced his reasons, but will make a statement when he officially notifies the board of his action. The resignation, however, is undoubtedly due to the result of the recent primary. In this race Hanger was a supporter of Mr. Jefferson, who was defeated for the nomination for mayor.

During the primary campaign Hanger was importuned by the Grainger followers to change, but steadfastly refused. He was appointed chief after the election of Mayor Weaver in 1897. Previous to that he had risen through the positions of station keeper, captain and chief of detectives. Before entering the police department he was a printer. There was a rumor that Chief Hanger would accept employment with a Chicago detective agency, but Hanger denies this.

TUNNEL CAVED IN.

As a Result of a Fire Traffic Is Blocked on the L. & N. North of Russellville, Ky.

Russellville, Ky., July 11.—The twin tunnel, 23 miles north of here on the Owensboro and Russellville division of the L. and N. railroad, which caught fire, caved in Wednesday, and the company has been put to much expense and inconvenience. All passengers and baggage have to be transferred, and freight traffic is absolutely blocked.

At first it was thought the fire originated from the sparks of an engine, but that theory is now discredited and it is thought to have been caused by spontaneous combustion or by an incendiary. Work will begin at once of clearing the track, and railroad men say that it will be at least a month before trains can go through.

KEPT HER SECRET.

Though Conscious Lizzie Russell Positively Refused to Tell Who Killed Her.

Middlesboro, Ky., July 13.—Lizzie Russell, the girl who disappeared on the night of the murder of Martha White, was found in a dying condition on Bennett's Fork, and expired a few hours later. Though conscious, she refused to speak, and the killing of her and Martha White is a deep mystery.

Suspicion points to "Johnnie" Martin, owner of a "blind tiger" saloon two miles from Middlesboro, but no attempt has been made to arrest him. Martin has closed his saloon and remains surrounded in the mountains with armed friends.

Recent investigations have shown that oil in paying quantities exists in this section, and the excitement over discovery has led to many leases being taken. Dr. Heath and Mr. World have in the last ten days taken leases on about 10,000 acres of oil lands. Within the next 30 days they will sink a well near the Glade church, one mile west of Berea. The specimen of oil found in this locality is of as good quality as that found in the Wayne county fields, and the promoters are sanguine of the outlook.

Howard was released from jail, and left at noon Wednesday for Hopkinsville, where he has worked as a carpenter since his release from the asylum. This ends one of the most famous prosecutions known to Owensboro.

THE COLUMBIA WON.

The Constitution Was Second and the Independence Third—A Fine Race.

Newport, R. I., July 12.—Columbia won Thursday's race in fine shape with the Constitution second and the Independence a remarkably good third. The Boston boat sailed an exciting race with the two Herreshoffs and led the Constitution at the outer mark, only to be beaten by her a little over two minutes on the run to the finish before the wind. The breeze Thursday was much stronger than on previous days and the Independence sailed the 15 miles to windward without her jib topsail and seemed to hold higher, at the same time footing just as fast.

Newport, R. I., July 13.—The Columbia again defeated the Constitution in the race by a margin in corrected time of two minutes and 19 seconds, the Independence being once more last after losing her topmast at the very start. The Boston yacht, however, sailed such a remarkably plucky race after being shorn of her top gear that it is generally believed here Friday night she would have won the race but for the accident. For 20 minutes after the start she sailed with the wreck of her club topsail trailing astern, while for six more she was motionless, luffed in the wind, while the crew cleared away the tangle. All the time the other two yachts were speeding along under all sail, yet the Independence was only beaten seven minutes and 42 seconds at the first mark and sailed the second leg of the triangle in less than either of the other yachts, although they carried topsails. In the run home the two Bristol boats, under a great press of sail, beat the Lawson yacht a little over four minutes in ten miles. This fine showing of the Independence did not in any way detract from the interest in the contest between the two Herreshoff yachts.

Shamrock II. Again Won.

Rothesay, Firth of Clyde, July 12.—The two Shamrocks had another trial Thursday, going out to windward in a four-knot breeze. Though the Shamrock I. had the best of the start and the weather berth, the Shamrock II. quickly closed up the gap, passed the other boat and held a clear lead when they were both becalmed off Cumbrae. Watson, the designer of the cup challenger, wants the trials continued next week.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

Chicago Man Lives, Although His Head Was Almost Severed From His Body.

Chicago, July 13.—Although his head is almost torn from his body, Joseph Burdick is still alive, furnishing, it is said, one of the most remarkable cases known to physicians.

Burdick's head hangs by a mere shred, having been all but taken off by a huge piece of metal which fell across his neck by the overturning of a flat car Thursday. The trachea and larynx were completely torn away and the unfortunate man was taken to the hospital presumably to die. By some fortune his neck was not broken, nor were the jugular vein and carotid artery injured, although both were fully exposed, where the flesh had been torn away.

At the hospital Burdick was promptly operated upon and equipped with a device for breathing which projects from the throat just above the collar bone.

Dr. L. Clark Cary, in speaking of the case, said:

"Hunt, the medical authority, cites only 27 cases of a character that even approach this, and none of them approach it in the completeness of the work of destruction. It is safe to assume that the injured man will live, and he will be confronted by a peculiar condition. He will never be able to utter a sound, not even a groan. He will have to acquire the means of communication by mutes, and to do this he will have to start in life at the bottom, just as a child has to do."

CINCINNATI MACHINISTS.

Discouraging Reports Caused the Strikers to Vote to Return in Several of the Shops.

Cincinnati, July 13.—At a secret meeting at Cosmopolitan hall the striking machinists voted to abandon the strike in several shops, and advised the men to go back to work.

Richard Woltjen, who went to Washington to ascertain how soon financial aid could be secured, made a discouraging report, but the men is certain of the larger shops voting to stay out until the strike is won.

The machinists who go back claim that in many instances they get half the original demands, giving them 10 hours' pay for 9½ hours' work.

Washington, July 13.—At the headquarters of the International Association of Machinists here President O'Connell admitted that the collapse of the strike at Cincinnati was likely to have considerable effect on the general strike, as Cincinnati has been regarded as the center of the fighting, but reiterated that there is no intention to call off the general strike, and declared that the order would fight it out to the end.

Baltimore, July 13.—About 200 machinists decided to give up the fight for a nine-hour day and to apply for reinstatement in the shops of the Maryland Steel Co. on Monday at the old terms. This brings the machinists' strike to an end in this city.

A Good Name for It.

A droll medical officer at the war department at Washington, who is obliged to give some attention to the pension business, has suggested a new disease to pension hunters that is likely to be acceptable to the pension agents. He found that the lists of disabilities submitted by applicants included almost everything in the medical dictionaries, the idea being to name some disease that an applicant is liable to have. "How would it do," he asks, "to let some of these applicants describe their disabilities under the name of 'pensionitis?' That would mean everything and describe the infirmities of the entire race of present-day applicants."—N. Y. Times.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Yesterday I was the happy recipient of a copy of the RECORDER. It brought the first news I had received from old Boone since I left; it made me a little homesick for the first time since I left that dear old county; I have had a delightful time since I left. I will give a short account of what I have seen and done in the meantime:

On June the 20th I left Burlington, drove to my daughter's to dinner, in evening I went to Petersburg and attended the Sunday School Convention; left that night, on mail boat, with horse and buggy for Louisville—had a pleasant but stormy trip down the river. I met on the boat an old friend, Mr. Robt. Bond, from near Ghent. He had with him his youngest daughter, a very charming young lady. They proved to be delightful companions.

On the morning of the 21st I arrived in Louisville; spent the morning in transacting some business; I met on the street an old Boone county friend, Joe Wagstaff. In the afternoon I drove out to Mr. Dilday's—my drive carried me through a beautiful country—it reminded me of my old native county, Woodford. Mr. Dilday's home is in the heart of the aristocratic Pewee Valley. The homes are magnificent, but the fencing has been sadly neglected. It is a fine field for my business. I have a bright prospect for considerable business in my line.

When I arrived at Mr. Dilday's I found he had been called from home for a week's absence; I left my horse and buggy and returned to Louisville for the night; spent a very pleasant evening with the family of Mr. Perry Crogher; went to a hotel for the night. The next morning I arose early to take a train for Mr. Dilday's home. After dressing, I tried to unlock my door and behold! the key would not turn in the lock; I rang the electric bell and the clerk did not answer; I took in the surroundings and found I could make my exit over the transom, so I drew a table to the door, placed a chair aboard and through the transom I went. Just as I was about to descend from my perch a chamber maid appeared in the hall. Taking me for a burglar, she screamed and fell in a faint to the floor. I made a hasty descent and bounded to her side, lifted her gently and placed her with care on a divan. Just then she opened her eyes and made the hall ring with another heartrending shriek. I made a hasty retreat to the office and reported what had happened. After a hasty breakfast I caught the train that carried me to Mr. Dilday's. I had a consultation with Mrs. Dilday and concluded to make a visit to Woodford. Learning that I would have to wait four hours for a train, I decided to run down to Lakeland about three miles below, and make a call upon our distinguished townsman, Dr. Furnish. The Doctor made my visit a delightful one. He showed me through the various female wards and I found everything as neat as a pin. I discovered that the Doctor is a great favorite with the patients. He had a pleasant word for every one. Lakeland is a beautiful place and everything I saw indicated that our townsman is honoring the position he is filling instead of being honored thereby.

At 2 p. m., I boarded a train for Versailles, reaching Midway, I learned I could not get a train to Versailles until the next morning, so I hired a buggy and drove over. I was greatly disappointed at the ravages that had destroyed the beautiful landscape that, in former years, had rendered that drive so famous for its beauty. The forests have been destroyed and the once beautiful blue grass woodlawns have been converted into wheat and tobacco fields. I spent four delightful days in renewing old acquaintances and visiting relatives. Tuesday evening I attended a bluegrass hop and had the distinguished honor and exquisite pleasure of accompanying the most beautiful lady of the evening. I was disappointed in the bluegrass beauties—when I compared them with old Boone's daughters I was proud of them.

Wednesday I went to Lexington to visit my son, I took dinner with him at Mr. Bradley's, where he has boarded for eight years. I met my old friend, Mr. John T. Hughes, on the street in the afternoon and he invited me to ride out to the fair grounds with him to look at some fine horses he was having trained—one in particular I was charmed with. He is the handsomest horse I ever saw; he is a 3-yr-old, by the celebrated Rex McDonald. Mr. Lewis Ellis is educating him to the saddle gaits; he will be at the Boone fair. I spent the night with my niece, Mrs. Ross.

Thursday morning I returned to this place and found that Mrs. Dilday had joined her husband at French Lick Springs to attend a very sick child they had there. I spent the remainder of the week in Louisville. Monday morning I began work here and have been very busy ever since. I have 400 rods of fence to build for Mr. Dilday.

Today I drove over to Lakeland and dined with Dr. Furnish. I left my horse on the outside of the grounds and when I came out to leave, I found my horse and buggy gone. Two ladies standing near told me two young ladies had driven away in my buggy about fifteen minutes before I came out. While waiting for their return Ed Hawes came out and introduced me to one of the ladies as his wife. In a few minutes the two ladies returned. A gentleman standing near happened to be a Sheriff of the county. I had him to arrest them. They turned out to be two of the trusted inmates and plead the insanity act, which under the laws of Kentucky, barred them from prosecution. They promised me that the next time I came they would take me along with them. G. C. GRADDY.

According to the statistics given out by the State Board of Equalization, Woodford county last year produced 3,526,600 pounds of tobacco. Woodford is fast becoming one of the largest tobacco raising counties in the State.

Among the features of the biennial report of the State Auditor to the General Assembly, now in course of preparation, will be a tabulated statement showing that the taxes due on individual deposits in the banks of the State which the depositors failed to list with the County Assessors for the years 1900 and 1901 amount to the enormous sum of $578,584.04. This is due on deposits, not assessed, amounting to $129 797.16S. This tabulation shows that for the year 1900 only 12 6-10 per cent, of the amount of cash on deposit in banks was listed for assessment, and that only slightly over 13 per cent, of the amount on deposit on September 15 last was assessed for State and county purposes.

Milton Kendall, formerly of Scott after years of misfortune, and just acquitted on the charge of having killed Eugene Cassell in Fayette county about eighteen months ago, has at last experienced a change in luck. Through his wife, who was a daughter of Dr. H. B. Lary, formerly of Maysville, he finds that he is heir to 24,000 acres of Texas land, 5,000 of which are in the Beaumont oil field.

Dr. Lary at the close of the Mexican War bought up the discharge of five Mexican War Veterans, which entitled him to these large holdings of Texas lands. Kendall discovered the paper by accident at the death of his father-in-law. Georgetown News.

Kansas farmers will lose $100,000,000 because of the drouth, which has practically ruined the corn, oats and other crops. In two-thirds of the State corn is a total failure.

MOTHERHOOD

The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does regulate derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and does bring babies to homes barren and desolate for years. Wine of Cardui gives women the health and strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

WINE OF CARDUI

163 Market Street,
Memphis, Tenn., April 14, 1901.

In February, 1899, I took one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Thedford's Black-Draught. I had been married fifteen years and had never given birth to a child until I took Wine of Cardui. Now I am mother of a fine baby girl which was born March 31, 1901. The baby weighs fourteen pounds and I feel as well as any person could feel. Now my home is happy and I never will be without Wine of Cardui in my home again.

Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them bursting out, something I guarantee my work not to do.

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters bufted, not split, roof and curtains 30 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be something neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes. If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 69, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of T. J. Childress' toll-gate.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 24, 1901. NO. 40.

NEW wheat is bringing 62 cents a bushel.

BEDFORD, IND., was the hottest place reported in the United States Monday—112.5.

THE Bryan Democrats in Ohio are threatening to do that which they condemned so severely in '96

ACCORDING to Louisville's leading Republican paper, the recent Republican primary election in that city was held almost in secret.

SENATOR DEBOE claims to have been the first to suggest the President's Philippine policy. The wood cocks have all left this country.

DICK KNOTT, editor of the Louisville Post appears to be thoroughly disgusted with the Civil Liberty fellows he supposed he was leading in Louisville.

MR. CARNEGIE has given Covington an additional $35,000 for its public library, making his entire gift for that purpose $75,000. Work on the building is to be begun at once.

THE ungrammatical Deboe has succeeded in having Sapp retained as Collector of Internal Revenue in the Louisville district despite the demands of the Louisville Post that he be relieved of the position.

GREAT was the contrast between the primary election held, recently in Louisville, by the Democrats and the one held there by the Republicans. The former passed off quietly, while the latter was an acrimonious affair during the few hours it lasted.

RECENT political developments in Louisville seems to satisfy Mr. Richard W. Knott that the Republican party with which he a short time since affiliated, is as prone to overthrow the ballot box as he has been charging the Democrats with being.

THE Carrollton Republican, of last week, devotes nearly two columns of its valuable space to criticising the call for a Democratic primary election in this Judicial District. But the call was not expected to please the erstwhile Democrat who edits the Republican.

THE dry, hot weather that has prevailed here during this month is now quite a serious matter to the farmers. The idea of anything like a full crop of corn is now abandoned, and many fields look like almost a total failure. With the exception of one or two neighborhoods there has been no rain of any consequence during this month, while intense heat has prevailed all the time. July 1901 will go down in history as a record breaker for excessively hot and dry weather.

IF what the Louisville Evening Post, Republican, says about the recent Republican primary election in that city is true, it is very evident that the work of stuffing ballot boxes and manipulrting returns was submitted to a crowd of adepts with which the Post had no influence, and, as a result, the candidates it would have nominated are left out in the cold, and now it is exposing the trick by which its ticket was defeated and abusing those who put them into execution. There is an old adage that when thieves fall out, etc.

Men generally cross their legs when there is least pressure on their minds. You will not very often find a man actually engaged in business with his legs crossed. The limbs at those times are straighter than at any other, because the mind and body work together. A man engaged in auditing accounts will seldom cross his legs; neither will a man who is writing an article or who is employed in any manner where his brain is actively engaged.

When at work in a sitting posture, the limbs naturely extend to the floor in a perfectly straight line. A man may cross his legs if he is sitting in an office chair discussing some proposition with another man, but the instant he becomes really in earnest and perceives something to be gained his limbs uncross, he bends forward toward his neighbor and begins to use his hands.

STATE GRANGE MEETING.

The State Grange met in Burlington, last Wednesday, with Worthy Master J. D. Clardy, of Christian county, presiding with members from fifteen Granges present. Mr. Clardy has been Master of the State Grange for about 20 years, and probably would have been continued in office had he not desired to be relieved on account of his age. During the session the Sixth degree was conferred on 55 members. An interesting session was held Wednesday night at which considerable work was done, with Worthy Master Aaron Jones, of the Nationl Grange occupying the principal chair.

The election of officers was held the first day and resulted as follows.

F. P. Wolcott, Worthy Master, Covington.

N. C. Tanner, W. O., Union.

J. B. Walker, W. L., Hopkinsville.

H. E. Stephens, W. S., Nicholasville.

Eugene Williams, Assistant, Steward, Mdentor.

N. S. Walton, Chaplain, Petersburg.

Clinton Gaines, Treasurer, Bullittsville.

Miss Nannie D. Bristow, Secretary, Union.

J. R. Ellis, G. K., California.

Mrs. M. V. Sayre, Pomona, Hebron.

Mrs. Fannie Riley, Flora, Bullittsville.

Miss Ada Ellis, Ceres, California.

Miss Ella Norman, L. A. S., Union.

J. H. Walton, Ludlow, J. L. Frazier, Union; H. H. Hays, Bullittsville, Executive Committee.

The attendance on Thursday was not so large as on Wednesday, but considerable business was dispatched, and when the session closed, all felt that the meeting had been decidedly a profitable one, and all returned to their homes more enthusiastic in the cause than when they came.

NOTES.

Jas. A Smith, of Gunpowder, was an attentive spectator of the work.

J. L. Fraizer is one of the Nvest Grangers in the county, and is a safe man.

Boone got most all the officers. They are among the very best citizens in the county, too.

Had the farmers not been so busy in their harvest the attendance would have been larger.

The body was photographed on the second day. The picture will appear in the Grange Bulletin.

Drs. Hays, of Bullittsville, and Sayre, of Hebron, took active parts in the work of the Grange.

Those attending the meeting did not appear to be out for a frolic, but were on business bent, and were present at each and every session.

Hon. J. W. Kennedy was one of the industrious members present. He is a strong advocate of the principles upon which the Grange is founded.

The first day a splendid dinner and supper was spread at the court house by those who brought baskets, all were fed most sumptuously. Dinner was served in the same manner Thursday.

Mr. Wolcott, the Worthy Master elected during the session, is a most excellent gentleman, and an earnest worker in the interest of the order. The revival of the order in this part of the State, is due to his efforts, and his election as chief officer of the organization in the State, was an honor worthily bestowed.

GRANT COUNTY.

From Williamstown Courier.

Fifty cents is the top price for wheat at the mill here.

Ben L. Davis caught a terrapin the other day and has taken it up stairs at his home where he is teaching it to catch mice.

Two twelve-year old colored boys took a horse and buggy belonging to Robert Ingram and drove to Sparta last Thursday. They said they didn't intend to steal and were not prosecured.

Wheat threshing is under full headway in grant county, and it is said the yield is better than the highest anticipations. The acreage was large and the crop will probably be the largest ever grown in the county.

The best crop of corn and wheat in Grant county or at least in the neighborhood of Williamstown is on the poor house farm. Mr. Hall has done exceedingly well this year. The wheat crop will be threshed this week.

Thieves took 19 chickens from J. B. Martin's hen house, breaking the look to get in, one night and returned 16 of them the next night. They were evidently scared. Mr. Martin's horse was run into a wire netting by the thieves and badly injured.

The protracted drouth is injuring both corn and tobacco. The hay harvest was never better and is almost entirely in stack and out of danger. Tobacco is hurt but little in Grant county and plenty of rain during the next week will make the corn all right.

No rain of any consequence has fallen in Grant county since the Fourth of July, consequently all kinds of vegetation is withering under the almost unparalleled and continued heat. Mercury marks nearly a hundred in the shade every day and the ground is drying to a considerable depth. A week or ten days more of the present dry weather and corn will be almost irreparably injured, while tobacco will be cut in half. Fortunately the wheat and oat crops have been cut and are the finest in years.

Grant county has this year, according to the returns made by the census taken, 4,173 children of school age upon which she will draw $2,50 per capita from the public school fund. This makes a grand total of $10,432,50 that will be paid over by the Treasurer of the State to the Superintendent of Schools of Grant county, and by him distributed to the teachers of the various districts. This is an increase of five cents per capita, but for some unknown and unexplained reason. Grant county has fallen off this year more than two hundred in the number of school children reported. Pendleton county has very nearly 700 more school children than Grant and only the same population as reported by the last Federal census. We have either been very careless in taking our school census, or Pendleton has been very searching. In any event we doubt very much if Grant county is getting all that is coming to her in the matter of school taxes for her children. We pay out on account of school taxes to the State $1,500 more than we get back.

A PRIMARY CALLED.

Pursuant to a call of J. H. Cunningham, Chairman of the Fifteenth Democratic Judicial District Committee, a meeting was held at Sparta, Gallatin county, Ky., on July 5, 1901, and the following members were present: J. H. Cunningham, Chairman, of Owen; R. L. Vallandingham, of Carroll; R. B. Brown, of Gallatin, and A. B. Rouse, of Boone. The Committee elected A. B. Rouse secretary, and the following resolutions were adopted:

First, That a primary election be held in the various precincts of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Gallatin, Grant and Owen, on Saturday, September 14, 1901, between the hours of 6 a. m. and 4 p. m. standard time, for the purpose of nominating a Democratic candidate for Circuit Judge of this the Fifteenth Judicial District, to be voted for at the next November election.

Second, That on or before the first day of August, 1901, the candidates, in order that their names will appear on the ballots, must announce to the Chairman and pay to the Secretary of this committee the sum of $1,000 each, the amount of the assessment of each candidate.

Third, That if on the 1st day of August, 1901, there is but one candidate for the nomination for Circuit Judge, the chairman of this committee shall declare him to be the nominee and certify the nomination of said candidate to the County Clerks of the various counties of the district.

Fourth, That the officers of this election shall be selected by the Democratic Executive Committee of each county for that county.

Fifth, That all known Democrats, and all young men who will be 21 years old by the next November election, and wish to identify themselves with the Democratic party, will be allowed to vote.

J. H. CUNNINGHAM, Chairman.
A. B. ROUSE, Secretary.

Jessamine county has a large number of Infidels of the Christian Scientist relationship, and the Fiscal court is not at all friendly with them. Consequently, the court has had posted on the door of the Sheriff's office a notice to the effect that Infidels can not enter there. The notice reads: "Notice to Infidels—Persons who deny the existence of a Supreme Ruler are prohibited to enter this office." These infidels will probably some day realize that it is only a foretaste of what will be accorded them when they get to Heaven. They will find the same notice posted on the pearly gates, and then the fireworks will engage their attention. —Larue Herald.

For peach borers remove the earth from around the lower end of the trunk and daub with coal tar applying same with a paint brush or broom.

Do not let weeds go to seed on the manure pile or along the fences and suggest to your neighbor that he do likewise. For the land's sake keep down the weeds.

Crop and Stock.

Wyoming sheep men are growling over the decline in wool. Under the Dingley bill.

Dan W. Peed, of Paris, Ky., shipped 75,000 pounds of extra fine bright leaf tobacco to London, England.

Charles Leer sold McIntyre & McClintock sixteen 650-pound heifers at $4 per cwt.—Bourbon News.

It is said that since the beginning of the Boer war in South Africa, the British government has expended $6,500,000 in this country for horses and mules.

Wyoming sheep men are growling over the decline in wool. Under the Dingley bill—"McKinley prosperity"—prices they are getting from 10 to 11 cents per pound this year.

The spring pig crop is one of the quick and great sources of the bank account next fall and winter, therefore its importance. The pig makes money quick or loses it quick, according as he is coached or neglected.

Clover and rape and corn are about the "whole thing" in swine growing. Sweet skim milk and wheat bran mixed are great helpers to give the pig a start, if you want a 200 pound pig at seven months old.

The Harrodsburg Democrat notes the sales of 101 lambs at 4¾ cts; 100 hogs for August delivery at 5 to 5¼ cts; 140 fat hogs at 5cts, per pound, and 10 cts per head premium; a bunch of scrub ewes $3.50 each.

Wheat threshing in this county was begun Monday and is now under full headway. As compared with last year's crop, the yield is much lighter and the quality not so good. S. P. Kerr began receiving wheat Monday direct from the thresher. The market opened weak at fifty-eight cents, with indications of a further decline before the end of the week.—Winchester Sun.

The fondness for spring chickens is not confined to Methodist preachers out in this country. In or about Colesburg there is a horse that is equal to a whole Methodist conference in his ravages upon a poultry yard. The horse belongs to Mr. J. R. Stovall and it is no unusual thing for him to eat a half dozen spring chickens at a meal. Last Sunday for dinner he consumed fourteen. He runs after them and as he catches them devours them feathers and all. The appetite on the part of the equine has only recenly developed, but it has been sufficiently voracious to put, Mr. Stovall out of the poultry business in short order.—Henderson Gleanor.

After making a careful canvass of the Northwestern territory, and preparing conservative estimates upon the conditions found throughout the grain belt, traffic officials of the St. Paul, the Northwestern, the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern and the Burlington Systems, are agreed that the wheat crop of this region for 1901 will break all previous records. According to the estimates of these officials it is claimed that the two Dakotas and Minnesota alone will harvest between 185,000,000 and 200,000,000 bushels of wheat, as against 100,000,000 last year. The greatest previous yield of wheat in the three states named was in 1898, when 175,000,000 bushels were harvested.

Sometimes the butter is difficult to gather. During the summer this is usually caused by the adhesive quality of the cream being destroyed by allowing the cream to become too acid before putting in the churn. But sometimes the feeding of certain foods, such as contain too much starchy matter or too little nitrogenous elements. When the fine butter makes its appearance churn gently until it has all come then pour in about two gallons of water into the churn with a little salt in it, then churn sufficiently to thoroughly mix the mass. Let it stand for a time and the butter will all come to the surface when it can be lifted out or the buttermilk be drawn away from it.

Arizona physicians have just completed exhaustive tests and found very satisfactory results from the use of apple cider as a preventive and cure for smallpox.

The past winter, an unusually severe one in the southwest, has been a widespread epidemic of smallpox in the extreme southern part of Arizona and northern Mexico. Six weeks ago an attendant at the pesthouse in Jerome discovered by accident that the use of pure apple cider was helping his patients, one of them having received a quantity from the east and distributed it among his fellow-sufferers. Drs. Wood and Kaull made tests with cider on other patients and found most gratifying results.

A pint each day, in doses each hour, drove away the eruption in from five to fifteen days and ten patients were entirely cured and discharged within a month. Other tests were made among the Mexican residents along the international line, where there were cases of a more violent nature. In every instance where pure cider was used cures were effected, and fifty barrels more of apple juice have been ordered from Illinois and New York, to carry experiments further into Mexico.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

If sorghum is wanted for fodder, says Orange Judd Farmer, sow June 10 or after and let it remain in the field until the lower blades have dried up and the seed has just passed the dough stage. Cut with a mower when the dew is not on and put into shocks at once. Build shocks eight feet high and eight feet in diameter and leave in the field until wanted. Sorghum put up in this way will make excellent feed until warm weather next spring After that the juice begins to sour and it must not be used. Some feeders consider one acre of sorghum worth two acres of ordinary field corn. If an ordinary wheat drill is used for sowing sorghum seed, stop three of the holes and leave three open. When cutting time comes go into the field with a self-binder and cut as oats or millet. The objection to this method is that in most of the humid States there is danger of sorghum spoiling under the band. In Nebraska and Kansas and further west, where the air is dry, this objection does not hold. The crop is easier handled in bundles.

Probably no insect has withstood more methods of repression than the striped cucumber beetle. Each year some new style of plant cover, some new poison or some new foul-smelling compound is pronounced by the writers in the agricultural press a never failing defense; yet the little pests return every season in increasing numbers and with sharper appetite than before. says a bulletin from the New York experiment station. It may be safely said that no perfect remedy or preventative has been found. Only by a combination of two or more measures can we hope to keep even, or perhaps get a trifle the better of this insignificant little foe. Squash is the beetle's favorite food plant, so this vegetable should be planted in single rows along the margins of small patches, or in several rows around large fields, about four days before the cucumbers are sown. When these trap plants are up and the beetles appear about them, dust about half the plants with green arsenite, reserving the other half for use if rain or heavy dew makes the poison soluable and kills the first vines treated. The beetles will feed upon the squash vines and be poisoned by the arsenite. When the cucumbers are up they should be sprayed with Bordeaux and more of the squash vines should be poisoned.

The statement was recently made in an agricultural paper that several cases of swine-killing by pasturing in sprayed orchards were on record. There is certainly some mistake about this, for the matter has been repeatedly tested, and it has been found that it would require the consumption of nearly half a ton of pasture by an animal for it to obtain sufficient poison from under sprayed trees to injure it. Moreover, swine of all animals are the least affected by poisons of any pasturing animals in orchards that have been sprayed, provided only spraying has been done, and there has been no large quantity spilled over a small area. In the latter case animals would be likely to be made quite sick.—Exchange.

William Crutcher, a well-known Shelby county stock dealer, committed suicide by shooting himself. Ill health is said to have caused the deed.

SHARPLY CRITICISED.

Gen. Felix Angus on MacLay's History of the Navy.

Secretary Long Ordered the History Stricken Off the List of Text Books at the Naval Academy.

Baltimore, July 20.—Gen. Felix Agnus, publisher of the Baltimore American, has telegraphed to President McKinley the following:

"William McKinley, President, Canton, O.—MacLay's History of the Navy is the standard in use at the naval academy. In the third volume, just issued, the historian charges Lt. Adm. Schley with being a coward, a liar, a caitiff, an incompetent and an insubordinate. In an interview in the American MacLay, the historian, who is a navy department clerk, classed as a laborer and attached to the Brooklyn navy yard, says that proofs of this third volume, which should have told the most glorious story in all our naval annals, were submitted to Secretary Long and Adm. Sampson and approved by them in advance of publication; also, that Long put him in his present position after he had read and approved this scurrilous attack upon Adm. Schley. These proofs were also submitted to Adm. Dewey, who refused to read them. If aught were needed to convince any fair-minded man that a clique in the navy department has conspired to traduce the hero of Santiago, and that the conspiracy was carried into execution while that brave and gallant officer was suffering expatriation on the fever-infected coasts of South America, this should furnish it.

"Will, you, Mr. President, in view of all this, sit quietly by and permit these conspirators to continue their diabolical work? Every justice-loving American appeals to you to intervene in the name and for the sake of fair play. Next to being right all the time, which no man ever was, the best thing is to find out as soon as possible that you are wrong and right yourself immediately.

"FELIX AGNUS,
"Publisher Baltimore American."

Washington, July 20.—Secretary Long has directed Commander Wainwright, the superintendent of the naval academy, to strike off the list of text books used by naval cadets MacLay's "History of the United States Navy." He has also written a sharp letter to MacLay demanding to know the truth of a statement made by him in an interview that "he had shown the proof sheets of his book to Secretary Long and received his indorsement."

Mr. Long denies ever having seen any proofs except those of one chapter on the "Mobilization of the New Navy."

New York, July 10.—Edgar S. MacLay Friday replied to the criticism which has been made upon his historical works dealing with Adm. Schley and the navy during the Spanish war. He said in part:

"I did not appreciate at the time I wrote the book that the terms were immoderate and intemperate. It is only recently that it has met with adverse criticism. It is now my intention to revise that portion of the work that deals with the battle of Santiago. But I shall not alter the facts, for they are correct. I must first be assured that they are in error. The proofs were submitted to the officers who took part in the battle of Santiago, as well as to Secretary Long, and received their approval. I should explain that only those portions of the book were submitted to each officer that related to him personally or to the part he took in the battle. The proofs submitted to Mr. Long dealt with that part of the war that concerned him. I have never had any animus against Adm. Schley, and I wrote as I did because I believed it to be the truth."

MacLay is an employe of the Brooklyn navy yard.

LIGHTNING'S WORK.

Four Persons Were Killed and Three Others Severely Injured Near Grove City, Pa.

Grove City, Pa., July 20.—A fierce electrical storm here resulted in four deaths and the severe injury of three other persons.

A section crew on the Bessemer & Lake Erie railroad were returning home from work when the storm came up. They left the railroad track and hastened to a deserted house at the Pinchalong mine for shelter. Hardly had they reached the shelter of the place when the house was struck by lightning. Luther Campbell, foreman of the section crew, and Howard Cornelius, one of the section men, were both struck by one bolt and instantly killed.

During the storm a house occupied by a gang of Italians, working on the new railroad a few miles south of this place, was struck and almost totally destroyed. Two of the men were instantly killed and several of their companions were severely shocked, one or two of whom may die.

Much other damage was done in this region by the storm, which is said to have been one of the worst electrical displays ever witnessed in this county.

AMATEUR OARSMEN.

The Regatta of the National Association on the Schuylkill River, Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 20.—Under conditions that could not be improved upon, the first day's races of the 20th annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen were held on the Schuykill river, and the initial day's sport was in every way a success. All the crews seemed to be in fine condition, and several of the events were not won until the flag fell. Winnipeg carried off the honors, winning two events, while St. Louis, Worcester, Toronto, Philadelphia, Detroit, and New York each won one race. The race of the day was that between Detroit and Vesper, of Philadelphia, in the senior, paired oared eleven, in which the latter won by two seconds.

There is still a considerable part of Central Texas suffering to some extent, but the late reports indicate that there is hope for rain before Sunday evening.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY

Two Important Orders in Regard to the Service.

An Effort to Avoid the Duplication in Some Sections By Both States and Rural Free Delivery Service.

Washington, July 20.—Postmaster General Smith issued two orders of importance to the rural mail service throughout the country. One is designed to avoid the duplication of service in some sections by both states and rural free delivery service, and the other limits the private enterprises in which carriers may engage while performing their official duties.

Box delivery by star route carriers will not hereafter be permitted over such portions of star routes as may have in operation the rural free delivery service; provided, however, that an additional and supplemental box delivery may be performed by star route carriers when shown to be necessary and practicable and not involving the department in any additional expenditure.

"In those states in which the star route box delivery is now in operation the rural free delivery service will not hereafter be established over any road which must continue to be traversed as a part of star route, except in special and unavoidable cases, in which cases the star route box delivery will be abandoned.

"Hereafter rural letter carriers shall not act as agents, salesmen or solicitors for express companies, letter box manufacturers, wholesale houses, corporations or firms, nor engage in any business or a vocation which would interfere with the proper performance of their official duties. But they may act as news agents, sell newspapers or periodicals on their own account or accept and collect subscriptions for the same.

"This order is not intended to prohibit carriers from performing various private commissions for the accommodation of the patrons of their routes, so long as it does not interfere with the regular and prompt performance of their duties."

NEW ARMORED CRUISERS.

Washington, July 20.—Plans for the new armored cruisers, which are expected to be the crack representatives of the navy, were before the naval board of construction, Adm. Bowles, chief constructor, having completed the sketch plans. The discussion developed some diversity of opinion on the main features presented by the plans, and no agreement was reached. The plans show a ship of 11,000 tons displacement, 440 feet in length, with five-inch belt armament. The battery consists of eight-inch guns in turrets, six-inch guns on broadside, and auxiliary batteries of three-inch rapid firers. It is probable that the chief constructor will get up alternate plans, showing somewhat larger cruisers, and embodying some changes suggested.

CHANGE IN WATCHES.

The Bull's Eye of a Century Ago and the Modern Machine-Made Timepiece.

The almost total disappearance of the old-fashioned "bull's-eye" silver watches is a source of wonderment to even some watch dealers. It is practically impossible to pick up one now among them. A Chicago Tribune reporter made the rounds of the watch, pawn and junk shops in quest of one of these old timepieces, and did not find it. One dealer said he knew where a single specimen was, but later admitted that the owner either had sold or lost it. A veteran watchmaker, who can make a watch by hand, in referring to the disappearance of the "bull's-eyes," said:

"It is only natural, I suppose, that they should disappear. None of them were first-class timepieces. I mean that the best of them would vary as much as a minute a week. The cheaper machine-made watches keep better time and cost less. The first of these old 'bull's-eyes' carried the regulation Virdge movement. One hundred years ago the Virdge watches were carried by all business men. Later the English watchmakers made 'bull's-eyes' with improvements on the Virdge movement. I haven't seen a Virdge for two or three years. As a matter of fact, those old-fashioned key-winding silver watches are worth only what the silver in the cases amounts to. The metal represents about a dollar in value. The works are worthless. Only one or two small wheels are taken out by the dealers. Sometimes they are useful in repairing family heirlooms. What are they worth? Why, nothing at all as timepieces. The best way to get one is to keep on inquiring among the grandfathers and great-uncles until you run across one, and then beg it or buy it. It is practically worthless, except as a relic."

Rheumatic pains are cured by

Dr. Greene's NERVURA

TWENTY YEARS OF RHEUMATISM CURED BY Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

Mrs. Phoebe M. Carew, Ellinburgh, N.Y., a prominent member of the Methodist Church, says:—

"I had been very sick with rheumatism for twenty years, and had tried everything that was ever used for rheumatism, but after my sister, who lives in Minneapolis, wrote me such a strong letter, I resolved to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

"I had failed right straight along all winter, growing weaker every day, until I began to use the Nervura. I had not used as much as one bottle when I could get up from my bed and walk over my house, where before I could not stand upon my feet. My limbs grew stronger rapidly, while before they had no strength at all.

"I have been doctoring for twenty years for rheumatism and never had anything before that seemed to go all through my system and do me the good Dr. Greene's Nervura did. In twenty years doctoring, including doctors and all others, everything and all put together are far below the good Nervura has done me.

"The first dose I took I could feel all through my body, and it began to help me from the first. You have my permission to publish this letter, with my photograph."

OHIO DAY AT BUFFALO.

Was Celebrated by Distinguished Men of the State.

Applause and Praise Was Showered on the Famous Buckeye State—Eloquent Address of Hon. Charles W. Baker.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 19.—Ohio day will go down in Pan-American records as one of the biggest days at the exposition. It will be memorable in several ways, but chiefly because of the many distinguished men and the multitude of representative citizens that Ohio sent here to celebrate for her. It is doubtful if the Buckeye state ever received the applause and praise which were showered upon her Thursday at the exercises held in the Temple of Music, and it is certain that no finer praise has been bestowed upon the exposition management.

Promptly at 11 o'clock Gov. Nash, with his party, under escort of the 8th Ohio regiment, arrived at the Lincoln parkway gate and entered the grounds on foot. President Milburn was with the governor. Senator Hanna walked beside J. N. Adams, chairman of the committee on state and foreign representatives. The building was filled. The aisles and the galleries were crowded.

The appearance of Gov. Nash set the Ohio people cheering. Senator Foraker, to the great disappointment of many, did not come. Seats on the platform had been reserved for the Ohio party, and all were soon seated. David J. Ryan, of Columbus, president of the day, introduced Bishop Arnett, of Wilberforce university, who made the opening prayer. Mme. Genevra Johnstone Bishop sang, after which Director General Buchanan made a short address of welcome.

Gov. Nash responded briefly, and turned over the Ohio building to the Pan-American, expressing at the same time his "sincere hope that the exposition may have the great success which efforts so magnificent and wonderful in results as those made by the officials of the exposition and the citizens of Buffalo deserve."

Gov. Nash was enthusiastically applauded.

President John G. Milburn responded to the remarks of Gov. Nash. Following him, Hon. Charles W. Baker, a leading Cincinnati lawyer, delivered the following address:

The fair fame of Ohio, as you may have observed, does not rest merely upon the natural productiveness of its soil, or the very many and versatile results of her skill and labor.

Ohio produces men—men of action; men who can work and plan; men who can talk and think and fight; and it would hardly be a full and fair description did I not add, men who can and do hold office.

It has been so ever since Ohio became a state, nearly one hundred years ago; for Ohio was not long in getting into the Union after it was once well started, and she has had a great deal to do and say about things ever since.

Virginia used to be called the mother of presidents. Virginia will be content with the title of grandmother now, for the other distinction has passed from her. Ohio has assumed it.

Nor are we without hope that the years of the future will still justify this distinguished and distinguishing title.

It is said at home that we have several very able gentlemen on both sides who look not upon the mention of their names in connection with the Ohio succession, reproachfully.

Did not the twelfth amendment forbid, we might furnish both the president and vice president.

That inhibition is not nearly so forbidding that I should indulge in such suggestion. HOWEVER as to the preamble of the constitution, which says that one of its objects is to "insure domestic tranquility." There would be no domestic tranquility in Ohio, I mean constitutional domestic tranquility, with such a ticket. The most amiable of hopes would not underwrite such an insurance.

In New York you are said to have similar congestion and plethora. Speaking as an Ohioan, I beg to say to you of New York, that when the long roll is called and counted the Ohio man will be in the first place, and you may have the second only because the constitution says we can not have them both.

But, ladies and gentlemen, there are a great many people in Ohio who do not hold office, and although they may be perfectly willing to do so, are not particularly concerned about it as the chief end of life.

They are represented in the material things you see about you, that is, in the exposition stand for Ohio's industries and endeavor.

Ohio was the first fruits of the ordinance of 1787. That ordinance was not merely the political creation of a congressional enactment, but a solemn, perpetual covenant between the 13 colonies and the people of the northwestern territory, that slavery and involuntary servitude should be forever prohibited within its borders, and, in its own language, "religion, morality and education being essential to good government and the happiness of mankind should forever be encouraged."

This vast northwest, that in the ambiguous text of the Treaty of Paris extended "up into the land throughout from sea to sea, west and northwest," ratified to-wit: to the Ohio river and the lakes to the Mississippi, and was destined within 50 years to form six great states, of which Ohio was the first, she was the fourth, after the 13 colonies, to be admitted into the federal Union.

She was settled by a commingling of people, a part entering from the northwest, type and descendant of the best puritan blood of New England, the other strain of migration entering from the south bringing the warm and chivalrous traits and characteristics of the cavalier, whose ancestors had peopled Maryland and Virginia, while flung across her central border as it to reinforce and fuse these varied elements, New York and Pennsylvania lent Dutch and Huguenot, producing in the amalgamation as great and strong and mighty a race of people as ever trod the globe.

It is not surprising that Ohio, like some central orb, radiating sun soil, shining light and heat and life, has sent in drifts and masses westward and north and south and back again and eastward, men and women who have won distinction in every field of opportunity and endeavor. She has given governors and senators to other states, and judges and statesmen to supreme courts and national assemblies. Her soil has been the birthplace of presidents whom other states have presented to the nation, as her own sons have been lifted to that high office by the suffrage of their countrymen. She consecrated the brain and blood and bodies of a full million sons to God and glory to preserve the union, as she gave the great commanders of that heroic struggle to country and to history.

Her artisans and mechanics have filled the earth with implements and evidence of skill and genius. They invent them, and then teach mankind to build as well as use them.

Her wood and iron working machinery fills the markets of Russia and the east. She sells her oil to India. Her wagons trek the dusty roads of Africa, as her plows and reapers plant and gather the harvests of Australia.

Go into any field of industry the wide world over, and on the simplest as well as upon the most intricate and delicate machinery utilized, you will find the stamp of Ohio.

Nature intended it should be so. Her valleys are beautiful and prolific, the fairest the sun e'er shone upon; redolent with the fragrance of the wild grape and cherry that still bloom and blossom beside cultivated orchards, and green and yellow with wheat and corn fields nodding in the sunshine, keeping time to the music of the harvest. The Miamis, fertile and picturesque, stretch away into the Scioto and Muskingum, and these melt again into the Hocking, the Mahoning and the Tuscarawas, that in turn touch the Cuyahoga and the old black swamp, fountain head of the Sandusky and the Maumee.

Ohio is still among the first of all the states in the production of wheat and corn and other cereals in grapes and fruit, in tobacco, flax and hemp; in cattle and sheep, in hogs and horses; in every product of the soil. Ohio is Arcadian. She is like some vast cornucopia filled to the overflow with abundant harvests.

Her hills like her valleys are prodigal in natural resources. Not Alpine in height but Appennine in beauty; full of coal and lime and iron, of building stone and granite. They need but labor and the torch to start the smoking furnaces that pour out steel and iron in endless torrent; to pile mountain high the diamonds that are black that put to crucible with anger fire drive wheels and shafts and gearings that crown human industry and give light and heat and fuel; to rear aloft architrave and entablature upon foundations of stately edifices and business blocks.

We bore beneath the wheat and corn, and oil and salt and gas bubble and burst surfaceward.

Yonder upon the eastern border is a clay deposit that aside from tile and brick, deftly fashioned in the potter's hands, makes famous Ohio's potteries.

In our own city of Cincinnati the genius of art gifted Ohio to make glasswares that in exquisiteness of blended color, fused and welded, and in fineness of texture and finish make rookwood as famous and as artistic the world over as wedgwood, majolica or delft.

Ohio sends the great connecting isthmian way between all the states. It was boy of old when the national pike joined the west to the east. It is so now when the slow locomotion of wagon and stage coach has given way to the iron horse speeding upon steel rails.

All continental lines of travel cross her territory. Converging as they come from eastern terminals, they traverse Ohio upon closely drawn and almost parallel lines, and then diverging like fan opened tangents they spread abroad from Texas to Oregon. All states pay tribute to us. We levy tax on traffic and gather toll from trade, as the commerce of the world crosses our borders. I wonder, is it that men go forth from Ohio, carrying the dear old state in their heart of hearts. Little wonder is it then in every city of any size in this union, and in many, very many smaller towns, there are Ohio societies that foster and minister to the love and pride they bear her memory and her greatness.

But I must not prolong this recital.

Pennsylvania may style herself the Keystone state; Ohio is keystone and arch.

Alabama's name means "Here we rest;" but Ohio is the abiding place of all that stands for life, for home, for hope, for happiness.

Those of us who were born on her soil, together with her daughters and daughters, voice that triumphant outcry of devotion: "Thy people shall be my people, and thy God, my God. The Lord do so to me and more if aught but death part thee and me."

Mme. Johnstone-Bishop sang again, after which Hon. Emmett Tompkins, of Columbus, spoke.

The last speaker was Senator Hanna, who subject was "Commercial Relations of the American Continent." After eulogizing the Pan-American exposition, he said the men of the idea of the exposition deserved great praise for having the Pan-American at this time, just when the United States is taking the lead in industrial enterprise. Let us make trade extension a great movement, he said in conclusion, and let this Pan-American exposition be the beginning; let us see that nothing stands between us and closer relationship with South American countries.

The senator was cheered enthusiastically when he finished.

BROKE THE RECORD.

Cresceus Made the Fastest Time Ever Made in a Trotting Race in 2:05 Flat.

Detroit, Mich., July 19.—Cresceus, the chestnut stallion owned and driven by George H. Ketchum, of Toledo, in winning the free-for-all trot on the Detroit Driving club's track at Grosse Pointe Thursday afternoon went the second heat in 2:05 flat, the fastest time ever made in a trotting race. Charlie Herr, the brown stallion owned by David Cahill, of Lexington, Ky., and driven by Kelly, was the only opponent in this race, and he was a slow second. Cresceus won the first heat by five lengths in 2:06¾, the fastest heat trotted this year until he broke the world's race record for trotters in the next heat.

CHINESE IN AMERICA.

The Census Returns Show That There Are Approximately 89,800 in This Country.

Washington, July 19.—A preliminary statement of the Chinese population, derived from the returns of the 12th census, of which was issued by Director Merriam Thursday. It shows here are approximately 89,800 Chinese in the United States proper, as against 107,475 in 1840. About 67,700, or 73 per cent., are contained in the western division of states and territories, as against 96,844, or 90 per cent., in 1890. ANOTHER HOT SPELL.

All the Past Records in St. Louis Were Equaled.

The Governor's Proclamation to Pray For Rain Was Generally Observed in Nearly All the Churches in the City.

St. Louis, July 22.—On Sunday, the day that Gov. Dockery designated for fasting and prayer that the present drought might end in Missouri, the highest records for hot weather ever attained in St. Louis was equaled, the weather bureau thermometer registering 106 degrees in the shade. On the street and in exposed places the mercury went many degrees higher. The high record up to Sunday was 106, made in the early eighties. From 7 a. m Sunday, when the thermometer showed 90 degrees, until 3:30 p. m. the mercury steadily climbed. Hardly a breath of air stirred all day and the little breeze that did circulate came as from a furnace. The parks were thronged all day and late into the night by thousands who sought relief from the heat.

The governor's proclamation to pray for rain was very generally heeded, nearly every church in the city holding well attended services.

This is the second proclamation of this kind ever made in Missouri. In 1875 Gov. Charles N. Hardin called upon the people of the state to pray for relief from drought and plague of grasshoppers.

Gov. A. M. Dockery's proclamation, issued on July 15, is in substance as follows:

"Whereas, The prevailing drought is widespread and disaster threatens our commonwealth, and

"Whereas, Many earnest Christian people have petitioned that a day of fasting and prayer be appointed;

"Therefore, Be it known that Sunday, July 21, is hereby set apart as a day of fasting and prayer that the threatened disaster may be averted, and to this end the people are requested to assemble at their usual places of worship to invoke the blessings of Almighty God."

Chicago, July 22.—All heat records since the establishment of the weather bureau in Chicago, 30 years ago, were broken Sunday, the government thermometer registering 103 degrees. Down on the street it was from three to five degrees hotter, and to add to this suffering, a hot, stifling wind, like a blast from a furnace, blew all day from the southwest. From 5 o'clock in the morning, when the thermometer registered 77, a gradual rise followed, until at 4:30 Sunday afternoon the top notch had been reached. Shortly after that time the wind veered around toward the lake and caused a drop to 93 at 8:30 Sunday night.

Prostrations were numerous, and police ambulances were kept busy taking care of persons who were overcome on the streets.

Freeport, Ill., July 22.—The heat was a record breaker Sunday, being from 110 to 115 in the shade.

Omaha, July 22.—With the exception of July 26, 1894, on which day the temperature reached 105, Sunday has been the hottest this city has experienced in 27 years. The mercury stood at 99 at 11 o'clock, gradually going up to 104 8-10 at 4:15 p. m. At 6 p. m. it dropped to 104.

There was not a trace of rain anywhere in this vicinity, and what little wind there was came from the south, and instead of being a relief, added to the discomfort. The parks offered not the slightest relief to the masses who sought cool retreats. Four prostrations were reported.

Madison, Wis., July 22.—This was the hottest day known in the official record here. The government thermometer at Washburn observatory registered a maximum temperature of 104 degrees. The highest previous known record was in 1866, when 100 degrees was reached.

Burlington, Ia., July 22.—Frightful heat prevailed here and all over southeastern Iowa Sunday. The maximum here was 110, accompanied by a hot wind. Reports from the state show: Charlton, 107; Fairfield, 108; Ottumwa, 110; Murray, 110; Middletown, 113; Keithsburg, Ill., 112. Corn is reported to be faring badly.

Sioux City, Ia., July 22.—The maximum temperature here Sunday was 106 between 3 and 4 p. m. For six hours it stood at 103 or higher.

Dubuque, Ia., July 22.—All high temperature records dating back 48 years were broken Sunday. At 7 a. m., 84; 4 p. m., 106; 7 p. m., 102, were the thermometer readings, and on the street 111 to 114 were noted. There were many prostrations, but no fatalities.

Keokuk, Ia., July 22.—The weather bureau thermometer reached 107 Sunday afternoon, two above previous record of July 10, and three above any previous record for 30 years. It was 103 at 7 p. m. No prostrations on account of the dryness of the atmosphere.

Frightful in Burlington.

RACE TROUBLE.

One Negro Was Killed and Another Wounded in a Fight at Cleveland, Miss.

Cleveland, Miss., July 22.—Sunday morning at 1:30 o'clock a band of Negroes, none of whom were known, rode into Cleveland and, stopping a party of three white men on the main street, made threatening demonstrations. Being called upon to identify themselves, they answered by bringing their rifles into play. One of the Negroes was killed on the spot, another was wounded, and it is reported that his body was found Sunday morning on the outskirts of town, and the others escaped, although it is supposed that more than three were hurt. They were armed with Winchester rifles, and were well mounted. Excitement was at fever heat during the remainder of tue night. Squads of armed men patrolled the streets until daylight.

The trouble grew out of the lynching of Jesse Phillips in the earlier part of the night.

LIGHTNING AT SEA.

Marinette, Wis., July 22.—During a severe electrical storm Sunday morning a boat supposed to be a large schooner or steam barge was struck by lightning and destroyed by fire and her crew is thought to have been lost.

The light keeper at Menominee saw the boat burning just south of Green island. He called up the local fire tug, and the latter started out to render any assistance possible, but when about three miles out all signs of the boat or fire suddenly disappeared. An examination afterward showed no wreckage. The nearest land is Green island, and the crew, if they escaped with their lives, would have gone there. There was a heavy sea running, and it would have been almost impossible for a small boat to live in it.

CABLE CAR WRECKED.

Nine Passengers Were Seriously Injured and Several Others Hurt in Chicago.

Chicago, July 22.—Nine passengers were seriously injured and several others painfully bruised in the wreck of a Madison avenue cable car Sunday. The train was running at full speed when the grip car was suddenly brought to a stop because of a defective cable rope. The trailer bounded from the track, rose up and crashed with terrific force into the rear of the grip car. The shock was of such force that the passengers were thrown from their seats, several landing in the street head foremost and others falling against the seats and sides of the cars.

ARE GAINING GROUND.

More Mills of the Steel Corporation Have Closed Down.

Situation at Wellsville Unchanged—An Attempt Will Be Made to Put Men to Work From Other Points.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 22.—The important event in the strike history of the day is the organization of the tube mill workers at McKeesport. The word from there is that after long and arduous work Assistant Secretary Tighe, of the Amalgamated association, succeeded in organizing 125 men of the National Tube Works Co. At the meeting 25 skilled men from each of the departments were initiated into the Amalgamated association, and Mr. Tighe claims that within 48 hours enough more of the workmen will be secured to keep the entire plant closed down, affecting 9,000 men.

From Wellsville no word has been received here except that the situation was unchanged. It is believed, however, that an attempt will be made to put men to work there from other points, the ten men from Vandergrift, who are said to be at East Liverpool ready to go in early in the day, being the principal men relied upon for the purpose. While the strikers say they will not commit any overt act, there is an uneasy feeling throughout the entire village.

When seen Sunday night President Shaffer said he was more than satisfied with the week's results.

"Things are very much better than I thought they would be. More mills are shut down and there is more determination on the part of the men than we anticipated. There has been more inclination to aid us morally and financially on the part of other labor organizations and vastly more support from the general public than we were looking for."

The 22-inch mill at the Boston iron and steel plant of the National Tube Co., at McKeesport resumed operations Monday morning after a shut-down lasting three weeks. The plant was closed for repairs. A great many men will be benefitted by the mill resuming operations, but they were all glad to get the three weeks' vacation. The situation as to the Dewees Wood plant remains unchanged. Various rumors were in circulation throughout the town during the afternoon and evening to the effect that the mills would try to resume operations Monday, but they could not be confirmed. The company officials persist in their refusal to name the date for resumption.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 22.—A report reached here at 3 o'clock Monday morning that the strikers at McKeesport, because of persistent rumors that workmen were to be imported, gathered to the number of 300 and picketed the town, holding up every one coming along and making him give an account of himself.

No one was roughly handled, but the police force was called out and dispersed the men at 2:45 o'clock. About this time the railroad company began shifting freight cars across the river. The strikers again gathered, thinking the cars contained non-union men, and made a dash for the cars.

MRS. KRUGER DEAD.

The Aged Wife of the Ex-President of the Transvaal Passed Away Sunday.

Pretoria, July 22.—Mrs. Kruger, wife of ex-President Kruger, is dead.

Mrs. Kruger's long separation from her husband, combined with the death of her favorite daughter, Mrs. Smith, last week, had completely broken her spirit.

Mr. Eloff and many other members of the Kruger family were at her bedside when she passed away.

London, July 22.—"Owing to the Sunday telegraph hours in Holland," says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Hilversum, "Mr. Kruger was not informed of his wife's death until the evening. The news was broken to him by Dr. Heymans and Secretary Boeschoten. Mr. Kruger, who had just returned from Hilversum church, burst into tears and asked to be left alone."

The Transvaal and Free State flags flying above the white villa were draped and half-masted. Shortly before the news came a crowd of country girls had been singing a folk song outside the villa.

The morning papers publish kindly editorials concerning the death of Mrs. Kruger, and express sympathy with Mr. Kruger. The Times begins thus:

"The English people will feel genuine sympathy with the aged ex-president of the Transvaal in the severe domestic bereavement which has befallen him."

This is followed by a eulogy of Mrs. Kruger.

SHARPLY CRITICISED.

Gen. Felix Angus on MacLay's History of the Navy.

Baltimore, July 20.—Gen. Felix Agnus, publisher of the Baltimore American, has telegraphed to President McKinley the following:

"William McKinley, President, Canton, O.—MacLay's History of the Navy is the standard in use at the naval academy. In the third volume, just issued, the historian charges Rr. Adm. Schley with being a coward, a liar, a caitiff, an incompetent and an insubordinate. In an interview in the American MacLay, the historian, who is a navy department clerk, classed as a laborer and attached to the Brooklyn navy yard, says that proofs of this third volume, which should have told the most glorious story in all our naval annals, were submitted to Secretary Long and Adm. Sampson and approved by them in advance of publication; also, that Long put him in his present position after he had read and approved this scurrilous attack upon Adm. Schley. These proofs were also submitted to Adm. Dewey, who refused to read them. If aught were needed to convince any fair-minded man that a clique in the navy department has conspired to traduce the hero of Santiago, and that the conspiracy was carried into execution while that brave and gallant officer was suffering expatriation on the fever-infected coasts of South America, this should furnish it.

"Will, you, Mr. President, in view of all this, sit quietly by and permit these conspirators to continue their diabolical work? Every justice-loving American appeals to you to intervene in the name and for the sake of fair play. Next to being right all the time, which no man ever was, the best thing is to find out as soon as possible that you are wrong and right yourself immediately.

"FELIX AGNUS,
"Publisher Baltimore American."

Washington, July 20.—Secretary Long has directed Commander Wainwright, the superintendent of the naval academy, to strike off the list of text books used by naval cadets MacLay's "History of the United States Navy." He has also written a sharp letter to MacLay demanding to know the truth of a statement made by him in an interview that the had shown the proof sheets of his book to Secretary Long and received his indorsement."

Mr. Long denies ever having seen any proofs except those of one chapter on the "Mobilization of the New Navy."

New York, July 10.—Edgar S. MacLay Friday replied to the criticism which has been made upon his historical works dealing with Adm. Schley and the navy during the Spanish war. He said in part:

"I did not appreciate at the time I wrote the book that the terms were immoderate and intemperate. It is only recently that it has met with adverse criticism. It is now my intention to revise that portion of the work that deals with the battle of Santiago. But I shall not alter the facts, for they are correct. I must first be assured that they are in error. The proofs were submitted to the officers who took part in the battle of Santiago, as well as to Secretary Long, and received their approval. I should explain that only those portions of the book were submitted to each officer that related to him personally or to the part he took in the battle. The proofs submitted to Mr. Long dealt with that part of the war that concerned him. I have never had any animus against Adm. Schley, and I wrote as I did because I believed it to be the truth."

MacLay is an employe of the Brooklyn navy yard.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY

Two Important Orders in Regard to the Service.

An Effort to Avoid the Duplication in Some Sections By Both States and Rural Free Delivery Service.

Washington, July 20.—Postmaster General Smith issued two orders of importance to the rural mail service throughout the country. One is designed to avoid the duplication of service in some sections by both states and rural free delivery service, and the other limits the private enterprises in which carriers may engage while performing their official duties.

Box delivery by star route carriers will not hereafter be permitted over such portions of star routes as may have in operation the rural free delivery service; provided, however, that an additional and supplemental box delivery may be performed by star route carriers when shown to be necessary and practicable and not involving the department in any additional expenditure.

"In those states in which the star route box delivery is now in operation the rural free delivery service will not hereafter be established over any road which must continue to be traversed as a part of star route, except in special and unavoidable cases, in which cases the star route box delivery will be abandoned.

"Hereafter rural letter carriers shall not act as agents, salesmen or solicitors for express companies, letter box manufacturers, wholesale houses, corporations or firms, nor engage in any business or a vocation which would interfere with the proper performance of their official duties. But they may act as news agents, sell newspapers or periodicals on their own account or accept and collect subscriptions for the same.

"This order is not intended to prohibit carriers from performing various private commissions for the accommodation of the patrons of their routes, so long as it does not interfere with the regular and prompt performance of their duties."

NEW ARMORED CRUISERS.

Washington, July 20.—Plans for the new armored cruisers, which are expected to be the crack representatives of the navy, were before the naval board of construction, Adm. Bowles, chief constructor, having completed the sketch plans. The discussion developed some diversity of opinion on the main features presented by the plans, and no agreement was reached. The plans show a ship of 11,000 tons displacement, 440 feet in length, with five-inch belt armament. The battery consists of eight-inch guns in turrets, six-inch guns on broadside, and auxiliary batteries of three-inch rapid firers. It is probable that the chief constructor will get up alternate plans, showing somewhat larger cruisers, and embodying some changes suggested.

Fire in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, July 20.—The West Eighth street plant of the Globe-Wernicke Co. was badly damaged by fire. The loss will approximate $100,000. Fully 400 employes will be thrown out of work by the fire.

CHANGE IN WATCHES.

The Bull's Eye of a Century Ago and the Modern Machine-Made Timepiece.

The almost total disappearance of the old-fashioned "bull's-eye" silver watches is a source of wonderment to even some watch dealers. It is practically impossible to pick up one now among them. A Chicago Tribune reporter made the rounds of the watch, pawn and junk shops in quest of one of these old timepieces, and did not find it. One dealer said he knew where a single specimen was, but later admitted that the owner either had sold or lost it. A veteran watchmaker, who can make a watch by hand, in referring to the disappearance of the "bull's-eyes," said:

"It is only natural, I suppose, that they should disappear. None of them were first-class timepieces. I mean that the best of them would vary as much as a minute a week. The cheaper machine-made watches keep better time and cost less. The first of these old 'bull's-eyes' carried the regulation Virdge movement. One hundred years ago the Virdge watches were carried by all business men. Later the English watchmakers made 'bull's-eyes' with improvements on the Virdge movement. I haven't seen a Virdge for two or three years. As a matter of fact, those old-fashioned key-winding silver watches are worth only what the silver in the cases amounts to. The metal represents about a dollar in value. The works are worthless. Only one or two small wheels are taken out by the dealers. Sometimes they are useful in repairing family heirlooms. What are they worth? Why, nothing at all as timepieces. The best way to get one is to keep on inquiring among the grandfathers and great-uncles until you run across one, and then beg it or buy it. It is practically worthless, except as a relic."

Rheumatic pains are cured by

Dr. Greene's NERVURA

TWENTY YEARS OF RHEUMATISM

CURED BY Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

Mrs. Phoebe M. Carew, Ellisburgh, N.Y., a prominent member of the Methodist Church, says:—

"I had been very sick with rheumatism for twenty years, and had tried everything that was ever used for rheumatism, but after my sister, who lives in Minneapolis, wrote me such a strong letter, I resolved to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

"I had failed right straight along all winter, growing weaker every day, until I began to use the Nervura. I had not used as much as one bottle when I could get up from my bed and walk over my house, where before I could not stand upon my feet. My limbs grew stronger rapidly, while before they had no strength at all.

"I have been doctoring for twenty years for rheumatism and never had anything before that seemed to go all through my system and do me the good Dr. Greene's Nervura did. In twenty years doctoring, including doctors and all others, everything and all put together are far below the good Nervura has done me.

"The first dose I took I could feel all through my body, and it began to help me from the first. You have my permission to publish this letter, with my photograph."

OHIO DAY AT BUFFALO.

Was Celebrated by Distinguished Men of the State.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 19.—Ohio day will go down in Pan-American records as one of the biggest days at the exposition. It will be memorable in several ways, but chiefly because of the many distinguished men and the multitude of representative citizens that Ohio sent here to celebrate for her. It is doubtful if the Buckeye state ever received the applause and praise which were showered upon her Thursday at the exercises held in the Temple of Music, and it is certain that no finer praise has been bestowed upon the exposition management.

Promptly at 11 o'clock Gov. Nash, with his party, under escort of the 8th Ohio regiment, arrived at the Lincoln parkway gate and entered the grounds on foot. President Milburn was with the governor. Senator Hanna walked beside J. N. Adams, chairman of the committee on state and foreign representatives. The building was filled. The aisles and the galleries were crowded.

The appearance of Gov. Nash set the Ohio people cheering. Senator Foraker, to the great disappointment of many, did not come. Sents on the platform had been reserved for the Ohio party, and all were soon seated. David J. Ryan, of Columbus, president of the day, introduced Bishop Arnett, of Wilberforce university, who made the opening prayer. Mme. Genevra Johnstone Bishop sang, after which Director General Buchanan made a short address of welcome.

Gov. Nash responded briefly, and turned over the Ohio building to the Pan-American, expressing at the same time his "sincere hope that the exposition may have the grent success which efforts so magnificent and wonderful in results as those made by the officials of the exposition and the citizens of Buffalo deserve."

Gov. Nash was enthusinstically applauded.

President John G. Milburn responded to the remarks of Gov. Nash. Following him, Hon. Charles W. Baker, a leading Cincinnati lawyer, delivered the following address:

The fair fame of Ohio, as you may have observed, does not rest merely upon the natural productions of her soil, one of the very many and versatile results of her skill and labor.

Ohio produces men—men of action; men who can work and plan; men who can talk and think and fight, and in words hardly be a full and fair description did I not add, men who can and do hold office.

It has been so ever since Ohio became a state, nearly one hundred years ago; for Ohio was not long in getting into the Union after it was once well started, and she has had a great deal to do and say about things ever since.

Virginia used to be called the mother of presidents. Virginia will have to be content with the title of grandmother now, for the other distinction has passed from her. Ohio has assumed it.

Nor are we without hope that the years of the future will still justify this distinguished and distinguishing title.

It is said at home that we have several very able gentlemen on both sides who look upon the succession of their names in connection with the Ohio succession, reproachfully.

Did not the twelfth amendment forbid, we might furnish both the president and vice president.

That inhibition is not nearly so forbidding that I should indulge in such suggestion however as is the preamble of the constitution, which says that one of its objects is to "insure domestic tranquility." There would be no domestic tranquility in Ohio, I mean constitutional domestic tranquility, with such a ticket. The most stable of shapes would not underwrite such an insurance.

In New York you are said to have similar congestion and plethora. Speaking as an Ohioan, I beg to say to you of New York, that when the long roll is called and counted the Ohio man will be in the first place, and you may have the second only because the constitution says we can not have both.

But, ladies and gentlemen, there are a great many people in Ohio who do not hold office, and, although they may be perfectly willing to do so, are not particularly concerned about it as the chief end of life.

They are represented in the material things you see about you, that is this exposition stand for Ohio's industries and endeavor.

Ohio was the first fruits of the ordinance of 1787. That ordinance was not merely the political creation of a congressional enactment, but a solemn perpetual covenant between the 13 colonies and the people of the northwestern territory, that slavery and involuntary servitude should be forever prohibited within its borders, and, in its own language, "religion, morality and education being essential to good government and the happiness of mankind should forever be encouraged."

This vast northwest, that in the ambiguous text of the treaty of 1783 was intended "up into the land throughout from sea to sea, west and northwest," radiated from the Ohio river, was taken to the Mississippi, and was destined within 50 years to form six great states, of which Ohio was the first in the sisterhood of the fourth, after the 13 colonies, to be admitted into the federal union.

She was settled by a commingling of people, a part entering from the northwest, type and descendant of the best puritan blood of New England, the other strain of migration entering from the south bringing the warm and chivalrous traits and characteristics of the cavalier, whose ancestors had peopled Maryland and Virginia, while flung across her central border as it to reinforce and fuse these varied elements, New York and Pennsylvania lent Dutch and Huguenot, producing in the amalgamation as great and strong and mighty a race of people as ever trod the globe.

It is not surprising that Ohio, like some central shining sun scattering light and heat and life, has sent its offsets and masses westward and north and south and back again and eastward, men and women who have won distinction in every field of opportunity and endeavor. She has given governors and senators to other states, and judges and statesmen, to supreme courts and national assemblies. Her soil has been the birthplace of presidents whom other states have presented to the nation, as her own sons have been lifted to that high office by the suffrage of their countrymen. She consecrated the brain and blood and bodies of a half million sons to God and glory to preserve the union, as she gave the great commanders of that heroic struggle to country and to history.

Her artisans and mechanics have filled the earth with implements and evidence of skill and genius. They invent them, and then teach mankind to build as well as use them.

Her wood and iron working machinery fills the markets of Russia and the east. She sells her oil to India. Her wagons trek the dusty roads of Africa, as her plows and reapers plant and gather the harvests of Australia.

Go into any field of industry the wide world over, and on the simplest as well as upon the most intricate and delicate machinery utilized, you will find the stamp of Ohio.

Nature intended it should be so. Her valleys are beautiful and prolific, the fairest the sun e'er shone upon; redolent with the fragrance of the wild grape and cherry that still bloom and blossom beside cultivated orchards, and green and yellow with wheat and corn fields nodding in the sunshine, keeping time to the music of the harvest. The Miamis, fertile and picturesque, stretch away into the Scioto and Muskingum, and these melt again into the Hocking, the Mahoning and the Tuscarawas, that in turn touch the Cuyahoga and the old black swamp, fountain head of the Sandusky and the Maumee.

Ohio is still among the first of all the states in the production of wheat and corn and other cereals, in grapes and fruit, in tobacco, flax and hemp; in cattle and sheep, in hogs and horses; in every product of the soil. Ohio is Arcadian. She is like some vast cornucopia filled to the overflow with abundant harvests.

Her hills like her valleys are prodigal in natural resources. Not Alpine in height but Appennine in beauty; full of coal and lime and iron, of building stone and granite. They need but labor and the torch to start the smoking furnaces that pour out steel and iron in endless torrents; to pile mountain high the diamonds that are black that put to cruck he with eager fire drive wheels and shafts and gearings that crown human industry and give light and heat and fuel; to rear aloft architrave and column upon foundations of stately edifices and business blocks.

We bore beneath the wheat and corn, and oil and salt and gas bubble and burst surfaceward.

Yonder upon the eastern border is a clay deposit that aside from tile and brick, deftly fashioned in the potter's hands, makes famous Ohio's potteries.

In our own city of Cincinnati the genius of a gifted Ohio woman fashioned wares that in exquisiteness of blended color, fused and welded, and in fineness of texture and finish, have rocketed so famous and as artistic the world over as wedgwood, majolica or delft.

Ohio sends the great connecting isthmian way between all the states. It was so of old when the national pike joined the west to the east. It is so now when the slow locomotion of wagon and stage coach has given way to the iron horse speeding upon steel rails.

All continental lines of travel cross her territory. Converging as they come from eastern terminals, they traverse Ohio upon closely drawn and almost parallel lines, and then diverging like loosened tangents they spread abroad from Texas to Oregon. All states pay tribute to us. We levy tax on traffic and gather toll from trade, as the commerce of the world crosses our borders. Little wonder is it that men go forth from Ohio, carrying the dear old state in their heart of hearts. Little wonder is it that a city of her many size in this union, and in many, very many smaller towns, there are Ohio societies. Foster and minister to the love and pride they bear her memory and her greatness.

But I must not prolong this recital.

Pennsylvania may style herself the Keystone state; Ohio is keystone and arch.

Alabama's name means "Here we rest;" but Ohio is the abiding place of all that stands for life, for home, for hope, for happiness.

Those of us who were born on her soil, together with her sons-in-law and daughters, voice that triumphant outcry of devotion: "Thy people shall be my people, and thy God, my God. The Lord do so to me and more if aught but death part thee and me."

Mme. Johnstone-Bishop sang again, after which Hon. Emmett Tompkins, of Columbus, spoke.

The last speaker was Senator Hanna, who subject was "Commercial Relations of the American Continent." After eulogizing the Pan-American exposition, he said the men of the idea of the exposition deserved great praise for having the Pan-American at this time, just when the United States is taking the lead in industrial enterprise. Let us make trade extension a great movement, he said in conclusion, and let this Pan-American exposition be the beginning; let us see that nothing stands between us and closer relationship with South American countries.

The senator was cheered enthusiastically when he finished.

BROKE THE RECORD.

Crescens Made the Fastest Time Ever Made in a Trotting Race in 2:05 Flat.

Detroit, Mich., July 19.—Crescens, the chestnut stallion owned and driven by George H. Ketcham, of Toledo, in winning the free-for-all trot on the Detroit Driving club's track at Grosse Pointe Thursday afternoon went the second heat in 2:05 flat, the fastest time ever made in a trotting race. Charlie Herr, the brown stallion owned by David Cahill, of Lexington, Ky., and driven by Kelly, was the only opponent in this race, and he was a slow second. Crescens won the first heat by five lengths in 2:06¾, the fastest heat trotted this year until he broke the world's race record for trotters in the next heat.

CHINESE IN AMERICA.

About 67,700, or 75 per cent., are contained in the western division of states and territories, as against 96,844, or 90 per cent., in 1890. There were 72,472 Chinese in California alone in 1890, but this number has been reduced in 1900 to 45,753.

ANOTHER HOT SPELL.

All the Past Records in St. Louis Were Equaled.

The Governor's Proclamation to Pray For Rain Was Generally Observed in Nearly All the Churches in the City.

St. Louis, July 22.—On Sunday, the day that Gov. Dockery designated for fasting and prayer that the present drought might end in Missouri, the highest records for hot weather ever attained in St. Louis was equaled, the weather bureau thermometer registering 106 degrees in the shade. On the street and in exposed places the mercury went many degrees higher. The high record up to Sunday was 106, made in the early eighties. From 7 a. m Sunday, when the thermometer showed 90 degrees, until 3:30 p. m. the mercury steadily climbed. Hardly a breath of air stirred all day and the little breeze that did circulate came as from a furnace. The parks were thronged all day and late into the night by thousands who sought relief from the heat.

The governor's proclamation to pray for rain was very generally heeded, nearly every church in the city holding well attended services.

This is the second proclamation of this kind ever made in Missouri. In 1875 Gov. Charles N. Hardin called upon the people of the state to pray for relief from drought and plague of grasshoppers.

Gov. A. M. Dockery's proclamation, issued on July 15, is in substance as follows:

"Whereas, The prevailing drought is widespread and disaster threatens our commonwealth, and

"Whereas, Many earnest Christian people have petitioned that a day of fasting and prayer be appointed;

"Therefore, Be it known that Sunday, July 21, is hereby set apart as a day of fasting and prayer that the threatened disaster may be averted, and to this end the people are requested to assemble at their usual places of worship to invoke the blessings of Almighty God."

Chicago, July 22.—All heat records since the establishment of the weather bureau in Chicago, 30 years ago, were broken Sunday, the government thermometer registering 103 degrees. Down on the street it was from three to five degrees hotter, and to add to this suffering, a hot, stifling wind, like a blast from a furnace, blew all day from the southwest. From 5 o'clock in the morning, when the thermometer registered 77, a gradual rise followed, until at 4:30 Sunday afternoon the top notch had been reached. Shortly after that time the wind veered around toward the lake and caused a drop to 95 at 8:30 Sunday night.

Prostrations were numerous, and police ambulances were kept busy taking care of persons who were overcome on the streets.

Freeport, Ill., July 22.—The heat was a record breaker Sunday, being from 110 to 115 in the shade.

Omaha, July 22.—With the exception of July 26, 1894, on which day the temperature reached 105, Sunday has been the hottest this city has experienced in 27 years. The mercury stood at 99 at 11 o'clock, gradually going up to 104 8-10 at 4:15 p. m. At 6 p. m. it dropped to 104.

There was not a trace of rain anywhere in this vicinity, and what little wind there was came from the south, and instead of being a relief, added to the discomfort. The parks offered not the slightest relief to the masses who sought cool retreats. Four prostrations were reported.

Madison, Wis., July 22.—This was the hottest day known in the official record here. The government thermometer at Washburn observatory registered a maximum temperature of 104 degrees. The highest previous known record was in 1886, when 100 degrees was reached.

Burlington, Ia., July 22.—Frightful heat prevailed here and all over southeastern Iowa Sunday. The maximum here was 110, accompanied by a hot wind. Reports from the state show: Chariton, 107; Fairfield, 108; Ottumwa, 110; Murray, 110; Middletown, 113; Keithsburg, Ill., 112. Corn is reported to be faring badly.

Sioux City, Ia., July 22.—The maximum temperature here Sunday was 106 between 3 and 4 p. m. For six hours it stood at 102 or higher.

Dubuque, Ia., July 22.—All high temperature records dating back 48 years were broken Sunday. At 7 a. m., 84; 4 p. m., 106; 7 p. m., 102, were the thermometer readings, and on the street 111 to 114 were noted. There were many prostrations, but no fatalities.

Keokuk, Ia., July 22.—The weather bureau thermometer reached 107 Sunday afternoon, two above previous record of July 10, and three above any previous record for 30 years. It was 103 at 7 p. m. No prostrations on account of the dryness of the atmosphere.

Frightful in Burlington.

Burlington, Ia., July 22.—Frightful heat prevailed here and all over southeastern Iowa Sunday. The maximum here was 110, accompanied by a hot wind. Reports from the state show: Chariton, 107; Fairfield, 105; Ottumwa, 110.

May Be General Tie-Up.

San Francisco, July 22.—A general tie-up of wholesale and retail trade of this city may develop Monday unless the Draymen's association and Brotherhood of Teamsters reach an agreement.

RACE TROUBLE.

One Negro Was Killed and Another Wounded in a Fight at Cleveland, Miss.

Cleveland, Miss., July 22.—Sunday morning at 1:30 o'clock a band of Negroes, none of whom were known, rode into Cleveland and, stopping a party of three white men on the main street, made threatening demonstrations. Being called upon to identify themselves, they answered by bringing their rifles into play. One of the Negroes was killed on the spot, another was wounded, and it is reported that his body was found Sunday morning on the outskirts of town, and the others escaped, although it is supposed that more than three were hurt. They were armed with Winchester rifles, and were well mounted. Excitement was at fever heat during the remainder of the night. Squads of armed men patrolled the streets until daylight.

The trouble grew out of the lynching of Jesse Phillips in the earlier part of the night.

LIGHTNING AT SEA.

Marinette, Wis., July 22.—During a severe electrical storm Sunday morning a boat supposed to be a large schooner or steam barge was struck by lightning and destroyed by fire and her crew is thought to have been lost.

The light keeper at Menominee saw the boat burning just south of Green island. He called up the local fire tug, and the latter started out to render any assistance possible, but when about three miles out all signs of the boat or fire suddenly disappeared. An examination afterward showed no wreckage. The nearest land is Green Island, and the crew, if they escaped with their lives, would have gone there. There was a heavy sea running, and it would have been almost impossible for a small boat to live in it.

CABLE CAR WRECKED.

Nine Passengers Were Seriously Injured and Several Others Hurt in Chicago.

Chicago, July 22.—Nine passengers were seriously injured and several others painfully bruised in the wreck of a Madison avenue cable car Sunday. The train was running at full speed when the grip car was suddenly brought to a stop because of a defective cable rope. The trailer bounded from the track, rose up and crashed with terrific force into the rear of the grip car. The shock was of such force that the passengers were thrown from their seats, several landing in the street head foremost and others falling against the seats and sides of the cars.

A JOINT RAIDED.

Seven Women at Eldorado, Kan., Demolished a Tub Full of Bottled Beer.

Eldorado, Kan., July 22.—Seven women, headed by Mrs. H. T. Grover, president of the local W. C. T. U., entered a "joint" run by a man named Unsch in a tent in the center of town, and demolished a tub full of bottled beer. They took a sample of the liquor to the sheriff, who later ordered the "jointists" to quit business. Five hundred people gathered while the raid was in progress. A "jointist" in another part of the town loaded his stock into a wagon and disappeared.

FIREBUGS AT WORK.

Eighteen Fires in Four Weeks in Mattoon, Ill., Caused a Total Loss of $2,400,000.

Mattoon, Ill., July 22.—Eighteen fires here in the last four weeks have caused a total loss of $2,400,000. The city authorities have been destroying gambling outfits and enforcing the laws against other forms of vice, and the fires are believed to have been retaliatory.

Vigilant committees will be appointed, as well as extra guards, to patrol the business and residence portions of the city.

Four Killed By a Train.

Lebanon, N. H., July 22.—A carriage containing James Goodwin, of Hinsdale, Mass.; William Thurston, of Percy, N. H.; Thomas Burns, of Winooski, Vt., and Eddie McCabe, of Lebanon, was struck by the Montreal express on the Boston & Maine railroad shortly after midnight and all four were instantly killed.

Blocked By Ice Floes.

St. Johns, N. F., July 22.—The mail steamer Home, which arrived here Sunday from Labrador, reports that the coast is blockaded with ice floes especially the northern part, where the floes are impenetrable. This will greatly delay the Peary relief steamer Erik, which counted upon calling at Turnavick, Northern Labrador.

Heat in Northern Russia.

St. Petersburg, July 22.—Phenomenal heat prevails throughout all Northern Russia. The temperature in St. Petersburg Sunday was 117 degrees Fahrenheit. In Odessa it was 103, and the rate of mortality there is 70 per cent. above the normal.

The American Won.

London, July 22.—Arthur Duffey, of Georgetown university, in the sports at Leicester Saturday, won the 100 yard dash in 9 4-5 seconds, the world's record, beating McLean, the amateur champion of Scotland by two yards.

ARE GAINING GROUND.

More Mills of the Steel Corporation Have Closed Down.

Situation at Wellsville Unchanged—An Attempt Will Be Made to Put Men to Work From Other Points.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 22.—The important event in the strike history of the day is the organization of the tube mill workers at McKeesport. The word from there is that after long and arduous work Assistant Secretary Tighe, of the Amalgamated association, succeeded in organizing 125 men of the National Tube Works Co. At the meeting 25 skilled men from each of the departments were initiated into the Amalgamated association, and Mr. Tighe claims that within 48 hours enough more of the workmen will be secured to keep the entire plant closed down, affecting 9,000 men.

From Wellsville no word has been received here except that the situation is unchanged. It is believed, however, that an attempt will be made to put men to work there from other points, the ten men from Vandergrift, who are said to be at East Liverpool ready to go in early in the day, being the principal men relied upon for the purpose. While the strikers say they will not commit any orert act, there is an uneasy feeling throughout the entire village.

When seen Sunday night President Shaffer said he was more than satisfied with the week's results.

"Things are very much better than I thought they would be. More mills are shut down and there is more determination on the part of the men than we anticipated. There has been more inclination to aid us morally and financially on the part of other labor organizations and vastly more support from the general public than we were looking for."

The 22-inch mill at the Boston iron and steel plant of the National Tube Co. at McKeesport resumed operations Monday morning after a shut-down lasting three weeks. The plant was closed for repairs. A great many men will be benefitted by the mill resuming operations, but they were all glad to get the three weeks' vacation. The situation as to the Dewees Wood plant remains unchanged. Various rumors were in circulation throughout the town during the afternoon and evening to the effect that the mills would try to resume operations Monday, but they could not be confirmed. The company officials persist in their refusal to name the date for resumption.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 22.—A report reached here at 3 o'clock Monday morning that the strikers at McKeesport, because of persistent rumors that workmen were to be imported, gathered to the number of 200 or 300 and picketed the town, holding up every one coming along and making him give an account of himself.

No one was roughly handled, but the police force was called out and dispersed the men at 2:45 o'clock. About this time the railroad company began shifting freight cars across the river. The strikers again gathered, thinking the cars contained non-union men, and made a dash for the cars.

PRE-HISTORIC CITY.

A Remarkable Discovery on the Navajo Indian Reservation Near Durango, Col.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 22.—A prehistoric city of immense proportions is said to have just been unearthed on the Navajo Indian reservation, between Durango, Col., and Farmington, N. M., the particulars of the find having been reported to the land department of the Santa Fe system in this city. A palace has been found containing, it is said, about 1,000 separate apartments, some of them in an excellent state of preservation. Another stone castle contained 100 separate apartments.

In some of the remains inspected were found the finest of woods and other relics of a valuable character, specimens of which have been gathered and sent to the Smithsonian institute.

MRS. KRUGER DEAD.

The Aged Wife of the Ex-President of the Transvaal Passed Away Sunday.

Pretoria, July 22.—Mrs. Kruger, wife of ex-President Kruger, is dead.

Mrs. Kruger's long separation from her husband, combined with the death of her favorite daughter, Mrs. Smith, last week, had completely broken her spirit.

Mr. Eloff and many other members of the Kruger family were at her bedside when she passed away.

London, July 22.—"Owing to the Sunday telegraph hours in Holland," says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Hilversum, "Mr. Kruger was not informed of his wife's death until the evening. The news was broken to him by Dr. Heymans and Secretary Boeschoten. Mr. Kruger, who had just returned from Hilversim church, burst into tears and asked to be left alone."

The Transvaal and Free State flags flying above the white villa were draped and half-masted. Shortly before the news came a crowd of country girls had been singing a folk song outside the villa.

The morning papers publish kindly editorials concerning the death of Mrs. Kruger, and express sympathy with Mr. Kruger. The Times begins thus:

"The English people will feel genuine sympathy with the aged ex-president of the Transvaal in the severe domestic bereavement which has befallen him."

This is followed by a eulogy of Mrs. Kruger.

CHINA NOT REPENTANT.

The Settlement of the Trouble Depends Entirely on the Firmness Displayed By the Powers.

Tien-Tsin, July 22.—Europeans here consider that the prevention of a speedy recrudescence of trouble depends entirely upon the firmness displayed by the powers. It is thought that this fact should be recognized in Europe and the United States. The general feeling in Tien-Tsin is that China is in no wise overawed or repentant.

Li Hung Chang is reported to have adopted an offhand tone toward a member of the provincial government and to have talked confidently of ousting the provincial government soon. The Chinese have recommenced cutting telegraph wires.

GEN. SAMUEL T. CUSHING.

Former Commissary General of Subsistence Expired at His Home in Washington.

Washington, July 23.—Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Cushing, U. S. A., retired, formerly commissary general of subsistence, died here Sunday. He was appointed to the military academy from Rhode Island in 1855 and served through the civil war, near the close of which he was brevetted major for faithful and meritorious service. He entered the commissary branch in 1863 as a captain and rose to the rank of brigadier general and commissary general of subsistence January 28, 1898. He was retired on April 21 of the same year.

THE ORDER OBEYED.

District Court at Ft. Scott, Kan., Issued An Injunction Ordering All the Saloons Closed.

Ft. Scott, Kan., July 22.—The district court has issued an injunction ordering all saloons in town closed, and it has been obeyed. The order came as a result of evidence obtained by three local ministers and several church members, who visited the different saloons and bought whisky and beer. Suit will be brought against each keeper and the owners of the buildings used for saloon purposes for violating the Herrell law, passed by the last legislature.

In the "fight for the spoils" the G. O. P. of Walton seems to be on the down grade and going pretty fast all on account of the Walton postoffice. W. H. Metcalfe, the present postmaster and the Republican Committeeman for this precinct, has tendered his resignation as postmaster here and recommended S. L. Edwards, who was postmaster eight years ago under Harrison, for the place. Mr. J. G. Tomlin is making an effort to have his sister, Mrs. Delannette, a most estimable lady and the widow of a prominent Grant county Democrat and politician appointed. Tomlin claims he has the support of the late defeated candidate for Congress, Wm. McD. Shaw, and other Covington politicians. Metcalfe appears to be making the fight for Edwards alone. Tomlin also claims that he has the endorsement of five out of the eleven committeemeu from the county, but has failed to get the endorsement of Metcalfe or any of the committeemen in this precinct, more than a little trouble. His methods in politics are sometimes questionable, but he always has the Republican vote solidly behind him, and in the present postoffice fight he seems to be backed up by nearly all the Republicans of the precinct. If the Republican officials can see their way clear to sit down heavily on this man Metcalfe they will have the good will of the entire Democratic voters of the precinct who will think kindly of them in all time to come.

The Warsaw Independent says of the Circuit Court in session there last week.

The weather was exceedingly warm and Judge Lassing appreciating the busy condition of the farmers and the oppressiveness to those compelled to attend court cleared the docket as quickly as possible of all business ready for trial, and granted continuances in all the cases where requested. He made an excellent impression on our people, as he is a dignified, polite gentleman, quick in the transaction of his business, and clever and pleasant to everybody. Those who have an intimate acquaintance with him are very proud of him because of his many good qualities and the Independent has had an acquaintance with Judge Lassing for nearly twenty years and can vouch for him as being all right in every way.

"For he is a Judge
And a good Judge too."

His election to the office to fill the unexpired term of Judge John W. Greene is a foregone conclusion, as the unanimity with which he is being supported all over the district precludes the possibility of any other candidate.

The Grand Jury adjourned Tuesday evening, being in session only two days, and returning eleven indictments. It was the shortest session of a regular grand jury in history of the county and cost the county $72 less money than ever known.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty, of Lexington, KY., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner, Florence; H. L. Eskew, Walton; O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

A damage suit for $25,000 has been filed in the Grant Circuit Court at Williamstown by J. N. Lemmon, cashier of the People's Bank at Dry Ridge, against Mrs. Kate Conrad for alleged defamation of character in an article published by Mrs. Conrad in the Williamstown Courier.

Recently Mrs. Kate Conrad brought suit to recover judgment on a note of several hundred dollars, alleged to be due to the estate of her father, Jacob B. Renaker, deceased, of which she is the administratrix and the only heir save her mother. The defendant employed W. W. Dickerson, to look after his interests, and the suit was decided adversely to Mrs. Conrad. She took umbrage at the answer filed by the defendant and has published in the local paper a signed article in which she accused Mr. Lemmon and his attorney of making false statements concerning her father, the late J. B. Renaker, and severely denounced them.

Mrs. Conrad is one of the wealthiest women in Grant county, having inherited nearly all of the estate of her father, amounting to $150,000. Several years ago she obtained a divorce from her husband, William Conrad, and was awarded $10,000 alimony.

About six or seven years ago W. F. McKim bought and planted a "Pruno Cero." It never bore until this year, and the fruit appears to be of a choice quality. It is about the size of a large plum but about the shape of an apple. He has two varieties of this fruit which will prove, no doubt, a choice selection. The flavor cannot be determined until the fruit is thoroughly ripe.

FREIGHT TRAINS COLLIDE.

Two Men Were Killed and Four Injured, Two of Whom Can Not Survive, at Nortonville.

HANNA FOR PRESIDENT.

The Ohio Boss Can Have the Nomination If He Is Disposed to Want It.

When the mention of Mr. Hanna in connection with the presidency was first made, he was inclined to treat it as a joke. He may have been honest in so regarding it, or he may have been testing the popular feeling, to see how the suggestion would "take." In either event Mr. Hanna has ceased to joke about the matter. Very probably, the more he thinks about it, the better he likes the idea. He would be a strange man, if he were not proud to be even suggested as a possible candidate for president of the United States; and Mr. Hanna is not of the shy, shrinking sort of Americans—if there are any such Americans—who would feel utterly disqualified to fill so high an office. Mr. Hanna, whatever his limitations, is a sanguine, energetic, practical man, and he would look upon the presidency of the United States very much as he would look upon the presidency of a great trust, in the modern sense of the word; as just the place for a skilled combiner and organizer and man of business.

Such being the probable attitude of Mr. Hanna himself, what of his chances? It is early yet, but unless the conditions change greatly who has a better chance for the republican nomination? Who has half as good a grip on the machinery of the republican party? Who else is so close to the big business men and corporations that virtually control the machinery and the candidate-making process of the republican party? To whom would the McKinley administration be so likely to throw its aid as to Mr. Hanna, if he should see a chance to win and decide to make a canvass?

Mr. Hanna will not be a "receptive candidate," in case he should enter the race. He will not hunt for delegates with a brass band, but neither will he sit still and expect delegates to come to him by some mysterious process of gravitation or natural attraction. He will organize his canvass, as thoroughly and as systematically as he organized the McKinley delegate-hunt of 896, and before the other candidates know it, he will have the field to himself; assuming, that is, that there should be reaction within the republican party lines against McKinleyism, from which Mr. Hanna could hardly disassociate himself, even did he so desire.

The chances are that Hon. M. A. Hanna is not worrying about his ability to get the republican nomination, if he really wants it. He has never failed, so far, to get about all he wanted, and he knows the power of organization, machine discipline and "spot cash" in controlling republican conventions. What Mr. Hanna would like to know is, what the democratic party would do. He is probably not worrying about his "personal unpopularity with the voters," of which something has been said. Gen. Harrison had been beaten for governor of Indiana before he was elected president. James G. Blaine and Henry Clay, popular idols both, never reached the presidency. Certain leaders seem to think that Mr. Hanna would be an easy candidate to defeat, and there is a chuckle in their tones as they speak of him as a logical republican candidate; but Mr. Hanna probably does not doubt his ability to win hands down, as against such platforms and candidates as have been put forward in the name of the democratic party in 1896 and 1900. If Hanna could only be sure that the "logical issue" of 1896 would be again at the front in 1904!

But there exists a strong likelihood that the democratic party will be doing business on a common-sense basis in 1904, with a national platform of live issues and a candidate to match it; and Hanna knows it!—Albany Argus.

PRESS COMMENTS.

——The new republican platform is rather long for a party that professes to be running on the simple issue of McKinleyism.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——Mr. Hanna's fine work in the Ohio state convention may be taken as an indication that he expects the Buckeye state to furnish the next president, regardless of Mr. McKinley's declination.—Omaha World-Herald.

——If Senator Hanna can organize a machine in a few more states which will do his bidding as unquestionably as does the Ohio machine, he can either be the republican nominee for president in 1904 or select the gentleman upon whom that honor shall fall.—Peoria Transcript.

——The formation of trusts always results in cheapening the product, as we have been so often assured by the trust magnates. Nevertheless, it may be well to note the fact that the price of linseed oil has been constantly on the jump since the Linseed Oil company was bought by the Standard Oil people.—Hartford Times.

——There are significant signs that the republican party is being divided by discord. That party is likely to be seriously disrupted in congress next winter over the tariff question, and who shall say that that party, which arrogates to itself all the virtues, and is insolent in its assumption of unparalleled powers, may not go to pieces before 1904 through internecine quarrels.—Syracuse Telegram.

——Those who have been indulging in the delusion that the ship subsidy steal was dead will receive light from the resolution of Mark Hanna's Ohio convention indorsing the piratical proposition. Mark Hanna is determined to have his pound of flesh, and he and his associate bandits are making every preparation to put the next congress in condition such that they can force this measure through.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

DOOM OF DINGLEYISM.

Manufacturers Seeking Foreign Markets Are Rising Against Protection.

The alternative now presented is war or ignominious retreat. Senator Aldrich, chairman of the senate finance committee, has served notice on the president that the republican organization in congress is opposed to reciprocity dickers and will defeat any attempt to procure the ratification of those now pending.

Senator Aldrich claims to speak for his party in the New England and eastern middle states. He undeniably speaks for those who have prevented the ratification of the pending treaties, and who can continue to defeat them and others like them unless reciprocity republicans and democrats can agree to pull together, which is not very likely.

The true democratic doctrine is that tariffs are to be made by congress, not by the treaty-making power, and that congress cannot be divested of its exclusive prerogative in the matter of raising revenue by the treaty-making power or any other power.

The true democratic doctrine is that reciprocity treaties are repugnant to the constitution and are no more to be tolerated than attempts to discharge any other constitutional functions of congress by treaty. Democrats, therefore, should not join western republicans in ratifying the pending treaties.

What then? Will Mr. McKinley persist in urging the senate to ratify those treaties? Senator Aldrich warns him against that course. He assured the president that the National Association of Manufacturers, which recently held a convention in Detroit, is merely an association of western makers of agricultural implements, and that the real manufacturers of the country—those east of the Alleghanies and north of the Potomac—will make it uncomfortable for him if he does not abandon reciprocity. These real manufacturers have shown what they can do with Mr. McKinley heretofore, and they are likely to demonstrate their power to unsettle his settled convictions of duty once more.

But whipping him into line again will not end the matter. Thousands of manufacturers are seeking foreign markets. They see that Dingleyism is shutting the doors of those markets in their faces. If they find they cannot unlock those doors by means of reciprocity treaties they will seek to secure democratic assistance by attacking Dingleyism directly in some such way as that proposed by Representative Babcock.

Mr. Aldrich declares that eastern republicans are practically a unit in favor of maintaining the Dingley law intact, and will effectively resent any attempt to modify its offensive provisions, which are shutting doors against our products.

But western manufacturers, and many eastern ones, too, are determined that the Dingley rates must come down; if not in one way, then in another. If they turn to the democratic party for aid they will win, and neither manufacturing nor agricultural interests will be slaughtered any longer in order to build up the private fortunes of greedy beneficiaries of Dingleyism in Pennsylvania and New England.

Mr. McKinley may be turned aside once more from the path of "plain duty," but the war is on, and Dingleyism is doomed.—Chicago Chronicle

Our Incongruous Tariff Laws.

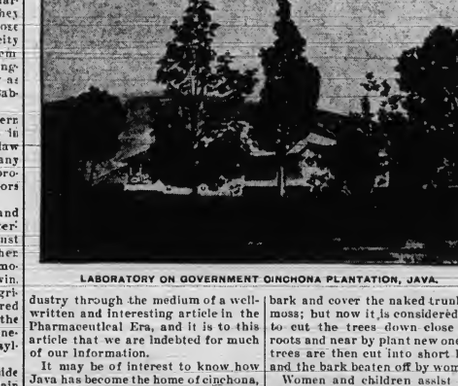
If the national tariff law was drawn up for the sole purpose of raising revenue for the government and was based, like other forms of taxation, without discrimination for or against industries or individuals, there would be comparatively no complaint. As it is we have a tariff the iron schedules of which are made in the interest of but half a dozen individuals. With the protection thus afforded these men hold up the prices of iron goods to American citizens in the United States, while the benefit of low prices is given to those abroad. Thus we see a law having for its ostensible object the upbuilding of American citizens converted into an agency to squeeze their pockets and resulting in the benefit of lower prices to the man living in France, in England, in Africa or almost anywhere so that he is not an American citizen.—Atlanta Constitution.

——It is possible that the brutal tactics adopted by advocates of protection for industries that have outgrown any need or excuse for such favor, for combines that are paying dividends on hundreds of millions of fictitious capitalization, may be able to prevent any reformatory action by the Fifty-seventh congress. We can conceive of no happier fortune for the somewhat demoralized and disheartened democracy than to be endowed with the campaign thunder, the political capital, that will be in its hands if congress adjourns without having put away the flagrant abuses that are sheltered behind some of the schedules of the tariff of 1897.—Washington Post.

——The Dingley law stands like a club over foreign trade at every port under the American flag. Whether it is German sugar or French wines or India silks or Chinese tea or Japanese matting, we put a penalty upon every man who would like to do business with us and part with the proceeds of his labor to us that he may be fed with our wheat and warmed with our cotton and wool and carried on our locomotives and bicycles. It is we from whom the offense comes, and if we want trade with Europe or Asia or South America we must open our ports to fairer trade or else we have no moral right to complain of reprisals.—Portland Oregonian.

Where the Supply of Quinine Comes From

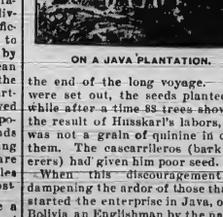
Java Furnishes the Greater Part of It ---How It Is Raised and Treated



JAVA produces practically all the quinine in use, or, to be more accurate, practically all the cinchona bark from which the world's supply of quinine is made. Ninety per cent. of the yield is shipped to Amsterdam, now the cinchona market of the world, the remainder being converted into quinine in the Java quinine factory at Bandoeng.

The secret of the manufacture of this drug has been most jealously guarded, and it is only of recent years success has attended the efforts of those who ventured to make a stand against the combination of quinine factories in Europe. The trust had been particularly hard on the planters, continually depressing the price of the bark and keeping the price of the manufactured article high; making it necessary for the planter either to go out of business or to attempt to combat his taskmaster. He followed the latter course.

The first efforts were not successful, the quality of the quinine being inferior and resulting in the Java article getting a bad name. But now the factory is well on its feet, and the methods in use in the laboratories in Java are thoroughly scientific and up to date. Mr. F. L. Seely, secretary and treasurer of the Paris Medicine company at St. Louis, one of the largest users of quinine in the world, reports as the result of personal investigations in Java the conviction that the factory at Bandoeng produces quinine above the standard. Which is of considerable interest to the world at large, as the Java product is sold much lower than the common makes. Mr. Seely has given the world the benefit of his investigations into the Java industry through the medium of a well-written and interesting article in the Pharmaceutical Era, and it is to this article that we are indebted for much of our information.



BARK DRYING IN THE SUN.

LABORATORY ON GOVERNMENT CINCHONA PLANTATION, JAVA.

It may be of interest to know how Java has become the home of cinchona, or Peruvian bark, as it is more familiarly styled. Both Peru and Java are a few degrees south of the equator, but a wide stretch of ocean lies between them. About the middle of the last century the Dutch government, which has had complete control of affairs in Java since 1830, decided it would experiment with the cultivation of cinchona in the colonies. A native named Husskarl was sent to Peru to procure plants and seeds. He visited both Peru and Bolivia, spending two years in the two countries, undergoing hardships in the way of fever and imprisonment. At last, with a few seeds and plants, he embarked for home, getting away in a Dutch warship sent purposely to convey him and his prize to Java. But the prize was not a rich one. Only 16 of his trees were alive at the end of the long voyage. These were set out, the seeds planted, and while after a time 83 trees showed as the result of Husskarl's labors, there was not a grain of quinine in one of them. The cascarrileros (bark gatherers) had given him poor seed.

When this discouragement was dampening the ardor of those that had started the enterprise in Java, over in Bolivia an Englishman by the name of Ledger was approached by a native, one Manuel Incra Mamani, and told there was good cinchona seed to be had by a foreigner, if Husskarl had been fooled. Ledger believed the native, bought of him 20 pounds of guaranteed seed and sent it to his brother in London. The London brother communicated with the Dutch government in regard to his possession, the whole consignment was bought for 600 rupees (about $180) and sent on to Java. Ledger gave Mamani more money and told him to go into the forest and get him some more seeds; but the cascarrileros, because he had allowed seed to be sent out of the country, captured him and whipped him so severely that he died.

The 20 pounds of seed were sufficient to start the cinchona industry in Java. Twenty thousand trees grew from the Ledger seeds, and some of them are still standing. These trees, which are almost 50 years old, are now used only for the seed. The seeds are planted in nurseries, where the young plants are sheltered from the sun by leaf shelters. As the Ledgers do not take to the soil very well, they are grafted on to a red bark tree that flourishes in the soil but does not contain much quinine. When the wound of the grafting has healed the tall top of the red bark tree is cut off and the improved tree transplanted from the nursery to the forest.

To prepare land for these forests the jungle is cleared and the ground kept perfectly free from weeds and rubbish. The trees are planted in rows and in such a manner the rains can sink deep into the soil. When they are six years old the trees are cut down. The old way was to peel the bark and cover the naked trunks with moss; but now it is considered better to cut the trees down close to the roots and near by plant new ones. The trees are then cut into short lengths and the bark beaten off by women.

Women and children assist also in the further preparation of the bark. The pharmaceutical bark, the pipe bark, is usually dried entirely in the sun. It is placed in great trays, and while it is still green women and children tie it into bundles. They sit in the trays and work quite at their ease. When bark is dried in ovens the latter are heated by the wood of the stripped trees.

After the bark is thoroughly dried it is roughly ground into powder. Water power, which is abundant, is usually employed for this process. The powder is then packed into bags and the greater part of it sent to Amsterdam, whence it is distributed to different factories. The remainder, as we have said, is manufactured into quinine at Bandoeng.

Bandoeng is about eight hours' ride from Batavia, the chief port of Java. It is an attractive little town, its long, low houses built for tropical conditions. Cinchona plantations lie all about Bandoeng, from nine to thirty miles distant. One may reach these plantations by any one of three ways: On the back of a pony, in a pony cart or in a mountain chair carried by four natives. On the way cinchona may be seen in all styles, from the tiny seed up to large forest trees, towering a hundred feet from the ground. The dwellings of the planters are eminently comfortable, not to say luxurious. The refinements of life are not lacking on these Javanese plantations, and the planters are cultivated, intelligent gentlemen. The Peruvian bark industry has done not a little towards the evident prosperity of the country, ranking to-day as one of the principal articles of export.

Two Unusual Epitaphs.

The churchyard contains the dust of many eminent men and several queer epitaphs. The tombstone of Mary Ann Luyten is a cedar bedstead that has stood the ravages of 131 years. The epitaph of Charlotte Elford, who died on May 9, 1817, says that—

Another curious one is that of John Singleton, who died September 10, 1789:

SIN IN HIGH PLACES.

Tendency to Excuse Brilliant Faults Because They Are Brilliant.

Dr. Talmage Says the Same Law Ought to Be Applied to the High as to the Low—The Sacredness of Life.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch. N. Y.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows that there is a tendency to excuse brilliant faults because they are brilliant, when the same law of right and wrong ought to be applied to high places and low; text, Daniel 4:33: "The same hour was the thing fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar, and he was driven from men and did eat grass as oxen."

Here is the mightiest of the Babylonish kings. Look at him. He did more for the grandeur of the capital than did all his predecessors or successors. Hanging gardens, reservoirs, aqueducts, palaces, all of his own planning. The bricks that are brought up to-day from the ruins of Babylon have his name on them, "Nebuchadnezzar, son of Nabopolassor, king of Babylon." He was a great conqueror. He stretched forth his spear toward a nation, and it surrendered. But he plundered the temple of the true God. He lifted an idol, Bel Merodach, and compelled the people to bow down before it, and if they refused they must go through the redhot furnace or be crunched by lion or lioness. So God pulled him down.

He was smitten with what physicians call lycanthropy and fancied that he was a wild beast, and he went out and pastured amid the cattle. God did not excuse him because he had committed the sin in high places or because the transgression was wide resounding. He measured Nebuchadnezzar in high places just as he would measure the humblest captive.

But in our time, you know as well as I, that there is a disposition to put a halo around iniquity if it is committed in conspicuous place and if it is wide resounding and of large proportions. Ever and anon there has been an epidemic of crime in high places, and there is not a state or city and hardly a village which has not been called to look upon astounding forgery or an absconding bank cashier or president or the wasting of trust fund or swindling mortgages. I propose in carrying out the suggestion of my text, as far as I can, to scatter the fascinations around iniquity and show you that sin is sin and wrong is wrong whether in high place or low place and that it will be dealt with by that God who dealt with impalaced Nebuchadnezzar.

All who preach feel that two kinds of sermons are necessary, the one on the faith of the Gospel, and the other on the morality of the Gospel, and the one is just as important as the other, for you know that in this land to-day there are hundreds of men hiding behind the communion tables and in churches of Jesus Christ who have no business to be there as professors of religion. They expect to be all right with God, although they are all wrong with man. And, while I want you to understand that by the deeds of the law no flesh living can be justified and a mere honest life cannot enter us into Heaven, I want you as plainly to understand that unless the life is right the heart is not right. Grace in the heart and grace in the life; so we must preach sometimes the faith of the Gospel and sometimes the morality of the Gospel.

It seems to me there has not been a time in the last 50 years when this latter truth needed more thoroughly to be presented in the American churches. It needs to be presented to-day.

A missionary in the islands of the Pacific preached one Sabbath on honesty and dishonesty, and on Monday he found his yard full of all styles of goods, which the natives had brought. He could not understand it until a native told him: "Our gods permit us to purloin goods, but the God you told us about yesterday, the God of Heaven and earth, it seems, is against these practices, and so we brought all the goods that do not belong to us, and they are in the yard, and we want you to help us distribute them among their rightful owners." And if in all the pulpits of the United States to-day rousing sermons could be preached on honesty and the evils of dishonesty and the sermons were blessed of God and arrangements could be made by which all the goods which have been improperly taken from one man and appropriated by another man should be put in the city halls of the country there is not a city hall in the United States that would not be crowded from cellar to cupola. Faith of the Gospel; that we must preach and we do preach. Morality of the Gospel we must just as certainly proclaim.

Now, look abroad and see the fascinations that are thrown around different styles of crime. The question that every man and woman has been asked has been: Should crime be excused because it is on a large scale? Is iniquity guilty and to be pursued of the law in proportion as it is on a small scale? Shall we have the penitentiary for the man who steals an overcoat from a hatrack and all Canada for a man to range in if he have robbed the public of millions?

Look upon all the fascinations thrown around fraud in this country. You know for years men have been made heroes of and pictorialized and in various ways presented to the public as though sometimes they were worthy of admiration if they have scattered the funds of banks or swallowed great estates that did not belong to them. Our young men have been dazed with this quick accumulation. They have said: "That's the way to do it. What's the use of our plodding on with small wages or insignificant salary when we may go into business life and with some stratagem achieve such a fortune as that man has achieved?" A different measure has been applied to the crime of Wall street from that which has been applied to the spoils which the man carries up Rat alley.

So a peddler came down from New England many years ago, took stock of the money market of New York, flaunted his abominations in the sight of all the people, defied public morals every day of his life. Young men looked up and said: "He was a peddler in one decade, and in the next decade he is one of the monarchs of the stock market. That's the way to do it." To this day the evil influence of that profligate has been felt, and within the past few weeks he has had conspicuous imitators.

There has been an irresistible impression going abroad among young men that the poorest way to get money is to earn it. The young man of flaunting cravat says to the young man of humble apparel: "What, you only get $1,800 a year? Why, that wouldn't keep me in pin money. I spend $5,000 a year." "Where do you get it?" asks the plain young man. "Oh, stocks, enterprises—all that sort of thing, you know." The plain young man has hardly enough money to pay his board and has to wear clothes after they are out of fashion and deny himself all the luxuries. After awhile he gets tired of his plodding, and he goes to the man who has achieved suddenly large estate, and he says: "Just show me how it is done." And he is shown. He soon learns how, and although he is almost all the time idle now and has resigned his position in the bank or the factory or the store, he has more money than he ever had, trades off his silver watch for a gold one with a flashing chain, sets his hat a little farther over on the side of his head than he ever did, smokes better cigars and more of them. He has his hand in! Now, if he can escape the penitentiary for three or four years he will get into political circles, and he will get political jobs and will have something to do with harbors and pavements and docks. Now he has got so far along he is safe for perdition.

It is quite a long road sometimes for a man to travel before he gets into the romance of crime. Those are caught who are only in the prosaic stage of it. If the sheriffs and constables would only leave them alone a little while, they would steal as well as anybody. They might not be able to steal a whole railroad, but they could master a load of pig iron.

Now, I always thank God when I find an estate like that go to smash. It is plague struck, and it blasts the nation. I thank God when it goes into such a wreck it can never be gathered up again. I want it to become so loathsome and such an insufferable stench that honest young men will take warning. If God should put into money or its representative the capacity to go to its lawful owner, there would not be a bank or a safety deposit in the United States whose walls would not be blown out and mortgages would rip and parchments would rend and gold would shoot and beggars would get on horseback and stock gamblers would go to the almshouse.

And remember, that the man who gets his gain by iniquity will soon lose it all. One moment after his departure from life he will not own an opera house, he will not own a certificate of stock, he will not own one dollar of government securities, and the poorest boy that stands on the street with a penny in his pocket, looking at the funeral procession of the dead cheat as he goes by, will have more money than that man who one week previous boasted that he controlled the money market.

Oh, there is such a fearful fascination in this dry about the use of trust funds. It has got to be popular to take the funds of others and speculate with them. There are many who are practicing that iniquity. Almost every man in the course of his life has the property of others put in his care. He has administered, perhaps, for a dead friend; he is an attorney, and money passes from debtor to creditor through his hands; or he is in a commercial establishment and gets a salary for the discharge of his responsibilities; or he is treasurer of a philanthropic institution, and money for the suffering goes through his hands; or he has some office in city or state or nation, and taxes and subsidies and supplies and salaries are in his hands. Now, that is a trust. That is as sacred a trust as God can give a man. It is the concentration of confidence in one, when that man takes that money, the money of others, and goes to speculating with it for his own purposes, he is guilty of theft, falsehood and perjury, and in the most intense sense of the word is a miscreant.

So there has been a great deal of fascination thrown around libertinism. Society is very severe upon the impurity that lurks around the alleys and low haunts of the town. The law pursues it, smites it, incarcerates it, tries to destroy it. You know as well as I that society becomes lenient in proportion as impurity becomes affluent or is in elevated circles, and finally society is silent or disposed to palliate. Where is the judge, the jury, the police officer that dare arraign the wealthy libertine? He walks the streets, he rides in the parks, he flaunts his iniquity in the eyes of the pure. The hag of uncleanness looks out of the tapestried window. Where is the law that dares take the brazen wretches and put their faces in an iron frame of a state prison window?

Sometimes it seems to me as if society were going back to the state of morals of Herculaneum, when it sculptured its vileness on pillars and temple wall and nothing but the lava of a burning mountain could hide the immensity of crime. At what time God will rise up and extirpate these evils upon society I know not, nor whether He will do it by fire or hurricane or earthquake; but a holy God I do not think will stand it much longer. I believe the thunderbolts are hissing hot and that when God comes to chastise the community for these sins, against which He has uttered Himself more bitterly than against any other, the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah will be tolerable as compared with the fate of our modern society, which knew better, but did worse.

We want about 10,000 pulpits in America to thunder: "All adulterers and whoremongers shall have their place in the hell that burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death." It is hell on earth and hell forever. We have got to understand that iniquity on Columbia heights or Fifth avenue or Beacon hill is as damnable in the sight of God as it is in the slums. Whether it has canopied couch of elderdown or dwells amid the putridity of a low tenement house, God is after it in His vengeance. Yet the pulpit of the Christian church has been so cowed down on this subject that it hardly dares speak, and men are almost apologetic when they read the Ten Commandments.

Then look at the fascinations around assassination. There are in all communities men who have taken the lives of others unlawfully, not as executioners of the law, and they go scot free. You say they had their provocations. God gave life, and He also has a right to take it, and He may take it by visitation of Providence or by an executioner of the law, who is His messenger. But when a man assumes that Divine prerogative he touches the lowest depth of crime.

Society is alert for certain kinds of murder. If a citizen going along the road at night is waylaid and slain by a robber, we all want the villain arrested and executed. For all garrotting, for all beating out of life by a club or an ax or a slungshot, the law has quick spring and heavy stroke; but you know that when men get affluent and high position and they avenge their wrongs by taking the lives of others, great sympathy is excited, lawyers plead, ladies weep, judge halts, jury is bribed and the man goes free. If the verdict happen to be against him, a new trial is called on through some technicality, and they adjourn for witnesses that never come, and adjourn and adjourn until the community has forgotten all about it, and then the prison door opens and the murderer goes free.

Now, if capital punishment be right, I say let the life of the polished murderer go with the life of the vulgar assassin. Let us have no partiality of gallows, no aristocracy of electrocution chair. Do not let us float back to barbarism, when every man was his own judge, jury and executioner, and that man had the supremacy who had the sharpest knife and the strongest arm and the quickest step and the stealthiest revenge. He who willfully and in hatred takes the life of another is a murderer, I care not what the provocation or the circumstances. He may be cleared by an enthusiastic courtroom, he may be sent by the government of the United States as minister to some foreign court, or modern literature may polish the crime until it looks like heroism; but in the sight of God murder is murder, and the judgment day will so reveal it.

There are hundreds of young men who have good blood. Shall I ask three or four plain questions? Are your habits as good as when you left your father's house? Have you a pool ticket in your pocket? Have you a fraudulent document? Have you been experimenting to see how accurate an imitation you could make of your employer's signature? Oh, you have good blood. Remember your father's prayers. Remember your mother's example. Turn not in an evil way. Have you been going astray? Come back. Have you ventured out, too far?

At Brighton Beach or Long Branch you have seen men go down into the surf to bathe, and they waded out farther and farther, and you got anxious about them. You said: "I wonder if they can swim." And you then stood and shouted: "Come back! Come back! You will be drowned!" They waved their hand back, saying: "No danger." They kept on wading deeper down and farther out from shore, until after awhile a great wave with a strong undertow took them out, their corpses the next day washed on the beach. So I see men wading down into sin farther and farther, and I call to them: "Come back! Come back! You will be lost! You will be lost!" They wave their hand back, saying: "No danger; no danger." Deeper down and deeper down, until after awhile a wave sweeps them off forever. Oh, come back! The one farthest away may come.

"Oh," you say, "you don't know where I came from; you don't know what my history has been; you don't know what iniquity I have plotted. I have gone through the whole catalogue of sin." My brother, I do not know the story, but I tell you this—the door of mercy is wide open. "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." Though you had been polluted with the worst of crimes, though you have been smitten with the worst of leprosies, though you have been fired with all earthly pains, this moment on your brow, hot with iniquitous indulgence, may be set the flashing coronet of a Saviour's forgiveness.

A JUDGE'S WIFE

CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless---Cured by Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. Judge McAllister writes from 1217 West 33rd st., Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any.

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged.

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured. Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing I could wish for, and thanks to Peruna I enjoy that now."—Minnie E. McAllister.

MRS. JUDGE MCALLISTER.

The great popularity of Peruna as a catarrh remedy has tempted many people to imitate Peruna. A great many so-called catarrh remedies and catarrhal tonics are to be found in many drug stores. These remedies can be procured by the druggist much cheaper than Peruna. Pernna can only be obtained at a uniform price, and no druggist can get it a cent cheaper.

Thus it is that druggists are tempted to substitute the cheap imitations of Peruna for Peruna. It is done every day without a doubt.

We would therefore caution all people against accepting these substitutes. Insist upon having Peruna. There is no other internal remedy for catarrh that will take the place of Peruna. Allow no one to persuade you to the contrary.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

J. P. Snyder returned last week after a stay of several weeks in Missouri. His trip proved to be very beneficial to his health.

We are needing rain very badly. The crops are suffering greatly on account of the dry hot weather, and if it continues much longer the corn and potato crops will be very short.

We called at the store at Gunpowder Saturday about 9 o'clock, and found the proprietor very busy and a little grum, which was very unusual for him, but learned he had not had his breakfast, and further that he had bought a new rubber tired buggy the day before, which caused such a peculiar sensation he could not resist, and did not sleep much during the night. Billy gave it a trial Sunday and has fully recovered and is at his post of duty again.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; C. S. Baisly, Bullittsville; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

The celery fad has had its day; now the asparagus fad holds the boards. Eating asparagus has become a "fad" in the last few years. Itsgrowth in popularity can doubtless be ascribed to its supposed medicinal properties. Whether it is useful as a diuretic or not, there appears to be no question about its wholesomeness. A man named Goblet living near Charleston, S. C. has made a fortune raising it for the New York market.—North American Horticulturist.

The prospects for a large fruit crop in the Fruit Belt of Michigan were never better. The fruit trees in this section appear to be overloaded. Look over your orchard and take off from one third to one-half the fruit early in the morning. It will pay you.

OWEN COUNTY.

[Herald.]

Several Owen county boys and a very few Grant county boys went to Kansas to help in the harvesting of their big wheat crop. The harvest only continued for a few weeks, and now the boys must perforce seek other employment or return home, and their expenses will amount to more than their wages for the short time they were in the Sunflower State.

Wheat threshing has progressed rapidly during the past ten days and by the end of the week but a small part of the crop will be left. The yield has been about 75 per cent.

Americans are the greatest coffee-topers in the world.

More than 800,000,000 pounds were consumed here last year.

One-half of the world's production of coffee berries come to the United States.

Every week more than a million dollars is sent out of the United States in payment of coffee.

Last year Germany and France together only consumed half as much coffee as the United States.

The total value of the coffee imported into the United States was something like $60,000,000 last year.

Most of our coffee comes from South and Central American countries. The rest comes from Puerto Rico, Java and the Phillippines, with a little from Hawaii.—Philadelphia Times.

Crop and Stock.

Jessamine Journal reports 15,000 bushels of new wheat sold in Wilmore neighborhood from 55 to 58 cents.

The wheat crop of the county turned out fairly well. From information gained from the various parts of the county, we set down the average at about 12 bushels to the acre, of a splendid quaility.—Oldham New Era.

The charbon epidemic in Mississippi has advanced the price of mules in the Memphis, Tenn., market. Good stock is now bringing from $150 to $225 per head. It is possible that the price will pass this mark within the next few days.

A commission consisting of three men appointed by the Mikado of Japan has arrived in the United States to investigate the horse question in this country. Japan wants to improve her cavalry service and thinks American horses, and especially Kentucky horses, are necessary to that end.

A drove of more than seventy-five head of cattle being driven to Louisville by Frank McKinley and Tolon Dooley, were frightened and stampeded by a passing train, near Riceville, Ind. The whole drove rushed over a cliff, sixty feet high. The animals which were not killed outright by the fall, had to be killed on account of broken limbs,

At Kansas City, as a result of drouth, hay sold for $20 a ton, a cent a pound, the highest price ever reached in that market. This is almost as much pound for pound as wheat is worth. Receipts were very small and most of the hay which came in was sold some time ago in the country before the drouth became so serious.

There is a prospect, it seems that Maryland and Virginia may be able to add oranges to their annual crops. The Department of Agriculture is making experiments that promise well for these states. Five years ago the first experiments were begun with the Japanese orange, which is extensively used for hedges. Later the sweet orange was grafted upon this hardier stock, and trees representing the cross are growing vigorously in the department grounds in Washington and are now covered with blossoms. Should the yield this year be up to expectations, steps will be taken toward planting the new variety extensively in Virginia and Maryland.

The white grub, which often in a dry season eats off the roots of the grass and corn, and will eat almost any root which is not too hard, is the larva of what is known as the June beetlepin and farther South as the May beetle. It often is so abundant as to make it necessary to plow up fields where they have destroyed all the grass, and even then it is difficult to destroy the grub. But we have seen it stated that the beetle, though it flies mostly by night, is a leaf-eating insect, and where the trees are sprayed with arsenites many of them are killed. As one of their favorite foods is the leaf of the hickory tree, that should be sprayed regularly each year.—American Cultivator.

The American Cultivator says that the original greening apple tree is still standing on the farm of Solomon Drowne, at Mount Hygeia in North Foster, R. I. The tree was a very old one when the farm was sold in 1801. The seller informed the purchaser that it was a pity the old tree was going to decay, as it produced the best fruit of any tree in the orchard. The purchaser determined to see how long he could keep it alive, and it still survives, after almost another century has been added to its venerable years. But it shows signs of final decay, and the parent of all the famous Rhode Island greenings, which has set its grafts on the orchards of almost all the world, will soon be but a neighborhood memory.

The correspondents close their reports on or before the first day of the month; and in the estimates given, the rainfall after that date is not considered, though it may change conditions somewhat in the next report. On the whole, excepting wheat, conditions show improvement over June report. An exception is noted with some crops in the extreme Western counties where drouth prevailed, and was getting to be serious.

Corn has gained two points in acreage, due to some wheat fields being plowed up and put in corn. Its condition, too, has gained seven points. Wheat shows 79 per cent of an average crop. It is lowest in second crop division, where the figure is 65, due to ravages of the fly. Oats shows improvement, as do also barley and rye. Hemp acreage has increased over last year and condition jumps from 93 to 99. Tobacco loses one point in acreage, mostly due to failure to set full crop, because of drouthy conditions in first division. It gains one point in condition.

BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, - - KENTUCKY.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels, B grade, with celebrated Goller steel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Wluchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and pattern, which I claim has no equal. The body will be good, seasoned yellow poplar; sills and rises good seasoned ash and hickory—not Cottonwood as the factories are now using. Notice the corners of a factory body and you find them burstiug out, something I guarantee my work not to do.

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters bulled, not spilt, roof and curtains 30 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large euough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be something neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 69, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of T. J. Childress' toll-gate.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 31, 1901. NO. 41.

Corn at 50 cents a bushel has no trouble to find purchasers.

If all millionaires were like Andy Carnegie the world would be better off. He is a liberal giver of his immense income for literary purposes.

Yet, it is warm here, but think what it is in some places where a man can light a match by sticking it in a pail of water that had stood in the sun for a few minutes.

Will Senator Frye please explain how it is that 26 huge American seagoing steamships are now being built-when he demonstrated so positively that none could be without loss-without a subsidy bill?

At last Schley has demanded a court of inquiry. Only retired officers should be placed on it, for only such can be entirely free from the influence which the Navy Department will throw so strongly against Schley.

At Circleville, Ohio, last Sunday, Rev. C. Viney, of the Baptist church, startled his congregation by declaring the temperature of heaven and hell each to be 826 degrees. The question is how did he obtain his information?

It seems that the common school trustees in some of the Kentucky counties were more industrious and particular than some of their neighbors in taking the school census, and they are now accused of padding the returns.

What is the wheat or cotton crop of the country compared to the apple crop, which in 1899 was valued at $430,000,000, nearly 50 per cent greater than either of those named? Corn was the only American product that excelled it, though hay nearly equalled it.

From the hullabaloo over Bob Evans' interview in regard to those insurgent signals at Cienfuegos, one would think that the facts presented were altogether new. Yet they were printed time and again two years ago and were never questioned. The public has a short memory.

Gov. Bradley advised Mr. Grinstead, the Sapp nominee for Mayor of Louisville, not to accept the nomination, saying no honest man could accept it. Arson and burglary both figured in the primary, and it was one of the most disgraceful political affairs in the history of the State.

Over seven thousand pensions have already been granted for disabilities incurred in the Spanish War, nearly all of them in the West Indies. As the entire army force there was less than 20,000 men, it is evident that if the Spanish had kept on fighting a little longer our army would have been exterminated.

If Mr. Davezac is as good a Democrat as has been claimed for him all along, he would never have begun his contest of the result of the recent Kenton county primary election. He has had hold of the public teat so long that he thinks his being defeated for a continuance at the trough could only be accomplished by fraud.

No opposing candidate having come to the front, John M. Lassing will to-morrow be declared the Democratic nominee for Circuit Judge in this district, as provided in the order of the district committee calling the primary election. Mr. Lassing has already made for himself the reputation of good, upright business Judge, and he will be triumphantly elected.

Why does not the Navy Department demand from Sampson an explanation of his failure, whether by neglect or willfulness, to impart to Schley the signals agreed on between himself and the insurgents. He knew them when he sent Schley to Cieufuegos, why did he not impart them? Was it for the same reason that later compelled the newspaper boats to take to the Brooklyn all the news of the fleet, she being kept in dense ignorance by the flag ship?

The recent Republican primary election in Louisville has been declared n. g. by the party authorites.

News from the great corn belt of the Southwest indicates that the forty days drouth has at last been broken. Copious showers have fallen in nearly all portions of the stricken section, and more rain is predicted. The late crops will receive the greatest benefit.

It is to be hoped that the nice shower of rain that fell here last evening will be followed up by a rainfall that will give the ground a thorough wetting. The corn in this county will not make to exceed half a crop, no matter how favorable the remainder of the season proves.

Western farmers have carried over a vast quantity of corn from last year's bumper crop, and as this year's wheat crop will partly compensate them both in quantity and value for the shortage in corn, 1901 will not be known as a year of "crop failures," although of corn there will be the poorest crop in 11 years.

It is very difficult for Sampson to find a valid excuse for his absence at the time Schley destroyed the Spanish fleet at Santiago. Had the result of the battle been reversed, Sampson's absence from the scene of action would have been regarded as criminal. Sampson, leading the other enemies of Schley, will never be able to rob him of the honor of that naval victory, and they might as well leave for other waters.

The Care of Hogs.

It is said that the hog digests more concentrated food than other animals.

After hogs are over ten months old they increase in ponuds slower and cost more per pound.

Brood sows are kept in prime condition with plenty of good sweet food and grass, or clover, or rape. They must not be allowed to run down.

Decomposed food is both unfit and dangerous to feed to swine. Fresh and sweet are words for all kinds of feed.

It is a rare thing, but sometimes recorded animals are pedigreed scrubs, from some cause or other. Get rid of such.

Charcoal! Yes and wood ashes too, for hogs. Make them of charred corn cobs if no wood is burned. It is good for their health.

If the pigs have plenty of grass and green stuft they will keep healthy as a rule, with abundance of pure cool water of course.

The real test of the brood sow is capability to grow a good litter of pigs, and we put the emphasis on the word good, as well as upon the number. Fatten for slaughter any that do not come up to the standard and get better ones.

At the recent meeting of the Americau Holstein-Friesian Cattle Association, held at Syracuse, N. Y., the secretary reported that during the year 112 new breeders had been added to the list of membership, and that industry was in a very flourishing condition, financially and otherwise.

The Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute for colored students started in a little shanty with one teacher and thirty students. At present there are about 1,100 students and eighty-two instructors. Starting with no property the institution now owns property valued at $350,000, including more than 2,000 acres of land and forty-eight buildings. Practically all of the buildings have been erected by the labor of the students themselves.—Collier's Weekly.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville; O. N. Grant, Bellevue; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

Quail on the Farm.

We read a great deal in the farm papers about the benefits of the quail on the farm as an insect destroyer, but no one notes the value of the common domestic turkey in that capacity, writes Mrs. F. M. Smith in "Farmers' Voice."

It would be profitable to most farmers in these days of myriads of insect pests to inclose their farms with good wire fence, so that they could keep the turkeys at home, and then breed a flock each year, the size of which should correspond to the size of the farms. On a farm of 80 acres a flock of 40 or 50 can be raised with very little expense, until the insects are gone in the fall. From that time on feed all the corn they will eat until selling time, and the clear profit will be double that on each pound of hog flesh sold.

We have been raising turkeys 13 years and consider them the most profitable crop on the farm. We have watched and studied their ways and needs until we have learned to handle them so that we have a very small percentage of loss with young poults.

We always have grain or sour milk curd(which is better) for them when they come up nights, all through the summer, and it adds to their weight, while it proves a great inducement to bring them home at night. Plenty of water and always in the same place is another essential, and last, but not least of their needs, is a good out-of doors roost that is easy of access to the little ones. The natural mother knows their needs and nature better than a chicken hen does, and it is much less trouble to the housewife. The turkey hen takes them oft to the fields, where they convert worms, crickets, grasshoppers, etc., into flesh, which sells for cash at the farmer's door.

What makes dull times? It's because everybody owes everybody and nobody pays anybody. Now if somebody would pay somebody, so that somebody could pass it on and everybody could pay everybody, then nobody would owe anybody and hard times would be no more, says an exchange. There's food for thought in it.

J. P. Hudson, extensively engaged in the mule trade at New Orleans, gave the Danville Advocate information in regard to the prospects of the trade. He has recently returned from a trip West, upon which section the trade relies to supply the market, and states that mules are scarcer there than ever before known. Throughout the country generally the supply has fallen off more than at any time since the war. Meanwhile the three or four wars which have been going on have increased the demand to such an extent that mules are now higher than for many years, small mules are now higher than for many years, small mules having doubled in value in the last two years, while large mules are about 20 per cent higher. The short crop of forage in the west will compel the South to rely on Tennessee, Kentucky and Indiana almost entirely this year for grain and hay.

Of late years there has been much complaint from persons living in other States who purchased blue grass seed which would not grow. An investigation was started and it was discovered that in Canada a seed similar in looks to blue grass seed is gathered, mixed with the genuine article and sold as such. Of course this, when scattered, does not grow like the grass in the Kentucky fields and farmers through out the United States will not purchase the seed except from responsible dealers. It is the intention of the blue grass farmers to petition Congress to enact laws to prohibit the adulteration of this class of seed by making heavy penalties for violations. This, it is believed, will do away with the practice. The Canadian adulterated seed is sold much cheaper than that gathered by the Kentucky blue grass growers, and it will be necessary to secure legislation to protect the blue grass product.

Crop and Stock.

Farmers are progressing well with threshing. Mr. Henry M. Childers had a field to make 30 bushels per acre, but as a rule the farmers are reporting much lighter yields than they expected. Very little wheat is coming to town yet. Only 59c, was offered here yesterday.—Woodford Sun.

A great complaint comes up from the farmers this season in regard to "white top." The meadows are ruined by it in many instances and in nearly every other case the meadows are barely worth cutting. New meadows, those that yield the first crop this year are in quite as bad condition as fields that have been sown three or four years. The farmers complain that the timothy seed they buy has in it this white top seed. A machine that would clean timothy seed would be in great demand. We don't know that such a machine exists, if it does and the sale of it is pushed there is a fortune in it. If there is no such machine the invention of one would be a Klondike discovery. Sellers of seed owe it to themselves, honesty and to their customers to see to it that the seed is clean and that the purchaser gets what he pays for.—Elizabethtown News.

The farmer that persists in selling his tobacco to Trust agents in the country is no wiser than the man who stooped in the middle of a railway track and expected the approaching train to run off the track before reaching him, just because he wanted it to do such a thing. The comparison is this sense is not at all out of place, for the farmer who continues to sell to the trust in the country is lending his assistance to break up the auction markets, the only barrier between him and this crushing monoply. The fact an auction market sets the price and retains it, especially so when the trust can be made to continue an auction buyer, should be strong enough evidence of the good offices of an auction market. If all the Kentucky growers of tobacco would refuse to sell to the trust in the country this winter the price of tobacco would be 3 cents a pound higher, if half of them should do this the price would be close to 2 cents a pound higher than last season, and the effect of even a smaller proportion than this would be beneficially felt. We wonder why the Kentucky farmer is not willing to try it anyhow.—The Weed.

GRANT COUNTY.

From Williamstown Courier.

John Coulson, of Corinth, who was confined in the county jail on a fine imposed by the county Court, was put to work on the stone crusher last week to pay his fine. John concluded his room was better than his company and took French leave.—Williamstown Courier.

The oil speculation that is just now "rampart" in Grant county may and may not mean much for the people of this part of the "Moral Vineyard." Suffice it to say, however, that three or four companies are in Grant county leasing oil rights on every hand and in almost every part of the county. These leases are based on a small cash bonus and a royalty to the holder of the land upon all oil found upon the premises leased, and condition that the company securing the lease must put down a well within a specified time or forfeit the lease. There has been no deep well put down in this part of Kentucky, and almost every shallow well of five hundred feet or less has struck gas and oil. There is every indication that ata depth of 2,000 or more feet oil would be struck in paying quantities. It may be that there is more wealth below the ground in Grant county than there is above and let us hope there is.

The Walton Postoffice Contest.

Mr S. L. Edwards, Dear, Sir.—

Your favor of the 24th, inst. in which you for the first time make a proposition in regard to settling Walton postoffice by popular vote, is at hand. Your suggestion is entirely impracticable and that or any other proposition on the subject comes at this time with poor grace from you after you have exhausted not only ordinary but extraordinary means to win, and so far have failed. The case has been heard fully by the Boone Co. Republican Executive Committee. The patrons of the office, particularly the Republicans have expressed themselves by petitions and letters. This being usual and customary channel for such contests to take, and the case having been thoroughly tried and being under submission, I refuse to consider any proposition, whatever.

I remark, however, as your proposition is evidently a little piece of vainglory on the part of your manager, Mr. Metcalfe, like the article in the last week's Recorder, that the endorsement my sister has here by Republicans is entirely satisfactory, and that on the part of those who are friendly to you and Mr. Metcalf, there is absolutely no hostility to me or my sister except such as exists in Mr. Metcalf's imagination.

Word has been sent me by your joint tenant in the postoffice, Mr. Metcalfe, that you and he expect to run free wagons to Burlington on first Monday, and that you expect to ask the convention for an endorsement. I beg leave to say that the convention is not called for that purpose, and that such action would be without precedent in Boone County. I shall oppose the convention giving any endorsement whatever for the Walton postoffice or any other. Should the convention, however, decide that this is proper business to consider, I shall attack your claim for the endorsement in every legitimate manner, and shall uphold the claim of my sister in every legitimate matter. I shall most surely attack some of Metcalfe's "questionable methods" and hold you responsible for it

On March 30th, 1901, Mr. Metcalfe, present postmaster, fearing removal as I suppose, but assigning as a reason that his services would be required outside of the State, committed himself to a resignation at the expiration of his four years. Since that time he has, with great ability and zeal, devoted himself wholly to your cause; you have given him, as your landlord, $15 per month for the privilege of administering the postoffice. Now, if he succeeds in getting the office in your name, what do you propose to give him as his stake out? If nothing, let Mr. Metcalfe advise in the convention and explain his zeal in your cause. Supposing you are appointed by this administration for four years, and assuming that the office has already been held eight years by the other members of your family, how much longer would you think yourself entitled to it for voting the Republican ticket? Considering that you and Metcalfe have already had so much of the sweets of office, considering that you are each worth $10,000, and considering that your families are grown and educated, and considering further that you each draw a substantial peusion from Uncle Sam, and that you are both able bodied and were never in hearing distance of a battle, don't you think that the manly thing for you and Metcalfe to do would be to stand aside for a woman who needs the office—who shows, on her part, an unbroken record of fealty to the Republican party and without an exception on the part of a single member in a large family relationship, and whose qualifications and fitness are unchallenged?

Your expressions of continued friendship, no matter how this contest results, I reciprocate, and pronounce you in this public manner, a clever and affable gentleman.

Yours Truly, J. G. Tomlin.

The men were hired, they say, with the distinct understanding that no strike was on, and gave a press representative a circular to that effect issued by the agent who hired them. They claimed to be union men, and said that under no conditions would they take the place of strikers. The men, when told that trouble might occur on their arrival in Chicago, however, expressed great indignation at the published statement that no strike was on.

This completely stopped all street car traffic over the structure, but after a temporary delay pedestrians and wagons were allowed to proceed. The vertical cables which pulled out were imbedded in the great cables upon which the bridge is hung.

The pulling out of the vertical cables was caused by the heat. The accident caused great excitement, the police reserve being called out.

THE PRECEPT ISSUED.

The Scope of the Schley Court of Inquiry Outlined.

The Court Will Probably Sit For Several Months, More Than Likely Until Congress Convenes in December.

New York, July 24.—Rr. Adm. Winfield Scott Schley has asked Secretary Long to appoint a court of inquiry to determine the facts in regard to his course in the Santiago campaign. While Rr. Adm. Schley will not discuss his determination, or even admit that he has asked for an inquiry, since he could not do so without a breach of naval etiquette, it is nevertheless true that the application has been made.

Washington, July 23.—Secretary Long, in accordance with a request from Adm. Schley, Wednesday advised that officer that he would order a court of inquiry to examine into the entire matter of Adm. Schley's course in the Santiago naval campaign. Later the secretary announced that owing to extremely hot weather the court would not meet until September, and that he would turn over his reception to the committee to the court.

Washington, July 26.—Secretary Long announced Thursday morning that he had selected Adm. Dewey and Rr. Adms. Kimberly and Benham as members of the Schley court of inquiry.

Capt. Samuel C. Lemley, judge advocate general of the navy, was Thursday afternoon selected as judge advocate of the court of inquiry.

Washington, July 27.—The precept to the Schley court of inquiry, which the navy department has been preparing for several days, was given to the public. It is a document addressed to Adm. Dewey, as president of the court instructing him concerning the matters to be investigated. While it directs that the "entire matter" of Adm. Schley's conduct during the operations in the West Indian waters shall be investigated, making use of the very words employed by Adm. Schley in his letter to Secretary Long. It also selects certain distinctive acts of the rear admiral concerning the facts and propriety of which it calls for particular investigation. These points cover briefly Adm. Schley's alleged delay with the flying squadron at Cienfuegos, the slowness of his progress toward Santiago after leaving Cienfuegos, the retrograde movement toward Key West, the effectiveness of the bombardment of the Spanish fleet at the ranges used in the reconnoissance of May 31, the state of the coal supply on various ships when he telegraphed the department that he would return to Key West, the loop of the Brooklyn at Santiago, the accuracy of his reports, and matters relating to the controversy between him and Commander Hodgson over the alleged colloquy which is said to have taken place aboard the Brooklyn when the loop was made during the naval engagement off Santiago. With the exception of the last two points, the others practically sum up the criticisms of Adm. Schley's conduct made by Secretary Long to the senate, which the secretary characterized as Schley's "reprehensible conduct." One of the important points in the precept is the direction to the court to report in its conclusions "all the pertinent facts which it may deem to be advisable to be established, together with its opinion and recommendations in the premises."

The court will convene September 12 at the navy department.

Judge Advocate General Lemley, who was designated as judge advocate of the court, will now proceed with the preparation of his case. He will examine all documents and prepare a list of witnesses. The court probably will sit for several months, more than likely until after congress convenes in December.

No word has been received from Adm. Kimberly, who it was reported had written to the department saying that his health made it inadvisable for him to attempt to serve on the court. He will not be officially notified of his selection as a member of the court until he receives the precept, which was mailed to him. A copy of the precept also will be sent to Adm. Dewey and Rr. Adms. Benham and Schley.

INJUNCTION PROCEEDINGS.

St. Louis Citizens Seek to Prevent Forest Park From Becoming Part of World's Fair Grounds.

St. Louis, July 26.—Messrs. Werdes and Beyman have applied for an injunction against one of the parks being given up to the use of the World's fair. They declare that they are taxpayers and are bringing the injunction proceedings on behalf of all the taxpayers in St. Louis.

The ordinance passed by the municipal assembly says the petition is nothing more than the leasing of the finest park in the city to a private corporation for its own pecuniary benefit.

Finally, the petition declares the city is really a partner with the exposition company in leasing the park. It says that by voting $5,000,000 in bonds to aid the fair, the city becomes a partner. The willingness of the municipal assembly thus to lease Forest park is due, the petition states, to its expectation of sharing in the gain with the private corporation.

RACE DECLARED OFF.

Impossible to Get The Abbots in Condition For the Contest With Cresceus on August 15.

Cleveland, O., July 26.—Trainer Ed Geers Thursday afternoon announced that it would be impossible to get The Abbott in condition, on account of distemper, for the race with Cresceus at Brighton Beach on August 15, and the race has been officially declared off.

This match was one of the most talked of events in turf circles of any similar event for years. The Abbott and Cresceus were matched to go a mile for a purse of $12,000, best three in five heats, at the Seaside meeting of the New York Trotting association and the Brighton Beach track.

On August 15 Cresceus will go an exhibition mile at Brighton Beach to beat the world's record now held by The Abbott, and on August 17 he will go for the wagon record of 2:05¼, also held by The Abbott.

The storm flooded Mrs. Langtry's new theater, the Imperial. A number of public buildings were damaged.

The crops in the country surrounding London were laid low and the telegraph wires were torn down. Several suburban transportation lines are temporarily blocked, the water in some cases reaching over the footboards of the trains.

A BIG CONFLAGRATION.

Sawmill and Residence Property at Davenport, Ia., Destroyed.

Over Fifty Homes Were Burned—The Total Loss Will Aggregate About $700,000—No Fatalities Were Reported.

Davenport, Ia., July 26.—Fire laid waste to an area of sawmill and residence property in Davenport Thursday evening equal to 20 ordinary city blocks. The flames started in the afternoon in a big pile of kindling wood belonging to the Rock Island Fuel Co. on the levee. A brisk breeze was blowing and carried the flames directly across the immediate lumber yard of Weyerhauser & Denkmann, which was soon a roaring furnace. The spread of the fire was so rapid that workmen barely had time to escape. The fire pushed its way into the adjoining residence district, closely settled with working men's homes, from which the occupants escaped only with their lives and the clothing on their backs. Over 50 homes, thus burned, and some tenements, left a hundred families homeless. Others deserted their homes before the fire got to them. Vacant houses all over town are now filled with furniture removed from the fire district.

The flames were fought heroically by the departments of Davenport, and of Rock Island and Moline, Ill., the latter cities responding promptly to an appeal for aid. All efforts to check the flames were unavailing at first, and they spread on to St. Catharine's hall, a boarding school for young ladies, which was saved by hard work after the tower had burned off. Gradually the battle of the firemen began to show results. The less thickly settled portions of the city were invaded, and by 10 o'clock the conflagration was under control.

It is impossible to give more than a rough estimate of the property loss at this time. It is believed there were no fatalities. The Weyerhauser Denkmann Co.'s mill and yards were destroyed. The loss here is at least $400,000. Residence and other losses will reach $300,000 more.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Emperor William Is Soon to Assume the Role of Peacemaker Between the Boers and British.

London, July 26.—"The rumor as to early peace negotiations which has pervaded the house of commons for some days," says the Daily Express, "has taken the more definite form that Emperor William is soon to assume the role of peacemaker. Mr. Kruger and his advisors are represented as having empowered the kaiser to act for the Boers, and he is considered willing to take the initiative in order to popularize his relations with the German people, who disapprove his friendship for Great Britain. Something apparently is on foot, whether Emperor William is in it or not."

Mr. Kruger's arrival at The Hague is connected, the Daily Express thinks, with the rumored peace suggestions.

THE GRAND LOTTERY.

Last Act in the Throwing Open of the Indian Reservation.

Drawing Takes Place in El Reno, O. T., and Is Witnessed By Thousands of People—Novel and Interesting Sight.

El Reno, O. T., July 29.—All is expectancy among the thousands of homeseekers here over the grand lottery that began Monday morning. There are 13,000 claims to be distributed, and so each of the 165,865 persons who have registered during the past 15 days has about one chance in 13 of winning. While the great excitement of the "run" which has heretofore been a part of other land openings in this part of the country is lacking, the last act in the throwing open to settlement of the Kiowa-Comanche reservation was not without life and animation.

The drawing is being conducted in the center of the city, and witnessed by thousands of people. It is being held on a large platform in the open air. W. A. Richards, assistant commissioner of the general land office, and who has had charge of the registration; D. P. Dyer, of St. Louis, former United States district attorney, and Frank Dale, ex-chief justice of Oklahoma, are conducting the drawing.

The actual drawing is novel and interesting. On the platform are two oblong box wheels, each 15 feet in length, one to hold the names of the applicants for homesteads in the El Reno district, and the other for those of the Lawton district. Into these wheels are placed envelopes containing the names of all the registered applicants. The envelopes are first brought to the platform in packages consecutively numbered. A corresponding series of numbers, upon slips, are placed in another receptacle, from which they are drawn out at random. The package of envelopes bearing the first number drawn is the first to be placed in the drawing box and well distributed, when another number was drawn and another package of envelopes distributed, and this course will be continued until all of the envelopes have been placed in the box wheels, after which the wheels are revolved for a sufficient length of time to insure a thorough mixing of the envelopes.

In each wheel there are five apertures from which the envelopes are finally drawn. Ten men, one for each aperture, perform the actual drawing. The order in which they began was determined by lot.

The first envelope drawn was No. 1, which was at once opened and the identification slip which it contained was given a corresponding number, and the name and residence which appears upon the slip is publicly announced. This course was pursued, numbering each envelope and its contents consecutively, until 25 numbers were drawn from one box, when an equal number were drawn from the other box in a similar manner. This course was pursued until 500 names had been drawn from each box.

After the names have been drawn and announced they are recorded and a notice was mailed to the one whose name is drawn. The drawing will proceed in this manner until every envelope in the boxes is drawn out.

Only 1,000 envelopes, 500 for each district, was drawn Monday. After the first day the drawing will proceed with greater rapidity, and it is expected that the last envelope will have been drawn by Thursday night.

A SACK OF SILVER.

One Thousand Dollars Belonging to the Commercial National Bank, Chicago, Disappears.

Chicago, July 29.—A sack containing 1,000 silver dollars has mysteriously disappeared from the Commercial national bank, and although several detectives have been put on the case, their efforts so far have been futile. The package, which weighed about 50 pounds, was left outside the vault by mistake when the bank closed for the night, and since then no trace of it can be found.

This is the second strange disappearance of a package of money belonging to the Commerical national bank within a year. Detectives are still looking for a bundle of $20,000 in bills shipped by the bank with the Adams Express Co. to the National state bank at Burlington, Ia., August 17 last. When the package was opened at Burlington it contained only clippings of paper.

FREE FOR ALL FIGHT.

One Man Killed and Three Fatally Wounded in a Shooting Affray at King's Mines.

Cambridge, O., July 29.—One man was killed and three fatally wounded in a shooting affray at King's mines, this county, Sunday morning, growing out of the alleged intimacy of a colored man and a wife of a white miner.

The dead: Grant Taylor, ager 25, married.

Fatally wounded: Melvin Shelton, aged 20, shot in the abdomen and bullet taken out at side of spinal cord.

Joseph Bedden, aged 22, shot through the abdomen.

The fight started with William Bisby, colored, accused of criminal intimacy with the wife of Grant Taylor, and who, with the woman, had been warned to leave the place, attacking Mack Shelton with a stone, knocking out his eye, fracturing his skull and nearly killing him.

Melvin Shelton and Joseph Bedden came to Shelton's assistance with revolvers and opened fire on Grant Taylor, who sided with his wife and colored man. A desperate battle ensued, in which Taylor was killed. After he was prostrate on the ground he raised on one elbow and shot and mortally wounded Melvin Shelton and Bedden. Bisby barricaded himself in the house and stood off the mob until the arrival of the sheriff and posse. He was brought to the jail here and was under strong guard Sunday night against a surprise by the infuriated local miners. The wounded men can not live through the next 24 hours, and an uprising of the miners of the county to lynch Bisby is expected as soon as the deaths are known.

RENEW NEGOTIATIONS

Striking Steel Workers and Employers Hold a Conference.

The Meeting Lasted For Several Hours—J. P. Morgan, President C. M. Schwab and Judge F. H. Gary Were Present.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 29.—The strike of the steel and tin workers of the Amalgamated association against the United States steel corporation will probably be settled this week. The conference held in New York Saturday between the officials of the United States steel corporation and President T. J. Shaffer and Secretary John Williams, of the workers' organization, has resulted in paving the way for renewal of negotiations between the two conflicting interests. It is said that a basis for such a conference has been arrived at. This basis will not be divulged until later this week. If the basis is satisfactory to the general executive committee of the Amalgamated association the conference between the association and manufacturers will proceed at once. If, on the other hand, the basis is not what the Amalgamated association considers negotiable grounds, the strike will continue.

President Shaffer and Secretary Williams, of the Amalgamated association, returned from New York Sunday. They spent many hours in conference with the leading officials of the steel trust, and came home with hopes for an early ending of the strike. In Pittsburgh, little was known of the conference, but the greatest interest in the outcome was shown among the manufacturers. Vice President Bope, of the Carnegie Steel Co., said that he had heard absolutely nothing of the results and did not know that the conference was on. I. W. Jenks, general manager of the American Steel Hoop Co., and Superintendent Harper, of the same company, were equally in the dark.

Additional information regarding the New York meeting of the industrial leaders was afterward picked up from reliable sources. It was stated that the two Amalgamated officials left Pittsburgh on Friday night, and when they arrived in New York, went direct to the private office of Mr. Morgan. The meeting between the Pittsburgh men and Mr. Morgan lasted from about 11 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. During the conference President C. M. Schwab and Judge F. H. Gary were present most of the time. Another conferee was Mr. Dawkins, one of Mr. Morgan's partners. The Amalgamated officials directed their attention almost entirely to Mr. Morgan and President Schwab. They went over the grounds on which the strike began and discussed a settlement basis. After exchanging views with the steel officials, Mr. Shaffer and Mr. Williams left.

It is believed that before the end of the week the mills will all be ready to run again, providing repairs undertaken since the strike began are completed. Should the whole project fail of coming to an amicable end, however, the fight promises to be more bitter than ever.

A TORNADO.

Heavy Rain and Wind Storm in North Dakota—Church, Store and Dwellings Blown Down.

Fargo, N. D., July 29.—A heavy rain and wind storm pervaded Sunday afternoon over a good part of the state, and the greatest damage is reported at Tappen, 123 miles west of Fargo, where it amounted to a tornado. A church, a store and some dwellings and barns were blown down and the Northern Pacific depot unroofed. Wires were down for some hours, and crops in the path of the storm, which was several miles wide, were destroyed. In the Red river valley rain fell from the national boundary line all the way down the state line. A resolution was adopted expressing the opinion of the congress that the health officers should continue every effort to prevent the spread of tuberculosis through milk and meat and as that doubts concerning human immunity from bovine tuberculosis raised by Dr. Koch were of vital importance to the public health and the agricultural interests of the country, the government should immediately institute a rigid inquiry into the identity of human and bovine tuberculosis.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

A WILD WOMAN.

She Clawed a Man and Chases Little Children in the Taggett Creek District.

Middlesboro, Ky., July 25.—The Taggart Creek district is being terrorized by what he believed to be a wild woman. The creature has long black hair, and in other respects resembles a woman. She first attracted attention by dropping 40 feet from a tree upon John Lane, who was riding horseback. Lane was terrified by the screams of the wild woman, who lacerated his face with her long nails and tore his hair and clothing. He is now in a terrible nervous condition as the result. He fought off the wild woman with the desperation of terror, and escaped.

Since then the wild woman has been seen by a number of people, but in the most instances scampers into the underbrush when observed. Recently she chased three children with a club and only their nearness to their homes saved them.

THE BALLOTS GONE.

Louisville, Ky., July 27.—The committee appointed to canvass the returns from the republican primary held to nominate for municipal offices and the legislature reported Friday night that so many ballots had been burned and stolen that it was unable to determine who the nominees were. At the meeting of the committee affidavits were made to the effect that two candidates before the primary had broken into the ballot boxes and destroyed the returns. One of the candidates is in Collector Sapp's employ, and his resignation will be asked for.

Mr. Sapp said Friday night that the primary nominations would probably be called off and a convention called to make all the nominations.

WILL BE SHORT CROPS.

The Corn and Tobacco Burning Up and the Pasturage Will Not Sustain the Stock.

Louisville, Ky., July 26.—Commissioner of Agriculture Ion B. Nall stated Thursday that his report issued July 1 indicated short crops of corn and tobacco in Kentucky, but that the intensity of the drought since has added greatly to the unfavorable conditions of both crops. Corn in the southern part of the state has been practically burnt up. Tobacco has been greatly injured, but with rain would make half a crop. The drought prevails in from two-thirds to three-fourths of the state. Pastures have been parched and will not sustain stock in many localities, but hay, where not weedy, has been saved in good order.

The Negro opened a gate, but instead of stepping aside when ordered he stood his ground. As Edson Riddell and wife were returning from Anderson's Ferry Sunday afternoon, having taken Geo. F. Piper and family that far on their way home, the pole to the carriage dropped, when near Chas. Scott's residence on the Limaburg pike, and the horses began running and kicking. A general mixup was the result, Mrs. Riddell getting slightly hurt on the head she knows not how, as she remained in the vehicle until the horses broke loose. Edson jumped out and escaped injury. After the horses got loose from the carriage they ran to the toll gate where they were caught. It was a narrow escape for the occupents the carriage, as it was also for a son of Esq. J. H. Walton, whose horse was struck by the runaways and knocked into the ditch with the rider.

His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." Typhoid Fever.

The appearance of typhoid feaver at least one month earlier this year is giving cause for alarm, not only to the doctors in the cities but also to those in the country. The fact of its earlier appearance is due mainly to the low stage of water caused by the drouth and excessively hot weather, which revives the dormant bacilli. We give below some words of warning from Dr. Otis Cameron, one of the most distinguished bacteriologist in the country: "I can not be too emphatic in urging caution upon the citizens, especially in their use of drinking water, and employing such prudence as may be observed against this disease, without much inconvenience. Typhoid bacilli retain their vitality in the sterilized water for a considerable time. In unsterilized water they die in two weeks in consequence of the activity of the water bacteria, by which they are suppressed, and more quickly in running water than in stagnant water. Milk may at times contain living typhoid bacilli for as long a time as five weeks. In the slime of streams and of wells typhoid bacilli retain their capability for development for not less than three weeks. They appear in the faces, retaining their activity for three months and over. Typhoid bacilli bear cold quite well, they are not injured by freezing for two or three times and subsequent thawing. They are less resistant to heat, and, therefore, only boiled water should be drunk. Infection by inhalation from the floor dust is not frequent. In humau beings the digestive tract appears to be the only portal of entry for the bacilli."

Supt. Voshell and School Examiners Craven and Snyder met last Friday and adopted a common school curriculum for this county. They adopted new books for the following studies: History, Readers, Grammar, Physiology, Geography and Spelling. The History is by Susan Pendleton Lee, and published by B. T. Johnson Publishing Co., Richmond, Va. It is a nicely arranged and well written volume. The print is large and clear, and the student is carried through the history of his country by periods. The readers are the "Graded Literature Readers," published by Maynard, Merrill and Co., New York. They are handsome and substantial volumes, embracing matter that will interest the pupils from the first to the last chapter. They are certainly an improvement on the readers that have been in use in the schools in this country so long. These new books are to be introduced in a manner that will not work a hardship on the parents. When a child needs a new reader, for instance, the old one will be taken in part pay, a liberal allowance being made for it. The books now in use are not to be discarded until the pupil passes to another grade or needs a new book, when the old will be replaced by the new. The following books were adopted:

Lee's History of U. S.
Natural Geography.
Johnson's Speller.
Copy Book, Spencerian.
Judson & Bender's Readers.
Hutchinson's Physiologies.
Ray's Arithmetic, excepting Elementary.
Reed's Language.
Reed & Kellogg's Lessons in English.
Peterman's Civil Government.
Swinton's Composition.
Kinkead's History of Kentucky.

DIED—At her home in Taylorsport, July 13th, 1901, Mrs. C. F. Sprague, in the 83d year of her age.

Funeral services were held at the church July 14th, Rev. Wm. Humphrey, of Home City, officiating, assisted by Mrs. Armstrong of the Constance Mission, after which the remains were interred in the village cemetery. She leaves two daughters and four sons, all of whom, with one exception, were present when she passed away, and they were all loving, devoted children, and will sadly miss her, as will also the community at large, for she ever had a word of christian encouragement or admonition for every one she met. She also left a number of grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The church here, as long as it stands, will be a memorial to her memory, and bear substantial testimony to her trusting and abiding faith that her prayers for a church would be answered. It had its small beginning in a series of meetings held in the orchard and house, Rev. Wm. Humphrey, of Home City, being the preacher. There was very little encouragement at first, but she never lost faith and her zeal never flagging till she succeeded in enlisting others in the cause. Many strangers from a distance, hearing of her efforts for a church, contributed liberally, and the day the church was dedicated was one of the happy days of her life.

She was ever sympathetic and helpful to the poor—her hospitality was unbounded and her house the home for all the ministers who came to preach. She was the one who always looked out for the wants of the church. Two years ago, when preparing to spend the winter with her daughter in Miamiburg, Ohio, she went out and made a collection and purchased coal for the use of the church during her absence.

Her seat was never vacant in church or Sabbath School, when she was able to go, and she always took an active part in all the exercises. She died as she had lived, in the full triumph of a living faith, and has gone to her reward. May she rest in peace. ***

THE EVILS OF GOSSIP

A Sermon to Those Who Are Disposed to Talk Too Much.

Discourse of Dr. Talmage on the Text "Discover Not a Secret to Another"—Good and Bad Secret Societies.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

A practical question which is asked in most houses, and for many years, is here asked by Dr. Talmage and answered; text, Proverbs 25:9, "Discover not a secret to another."

It appears that in Solomon's time, as in all subsequent periods of the world, there were people too much disposed to tell all they knew. It was blab, blab, blab; physicians revealing the case of their patients, lawyers exposing the private affairs of their clients; neighbors advertising the faults of the next-door resident; pretended friends betraying confidences.

One-half of the trouble of every community comes from the fact that so many people have not capacity to keep their mouths shut. When I hear something disparaging of you, my first duty is not to tell you, but if I tell you what somebody has said against you and then go out and tell others what I told them that I told you, and we all go out, some to hunt up the originator of the story and others to hunt it down, we shall get the whole community talking about what you did do and what you did not do, and there will be as many scalps taken as though a band of Modocs had swept upon a helpless village. We have two ears, but only one tongue, a physiological suggestion, that we ought to hear a good deal more than we tell. Let us join a conspiracy that we will tell each other all the good and nothing of the ill, and then there will not be such awful need of sermons on Solomon's words: "Discover not a secret to another."

Solomon had a very large domestic circle. In his earlier days he had very confused notions about monogamy and polygamy, and his multitudinous associates in the matrimonial state kept him too well informed as to what was going on in Jerusalem. They gathered up all the privacies and poured them into his ear, and his family became a sorosis or female debating society of 700, discussing day after day all the difficulties between husbands and wives, between employers and employes, between ruler and subjects, until Solomon, in my text, deplores volubility about affairs that do not belong to us and extols the virtue of secretiveness.

By the power of a secret divulged families, churches, neighborhoods, nations, fly apart. By the power of a secret kept great charities, socialities, reformatory movements and Christian enterprises may be advanced. Men are gregarious—cattle in herds, fish in schools, birds in flocks, men in social circles. You may by the discharge of a gun scatter a flock of quails or by the plunge of the anchor send apart the denizens of the sea, but they will gather themselves together again. If you by some new power could break the associations in which men now stand, they would again adhere. God meant it so. He has gathered all the flowers and shrubs into associations. You may plant one forgetmenot or heartsease alone, away off upon the hillside, but it will soon hunt up some other forgetmenot or heartsease. Plants love company. You will find them talking to each other in the dew.

You sometimes see a man with no outbranchings of sympathy. His nature is cold and hard, like a ship's mast ice glazed, which the most agile sailor could never climb. Others have a thousand roots and a thousand branches. Innumerable tendrils climb their hearts and blossom all the way up, and the fowls of heaven sing in the branches. In consequence of this tendency we find men coming together in tribes, in communities, in churches, in societies. Some gather together to cultivate the arts, some to plan for the welfare of the state, some to discuss religious themes, some to kindle their mirth, some to advance their craft. So every active community is divided into associations of artists, of merchants, of bookbinders, of carpenters, of masons, of plasterers, of shipwrights, of plumbers. Do you cry out against it? Then you cry out against a tendency divinely implanted. Your diadea would accomplish no more than if you should preach to a busy ant hill a long sermon against secret societies.

Here we find the oft discussed question whether associations that do their work with closed doors and admit their members by passwords and greet each other with a secret grip are right or wrong. I answer that it depends entirely on the nature of the object for which they meet. Is it to pass the hours in revelry, wassail, blasphemy and obscene talk or to plot trouble to the state or to debauch the innocent, then I say, with an emphasis that no one can mistake, No! But is the object the defense of the rights of any class against oppression, the improvement of the mind, the enlargement of the heart, the advancement of art, the defense of the government, the extirpation of crime or the kindling of a pure hearted sociality, then I say, with just as much emphasis, Yes.

There is no need that we who plan for the conquest of right over wrong should publish to all the world our intentions. The general of any army never sends to the opposing troops information of the coming attack. Shall we who have enlisted in the cause of God and humanity expose our plans to the enemy? No; we will in secret plot the ruin of all the enterprises of Satan and his cohorts. When they expect us by day, we will fall upon them by night. While they are strengthening their left wing we will fall on their right. By a plan of battle formed in secret conclave we will come suddenly upon them crying: "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon." Secrecy of plot and execution is wrong only when the object and ends are nefarious. Every family is a secret society, every business firm and every banking and insurance institution. Those men who have no capacity to keep a secret are unfit for positions of trust anywhere. There are thousands of men whose vital need is culturing a capacity to keep a secret. Men talk too much, and women, too. There is a time to keep silence as well as a time to speak.

Although not belonging to any of the great secret societies about which there has been so much violent discussion, I have only words of praise for those associations which have for their object the maintenance of right against wrong or the reclamation of inebriates or, like the score of mutual benefit societies called by different names, that provide temporary relief for widows and orphans and for men incapacitated by sickness or accident from earning a livelihood. Had it not been for the secret labor organizations in this country monopoly would long ago have, under its ponderous wheels, ground the laboring classes into an intolerable servitude. The men who want the whole earth to themselves would have got it before this had it not been for the banding together of great secret organizations, and while we deplore many things that have been done by them, their existence is a necessity and their legitimate sphere distinctly pointed out by the Providence of God. Such organizations are trying to dismiss from their association all members who are in favor of anarchy and social chaos. They will gradually cease anything like tyranny over their members and will forbid violent interference with any man's work, whether he belongs to their union or is outside of it, and will declare their disgust with any such rule as that passed in England by the Manchester Bricklayers' association, which says any man found running or working beyond a regular speed shall be fined two shillings sixpence for the first offense, five shillings for the second, ten shillings for the third, and if still persisting shall be dealt with as the committee thinks proper.

There are secret societies in our colleges that have letters of the Greek alphabet for their nomenclature, and their members are at the very front in scholarship and irreproachable in morals, while there are others the scene of carousal, and they gamble, and they drink, and they graduate knowing a hundred times more about sin than they do of geometry and Sophocles. In other words, secret societies, like individuals, are good or bad, are the means of moral health or of temporal and eternal damnation. All good people recognize the vice of slandering an individual, but many do not see the sin of slandering an organization. There are old secret societies in this and other countries, some of them centuries old, which have been widely denounced as immoral and damaging in their influence, yet I have hundreds of personal friends who belong to them—friends who are consecrated to God, pillars in the church, faithful in all relations of life, examples of virtue and piety. They are the kind of friends whom I would have for my executors at the time of decease, and they are the men whom I would have carry me out to the last sleep when I am dead. You cannot make me believe that they would belong to bad institutions. They are the men who would stamp on anything iniquitous, and I would certainly rather take their testimony in regard to such societies than the testimony of those who, having been sworn in as members, by their assault upon them confess themselves perjurers.

One of these secret societies gave for the relief of the sick in 1873, in this country, $1,490,274. Some of these societies have poured a very heaven of sunshine and benediction into the home of suffering. Several of them are founded on fidelity to good citizenship and the Bible. I have never taken one of their degrees. They might give me the grip a thousand times and I would not recognize it. I am ignorant of their pass-words, and I must judge entirely from the outside. But Christ has given us a rule by which we may judge not only all individuals, but all societies, secret and open. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Bad societies make bad men. Good societies make good men. A bad man will not stay in a good society. A good man will not stay in a bad society. Then try all secret societies by two or three rules.

Test the first: Their influence on home, if you have a home. That wife soon loses her influence over her husband who nervously and foolishly looks upon all evening absence as an assault on domesticity. How are the great enterprises of reform and art and literature and beneficence and public weal to be carried on if every man is to have his world bounded on one side by his front doorstep and on the other side by his back window, knowing nothing higher than his own attic or lower than his own cellar? That wife who becomes jealous of her husband's attention to art or literature or religion or charity is breaking her own scepter of conjugal power. I know an instance where a wife thought that her husband was giving too many nights to Christian service, to charitable service, to prayer-meetings and to religious convocation. She systematically decoyed him away until now he attends no church, waits upon no charitable institution and is on a rapid way to destruction, his morals gone, his money gone and, I fear, his soul gone.

Here are six secular nights in the week. "What shall I do with them?" says the father and the husband. "I will give four of these nights to the improvement and entertainment of my family, either at home or in good neighborhood. I will devote one to charitable institutions. I will devote one to my lodge." I congratulate you. Here is a man who says: "Out of the six secular nights of the week I will devote five to lodges and clubs and associations and one to the home, which night I will spend in scowling like a March squall, wishing I was out spending it as I have spent the other five." That man's obituary is written. Not one out of ten thousand that ever get so far on the wrong road ever stops. Usually his health will fail through late hours, and through too much stimulants he will be first-rate prey for erysipelas and rheumatism of the heart.

The doctor coming in will at a glance see it is not only present disease he must fight, but years of fast living. The clergyman, for the sake of the feelings of the family, on the funeral day will only talk in religious generalities. The men who got his yacht in the eternal rapids will not be at the obsequies. They have pressing engagements that day. They will send flowers to the coffin, will send their wives to utter words of sympathy, but they will have engagements elsewhere. They never come. Bring me mallet and chisel, and I will cut that man's epitaph: "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord?" "No," you say, "that would not be appropriate." "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his?" "No," you say, "that would not be appropriate." Then give me the mallet and the chisel, and I will cut an honest epitaph: "Here lies the victim of dissipating associations!"

Another test by which you can find whether your secret society is right or wrong is the effect it has on your secular occupation. I can understand how through such an institution a man can reach commercial success. I know some men have formed their best business relations through such a channel. If the secret society has advantaged you in an honorable calling, it is a good one, but has your credit failed? Are bargain makers now more anxious how they trust you with a bale of goods? Have the men whose names were down in the commercial agency AI before they entered the society been going down since in commercial standing? Then look out. You and I every day know of commercial establishments going to ruin through the social excesses of one or two members, their fortune beaten to death with ball players' bat or cut amidships with the front prow of the regatta or going down under the swift hoofs of the fast horses or drowned in the large potations of cognac or Monongahela. That secret society was the Loch Earn. Their business was the Ville de Havre. They struck, and the Ville de Havre went under!

The third test by which you may know whether the society to which you belong is good or bad is this: What is its effect on your sense of moral and religious obligation? Now, if I should take the names of all the people in this audience and put them on a roll and then I should lay that roll back of this organ and a hundred years from now some one should take that roll and call it from A to Z there would not one of you answer. I say that any society that makes me forget that fact is a bad society.

Oh, man astray, God help you! I am going to make a very stout rope. You know that sometimes a rope-maker will take very small threads and wind them together until after awhile they become a ship cable. And I am going to take some very small, delicate threads and wind them together until they make a very stout rope. I will take all the memories of the marriage day—a thread of laughter, a thread of light, a thread of music, a thread of banqueting, a thread of congratulation—and I twist them together, and I have one strand. Then I take a thread of the hour of the first advent in your house, a thread of the darkness that preceded, and a thread of the light that followed, and a thread of the beautiful scarf that little child used to wear when she bounded out at eventide to greet you, and then a thread of the beautiful dress in which you laid her away for the resurrection, and then I twist all these threads together, and I have another strand. Then I take a thread of the scarlet robe of a suffering Christ, and a thread of the white raiment of your loved ones before the throne, and a string of the harp cherubic, and a string of the harp seraphic, and I twist them all together, and I have a third strand. "Oh," you say, "either strand is enough to hold fast a world!" No. I will take these strands, and I will twist them together, and one end of that rope I will fasten, not to the communion table, for it shall be removed; not to a pillar of the organ, for that will crumble in the ages; but I wind it round and round the cross of a sympathizing Christ, and, having fastened one end of the rope to the cross, I throw the other end to you. Lay hold of it! Pull for your life! Pull for Heaven!

ORGANIZATION OF TRUSTS.

Proof That Prices Are Raised by Combines Gives Republicans the Lie.

The typical way in which trusts are organized is given in announcing the formation of the Salmon Canning combine. The total stock issued, says the Chicago Chronicle, is $10,000,000, to be divided as follows:

Six per cent. debentures	$3,000,000
Seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock	8,500,000
Common stock	6,500,000

It is understood that the underwriting syndicate will furnish $3,000,000 cash, receiving therefor $3,000,000 in debentures, with a bonus of $1,500,000 preferred stock and $1,500,000 common stock.

This company, therefore, starts out by presenting the underwriting syndicate with $3,000,000 of preferred and common stock for their share of the plunder; the balance of the common stock is doubtless pure water, as is probably the case with the remaining $5,000,000 of preferred stock, as only $3,000,000 in cash is used in the transaction.

The information is also given that the annual capacity of the combined concerns is 2,000,000 cases, so if the salmon canned by the original companies produced a profit of 20 per cent. it will require the combine to increase the price about 100 per cent. to pay a like profit. This was tried once and eventually find its way into bank vaults as security for loans and when a tight time comes in the money market some bank will fail with large assets that are "not immediately available." The sufferers will not be the trusts, but the unfortunate depositors.

The increase of railroad fares and freight rates has been systematically going on ever since the combinations were effected. The freight rates have generally been increased in the round about way of raising the classification. The Buffalo Times says: "The Pan-American is now complete, but the railroad rates keep the crowds away." This is corroborated by the managers of the Pan-American exposition, who give out the following information: "We can cite many instances where the railroads have put up their rates far in excess of what the fare was before the exposition."

This is pretty good proof that trusts and combinations do raise prices, notwithstanding the efforts of Gen. Grosvener and other republican leaders to prove that they are an advantage to the people.

MEETING OF CONSPIRATORS.

Plotting of Trust Magnates That Bodes No Good for the Common People.

There was a meeting in New York a few days ago that bodes ill for most of the balance of us. There were present Senator Hanna, J. P. Morgan, President Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania railroad, and C. A. Griscom, of the American line of steamships. What they met for is not disclosed, but as they are all bent on the ship subsidy steal, no doubt that was one of the matters; then they are also interested in the bituminous coal trust, now forming, which is intended to divide the control of the mines among the railroads, just as the anthracite field has been apportioned, and there raise the rate "all the traffic will bear," and the price of coal accordingly. This they will find to be a big job, for the bituminous coal fields are much more extensive than the hard coal ones, and the "soft coal trust" will have to quite equal in capitalization the steel trust, if not exceed it.

One thing is certain. These leaders of the republican party did not meet with any philanthropic idea in view, and it is quite possible that they were scheming to squeeze the dear people a trifle more on some new trust combination or monopoly. When you order your winter's stock of coal you may know more about it.

PLAYING HIDE AND SEEK.

The Industrial Commission Not a Roaring Republican Success.

That industrious bunch of professional office seekers known as the industrial commission are playing hide-and-seek with a fact that is in plain view of those who want to see it. The fact that some of the members of the commission wish to find and the others do not, is "are American goods sold abroad cheaper than at home?" Mr. Schwab, the million dollar president of the steel trust, testified before the commission that this was the case. The secretary of the Home Market club admits the same, but these authorities insist there is no harm in it. The great majority of the commission being republicans, they may not find the fact, but the minority have it right before them, if it has not been suppressed like some other matters have been. This industrial commission has not been a roaring republican success.

Hanna and Foraker.

"Hanna pretends to be for Foraker. Oh, yes," said the Mansfield Shield some time before the republican state convention, "but he cannot talk without letting it be known that he would prefer to see the former fire alarm retired to private life." Possibly Senator Hanna saw this paragraph and took warning, for the way he "pitched in" for Foraker was something almost spectacular. Well, we have no doubt Mr. Hanna is for the reelection of his colleague. There are times in politics when personal animosities must take back seats. Anyhow, Mr. Hanna carries out his bargains. He belongs to that class of politicians who must.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ACTING UNDER COVER.

Republicans Who Are Afraid to Legislate in an Open Manner.

Jefferson said: "I am not amongst those who fear the people," but Jefferson was a democrat. That republican politicians do fear the people is evident when they do not allow them to vote on measures in which they are interested.

Some hostile comment has recently been indulged in with reference to the referendum which the constitution of South Dakota allows, says Louis Post in the Public. It is observed that the referendum is not what it has been cracked up to be, or it would have been resorted to in that state. But it has been resorted to, and with gratifying effectiveness. Last winter the republican ring tried to jam through a plundering measure in redemption of campaign promises. In the senate the measure passed triumphantly, and the house was ready to rush it through as smoothly as Quay ran the corrupt franchise bills through the legislature of Pennsylvania, where no referendum right is reserved to the people. But at that point the ring met with a sudden and decisive check. It ran up against the referendum clause of the South Dakota constitution. Opponents of the corrupt measure warned the republican leaders that if the bill was passed a referendum vote would be called for. This would have sent the measure to the people for approval or rejection, and the republicans dared not face such an ordeal. Orders were consequently given, and the lower house obediently defeated the measure. One beauty of the referendum was here exemplified. It is not always necessary to resort to it in order to get the benefits of its protection. Like a good watch dog, it may as often drive away thieves with a growl as with a bite.

THE TARIFF WALL USED.

Contrast Between Trust Prices of Iron and Steel at Home and Abroad.

The industrial commission need not look far to find the evidence that at least one of the trusts—the steel trust—is selling its products cheaper abroad than in this country, for the Baltimore Sun says: "That the monster steel consolidation with headquarters at Pittsburgh is using the tariff well for all it is worth is shown by the following paragraph in the Engineering News, which knows what it is talking about: 'The contrast between trust prices for iron and steel to the home consumer and to the foreign consumer has often been set forth, but so frequently denied that some actual figures may be of interest. A recent cable dispatch from England states that American wire rods are offered delivered in Manchester at $29.30 per ton. Market quotations in the United States are $39 per ton. Adding cost of freights, etc., it is clear that the wire rod maker is netting at least $15 per ton more profit from his American customers than from his foreign sales. It is not strange that the iron and steel magnates deprecate any interference with the tariff.' The trust no doubt effects 'economies of production;' but the trust and the foreigner, not the American consumers, get the benefit of cheaper production. The trusts naturally think the present tariff satisfactory, but the taxpayers object to it so long as foreigners are favored at their expense."

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

—There won't be any further bickerings of republicans concerning the tariff when once the trusts have said their say.—St. Louis Republic.

—After all the screeching of the republican organs, the Tom Johnson platform for the equal taxation of railroads with other property was adopted by the Ohio democratic convention.

—The Standard Oil trust and the sugar trust control the foreign commercial policy of this country, having succeeded in closing the Russian ports to most of our productions.

—Since the sultan of Sulu has been placed on our pay roll by the republicans, he believes there must be no change of administration. The trusts and combines, who also draw pay through the protective tariff, believe the same way.

—Rathbone and Neely have not yet been brought to trial for stealing the Cuban post office funds, and Perry Heath is still on the lookout for a chance to become a millionaire, and "the pillars of the temple" are yet erect and standing.

—Great Scott, he of the national republican committee, who admits having written 17,000 letters to old soldiers during the campaign, cannot for the life of him remember having promised Gen. Sickles, that Evans, the pension commissioner, should be removed. The facts are, he did make the promise to all the old veterans who demanded it, and there is no doubt that Hanna and McKinley intended to carry it out before election, but after election is another matter.

—There would seem to be another factional fight in progress among the republicans about the future of Cuba and the tariff on her productions. One side, represented by the New York Press, would repel and impoverish Cuba; the other side, of which the Inter Ocean is the spokesman, would pave the way for "manifest destiny," which in this case, means annexation. The beet sugar and tobacco combine may yet disrupt the republican party, and if they do they will be blessings in the disguise of sormorants.

BACTERIA IN COFFEE.

Ohio Grocer Convicted of Violating the Pure Food Laws of the State.

Toledo, July 30.—The jury in Judge Meek's court in this city has found James White, a local grocer, guilty of selling adulterated coffee. The prosecution was based on a package of Arbuckles' Ariosa coffee.

The State of Ohio, through the Pure Food Commission, prosecuted White. The case was on trial for nearly a month and attracted national attention.

The manufacturers of Ariosa coffee conducted the defense for Grocer White. The best attorneys in the country were retained to defend him but, after a short consultation, a verdict of guilty was returned by the jury. The State of Ohio considers this a big victory. Pure Food Commissioner Blackburn has been waging a warfare on spurious food articles and the department has been very successful.

The complaint of the State of Ohio was that Ariosa coffee was coated with a substance which concealed defects in the coffee and made it appear better than it is. The State charged that this coating or glazing was a favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria.

Prof. G. A. Kirchmaier, of this city, a well-known chemist, was the principal witness for the State. He had made scientific examinations of samples of Ariosa purchased in the open market from Grocer White. He found that each Ariosa berry contained an average of 300 bacteria. Mr. Kirchmaier further testified that other coffees he examined contained few bacteria or none at all. He declared that the glazed coffee was not a wholesome food product.

Chemist Schmidt, of Cincinnati, corroborated the testimony of Prof. Kirchmaier. The State did not present further testimony.

The defense, through the Arbuckles, who prepare this glazed coffee, secured some of the most eminent chemists and scientists in the United States to give testimony in their behalf. Prof. H. W. Wiley, of the United States Agricultural Department; Prof. Vaughn, of Ann Arbor University; Profs. Bielle and Webber, of the Ohio State University, were called to defend Ariosa. Dr. Wiley had made a careful examination of the method of manufacturing Ariosa. He told of the 19,000,000 eggs used by the Arbuckles yearly in the preparation of this glazing. On this point in cross examination, the State's attorneys deftly drew from him the information that these eggs might be kept in cold storage by the Arbuckles for a year or two at a time.

The experts who heard Dr. Wiley's testimony were pleased to be able to "catch" so famous a chemist. The doctor at one point in his testimony explained very clearly how it is that the egg put into the coffee pot by the housewife settles the coffee. He said that the heat coagulates the egg, and as it sinks to the bottom of the pot it carries the fine particles of the coffee with it, and thus clarifies the drink. It is the act of coagulation in the coffee pot that does the work. Later on in his cross examination, he had to admit that when the egg was put on Ariosa coffee at the factory, it became coagulated, and as egg cannot be coagulated but once, that the coating on coffee was of practically no value as a "settler" when it reached the coffee pot.

Prof. Wiley acknowledged that the glazing might be a favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria, although he would not testify positively either way because he was not a bacteriologist.

Prof. Vaughn, of Ann Arbor University, also a witness for the Arbuckles, said he found bacteria on Ariosa coffee.

Prof. Bielle, another witness for the defense, found any number of lively bacteria on the Ariosa coffee he examined, and he agreed that glazed coffee surely was a more favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria than unglazed coffee.

The verdict of the jury in this case is of national importance because a great many other states have Pure Food Laws like that of Ohio, and it is natural to suppose that similar action will be taken by other Pure Food Commissioners to prevent the sale of glazed coffees.

Pure Food Commissioner Blackburn says: "The State is very much elated over its victory against this big corporation. We are now considering the advisability of informing every grocer in the State of Ohio that it is an infraction of the laws to sell Ariosa, and at the same time give warning to consumers that the coffee is an adulterated food article."

The Emperor Was Polite.

A woman who is of high social distinction in America was presented to the kaiser at some dinner that was not attended with royal state. She was talking to him when she was offered a famous German salad. It was handed on her right and the kaiser was on her left, which put her in a predicament. She did not dare turn her face from the emperor to help herself to the salad. The situation was too much for her. The emperor, seeing the condition at a glance, looked at her for an instant and laughed, as he said: "A kaiser can wait, but a salad cannot."—Chicago Chronicle.

BELGIAN HARE HUTCH.

Colorado Fancier Describes One That Is Warmly Recommended by Other Breeders.

The Belgian hare fad is slowly abating, no doubt, and yet I find that people take a good deal of interest in these animals. One of our inquirers seems to have the same trouble that I had met; namely, that the young die off from some unrecognized cause. The boomers in this business usually claim that Belgian hares are exempt from disease. I have lost a good many, and have been unable to say from what cause or disease. Others who have had the same experience tell me that they have had better luck since adopting the practice of putting a drop of hydrachloric acid into one quart or so of the water given to the hares to drink. Another reader, Thomas Edwards, of Colorado, gives me a plan of a rabbit-hutch which strikes me as excellent and tempts me to build one exactly like it. The construction is shown in accompanying illustrations. My correspondent describes it as follows: "The building should have the floor at least two inches off the ground, and banked up as much as possible all around, for warmth. Nest-boxes for breeding does should have partition in for nest. Partitions between pens should be of wood, as some hares will fight through wire and they will not do well. Nest-boxes should have the lid hung with hinges, so that the dirt can be removed and the boxes opened."

In regard to the management Mr. Edwards says: "I feed once a day corn-chop, and alfalfa green when I can get it, and when I cannot, alfalfa-hay leaves. I do not change the food at any time, and I have as fine hares as anyone around here. I give plenty of fresh water and keep them supplied with salt. Climate has a great deal to do with the successful raising of Belgian hares. They require a very dry and fairly warm place, well protected from cold winds and shaded from the hot sunshine. The reason I feed my hares the way I do is that corn is fattening, and I find they grow better on it than on oats or wheat. Rabbits naturally are all muscle. They require some green food the year round, but not to excess, as it will cause bowel complaint; neither can they live on all dry food, as they cannot digest it. They require fresh water, and, above all, they must be kept absolutely dry; the least dampness will kill them off quickly. Keep each breeding doe separate and handle as little as possible. Do not breed a doe again until you can take the young from her. You will get better young ones and keep the doe in better condition. If hutches are kept clean you will find the hares will also be clean and more healthy. — T. Greiner, in Farm and Fireside.

Do Not Pen the Turkeys.

"I do not wonder that there are so many failures made in preparing turkeys in the market when we take into consideration the course so many breeders take in fattening their birds," says George Wolf, in Farm Poultry. "I have frequently seen flocks of turkeys penned up in a building for the purpose of fattening for market, and it was a failure every time. This is no more than should be expected, for turkeys are of a wild nature, and as soon as they are cooped they begin quarreling, chasing one another about and constantly worrying for freedom. They soon tire of their food, grow thin, and will, when killing time comes, weigh less than when first cooped with the expectation of fattening them."

Big Loss in Bleached Hay.

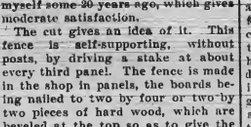
When a piece of cotton or linen is to be bleached it is laid on the grass, sprinkled with water or allowed to get wet with dew, and then exposure to the sun does the rest. The effect produced on the fabric by this process is duplicated with hay when it is allowed to be alternately wet with dew or rain and shone upon for any length of time by the hot sun. It is true that this cannot be avoided at all times, but every possible effort should be made to avoid it, for bleached out hay is so inferior that it is a pity to devote labor to its handling, and it is not profitable to compel stock to subsist on it during the winter.—Farm, Stock and Home.

TRAINING THE COLTS.

Well-Known Western Breeder Advocates Adoption of a Sort of Kindergarten System.

Dr. Curryer, of Minnesota, is one of the soundest authorities in the west on practical horse breeding. In a recent talk he said he was a believer in something of the nature of a kindergarten for young colts. He liked to begin the education of the colt when not more than a day old.

First catch the colt and hold him by putting one arm in front and one back of him. The pivotal point of action is the center of the body; fasten him in front and he tries to go backward. Fasten him at the rear and he tries to go forward. We should understand this law, which is a part of the nature of the colt, when we try to govern him. You can easily hold the colt if you place one arm under the neck and the other under the ham. Handle the colt first on one side, then on the other, and give him a lump of sugar. He may not eat it at first, but pass it around his mouth and he will soon learn to like it.



You have now shown the colt your power over him, and that you do not wish to hurt him. Next give him a lesson in the use of the halter. If you put the halter on him and pull he goes back. To counteract this, place a strap around his body just in front of his hind legs. Attach a rope to this and run it through a ring in the halter. When the colt goes back, pull him up to you, then give him some sugar.

When you are able to handle the colt well with the halter, give him some lessons in driving. Let the old horse teach the colts their first lesson, and to do this I take a pair of old carriage wheels on an axle. To these are clipped two wooden bars, 14 feet long, about two feet from the ends; the longest ends, extending in front, make the thills for the old horse. A crossbar is placed just in front of the wheels, extending out far enough to hitch the colts on either side of the old horse. The colts are hitched to light bars placed in front of the horse, with ropes arranged at the sides to keep the colts in place. They soon learn from the old horse what to do, and they get used to hearing the wheels roll behind them, so that they are not afraid when hitched to a wagon.

PORTABLE FARM FENCE.

The One Here Described and Illustrated Has Been in Actual Use for Many Years.

The best way to feed cattle when on pasture is to give one feed of corn a day, always feeding at the same time, and I prefer that it should be in the evening. It is best to give them what they will eat clean only; probably they will eat a peck each per day, but I would begin with less and gradually increase. To fully utilize the corn, hogs should follow the cattle always, and if any soiled corn is left in the box always throw it out when feeding and give them a lighter feed the next time. I have never seen a thoroughly satisfactory portable fence, but I invented one myself some 20 years ago, which gives moderate satisfaction.

PORTABLE PASTURE FENCE.

The cut gives an idea of it. This fence is self-supporting, without posts, by driving a stake at about every third panel. The fence is made in the shop in panels, the boards being nailed to two by four or two by two pieces of hard wood, which are beveled at the top so as to give the proper slope to the panels, which are made to slope alternately toward each other. The fence is supported by three short boards nailed across the uprights at the notch, and, of course, when it is moved these must be knocked off, but, even if they should be spoiled so that they cannot be used again, it takes but little lumber to replace them. I have a line of this fence which has stood 20 years without repairs, but it has not been moved in that time. I think that two men could take down and move a short distance and set up 40 rods or more of this fence in a day.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Care Prolongs Usefulness.

A horse that is well cared for will last a long time, if he is the right kind of a horse. At the late London cart-horse parade were a pair of bay wheelers that had been in the service of the exhibiting firm for 15 years, and the report of the show says they "were as well shown and as fresh as any of the young animals." As horses are not likely to go to work on London streets under five years old, this pair must be at least 20 years old. The good draft horses of London cost big money at the start and they are well cared for to keep them up to their work and prolong their period of usefulness.

Chicks Need Lots of Space.

Houses and runs should be in proportion. It is strange that the yards are large enough for the houses. In cities and villages it is no unusual sight to see a good-sized house and a run no larger than the house in the area covered. The result is a perfectly bare and often dusty ground plot. The area of the yard should be at least ten times that of the house in which the birds are kept, and if the yard is still larger it will not be of excessive size. In fact, it is best to have the area of the run so large that it will remain green throughout the entire growing season. —Farmers' Review.

GOOD CHARACTER AS DEFENSE

One Case in Which It Served to Break a Strong Chain of Circumstantial Evidence.

"Every lawyer in criminal practice can tell a story about cases in which circumstantial evidence seemed at some stage of the trial to condemn the accused in spite of the personal belief of the lawyer in his client's innocence."

This remark was made by a former judge from Ohio, who attended the Kennedy trial on the day the case went to the jury, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"It has been my observation and experience as judge and practitioner that in a case where the circumstances seem to form a chain the previous good character of the accused is the surest weapon to break the chain." He went on: "If this can be established there are few jurors who are sufficiently analytical to separate the direct from the circumstantial.

"I had one case when I was practicing in which I must have doubted my client if I had not had the most intimate relations with his business. And yet I was called upon to defend him on a charge of arson. The indictment was effected through the agency of a powerful insurance company. I may say that in spite of the good character of my client, the insurance company had reason to regard him with suspicion, at least.

"There were two brothers in the partnership. My client was the senior member of the firm. He was the one indicted, although the other brother was with him almost up to the last moment in the incident which led to the indictment. The firm was manufacturing woodwork. The stock was insured, but not excessively so.

"One night the brothers were returning home at an unusually late hour. To do so they passed their factory. One of them saw a man climb a fence and disappear. A moment later he thought he heard a noise like the raising of a window sash. He jumped out of the buggy and went into the factory, leaving his brother to take care of the rig.

"He went cautiously over the factory, but found nothing. He was gone longer than he had expected. The brother left with the team drove around several blocks in order to quiet the horses. When the brother who went into the factory came out he supposed the other one had got tired, and he walked hime. The brother with the horses returned to the factory and waited until he satisfied himself the other one had left the factory and then drove home.

"Two hours later the factory was in ashes. The insurance company sent an adjuster promptly. The payment of the loss was about to be made when the company changed its mind. An investigation was ordered. The next thing was an indictment of my client. As I learned later the indictment was procured on the statement of a man who swore to seeing the suspicious incident which I have related.

"He did see my client enter the factory at a late hour, and after he came out the witness followed him home, and it was a part of the man's testimony that my client went home in a course unusual. The witness who gave the testimony volunteered it to the company free from any prejudice against my client. That made it all the stronger. On cross-examination my client was unable to tell why he went home over an unusual course.

"It was also brought out, as a damaging circumstance, that the day before the fire the firm had received a consignment of varnish, and that, entirely contrary to custom, the firm had asked the railroad company not to deliver the same for a few days. The invariable custom had been to have all goods delivered on the day of their arrival. It was further brought out that an order for a carload of lumber was suddenly countermanded. This was also unusual.

"Another peculiarity, or circumstance, was that in his statement to the insurance company my client neglected to say at the first conference with the adjuster anything about his visit to the factory on the night of the fire.

"At this stage of the proceedings a manufacturer in Pennsylvania heard of the case. He did not know my client, but he knew the witness whose testimony has been the basis of the indictment. The Pennsylvania manufacturer came post-haste of his own accord to testify that the witness had been discharged because he was dishonest.

"However, before the Pennsylvania manufacturer reached our town the bank with which my client had done business for many years stood by him in his troubles. The president and directors not only testified to his sterling character, but they stated that they were willing to advance all the money he needed in reestablishing his business.

"Still, the state made a strong case entirely on the circumstances which I have related, up to the point where the character of its witness was overthrown. I made my argument entirely on my client's previous good character and the bad character of the state's witness. I did not attempt to explain circumstances. I dodged them effectually. I won my case. The insurance company paid its loss. My client was vindicated."

Chinese Duck Raisers.

In Hawaii enormous quantities of ducks are raised by the Chinese upon the edges of the ocean. Twice a day, within restricted areas, they are permitted to eat the young fish which swim in the inclosed coves. Fish are reported to be growing scarcer every year, and by some this diminution is attributed to the wholesale destruction of the young fry by the Chinese.—Albany Argus.

To Run Road by Telephone.

General Superintendent Clarke, of the Lackawana railroad, made the announcement at Scranton, Pa., the other night that his road, in the course of a few months, will be operated by telephone, instead of by telegraph, as at present, at a saving of about 60 per cent. in the hire of telegraph operators. He says that the telephonic system has been placed on the Morris and Essex branch, where its use has been successful, and that it is being put in as quickly as possible on the Scranton branch. First, the telephonic system will be given a thorough trial on the branch lines, and if it proves successful there will come into general use on the main line from New York to Buffalo, totally superseding the telegraph.

The Doctor's Joke.

He was a horrid doctor, anyway, and no gentleman, or he would not have been so cruel to the fair young girl who sought his aid. But even doctors are human and like to joke.

"You would have a great deal more trouble breathing without them," replied the cruel man, with a loud, hoarse laugh.

A Joke on the Doctor.

In astonishment he inquired what they were doing. Some questioning finally elicited an explanation that "de one what tells de biggest lie wins it." "Oh," said the doctor, "I am ashamed of you. When I was little like you I never told lies." A slight pause, then from the smallest girl: "Give him de candy."—N. Y. Tribune.

SUNSTROKE

The summer's awful heat will kill those not fit to resist it—those whose bodies are full of poison because they have neglected their bowels.

The victims of sunstroke, or of any of the other terrible dangers of summer—diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera morbus—are always those who have been careless about keeping clean inside, and as a result have their blood full of rotten filth breeding disease germs and their bodies ready with weakness to succumb to the hot spell. Dizziness, heat headaches, sick stomachs, sticky oozing ill-smelling sweats, restless nights, terrible pains, gripes and cramps in the bowels, sudden death on the street, all result from this neglect.

Keep yourself clean, pure and healthy inside, disinfected as it were, with CASCARETS CANDY CATHARTIC, the greatest antiseptic bowel tonic ever discovered and you will find that every form of summer disease will be effectively

ORDINATION

Of W. S. Taylor by Big Bone Church

About six mouths ago the Big Bone Baptist church called Bro. W. S. Taylor to succeed its time-honored and beloved pastor, Dr. J. A. Kirtley, who, on account of the weight of years, found it necessary to ask the church to release him from further service as pastor. Reluctantly and sorrowfully the church gave him up. Later, the church determined that Bro. Taylor, who had never been ordained, should be set apart to the full work of the Gospel Ministry, and invited sister churches to send representatives to meet with it to consider the advisability of so doing. Accordingly on July 26th, a large audience, including representatives from nearly every church in Boone county gathered, and a council was orgauized by the election of Dr. J. A. Kirtley Moderator and Bro. D. E. Castleman, Secretary. The forenoon was occupied by au examiuatiou of the Brother, which was conducted by the Moderator, assisted by various pastors in attendance. The council being satisfied with Bro. Taylor's christian experience, his call to the ministry and his doctrinal belief, it was unanimously agreed that he should be fully set apart and authorized to discharge the sacred duties of a minister of God. A committee was appointed on Order of Exercises, and it reported at once. After adjournment for noon, according to announcement, Bro. Elmer Atwood, pastor of Bellevue and Erianger, preached the ordinatiou sermou. Although our young brother had modestly endeavored to shift that important work to au older man, yet right well did he acquit himself. Next, prayer was offered by Bro. John Presser, a Big Bone boy, now called to labor lu Indiana. The next feature was the impressive one of the day—that of the venerable, retiring pastor delivering the charge to Bro. Taylor. Then Bro. O. M. Huey, who was reared in the church, delivered the charge to the membership. Having sat at the feet of Bro. Kirtley so long, and knowing the members so intimately, he was able to deliver a message wholesome and appreciative. His references to the retiring pastor were loving and teuder. Bro. N. F. Jones, of the Patriot, Indiana, church, in a characteristic speech, presented the Bible. Beuediction by Bro. W. S. Taylor, and a day spent lu Godly service, strikingly interesting to all, was closed. The brethren at Big Bone, as well as those of us who had seen but little of Bro. Taylor, until this day, think much of him, and we expect him to prove himself strong in the Lord and iu the faith once delivered to the Saints. He comes to us from Cynthiana. North Bend Association at Bapatists welcomes him and prays that he may be of great service among us. It is useless to say that the sisters had prepared splendid refreshments. Big Bone is justly celebrated for that. D. E. CASTLEMAN.

HOUSEWORK

Too much housework wrecks women's nerves. And the constant care of children, day and night, is often too trying for even a strong woman. A haggard face tells the story of the overworked housewife and mother. Deranged menses, leucorrhœa and falling of the womb result from overwork. Every housewife needs a remedy to regulate her menses and to keep her sensitive female organs in perfect condition.

WINE OF CARDUI

is doing this for thousands of American women to-day. It cured Mrs. Jones and that is why she writes this frank letter:

Glendeane, Ky., Feb. 10, 1901.

I am so glad that your Wine of Cardui is helping me. I am feeling better than I have felt for years. I am doing my own work without any help, and I washed last week and was not one bit tired. That shows that the Wine is doing me good. I am getting fleshier than I ever was before, and sleep good and eat hearty. Before I began taking Wine of Cardui, I used to have to lay down five or six times every day, but now I do not think of lying down through the day. MRS. RICHARD JONES.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

After the 1st day of March, 1901, I will build buggies for $50 up. The vehicle will have first-class wheels, B grade, with celebrated Gotier steel tire, drilled and bolted between spokes. The axle will be the celebrated Winchester 1000 mile axle, something neat and strong. The gearing will be of my own make and patteru, which I claim has no equal. The body will be good, seasoned yellow poplar; sills and rises good seasoned ash and hickory—not Cottonwood as the factories are now using. Notice the corners of a factory body and you flud them bursting out, something I guarautee my work not to do.

Trimming.

TRIMMINGS—Bows of second growth ash, steel socket of the improved Cleveland pattern; top to have leather sides quarters buffed, not split, roof and curtains 80 ounce rubber; lining, 14 ounce cloth any color you wish; back and cushion, leather or cloth as you wish; storm apron large enough to cover two people and turn water; rug carpet will be somethiug neat, full length, well bound, as will also the toe pad. I also build a two-seated, three spring

Pleasure Wagon for $67.

In fact Carriages, Phaetons, Surreys or any kind of a vehicle as cheap as any factory work, and I know a great deal better. I build this work on orders only. I carry no stock, so you can order what you want.

Carriage Repairs.

You ask me if I can shoe a horse. I answer, yes If you give me time enough I can make the shoe as good as anyone, but when it comes to paring the foot and driving the nails, I would lack the judgment—I could not level the foot and would prick your horse, and then how quick you would remove the shoe and do what you could for him, and all I could say would be too late. The same way with an axle or any other parts of a carriage. If they are on a strain, or a wheel that is dished out of shape I will fix it for you. No cure, no pay. Notice some

Prices on Wheels.

I will cut your wheels down, put on new XXX beveled rims and heavy steel tires for $6 69, and everything else in proportion.

Painting.

There are a great many ways to repaint a job. My prices are in reach of all. Following are my prices for 1901: $5, $8, $10 and $12. On my $10 and $12 jobs I give a written guarantee. If you can buy the paint and varnish and stripe your job and do the work for $5, I have nothing more to say on a $5 job. Come and see, learn and be convinced I mean just what I say.

The man who gets the first one of my buggies will sell more for me. Now come on. My place of business is one-fourth of a mile west of T. J. Childress' toll-gate.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

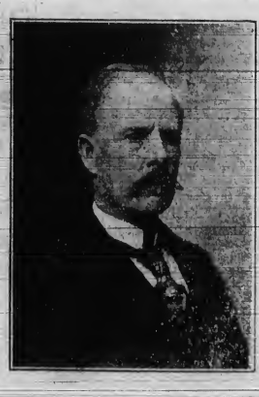
VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 14, 1901. NO. 43.

D. E. CASTLEMAN

Was born in Glencoe, Gallatin county, Kentucky, on November 28, 1858. He graduated from the Georgetown college in 1883, and from the Cincinnati Law School in 1885. He located in Burlington in 1894. His ability as a trial lawyer is recognized, and soon won for him a large and lucrative practice. He received the Democratic nomination for County Attorney at the primary election on the 6th day of last April, and was appointed County Attorney to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Judge Lassing, last May, to accept the appointment to the office of Circuit Judge. Mr. Castleman has stumped the county in the interest of his party in both State and National campaigns, and is a good campaigner. He was married to Miss Mary L. Hawkins, of Lawrenceburg, Ky., March 31, 1886. They have three interesting little girls, and occupy a pleasant home which Mr. Castleman erected a few years since just outside of town. Mr. Castleman is a member of the Baptist Church, and clerk of North Bend Association, and is very popular in church circles.

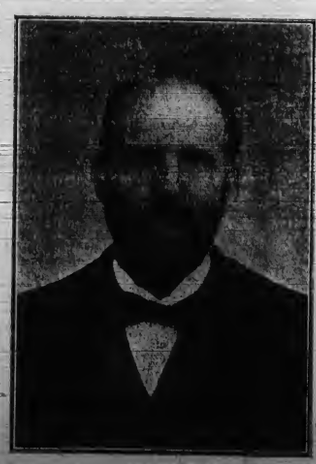
JUDGE JOHN M. LASSING

Is the youngest Circuit Judge Kentucky ever had. He is now serving under appointment by Gov. Beckham to fill the vacancy in that office, occasioned by the death of Judge John W. Greene, of Owenton. Judge Lassing is now the Democratic nominee for Circuit Judge, having been so declared a few days since under the order of the Judicial District Committee. Mr. Lassing has no equal as a political manager, in this part of the State, and very seldom has his plans along that line miscarried. So successful has he been in organizing for his political campaigns that he has never encountered opposition in his own party at the polls. He was serving his second term as county attorney when appointed to the judgship. Mr. Lassing will be 37 years old on the 9th day of November, next, and is the oldest child of Dr. H. C. and Mrs. Annie E. Lassing, of Union. He was married October 21st, 1891, to Miss Mary Lillard Brady, daughter of R. A. and Susan Brady. They have two bright little boys.



J. G. TOMLIN

Was born in Grant county this State 39 years ago. He received a good public school education, and afterwards attended the Vincennes, Indiana, High School, of which he is a graduate, and attended four years without missing a day. He studied under a private teacher at Terre Haute, Ind., one year, and was one year in college at Atlanta, Ga. He taught school in Gallatin county in 1884, and began at that time the study of law under the late J. J. Landram. After teaching 4½ years in this county, he served twenty-two months as Deputy Revenue Collector under Col. Landram. He was admitted to the bar in Grant county in '91, locating at Walton, of which town he is one of the most public spirited citizens, and always contributes liberally toward any enterprise that will redound to the interest of Walton. He is a good lawyer, a clever gentleman and a prompt, far-seeing business man. His wife was Miss Annie Herndon, of Bank Lick, Kenton county. They have a sprightly son, aged 8 years, and own and occupy one of the neatest residences in Walton. Mr. Tomlin is an influential Republican, and has been, in the past, his party's nominee for Commonwealth's Attorney, County Attorney and State Senator, and is now its nominee for county representative in the next General Assembly. In his 10 years' practice of his profession he has proven a formidable advocate and a faithful guardian of the interests of his numerous clients.



If that Minnesota man has really discovered a method whereby granulated sugar can be easily and cheaply made from the juice of the sorghum plant, as he claims, he will easily rank as one of the great inventors of the new century.
